LADY ASTOR CLAIMS COMMONS VICTORY BY 5000 VOTES.

Portland Again Drags Down De Valera's Traitor Flags.

AMERICAN TRIUMPHS.

Virginian Winner at British Polls.

Will be the First Woman to Get Seat in the House of Commons.

Pluck, Personality and Wit Bring in Votes for Clever Candidate.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PLYMOUTH (Engl.) Nov. 15.—Lady Astor tonight said she was confident she would have a plurality of at least 5000 when the result of today's parliamentary by-election in the Sutton division of Plymouth are announced November 28. More than 30,000 votes are believed to have been cast for the three candidates. She will be the first woman to sit in the House of Commons.

Lady Astor was early at the polls this morning to register a vote for herself before starting on a last brass-band tour of the district. Hundreds of women were among those who voted before noon, but the heaviest rush at the polls came after 4 o'clock this afternoon. The intense cold weather is believed to have kept many at home.

The three-cornered fight in which Lady Astor has been waging a hard fortnight against the Labor and Liberal candidates for the seat in the House of Commons made vivid by the elevation of her husband to the Peerage has awakened a wide popularity for this American woman. Her breezy oratory and vigorous campaign methods brought an immediate response, and she is expected to win the election. Lady Astor's name was more generally advertised in today's demonstrations than those of her opponents. She sped around the city today in an automobile waving greetings to crowds that responded with unprecedented enthusiasm. "Hurry up and vote for me," she admonished several stragglers to the polls.

KEEPS UP REPARTEE.

Although hoarse from her efforts yesterday and appearing tired and exhausted, the Viscountess nevertheless today kept up her constant stream of chatter and repartee. The smile never left her face all day long.

"I'm going to win," she reiterated at every street corner.

And though she probably will, she is not expected to command the generous plurality upon which she has been insisting.

"The world is watching this election," Lady Astor said again and again. "I don't want to go to Parliament with a skimpy majority. It would be a disgrace to Plymouth. I want a record majority."

LAST RAP AT HECKLERS.

Lady Astor met her opponents frequently today, but never did she clash with them without coming out on top. Again and again she crushed them in battle, and no heckler had a last say this day.

Isaac Foot, the Liberal candidate, drove about today in an open carriage with a pair of greys and frequently encountered Lady Astor's car in the narrow winding streets of the ancient town. W. T. Gay, the Labor candidate, gained a heavy vote from the stockyards district.

FOCH SEES END OF RED PERIL.

Says Bolshevism Is But a Symptom of Convalescence of the World From War's Fever and That Soon Society Will Recover Normal Strength.

BY MAZIE B. CLEMENS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, Nov. 5.—I do not know just what Gen. Pershing's home town out in Missouri intends to do to honor the returning hero when he makes his old-home-week call, but if they can tie the reception Marshal Ferdinand Foch got from the people of Tarbes, in that quaint corner of France, it ought to warm the cockles of Gen. Jack's heart. It seemed that all of Brittany was on fete in Tarbes when the generalissimo of the Allied armies came from his beautiful chateau at Pleuvjean to the city of his birth to receive the homage of the people.

The celebration naturally centered about the house in which Marshal Foch was born. It is a modest, narrow, three-story house in a narrow street which bears the pretentious name of the Rue de la Victoire. The house number is 2, and it is hardly a stone's throw from the railroad station. But neither the railroad nor the station was there when the event of such tremendous consequence to the world, the birth of the great soldier, came about, for a great tablet has been set in the wall of the house, upon which is inscribed: "In this house was born, 2d October, 1851, Ferdinand Foch, marshal of France and generalissimo of the armies of the republic and the Allied armies."

All the members of the Foch family were present. Then there were representatives of all the governments which fought by the side of France in the great struggle, who had come to join in the tribute to the leader of all.

The veteran marshal was deeply affected throughout by the affectionate homage which came to him, and especially by that of his neighbors, the people of his own kind, among whom he was born and among whom he dreamed his first dreams of what the future might hold in store for him.

I have never met many soldiers.

NO MORE UNIONS FOR TACOMA DRY DOCK MAN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TACOMA (Wash.) Nov. 15.—C. W. Wiley, president of the Todd Dry Dock and Construction Company, today issued from San Francisco an ultimatum to the 5600 striking employees of the company.

Mr. Wiley declined to leave the matter of an 8-cent-an-hour wage increase to arbitration, and declared the yards here will remain closed until all outside interference of union leaders is eliminated in Tacoma, and until radical trouble-makers at the plant are discharged.

PRINCE OF WALES IS ENJOYING VACATION.

DEFEATS SWIMMING MASTER IN DARING DIVES AT WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS (W. Va.) Nov. 15.—The Prince of Wales and his suite arrived here today for a three-day stay. The royal guest will remain incognito during his visit.

The Prince won his golfing match, played with Sir Godfrey Thomas, his private secretary, and again proved his title as an athlete when he turned a somersault from a plank form twelve feet high into seven feet of water in the swimming pool.

The desire of the royal visitor for three days' rest incognito was fulfilled only partially. The whole population of this little mountain resort was at the railroad station when his special train arrived, but the news of his intended visit had been kept carefully enough, so that only a handful of strangers were present.

At the hotel, where the Prince was lodged in the suite occupied by President Wilson on his honeymoon, there were scarcely 100 guests and through the day the Prince was able to move about with the freedom of a private individual.

The visit to the swimming pool was made after the Prince had spent the morning tramping over the mountains. Practically unrecognized, the royal bather laughingly challenged the professional swimmer in charge of the pool to a diving contest, and, according to the professional, beat him at his own game. The afternoon was spent in golf and in the evening the Prince witnessed a cinema show given in the hotel. He danced afterward until midnight.

Church is the only fixed item on tomorrow's programme, the royal visitor being scheduled to attend services at the Protestant Episcopal Church, where Bishop Gravatt of West Virginia, will preach the sermon.

PETROGRAD SURRENDER BELIEVED INEVITABLE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The fall of Petrograd to the anti-Bolshevik forces is reported in Swedish circles to be inevitable. The Swedish Red Cross is planning to cooperate with the Red Cross societies of Norway and Denmark when the city falls, under an agreement by which Norway would furnish medical supplies. Denmark will furnish food for the sick, and Sweden will undertake disinfection of the city.

COLD-BLOODED RED PLOT IN MASSACRE EXPOSED.

Centralia Slaughter of Overseas Veterans was Carefully Planned by I.W.W. for Weeks.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CENTRALIA (Wash.) Nov. 15.—Industrial Workers of the World planned the Centralia shooting three weeks before Armistice Day, according to an alleged confession by L. Roberts, confessed I.W.W. who surrendered himself following Tuesday's shooting, in which radicals killed four former American soldiers marching in the parade.

The alleged confession said the I. W. W. expected their hall would be attacked on Armistice Day. All the radicals who took part expected to be killed, the statement declared. According to Roberts's document, E. Wesley Everetts, the lynched I. W. W., apparently directed the movements of the radicals as he sent Roberts and two others to Seminary Hill near the scene of the shooting, with orders to "shoot when they shoot or when we heard shots."

Everetts, in the alleged confession, implicated several alleged Industrial Workers of the World who are in jail here and in near-by cities.

The alleged confession signed by Roberts and witnessed by Robert Jackson, a local police officer, and G. H. Lewis of Portland, Or., a member of the American Legion, follows:

PLOT EXPOSED.

"I was on top of a hill with a .22 high-power shooting into the street. I shot five shots. We started planning this three weeks ago, as we figured the I. W. W. were going to be attacked. Wesley Everetts sent me to the hill with two other men. I don't know both of their names, Hansen was the name of one. His right name is Loughteneff and he says he is a Finn. The I. W. W. furnished the guns. I used a .22 caliber high-power and Hanson used a .250 Savage. I don't know the name of the other man, but he wore a logger's shirt and blue overalls.

"We were sent up on the hill about 1 o'clock. Just before we went one man was put in the Avalon Hotel. I don't know his name, but he wore a brown suit, light mackinaw and he had a small light moustache. Everetts told us to shoot when they shot at us, or when we heard shots. Smith was to use a 32-20 revolver. We expected all to be killed and we done this with the intention of protecting our hall. I do not think that we got orders to do this from the outside but planned it among ourselves.

FIRED FIVE SHOTS.

"I don't know anything about any other plan or where men were to be put. Smith was to stay in the hall. I know O. C. Bland, Britt Smith, Roy Becker, Hansen, alias Loughteneff, the other fellow that was with us, and myself, took part in the shooting. After the shooting I went home and hid across the field from the house in the brush. The other two men went to a shack on Hansen's up at the head of the Sanford River. Hansen and the other man went together. We took the guns up in a suit case and Hansen carried the suit case. That was the suit case that was found up there.

[Signed] "L. ROBERTS.

"Witnesses:

MAY SELL BOOZE IN 1920.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The possibility that constitutional prohibition may not become effective for a year rests on the outcome of appeals filed in the United States Supreme Court today for a final decision on the Ohio referendum amendment, under which the people of that State declared against the dry forces last week. Ohio is the home of the Anti-Saloon League.

The Supreme Court has in other cases upheld the validity of the State referendum laws. If it makes the same decision in the present cases the process by which the State Legislature originally ratified the prohibition amendment will be invalidated.

As Ohio was one of the States making up the required number for the ratification of the prohibition amendment at the time Acting Secretary of State Frank L. Polk issued the proclamation, the validity of his action also is placed in question. It might become necessary, therefore, to issue a new proclamation, and in this event constitutional prohibition could not become effective for another year.

The appeals involving the Ohio referendum were filed today by G. S. Hawke, an attorney of Cincinnati, in proceedings brought by him to enjoin the State officials from submitting the Federal woman suffrage amendment to the voters.

ALL WYOMING MINES OPEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—All coal mines in Wyoming will be in full operation Monday, Gov. Carey telegraphed to Atty.-Gen. Palmer. Gov. Carey's messages said all State locals had signed the wage agreement.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 15.—Probability of arrests in connection with the government's injunction proceedings against the United Mine Workers of America, and the issuance of seven orders by the Indiana Public Service Commission for the curtailment of fuel consumption in the State, were the outstanding features in the coal situation here today.

In connection with the probable arrests it was learned Federal agents are gathering evidence of reported violation of the injunction with a view to preferring charges of contempt of court.

According to information received by these agents, meetings have been held in different sections of the country at which the miners voted not to return to work even though the strike order had been rescinded by union officials. This action, it was pointed out, constitutes a violation of the Lever Act, for, as interpreted by Federal Judge A. B. Anderson, any two miners who agreed not to return to work would be guilty of conspiracy to limit production of fuel.

LEADERS AT MEETINGS.

It also was reported that some of the leaders against whom the injunction was directed, specifically had attended the meetings.

In addition to this information it has been reported that petitions have been circulated among the miners for signatures to a statement agreeing not to obey the order rescinding the strike. This, it was stated, would constitute an express violation of the injunction, intended to prevent any action to encourage the strike.

TROOPS FOR PARIS RIOTERS.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Nov. 15.—Numerous bodies of French troops have been arriving in Paris for the last several days, not entirely without ostentation. Several times each day bands parade the streets, escorting the arriving regiments from railway stations to the various barracks in Paris. The troops wear helmets and march in full fighting equipment. Even at night the companies and battalions arrive by rail and motor trucks.

There is widespread talk of demonstrations and possibly riots during Saturday, Sunday and Monday while the French elections are in progress, even until Wednesday, by which time it is expected the results will be known.

Between fifty and a hundred different strikes are in progress in Paris today. Thousands of factories in the suburbs have been forced to shut down on account of the coal scarcity.

The result of this forced inactivity has been that for the last week Paris had been jammed. The subways, busses, taxis and all means of transportation have been packed.

By reason of the newspaper strike, which put every newspaper in Paris out of existence, excepting the Paris edition of the Tribune, the public has been misinformed, save by rumor, concerning the grave conditions existing. Socialist posters are appearing on billboards, making serious charges against the present government.

GLASS IS APPOINTED VIRGINIA'S SENATOR.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

RICHMOND (Va.) Nov. 15.—Appointment of Secretary Glass to the United States Senate to succeed the late Thomas S. Martin, and acceptance of Mr. Glass were announced tonight by Larcy Hodges, aide to Gov. Davis.

Senator Martin had just been reelected and his term does not expire until 1925. The election of Senators by popular vote, however, leaves the Governor power to fill the vacancy until the electorate can do so.

Mr. Glass lives in Lynchburg, not far from Mr. Martin's home in Charlottesville. He was a member of Congress before taking the Treasury portfolio.

CALIFORNIA AUDITORS ASK JAP LEGISLATION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 15.—Among resolutions passed upon by the California Press Association at its convention today was one asking Gov. Stephens to call a special session of the Legislature to consider the Japanese question in all its phases. The resolution was offered by State Senator W. R. Sharkey of Martinez, and was adopted unanimously.

The questions of "picture brides" and Japanese land holding corporations were among those which the resolution asked to have investigated.

Regarding the Alien Land Leasing Act, it was suggested that the act be amended by extending its provisions to prevent the children of aliens ineligible to citizenship from owning land in California.

State Adopts New Arithmetic Text

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 15.—The State Board of Education adopted today for use in the California elementary schools an arithmetic compiled by Prof. Edward Thorndyke, of Nebraska University. Adoption is for a term of four years.

BULLETINS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TACOMA, Nov. 15.—A posse of ex-service men and I.W.W. clashed tonight in Hannaford Valley, about twelve miles northeast of Centralia, and the posse was routed, a telephone message to the Ledger from Centralia stated at 10:15 o'clock tonight. One man, John Haney, Thurston county game warden, is missing and is believed to have been killed. A new posse is forming at Centralia and will return to the valley tonight.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Before adjournment of the special session Congressional leaders agreed tonight to adopt a resolution extending to January 15 the government's control over imports of dyestuffs. Without the legislation, according to its proponents, Germany would be able to flood the American market with dyes as soon as the peace treaty has been ratified.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 15.—Clinton W. Arason of Connecticut and Albert P. Coyle of California, Y.M.C.A. secretaries who were captured by the Reds in the Lake Onega district last July, may soon be released. With this end in view two Y.M.C.A. officials arrived today in an effort to meet representatives of the Bolshevik government.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 15.—The evacuation of the city by the Rumanian troops was completed last night. The Hungarian troops of Admiral Horthy received an ovation this morning upon entering the city, which is controlled by the municipal guard, commanded by Col. Yates of the American army.

EL PASO, Nov. 15.—Twenty-seven Mexican soldiers and five civilian passengers were killed during the hold-up of a train en route to Mexico City from Guadalajara recently.

CALL FOR FEDERAL LAWS TO CURB REDS.

MAYOR OF PORTLAND, OR., APPEALS TO NATIONAL SENATE FOR AID.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Declaring the public inflamed against the activities of radicals and the situation serious, Mayor Baker of Portland, Or., and chairman of the league of Mayors, telegraphed Vice-President Marshall today urging Federal legislation to meet the situation.

"An appeal is made to the members of the Senate," said Mr. Baker, "to consider at once national legislation to enable the arrest and conviction of persons, alien or otherwise, preaching disruption of the government of the United States or violence or disloyalty to this country. The troubles of late, and notably the affair at Centralia on Armistice Day, are due to the growing boldness of this element.

"The situation is so serious and the public is so inflamed against this element that law enforcing agencies should have iron-clad Federal laws under which they can operate in ridding our communities of this element."

TREATY IS NEAR A RATIFICATION

All but Two of Reservations are Adopted.

Cloture Rule is Invoked for First Time by Senate.

Work of Speeding up Means a Rapid Termination.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—After adopting all but two of the committee reservations to the peace treaty, the Senate today adjourned until Monday. The remaining two reservations were unacted upon, but all through the day committee reservations had been added with substantial majorities.

Working under cloture for the first time in history, the Senate adopted in five hours, ten more of the reservations written by the Foreign Relations Committee, and, with only two committee proposals remaining set the parliamentary stage for a decision or a deadlock on the treaty early next week.

Not least significant of the day's developments, in the view of Senators looking forward to a complex parliamentary snarl before final action on the treaty is reached, was a ruling by Vice-President Marshall just preceding the cloture vote. He held that, should the administration Senators vote down ratification with reservations, as they intend to do, they will have an opportunity later to get action on a compromise ratification resolution.

END OF FIGHT NEAR.

Although many reservations proposed by individual Senators will come to a vote after the committee list is finished, leaders were confident tonight that the end of the treaty fight was a question of a very few days.

The forensic proclivities of the Senate, which have held sway unbridled through more than six months of treaty discussion, died hard.

In the first hour of the session, before the cloture motion came to a vote automatically under a petition filed Thursday, Senators contended for the privilege of having a last word.

A new flood of proposed reservations and amendments poured in. Presentation of these, Senators knew, would be closed by cloture.

To cope with the problem of timekeeping a rush order was sent for preparation of a feature new to the government printing office—a Senatorial game sheet. It was scanned anxiously tonight by Senators who got into the day's debate.

DEMOCRATIC HOPES.

The Democrats tonight stood by their determination not to let the reservations get into the final ratification, and declared they were firm in their intention to vote against the committee's ratification resolution.

The Republican leaders laid plans for failure of the treaty, party managers announcing in the House that it might be necessary for Congress to remain after the treaty fight was over in order to declare a state of peace by joint resolution.

Four of the twelve Democrats who helped put the reservations through voted with the Republicans on every one of the ten proposals considered during the day. They were Senators Reed, Missouri; Gore, Oklahoma; Shields, Tennessee, and Walsh, Massachusetts. Senator Smith, Georgia, voted for six of the committee's measures; Senator Thomas, Colorado, for five; Senators Chamberlain, Oregon, and Trammell, Florida, for two each, and Senators Owen, Oklahoma; King, Utah; Kirby, Arkansas, and Myers, Montana, for one each.

CLOTURE ADOPTED.

A cloture to shut down debate on the peace treaty was adopted early in the session. Republican and Democratic leaders voted together for the cloture, which means that until the treaty is disposed of no Senator may speak in all more than one hour. It was estimated that the step would bring final action within a week. The vote adopting the cloture was 78 to 16.

SETS A PRECEDENT.

The action, invoking cloture for the first time in the Senate's history, resulted in an immediate speeding up of the reservation programme, the next reservation on the committee list being adopted within one minute without debate or roll call. It related to mandates.

The text of the reservation adopted follows:

"No mandate shall be accepted by the United States under Article XXII, Part 1, or any other provision of the treaty of peace with Germany, except by action of the Congress of the United States."

OFFERS SUBSTITUTES.

When the Senate met, Democratic Leader Hitchcock presented several substitutes for committee reservations to the peace treaty so as to have them within the rules, which provide that no amendments or substitutes can be offered once cloture becomes effective.

Among the measures Senator Hitchcock presented was a resolution for ratification without reservations. He put in also a ratification reservation embodying "as part of the ratification" the five substitute reservations offered by him several days ago. Those reservations provide:

HITCHCOCK'S PLAN.

That the United States would be the sole judge whether its obligations were fulfilled if it withdrew from league membership.

That no question which the United States considers domestic in character could come before the league; that the Monroe Doctrine should not in any way be impaired or affected.

That the council's recommendations under Article X shall be considered as "merely advice."

That no dominion or colony shall vote in any league dispute to which any sister dominion or colony is a party.

In addition, Senator Hitchcock presented a new substitute for the Article X reservation already adopted by the Senate. It proposes that the United States "does not assume any obligations" regarding the article's guarantees until in any particular case Congress shall so provide. The language is much the same as that of the reservation adopted.

WANTS PREAMBLE OUT.

Notice was given by Mr. Hitchcock that he would later move to strike out the preamble requirement that the reservation must be accepted by three great powers.

A parliamentary jam developed when Vice-President Marshall undertook to state his construction of the cloture rule. Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, made a point of order contending that the chair should put the motion.

LA FOLLETTE FAILS.

The objection was overruled, Senator La Follette appealed from the decision, and Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, moved to lay the appeal on the table.

Senator La Follette's effort to cut off the Vice-President's ruling was tabled, sixty-two to thirty, all of the latter being cast by Republicans, while eighten Republicans joined the Democrats in sustaining the Vice-President.

The Vice-President ruled when one resolution of ratification had been rejected it was possible, if a majority desired, to take up another in the hope of a final compromise. The decision bore out the stand of administration Senators who hoped to bring action on a resolution of their own after defeating that containing the committee reservations.

QUOTES CONSTITUTION.

Quoting from the Constitution, the Vice-President held that the right of the Senate to advise and consent in the making of treaties could not be taken away by any strained construction of Senate rules.

"As long as a majority of Senators want to try to ratify in some way," said the Vice-President, "the majority of the Senate has the power to act. Adoption of the cloture rule will not prevent a majority from attempting to ratify the treaty in some way, although it will end the debate within the time provided by the rule."

The committee reservation relating to domestic questions then was adopted.

REJECT SUBSTITUTE.

In taking up the committee reservation relative to retention by this government of control over domestic questions, the Senate, by a vote of 52 to 43, rejected a substitute proposed by Senator Hitchcock.

The vote adopting the reservation of domestic questions was 59 to 36, all opponents being Democrats. The Republicans in favor of the reservations were joined by nine Democrats, Chamberlain, Gore, King, Reed, Shields, Smith, Georgia; Thomas, Trammel and Walsh, Massachusetts.

RESERVATION TEXT.

The reservation follows:

"The United States reserves to itself exclusively the right to decide what questions are within its domestic jurisdiction and declares that all domestic and political questions relating wholly or in part to its internal affairs, including immigration, labor, coastwise traffic, the tariff, commerce, the suppression of traffic in women and children and in opium and other dangerous drugs, and all other domestic questions, and all questions affecting the present boundaries of the United States and its insular and other possessions are solely within the jurisdiction of the United States and are not under this treaty to be submitted in any way either to arbitration or to consideration of the Council or of the Assembly of the League of Nations, or any agency thereof, or to the decision or recommendation of any other power."

ADOPT AMENDMENTS.

An amendment to the committee reservation so as to make it include questions regarding boundaries of the United States and its possessions was adopted, 53 to 40, with party lines on both sides divided.

Taking up the committee's Monroe Doctrine reservation, the Senate voted down, 51 to 43, a substitute by Democratic Leader Hitchcock to declare the doctrine in no way "impaired or affected" by the treaty. Only two Democrats, Senator Reed, Missouri, and Shields, Tennessee, stood with the Republicans for the committee draft.

REJECT PITTMAN PLAN.

Another substitute for the committee's Monroe Doctrine reservation, offered by Senator Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, proposing that the United States reserve for its disposal any question raised under the Monroe Doctrine, also was voted down, 52 to 42.

The committee's Monroe Doctrine reservation was adopted by a vote of 55 to 33.

The roll call revealed the greatest Democratic strength yet shown for any part of the reservation programme, nine Democrats voting for adoption. They were: Chamberlain, Oregon; Gore, Oklahoma; Kirby, Arkansas; Owen, Oklahoma; Reed, Missouri; Shields, Tennessee; Thomas, Colorado; Trammell, Florida, and Walsh, Massachusetts.

TEXT AS ADOPTED.

The Monroe Doctrine reservation as adopted follows:

"The United States will not submit to arbitration or to inquiry by the Assembly or by the council of the League of Nations, provided for in said treaty of peace, any questions which in the judgment of the United States depend upon or relate to its long established policy, commonly known as the Monroe Doctrine, said doctrine is to be interpreted by the United States alone and is hereby declared to be wholly outside the jurisdiction of said League of Nations and entirely unaffected by any provision contained in the said treaty of peace with Germany."

SHANTUNG VOTE.

The Shantung reservation was adopted without change. A substitute by Senator Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, was defeated, 50 to 39.

On the Shantung reservation the vote was 53 to 41. Five Democrats, Gore, Reed, Shields, Thomas and Walsh, Massachusetts, voted with the Republicans for adoption and one Republican, McCumber, voted with the opposing Democrats.

The text of the Shantung reservation follows:

"The United States withholds its assent to Articles CLVI, CLVII and CLVIII and reserves full liberty of action with respect to any controversy which may arise under said articles between the republic of China and the empire of Japan."

AS TO COMMISSIONS.

The reservation giving Congress authority to regulate appointment of American delegates to the League and to international commissions, also was adopted.

The vote on the reservation was 53 to 40, Senators Gore, Reed, Shields, Smith, Georgia and Walsh, Massachusetts, Democrats, voting with the Republicans.

Without debate the next reservation was agreed to. It reads:

"The United States understands that the Reparation Commission will regulate or interfere with exports from the United States to Germany, or from Germany to the United States, only when the United States by act or joint resolution of Congress approves such regulation or interference."

The vote on the reservation regarding American expert control was 54 to 40, with five Democrats, Gore, Reed, Shields, Smith, Georgia, and Walsh, Massachusetts, supporting the Republicans.

LEAGUE EXPENSES.

The next reservation, relating to expenses of the League of Nations, also was adopted without debate. The vote was 56 to 39, with Senators Gore, Reed, Shields, Smith, Georgia; Thomas and Walsh, Massachusetts, voting with the Republicans.

The text follows:

"The United States shall not be obligated to contribute to any expenses of the League of Nations, or of the secretariat, or of any commission, or committee, or conference, or other agency organized under the League of Nations or under the treaty or for the purpose of carrying out the treaty provisions, unless and until an appropriation of funds available for that expense has been made by the Congress of the United States."

The reservation on the provision regarding amendments, as adopted, follows:

AS TO ARMAMENT.

"If the United States shall at any time adopt any plan for the limitation of armaments proposed by the Council of the League of Nations under the provisions of Article VIII, it reserves the right to increase such armaments without the consent of the Council whenever the United States is threatened with invasion or engaged in war."

The armament reservation was approved, 56 to 39, with the following Democrats voting in its support: Gore, Myers, Reed, Shields, Smith, Georgia; Thomas and Walsh Massachusetts.

The reservation on economic boycotts, as adopted, follows:

"The United States reserves the right to permit, in its discretion, the nationals of a covenant-breaking state, as defined in Article XVI of the covenant of the League of Nations, residing within the United States or in countries other than that violating said Article XVI, to continue their commercial, financial and personal relations with the nations of the United States."

ALIEN PROPERTY.

The vote on this reservation was 53 to 41. Senators Gore, Reed Shields, Smith, Georgia; and Walsh, Massachusetts, all Democrats, voted for it.

The reservation relating to enemy alien property reads:

"Nothing in Articles CCLXLVI, CCLVVII or in any of the annexes thereto or in any other article, section or annex of the treaty of peace with Germany shall, as against citizens of the United States, be taken to mean any confirmation, ratification or approval of any act otherwise illegal or in contravention of the rights of citizens of the United States."

The vote on this was 52 to 41 with Senators Reed, Shields, Gore and Walsh, Massachusetts, again lining up with the Republicans.

WILSON SHOWS DECIDED GAINS.

President Now Permitted to Sit in Sunshine of White House Portico.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—President Wilson in the last two weeks has made "remarkable improvement," Dr. Francis X. Dercum of Philadelphia told Dr. Grayson today after paying his weekly visit to the White House.

Late yesterday the President was permitted to sit for a short time on the south portico. He seemed so benefited that Dr. Grayson expects to repeat the treatment.

Some executive business was brought before the President today.

was one of the ten prisoners charged here yesterday with murder in the first degree. It was said tonight that County Attorney Allen and C. D. Cunningham, his special assistant, since have obtained a more detailed confession from Roberts.

Seminary Hill, which Roberts mentions in the confession, lies not far from the street corner near which Tuesday's shooting occurred. After the attack a small boy reported he saw three men on the hill during the parade. They were shooting toward town, he told the police. Later the boy found the suit case mentioned in the statement.

BLAND WOMAN DEFIANT.

Several American Legion members today went to the homes here of "Commodore" Bland, alleged I.W.W. held in jail in connection with the Armistice Day shooting. When Mrs. Bland opened the door to meet them she pointed a revolver in their faces, witnesses said. At the same time, it was asserted, a man ran out of the back door of the home and dashed over a near-by hill.

The former soldiers gave chase. Persons in the vicinity said they heard shots soon after from across the hill. No details were received here tonight regarding the affair.

ABERDEEN (Wash.) Nov. 15.—Lon Roberts, an I.W.W. and comrade of Commodore and Bert Bland, the latter of whom, a fugitive from justice, is alleged to have fired the shot that killed Warren Grimm in the Armistice Day massacre, was arrested, together with twenty other alleged I.W.W., in raids early yesterday upon three camps of the Saginaw Timber Company, near Elma, this county. Bert Bland is said to have been captured, according to word received here, on the Bland homestead near Centralia. The report is not yet confirmed.

himself to support the government for which he fought and called upon the citizens of Los Angeles to give this same support or "get out of the way."

Buron Fitts, first vice-president of the American Legion, State organization, was the first speaker. "The American Legion stands for Americanism," he said. "The I.W.W., with the lie on their lips and murder in their hearts, must be exterminated," he declared. "We have fought and have made the world safe for democracy and we are now going to make America safe for Americans. In this nation of ours there is no room for Bolshevism or the like. There is but one issue, and it is pure, unadulterated, 100 per cent. Americanism," he told the audience of several thousands, who cheered him and the other speakers.

FOR LANDLORDS.

The landlords of Los Angeles must be made to realize that they cannot rent their property to the I.W.W. or similar trouble-breeding organizations, and the authorities must find a way to abate "these places as public nuisances, Mr. Fitts declared.

Col. Arthur Williams, United States Army, retired, brought cheer after cheer when he urged the crowd to preserve what the "boys over there" fought for and to support law and order and the Constitution of the United States. "I speak to you as Americans only. I don't wish to speak to the others. We don't defy them. We despise them," he said.

J. H. Merrill, member of the Executive Committee of the Los Angeles Post of the American Legion, struck the keynote of the event when he said he wanted the enemies of the government and law and order to take warning. "We are going to rid this city of these undesirables. I want you men to stand back of us, or get out of the way," he called out to the crowd.

John S. Cooper, the next speaker, told the audience to watch the American Legion. "We are going to work fast from now on. There was some fast work done last night. Nobody knows who did it, but it was done," he said, while the crowd cheered continually. "If it be needed that force be met with force, we are ready to do our duty," he added.

TWO ARRESTS.

Some excitement was added to the event when two suspected sympathizers of the I.W.W. were heard to make slurring remarks about the speakers. One of the two left a once, traveling at high speed and followed by a crowd. He was caught at Sixth street and Broadway but was not badly manhandled. The second man was gathered in by Detectives Cornwall and Brown and American Legion members. Both were booked at the Central Police Station as vagrants, with a possibility that the charges will be changed to criminal syndicalism later on.

Among the interested onlookers was Dan Chandler, said by the police to be the "boy orator of the I.W.W." and one of the sixteen men indicted by the grand jury under the criminal syndicalism act. He is now out on bail, pending his trial. When one of the speakers asked any one in sympathy with the I.W.W. to come forward, the "silver-tongued" orator remained silent. When the meeting was over, Chandler was seen making his way out of the crowd, trying hard to look like an Iowa tourist.

The meeting was closed with a prayer led by Chaplain Robert Williams of the Twenty-sixth Infantry, a member of the American Legion.

NOT CLASS WAR.

"This is a moral issue. Don't let any one tell you this is a class war. If it is a class struggle, then it is the struggle between the ones who believe in Americanism and the enemies of the government," he said and as he spoke the opening words of the prayer, every head in the audience was bared and a solemn hush fell over the men and women as they listened to the words that asked for wisdom and support for the good of the country, God and humanity.

Throughout the meeting, members of the American Legion and the audience held up banner signs that read:

"We are Pledged to the Support of Law and Order." "We are Pledged to Uphold and Support the Constitution of the United States." "We are Pledged to Make Right Master Might." "We are Pledged to Foster and Perpetuate the Work of Americanism."

The two prisoners who were taken to the station by members of the American Legion and the police gave their names as Jack Ravish and Fred E. Martin. The latter says he is a discharged soldier and denied he is an I.W.W.

LEGION ENROLLS THOUSAND MORE.

Service Men Rush to Answer Call for Drill Against Red Emergency.

More than 1000 members were added to the American Legion yesterday as the result of the first day of the drive for membership of the organization. From the early-morning hours till late in the evening former service men crowded the membership office in the Alexandria Hotel, with the result that an increase of more than 3000 is expected in the next few days.

"The American Legion is sending out a call for every man to show his colors. This is the time when Americanism counts," Russell N. Lockwood of the Membership Committee said yesterday. "We are going to keep open Sunday and Sunday night, and expect to have 3000 men for drill Tuesday night at the Exposition Park armory."

John S. Cooper, Harry L. Suydam, Lewis B. Collings and Joseph Roof are the other members of the committee.

HEARST PAPER BIBLE TO YOUNG BOLSHEVIK.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY EXPELLED AS A "RED" INSPIRED BY CHICAGO "EXAMINER."

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—"I didn't get my Socialistic ideas from school," said Viola Struve, the 18-year-old student of Crane Technical High School junior college today, when she was asked about the events that led to the suspension of her brother, Alfred, 19 years of age, and Jacob Sacks, another student, 19, from that institution on an accusation of being radicals.

"Sure, I am a Socialist. I got it from reading Marx and Liebknecht and the speeches of Mayor Thompson. But most of it I got from Jack London. Oh, yes, Jack London did more to make me a Socialist than anyone else."

"What daily paper did you read for your ideas and news of the war and the events connected with it?"

"The Hearst Herald-Examiner."

REFUSES SOLDIERS' HONOR.

Alfred had been suspended from Crane because of his specific refusal to face east on Armistice Day in memory of the dead soldiers in France.

When this matter was commented upon, Viola declared that Alfred and Jacob Sacks had obtained permission from Dean Hertlage to be excused from the ceremony, and they did not understand why they were afterward haled before Principal W. J. Bartholdt and suspended for this refusal.

"Alfred would have to speak for himself," declared Viola. "As for myself, I had no objection to the ceremony. I had some good friends who went to France and died in the war. And I believe that the boys there died in a good cause, and that was the overthrow of kings and autocracy. That is the first thing that should be done—destroy the kings and autocrats."

"But what else?" was asked. "Are you what is called a 'Red,' and do you believe in the overthrow of the American government?"

WANTS PROPERTY SEIZED.

The student-Socialist laughed and stopped her dusting to go and get a much-marked copy of Emerson out of her bookcase.

"No, I am not a 'Red,' for the Socialists do not believe in the destruction of property, but its seizure for common use."

And then she spoke slowly and shrewdly, as if weighing her words.

"I believe in the peaceful evolution of government to some form that will be much better for the people than it is now. I have gone to Socialistic meetings with my brothers, where we heard this advocated. Now, if it is possible to punish us for our ideas, then we will have to be."

LEGION ACTS AGAINST NONPARTISAN LEAGUE.

KANSAS GOVERNOR GETS RESOLUTION OF PROTEST FROM POST AT ST. JOHN.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) Nov. 15.—The first organized movement against the Nonpartisan League in Kansas has been taken by the American Legion Post at St. John, Kansas.

It was at Stafford, in the same county, that a group of returned soldiers raided a Nonpartisan League organization meeting last week and carried off the chairman of the meeting by mistake, when they expected to drive the organizer out of town.

Gov. Allen received yesterday a copy of a resolution adopted by the Courtney M. Long Post of the American Legion at St. John. The resolution said:

"Whereas, the officials of the Nonpartisan League have been known and proved to be disloyal to the government of the United States, thereby giving aid and comfort to our enemies and increasing our dangers and the sacrifices of those who worked for us at home; now therefore be it

"Resolved, by the members of the American Legion that we refuse to work for or to aid any farmer or other person known to us to be a member of the Nonpartisan League or any other disloyal organization."

The resolution further provides that the members of the Legion will discourage anyone else working for Nonpartisan League members. It is provided also that in the event any farmer has joined, and has cancelled his membership, the ban does not apply.

NEW CHINESE PREMIER FACES CABINET FIGHT.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PEKING, Nov. 14.—Ching Tuang-Peng, the new Premier, is experiencing difficulty in the formation of a Cabinet, owing to the opposition of the Anfu Club, which wishes its representatives included.

The keenest fight is proceeding over the Ministry of Finance. The Premier has nominated Chow Tsechi, who is acceptable to the President and also enjoys the confidence of American bankers. Without him it is feared no American gold would be forthcoming.

—one of the world's greatest pianists, who will play in concert with the Philharmonic Orchestra at Trinity Auditorium, Friday afternoon, November 21st, and Saturday evening, November 22nd, will be heard in Tschaikowsky's concerto for the piano. Los Angeles music lovers will not fail to take advantage of this opportunity of hearing one of the world's most notable masters of the piano. Mr. Ganz, like Hofmann, Paderewski and other great pianists, makes records of his playing exclusively for

The DUO-ART Reproducing Piano

Mr. Ganz says of his Duo-Art rolls: "These records are my own performances. Anyone who has heard me play would instantly recognize these reproductions. The climaxes are worked up just as I played them. The distinction between voices, between theme and accompaniment are practically perfect. My most personal ways are exactly duplicated. If anyone criticises it, he criticises my playing." And as Mr. Ganz further says, "Instead of feeding upon concert memories, those who love music may actually hear their favorite interpretations whenever they wish" with a Duo-Art in their home. To a friend of his (the Swiss Ambassador at Washington) who had purchased a Duo-Art, Mr. Ganz wrote, "It is with pleasure I look forward to being in your home indirectly, for with this new instrument I can have the privilege of playing for you whenever you like, even though I am not with you in person." The Duo-Art is also a Pianola through which you can express your own feelings and interpretations. It is likewise a fine Piano for hand playing. Made in the Steinway, Steck, Wheelock, Stroud and famous Weber piano models—both grands and uprights. Prices range from $850 to $3475 (for the foot-blown models—$1200 to $4350 (for the electrically propelled styles.) Very liberal monthly terms.

Mr. Ganz uses the Steinway Piano exclusively.

BALDNESS

Is rapidly increasing—says Prof. John H. Austin, Chicago's bacteriologist, hair and scalp specialist of 40 years' practice

Scientific research has revealed that in many, many, cases baldness is directly or indirectly caused by ALOPECIA PITYRODES—a very common scalp trouble.

It starts with a scaling of the scalp, sometimes slight, called "dandruff," sometimes abundant—producing thick, grayish white, dry or greasy scales—which leads to falling of the hair.

At first, when the hair starts to fall, it is hardly noticeable, but as this ailment, "Alopecia Pityrodes," becomes more deeply seated, and the germs multiply, as they always do, the falling of the hair increases rapidly and in time the top of the head becomes entirely bald. Both men and women of all ages of life are subject to Alopecia Pityrodes, but particularly those between the ages of 20 and 35 years.

If your hair is falling out, if your scalp itches, or if you have oily hair, gray or faded hair, dry and brittle hair—you should call at Hamburger's and take advantage of the FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATION of the hair and scalp by Prof. Austin—this will show the cause and the right treatment will be suggested.

Prof. Austin says that the use of mange cures, dandruff cures, hair tonics, vaseline and elixirs is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

During the past four years Prof. Austin has taught thousands of Hamburger's patrons how to save their hair.

Both men and women should take advantage of the FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATIONS this week. Private offices, second floor, Hamburger's. Hours, 10 to 12 and 2 to 4 daily.

AN INTERESTING ITEM ABOUT STEWART THE SQUARE TAILOR

An interesting item about Stewart the Square Tailor's establishment is the regular receipts of clothing materials direct from the mills. Because of this feature and also because of low rent and reduced overhead charges, it is entirely possible to make a splendidly made-to-measure suit from his $50 fabrics at as low as a ready-made suit; namely—

No two men are alike, so have a suit made to your individual fit and personal idea of suit ability.

SMALL NATIONS LOOKING TO US.

Plan Permanent Delegations in Washington.

Want to Keep Home Problems Before World.

See no Hope in Europe After Peace Conference.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS Nov. 14.—Washington will become the center where delegations from small nations will congregate after the present Peace Conference breaks up.

Representatives of the Balkan states and other newly-created nations are ready, arranging to proceed to the United States to establish headquarters at the American capital to keep in touch with future activity that may affect their countries.

The Albanians, for example, will send a mission to Washington to keep up a fight against Albania being awarded to Italy as a mandate, as it is decided that the Adriatic question will not be settled by the present supreme council.

VENIZELOS MAY COME.

The Greeks may decide to send Premier Venizelos to Washington to argue the Thrace question, which will not be further discussed in Paris.

The Polish delegation will go to Washington to bring pressure upon Americans for American help to Poland and the Czecho-Slovaks and Jugo-Slavs both are arranging to have a delegation in the American capital to watch out for their interests.

The Italians and Rumanians are contemplating the establishment of a propaganda bureau in America, as they both assert they are misrepresented in the United States and don't want to jeopardize American good will.

Washington will be the only place where the little powers can keep in touch with what is going on after the Supreme Council dissolves early in December. Thereafter the various questions being discussed will go through Foreign Office channels and will be transmitted to various embassies for the ambassadors to discuss.

KEPT IN DARK.

Thus, in London or Paris, for instance, the Jugo-Slavs would know nothing about what the French and Italians were discussing concerning the Adriatic, except what the French Foreign Office cared to give out, which, from past performances, would be very meager communiques.

The little nation's delegation believes that in Washington they will be kept informed as to what propositions are being discussed on the problems that affect them.

MOVE FOR GAS CONSERVATION.

State Railroad Commission Opening Inquiry Into Local Resources.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 15.—Investigation by the State Railroad Commission of the natural-gas resources in Southern California and manufactured gas supplies in Kern, Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside counties "to bring about conservation and insure an adequate supply" was announced by the commission here today. Representatives of the Midway, Southern California and Southern Counties Gas companies and the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation were directed to appear before E. O. Edgerton, president of the commission in Los Angeles, Wednesday, December 3, to lay before him the evidence desired.

The commission is conducting the investigation on its own motion, it was announced.

WOULD CONDEMN CITY STRIKE INDORSEMENT.

SAN FRANCISCO BUSINESS MEN RESENT ACTION OF BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 15.—A resolution condemning the action of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors in indorsing the nation-wide coal strike by official vote was presented to representatives of twenty-one business organizations for their ratification here today. It was planned to have representatives of these organizations present at the Supervisors' meeting on Monday, when the strike-indorsement resolution will come up again under a reconsideration motion.

Among the organizations to whom the resolution was presented were the San Francisco Real Estate Board, Chamber of Commerce, Commonwealth Club, Advertising Club, American Legion, Rotary Club, Downtown Association, Lafayette Club and a number of trade organizations.

STATE BRANDS RENT INCREASE A HOLD-UP.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 15.—The State of California has been hit by the rent increase wave that is sweeping the State. Owners of the Forum Building in which more than 100 State officers are housed waiting construction of the Capitol extension buildings, today made a demand upon the board of control for a 40 per cent. increase in rent. The present monthly rental for the offices is approximately $3000.

"The demand is a plain 'hold-up,'" declared H. Stanley Benedict of Los Angeles, a member of the board of control. "We certainly will not agree to any such increase. If the owners had asked for a 10 per cent. increase we might look favorably upon the proposition in view of the increased expense in operation."

The owners of the building informed the board that it must meet the increase rent demand before they will give the State a new lease on the offices.

LIQUOR DECISIONS SOON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 15. — Federal Judges Carpenter and Fitzhenry announced today that their decisions on the injunction proceedings brought by Chicago and Peoria (Ill.) liquor dealers to restrain Federal officials from enforcing the provisions of the war-time prohibition law will not be delivered until some time next week.

IMPERIAL VALLEY MEN TOO LATE FOR ACTION.

ADVOCATES OF IRRIGATION PROJECT JUST ARRIVING IN WASHINGTON.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Just as Congress is adjourning—or at least the House of Representatives is preparing to go home—a new committee from the Imperial Valley is expected to arrive here tomorrow to urge irrigation legislation for the valley. Congressman Kettner is in San Diego and will not return here until about the first of the year and most of the other California Congressmen have their tickets bought and reservations tentatively made to leave either tomorrow, Sunday or Monday night, depending on the hour of passage of the railroad bill. Congressman Kahn expects to leave tomorrow, Congressman Elston Sunday night and Congressman Osborne either Sunday or Monday night. The Imperial people are arriving at a bad time for any prompt action and they will be unable to take the plans of the valley up with any officials for several weeks. As a matter of fact little legislative business will be transacted, after the passage in the House of the Esch bill and in the Senate the ratification of the treaty, until after New Year's.

W. B. Matthews, special City Attorney for Los Angeles, left for home today after several weeks in a vain attempt to have the Public Lands Committee of the Senate report favorably the bill granting the city increased rights for power and water lines in the Angeles forest reserves. Much progress has been made, but realizing that there will be no further action on this subject at the special session of Congress, Mr. Matthews is returning. He will come to Washington again as soon as the committee is ready to take up the water and power rights bill again.

The Interior Department has made a recommendation to the committee favorable to Los Angeles, and while it is not all that the friends of Los Angeles want it is probable that the bill as passed will be along the lines suggested by the department.

CAN GET TO HAWAII ONLY VIA NEW YORK.

LOS ANGELES MAN HAS TO ADD 6000 MILES TO TRIP GET PASSAGE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Because of government action in taking many American ships from the Pacific, passenger service travel between the Pacific Coast, the Philippines and the Far East has become increasingly difficult.

E. D. Orchard of Los Angeles, stopping at the McAlpin Hotel, says it was necessary for him to come to New York from Los Angeles to book passage for Honolulu via the Panama Canal because of the present scarcity of ships on the Pacific.

"There are many people in San Francisco waiting for shipping accommodations for the Far East and the Philippine Islands," said Mr. Orchard, "many of them residents of cities there, or business men and travelers, but, due to the government having taken away many of the American ships, they cannot get away.

"The coastwise shipping laws have been suspended, so that the Japanese lines can now take passengers for Honolulu and the Philippines, but even these balk at booking passage for less than the full voyage to Japan or Hongkong, China. As soon as shipping is released there will be a great rush of tourist business across the Pacific."

When Mr. Orchard found that it would be necessary for him to wait until late in March for a boat to Honolulu over the Pacific route, he immediately got in touch with New York steamship men and procured the last available stateroom on a steamship sailing for Honolulu via the Panama Canal on November 25. Sailing by this route has increased the distance of his journey more than 6000 miles.

DRUG PRESCRIPTION CAUSES HIS ARREST.

Dr. C. O. Lowry, of Pasadena, was arrested yesterday by Constable Thomas on a charge of giving F. Orme, said to be an habitual user of drugs, a prescription for morphine. Dr. Lowry was arraigned before Justice Summerfield and his hearing was set for November 20.

The complaint alleges that Orme was not a patient of Dr. Lowry and that the prescription was not given in good faith.

GRANTS PROBATION.

Instructing C. O. Everson, convicted of driving an automobile while intoxicated, that he must not drink even near-beer, Judge Willis yesterday released the defendant on probation for one year.

steadfastly behind the railroad project. Mr. Spreckels, who hammered home the spike that ended the construction work, is president of the railroad company and the man most directly responsible for bringing the work to a satisfactory conclusion.

Most of the guests had their first trip over the new railroad this morning, when a special train containing 600 persons left the station here for the gorge. Jacumba Hot Springs was set as a rendezvous for all those who were invited to the ceremony and when the train arrived, a large number of other persons, who had come by automobile, were there. Imperial Valley, particularly, was well represented. Luncheon was served after the train arrived and then the train proceeded to a point about six miles from the springs.

Among those who joined the spike-driving party at Jacumba are Gov. Esteban Cantu of Lower California; Gus Dato, inspector of railways for Lower California, and more than 100 residents of the Imperial Valley, headed by Frank Hevener, president of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the valley. At Tia Juana and Tecate, on the way to Jacumba, the special train stopped and took aboard mayors, military commanders and customs officials of the Mexican towns.

ENGRAVED SPIKE.

At a spot near Tunnel No. 8, where the railroad builders encountered their most difficult task, in boring through the great mass of rock, the golden spike was driven. It was engraved "Last spike used in constructing the San Diego and Arizona Railroad in Carrizo Gorge, November 15, 1919."

A few sturdy blows with the sledge wielded by Mr. Spreckels made the spike disappear into the tie and the last act of the railroad's building was complete. Mr. Spreckels immediately was the recipient of congratulations on the success of the enterprise. He made an address and was followed by several other speakers.

Melville Klauber, president of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce, presided at the ceremony and after Mr. Spreckels spoke, D. W. Pontius, general manager of the line, recited some of the tremendous difficulties overcome in its construction. Mayor Wilde of this city, Congressman Kettner and Mr. Hevener also spoke, and Gov. Cantu made an address in the name of Lower California, which is traversed by a third of the line lying between San Diego and El Centro.

Among the women who attended the celebration are Mrs. Claus Spreckels, Mrs. Wilde, wife of the Mayor, and many others. Old-timers of San Diego were numerous in the crowd.

Joseph Foster, president of the Board of Supervisors, declared he had aited since a boy to ride on a transcontinental railroad out of San Diego, and demanded a seat right up near the engine.

"Dad" Westcott, for fifty years a resident of San Diego, was probably the happiest man in the large crowd.

"I came here in '69," he said, "and ever since the day of my arrival I have looked forward to this day, I have had many happy days in my life, but this is the happiest."

Officials of the San Diego and Arizona Railway who attended, besides President Spreckels, are: W. Clayton, director, who, like the president, has numerous special guests aboard his car; General Manager Pontius, chief engineer, E. J. Kalright, the man who solved the problem of crossing the mountains on easy grades; N. R. Titus, treasurer; F. B. Dorsey, assistant traffic manager; L. J. Masson, auditor; J. R. Lowe, superintendent; J. F. Stanley, commercial agent; T. F. O'Connell, master mechanic, and W. A. Nickerson, trainmaster.

Railroad men guests included T. S. McGinnis, general passenger agent of the Southern Pacific; H. C. Hallmark, general freight agent, Southern Pacific; F. G. Held, assistant general passenger agent, Santa Fe; R. B. Ball, chief engineer, Santa Fe; W. H. Whalen, superintendent, Southern Pacific; O. A. Smith, general passenger agent, Southern Pacific; P. J. Day, general freight agent, Pacific Electric; A. D. Hagaman, city passenger agent, Southern Pacific, at Los Angeles; W. H. Brewer, assistant to the general manager, Santa Fe; H. D. Priest, travelling passenger agent, Pacific Electric.

After the ceremonies a brief inspection of some of the most difficult parts of the construction work was made.

Although the new railroad was completed today with the driving of the golden spike, traffic will not move over the line between San Diego and points in the Imperial Valley until December 1, when the first schedule of the railroad will go into operation.

That will be the signal for a week's celebration, to mark the opening of the line. During five days the celebration will be conducted at San Diego; the other two days the festivities will be at Imperial Valley points. Transcontinental service is expected to be inaugurated about January 1.

In this service the new railroad will connect with the Southern Pacific, which is interested financially with Mr. Spreckels in the San Diego and Arizona.

The railroad now includes 219 miles of trackage. Twice it goes into Mexican territory. Eighteen tunnels have been driven through solid rock.

It was this heavy tunnel work that delayed the completion of the railroad.

At San Diego the new railroad will use the union station erected by the Santa Fe. A freight terminal has been erected at the foot of Tenth street at a cost of $100,000.

ASK PAY INCREASE.

The Board of Public Works will send to the City Council tomorrow a recommendation that inspectors of housemoving, in the City Engineer's department, be given an increase in salaries, from $4 to $5 per day. The inspectors petition for a raise to $6 per day, and state that they have received no increase in salaries since 1910.

D'ANNUNZIO IN DALMATIA.

Peace Council Hears Poet-General's Trip is Political One.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TRIESTE, Nov. 15.—Gabriele d'Annunzio, who left Fiume Thursday night on a new expedition, has landed at Sera, on the Dalmatian coast, according to news received here late last night.

D'Annunzio made a triumphant entry into Zara, receiving an enthusitaic welcome from the Italians, who had been awaiting his coming.

Capt. D'Annunzio sailed from Fiume in the early-morning darkness. The torpedo boat Nullo followed the other warships of his fleet. Six hundred troops were aboard, including Arditi Granadiers, and also his complete staff.

D'Annunzio is expected to continue his expedition to other Dalmation ports.

ITALIAN WARSHIP TRAILS.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Nov. 15.—Gabriele d'Annunzio, the insurgent Italian commander of Fiume, is engaged in another adventure along the Dalmatian coast, according to advices reaching the Peace Conference here. He sailed from Fiume on the Italian torpedo boat Nullo, accompanied by a steamer carrying 300 shock troops, the reports state.

He was said to have been followed by an Italian warship, which was merely observing his movements. The debarkation point is not known, but it is thought likely that Sera has been selected. It is not believed he would go to Spalato, which is garrisoned by the Jugo-Slavs, with the surrounding waters controlled by Rear-Admiral Andrews, of the United States Navy.

The advices to the American peace delegation were from Vice-Consul O'Hara at Trieste. He forwarded the report there that D'Annunzio had left Fiume on the Nullo and had effected a landing on the Dalmatian coast line.

Importance is attached in Peace Conference circles to D'Annunzio's movements, because Sunday is election day in Italy, with Fiume the chief issue.

It is generally thought that he is seeking to carry out a spectacular operation to strengthen the Fiume party, which is reported in Paris to have lost considerable ground in Italy during the past three weeks. The Italian navy was said to be wavering perceptibly in its support of D'Annunzio.

RIZZO COMMANDS FIUME.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TRIESTE, Friday, Nov. 14.—A telegram to the Trieste stock exchange says:

"Gabriele d'Annunzio left Fiume last night for an unknown destination in a torpedo boat, followed by other ships. Rizzo was left in command of the city."

Commander Luegi Rizzo is commander-in-chief of the D'Annunzio sea forces.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—The American peace delegation here has received a telegram from Vice-Consul O'Hara at Trieste telling of reports that D'Annunzio left Fiume on the torpedo boat Nullo and landed on the Dalmatian coast, where he is engaged in another venture.

TROOPS OF MIKADO LEAVING SHANTUNG

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

Official verification of the report was impossible to obtain. However, it originated in authoritative circles and recei... credence.

SANTA BARBARA GIRL DANCES WITH PRINCE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. — Miss Geraldine Graham, daughter of Mrs. William Miller Graham of Santa Barbara, is one of the four or five young women who are going to White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., to be there over Sunday while the Prince of Wales takes a rest at that resort incognito. Miss Graham has been a dancing partner of the Prince while he has been in Washington and her presence in the Virginia mountains will enable him to dance some more.

The Prince is passionately fond of dancing, inclined to jazz, and boasts that he danced every night of his stay in Canada.

Mrs. Graham is said to have paid $1000 for the rental of a residence for ten days during which the Prince has been in Washington.

The superiority of Holton instruments is emphasized by the preference shown by these noted performers.
The entire solo cornet section of Sousa's Band, including Frank Simon, Dell Steiger and Gene Bishop, all use Holton-Clarke cornets.
The Saxophones include Al Knecht, using a Holton Alto; Mr. Howard, assistant business manager, using a Holton Tenor, and Mr. Marthage, who also plays the harp, using a Holton Tenor Saxophone.
It was the Holton Revelation Trombone that helped to make the Sousa Trombone section famous.

The Sphygmometer

It is possible for a physician or surgeon to do with out a Sphygmometer, but if every one in active practice could know its advantages, they would not care to forego its use.

The ones featured by the Geo. D. Davidson Co. are calculated for 20 pulsations. Worked like a cronometer, they exactly register on a graduated scale the patient's heart beats.

No mental calculations, with the attendant chance for error—no additional instrument to carry around because it also takes the place of your regular pocket watch as a timepiece.

We would appreciate an opportunity to show and explain its unusual advantages.

Doctor Tells How to Detect Harmful Effects of Tobacco

Try These SIMPLE TESTS

New York: Dr. Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, says: Many men who smoke, chew or snuff frequently and who are seemingly healthy are suffering from progressive organic ailments. Thousands of them would never have been afflicted had it not been for the use of tobacco, and thousands would soon get well if they would only stop the use of tobacco. The chief habit-forming principle of tobacco is nicotine, a deadly poison which, when absorbed by the system slowly affects the nerves, membranes, tissues and vital organs of the body. The harmful effect of tobacco varies and depends on circumstances. One will be afflicted with general debility; others with catarrh of the throat, indigestion, constipation, nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of memory, lack of will power, mental confusion, etc. Others may suffer from heart disease, bronchial troubles, hardening of the arteries, tuberculosis, blindness, or even the common affliction known as tobacco heart. If you use tobacco in any form you can easily detect the harmful effects by making the following simple tests. Read aloud one full page from a book. If, in the course of reading your voice becomes muffled, hoarse and indistinct, and you must frequently clear your throat, the chances are that your throat is affected by catarrh and it may be the beginning of more serious trouble. Next, in the morning before taking your usual smoke, walk up three flights of stairs at a regular pace, then stop. If you find that you are out of breath, your heart beat is forced, trembling or irregular, you may be a victim of functional or organic heart trouble. If you feel that you must smoke, chew or snuff to quiet your nerves, you are a slave to the tobacco habit, and are positively poisoning yourself with the deadly drug, nicotine. In either case you have just two alternatives—keep on with the self-poisoning process irrespective of the dangers and suffer the consequences, or give up the habit and escape the dangers. You can overcome the craving and stop the habit in a very short time by using the following inexpensive formula. Go to any drug store and ask for Nicotol tablets, take one tablet after each meal, and in a comparatively short time you will have no desire for tobacco, the craving will have left you. With the nicotine poison out of your system your general health will quickly improve.

Note—When asked about Nicotol tablets, one of our leading druggists said: "It is truly a wonderful remedy for the tobacco habit, away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to every dissatisfied customer, and we would not permit the use of our name unless the remedy possessed unusual merit." Nicotol tablets are sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all up-to-date druggists, including all the Sun, the Logan and the Chambers Drug Stores.—[advertisement

NO FARM FOR FALLEN WOMEN.

Claim Governor Signed Bill Unintentionally.

Believe Money Needed More for Other Purposes.

State Highway Trees Under Full Protection.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 14. — The farm for delinquent women, the establishment of which is provided for in a bill passed by the last Legislature and approved by Gov. W. D. Stephens, will not become a reality, it is authoritatively declared at the Capitol.

In view of the fact that Gov. Stephens signed the bill by mistake during the rush of the bill-signing period, it is said that he intends to rectify his error by failing to name the board of managers for the proposed woman's farm.

The law calling for the creation of the farm provides that the Governor shall name a board of five members, three of whom shall be women, to manage the affairs of the institution. The Governor approved the act on May 3 and during the six months that have elapsed he has made no move toward naming the board.

Without the board of trustees no action toward the establishment of the home can be taken as the law specifically states that it shall be the duty of the board to "select, purchase and procure with all reasonable dispatch a suitable site of not less than 200 acres, with the necessary appurtenances, for said institution."

The act also carries an appropriation of $150,000 for the establishment of the farm, and it is said the Governor feels this money is needed for things of more importance than a farm for the reclamation of fallen women, especially when the business of the State must be run on a close margin during the present biennium.

As the women's clubs of the State were strong supporters of the bill, officials at the Capitol express surprise that they have not protested the Governor's delay in naming the board.

That the State Highway Commission has no intention of relaxing its policy of preserving the trees growing along the trunk lines and laterals of California's road system, is indicated in a decision denying Henry Pankey of Irvine, Orange county, permission to chop down certain eucalyptus trees.

"The commission's policy, in such matters," said A. B. Fletcher, highway engineer, "is to consider the large interests of the public, and to preserve, not only the trees, but all other landmarks that make the highways attractive and traveling a pleasure."

With more than ninety new cases reported in the past few days, State Board of Health officials declare that the first stages of a diphtheria epidemic in California is well advanced and is much more to be feared than the influenza during the winter months.

In the hope of checking the diphtheria epidemic, the health department notified all city and county health officers to report immediately all active or suspected cases of this disease.

During the past week only twenty-nine cases of influenza have been reported. Scarlet fever cases for the week totaled eighty-four.

According to the State Fish and Game Commission, plans are under way for a State fisheries laboratory to be located near San Pedro. This laboratory will furnish working quarters for the scientific staff of the department of commercial fisheries and will give room for an educational exhibit showing the work of the department.

Three-quarters of a million golden trout were successfully reared at the State hatcheries this year, reports the Fish and Game Commission. Most of these young fry will be planted in the Southern California high Sierras.

G. H. Hecke, director of the State Department of Agriculture, has issued a warning to sugar-beet growers to protect themselves against the sugar-beet seed shortage. In his warning Hecke said:

"Growers should look ahead and be prepared to depend upon the home-grown product for their coming supply. There is no doubt but with acclimated stock better crops will result. Too long have we paid toll and depended upon inferior stocks and seeds from Europe."

MAY GO TO SUPREME COURT ABOUT SUGAR.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL WANTS TO KNOW IF HE HAS POWER TO CONTROL DEALERS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 15. — Atty.-Gen. Palmer may go to the Supreme Court of the United States soon for a decision as to whether sugar manufacturers and dealers in this country shall obey his price-fixing orders on sugar, based on the authority vested in him by President Wilson under the Lever act, or whether the food consumers of the country shall continue to remain at the mercy of dealers. This was indicated yesterday by Maj. A. A. Sprague, head of the Illinois Fair Price Committee, who said that, in his conversations with Mr. Palmer over the long-distance telephone, action may follow the conferences now on with the heads of sugar refineries which have as their purpose the fixing of fair price for the nation on granulated sugar.

The section under Maj. Sprague has given up wholly the attempt to regulate the price of sugar in this district, maintaining, however, its right to insist that brokers shall obtain only their 2-4-cent profit and that retailers may get no more than 1½ cent a pound. This is due to the fact that, while prices are fixed by the Attorney-General and observed in this district, they are not observed in other States where District-Attorneys are lenient, and Chicago, as a consequence, is avoided by shippers.

...IRONY OF FATE.

...It is now, however, the irony of ...fate that a Democratic administra...tion passed the Clayton and ...Sherman laws through Congress, the ...very threat of a general ...strike of coal miners should be driven by ...the authority into a Federal ...court and an injunction against ...the officers of a union numbering ...hundreds of thousands of members. ...Judge Anderson's mandatory ...injunction was one precedent fully ...in the case presented to him. ...The locomotive engineers be...longed to the brotherhood and ...when the Toledo and Ann ...Arbor struck.

...Tired of four of trouble with ...railroads, the Lake Shore ...Railway Company was indisposed ...to grant the demands of the Ann Ar...bor men. The Ann Arbor company ...filed a bill against the Lake Shore ...road and obtained an injunc...tion against the Lake Shore com...pany, its officers and employees re...quiring them to receive and forward ...Ann Arbor cars. Arthur, the then ...president of the locomotive engineers' ...brotherhood, issued an order to his ...men on the Lake Shore road direct...ing them not to receive or haul Ann ...Arbor cars. The Ann Arbor com...plained to have Arthur made ...a party to the proceedings and ob...tained a decree continuing the order in ...force.

...ANN ARBOR CASE.

...The injunction was ac...cordingly issued against Arthur, di...recting him to recall his order, on ...the ground that he was furthering a ...conspiracy to obstruct interstate ...commerce in the teeth of the posi...tive requirements of Federal law. ...Whatever the merits of the order and the ...writ of injunction of the court ...were, after a full hearing, ...the decree of the court was widely ...denounced and hailed as enslaving ...labor. It was never reversed ...and in the next year, 1894, ...cases arose and was sub...mitted to the Supreme ...Court on the question of injunction proceed...ings by the government, to prevent ...obstruction of interstate commerce ...by labor strikes, was ...rendered in a unanimous ...decision of the Supreme Court in ...an opinion by Mr. Justice ...Harlan.

...These incidents have never been ...overruled against such a cause, and ...the principles announced in the Debs case, but they ...have been. The threats of labor ...leaders to the courts they may ...punish for contempt the people by ...the railroads and in freez...ing out the people by closing the mines ...have made the people see the valu...able instrument of justice which an ...order of injunction is in an emer...gency requiring instant hearing and ...action.

...NOT A SACRED RIGHT.

...It is idle for workingmen to talk ...of "the right to strike" as a sacred ...right secured by the Constitution. ...The Constitution secures a man in ...his right to work or not to work; ...but the asserted right to strike is ...more than this. It is the combi...nation with others to quit work all ...at one time in order to embarrass ...an employer. Its efficiency in the ...lawful controversy between labor ...and capital is in the combination. ...If the purpose is lawful and the ...method is lawful the right to strike ...must and will be preserved and re...spected by the courts. But if the ...combination which is the life and ...strength of a strike is for an un...lawful purpose, as it was in the Ar...thur case, in the Debs case and in ...the Lewis case, it is no more under ...the protection of the Constitution ...than any other unlawful injury and ...crime, and all lawful process, includ...ing injunction, may be directed ...against its continuance.

...The American Federation of ...Labor has taken occasion in many ...of its annual meetings to urge its ...members to disobey orders of in...junction in labor cases. Nothing ...can be more fatuous. It is an im...pudent invitation to lawlessness and ...anarchy, unworthy of an associa...tion entitled in very many ways to ...the respect of the public and capable ...of effective patriotic support of the ...government, as could be seen in the ...late war.

...Now, in the face of such declara...tions, the head of the union with the ...largest membership in this coun...try, obeys an injunction and calls ...off a strike. This is a most satis...factory vindication of the proper ...authority of the courts.

GRANGERS DECLINE GOMPERS'S PARLEY

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

GRAND RAPIDS (Mich.) Nov. 15.—Samuel Gompers's invitation for a conference between union labor and the National Grange will be declined, according to opinions freely expressed today by members of the grange in convention.

While it was held that the answer to Mr. Gompers would be in the negative, it was reported that there would be a minority report by one member of the committee.

ADMITS DEADLOCK IN ASIATIC CONSORTIUM.

STATE DEPARTMENT FIRMLY AGAINST JAPANESE MANCHURIAN RESERVATIONS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Differences between the United States and Japan are preventing the organization and operation of the international consortium for financing China. It was admitted at the State Department today that there is a deadlock, with Japan refusing to withdraw her reservations concerning Manchuria and Mongolia, and the United States declining to permit Japan to participate in the consortium unless she does withdraw them.

Great Britain has inclined toward Japan, refusing to enter the consortium without Japan, in effect, and France is taking neither side, being agreeable to any agreement which the more interested powers might reach.

So far as is known, Japan has not invoked the Lansing-Ishii agreement in support of her position, but it is known that the State Department would hold that such an invocation by Japan could not be justified, as it has never been admitted by this government that a recognition of Japan's special interests, flowing out of her contiguity to Chinese territories, implied either a monopoly or a priority of industrial or economic rights.

State Department authorities are said to maintain, on the contrary that the last paragraphs of the Lansing-Ishii agreement absolutely preserve the principles of the open door, and of equal opportunity in commerce and industry for all nations.

A KRUPP-BELGIUM COMBINE REPORTED.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 13 (delayed.)—According to a report from Duisberg, Frederick Krupp of Essen has combined with two big Belgian industrial firms in order to protect both groups against American competition in railroad material in European markets.

NEW YORK POLICE NAB SOVIET "AMBASSADOR."

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, who styles himself "ambassador to the United States from the soviet government of Russia," was arrested here today by deputy sheriffs and a corporal of the State constabulary after he had been adjudged in contempt of the joint legislative committee investigating radical activities.

AMERICAN COPPER MEN TO BUY GERMAN MINE.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—The American Smelting and Refining Company is reported to be considering the purchase of the copper mines of the Otavi Mining and Railroad Company in German Southwest Africa.

Minister of Finance Ersberger has caused the publication of a denial of the report that he planned to sell a mortgage on Germany's railways as a security for an American loan.

U.S.C. WINS BY HEALTHY SCORE.

Utah Football Squad Hits Slide at Rate of 28 to 7.

Henderson's Pessimism is Still to be Vindicated.

Visitors Show Flashes of Real Variety of Football.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Another layer of luster was added to the U.S.C. escutcheon yesterday when Henderson's warriors defeated the University of Utah by a score that leaves nothing to the imagination.

The Trojans trimmed the Utes, 28 to 7, and did so without resort to wooden equines or other artificial means. Not only did they take advantage of nearly every mistake made by the educated visitors, but they jammed the pigskin across the line several times on their own unaided efforts.

NOT VINDICATED.

Not yet has coach Henderson's pessimism been vindicated. Prior to each game, Mr. Henderson lets out an anguished calamity howl that sends shivers up and down the spine of the entire institution. Then the lame and the ha't and the blind athletes whom he is commanding gird their creaky loins and play like champions.

If Henderson ever has a well team on his hands he may tell about it. This season he has spoken concerning cripples only. He has a subtle, left-handed way of handing out the dope, which makes him look almost as foolish as an owl.

The first quarter was unfruitful. In this the teams played each other to a standstill in rather a listless sort of way. It was far from ideal football weather, being better suited to Palm Beach suits and B.V.D.'s than to moleskins and ear muffs, such as are worn on the gridiron. Not only was it several degrees too warm for jersey football, but there was electricity in the air—the sort of weather in which your head gives off bright sparks when you comb it in the morning, and you feel like an I.W.W. during the remainder of the day.

FELT IT KEENLY.

The Utes probably felt this more than the Trojans, as they belong to a different tribe, and are accustomed to playing football in the wake of a snow shovel.

During the first half the visitors seemed to be slowly but surely evaporating. However, they seemed to do better after taking twenty minutes for refreshments, and showed enough to score in the third quarter. The score came too late, as U.S.C. had already accumulated a comfortable lead, which later was increased.

Utah showed a couple of flashes of real football, but the flashes were hardly more lasting than a star-shell. Captain Romney crashed through with the only touchdown, and it was largely a single-handed affair. This brave proved fast, strong and slippery. He hit the line like a bullet and skirted the Cardinal and Gold flanks for large gains, dodging his way through life when his interference had been dispersed and scattered. Mack Swan at tackle shared the honors with Romney. Swan is a tough bird, and attempts to gain through him were about as futile as touching off a keg of black powder under the Rock of Gibraltar.

GETTING STARTED.

The Utes had a hard time getting started in the backfield. Frequently their attack was broken up before it really had a chance to form, and the runner would find that his interference had melted under the sharp, aggressive defense of the Trojans. Utah's attack was nullified by this rapid, penetrating defense even more effectively than was California's a week before. It is an axiom of the ring that the best defense is a fast offense. Henderson seemed to have drilled his men on this theory. The U.S.C. defense is almost an attack in its aggressiveness.

The first points came when Leadingham snatched up a fumble by Evans. Leadingham grabbed the ball when "Swede" spilled it and ran twenty rapid yards to touchdown. Mr. Evans kicked goal. Not once yesterday did his toes falter or fold up on him.

This early stiffening of the toes caused a feeling of optimism that remained throughout the afternoon.

Touchdown No. 2, was registered when with the Utes playing with their upholstered backs to the wall endeavored to punt out into the broad open country, Simpson blocked the kick, and Isenhour fell on the prostrate pigskin.

FORWARD PASS.

A forward pass that was enacted in a maze of surging red and white athletes gave U.S.C. its third touchdown. The play was executed, Dean to Woodward, and with hostile athletes surrounding both passer and receiver.

Packer with lowered head pushed the ball over for the fourth U.S.C. touchdown.

All this time Mr. Evans was kicking goal without the suspicion of a fumble on the part of his feet.

Twice the Trojans got the ball near enough to try for a drop kick. The drop worked all right, but something went wrong with the kick on both occasions, and the ball is still waiting to be kicked over. One of the kicks squirted straight up, and another was fired low, just grazing the scalps of the Utes. Plainly, we must have more practice along this line are we are to realize our ambition to make a drop kick. The only way to connect is to keep striving.

RATHER NEAT.

U.S.C. tried a trick play that elicited the heartfelt felt sympathy of all those present, including the visitors. One of the Trojans went away out in the field by himself and began writing around in the sod. Apparently this particular Trojan was being mortally wounded in the abdomen with cramps. Somebody let out a yelp for the Red Cross, when to the amazement of all concerned, the suffering athlete sprang to his feet. The ball was tossed to somebody who was attending the stricken athlete, now convalescent, and a few yards were gained before Utah realized that it had been bunked. This athlete, it is said, has passed hours practicing how to give a life-like imitation of the colic.

Toward the finish the casualties ran high. One athlete after another was put on the blink and transported to the first-aid station. The sound of human slats giving way under the strain was to be heard at frequent intervals. Many had the wind knocked out of them, and folded up like a young tire which had exploded prematurely. Time was taken out while such as these were administered free air. In the last quarter, Captain Romney injured his ankle and many opined that his foot was about to drop off. But Romney gamely refused to retire, and continued after the foot had been lashed to his leg again with adhesive tape. Adhesive tape is one of the best means of holding a football team together.

BRAIN STORMS.

Several times the U.S.C. athletes weakend in the head, and could not comprehend their own signals. This caused a number of conferences to be held in the center of the arena. Plainly, eleven heads are better than two or three, because when the team assembled, gathered their heads together in a cluster of cerebellums and thought en masse, everybody seemed to understand.

PITTSBURGH TIES PENNSYLVANIA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15.—Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh University football teams played a 3-to-3 tie on Franklin Field today. Capt. Bell scored Pennsylvania's three points with a field goal in the first period. A goal from placement by Hastings of Pittsburgh evened the score in the second quarter. It was a clean, hard and fast game.

YALE HUMBLED BY OLD NASSAU.

Blue is Hoist by its Own Petard in Strategy.

"Bud" Scheerer's Marvelous Stunt Wins for Tigers.

First Princeton Victory Over Rivals Since 1911.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW HAVEN (Ct.) Nov. 15.—A football tossed in the air as a bit of Yale strategy tonight was the treasured trophy of a sensational Princeton victory. The Tiger team won from Yale, 13 to 6, in its biggest game of the season by turning an intended Yale trick into a Princeton touchdown and consequent goal.

It was "Bud" Scheerer, a substitute called into play only a few minutes before, who upset the Yale tactics, broke a tie score, and gained for himself lasting fame with the football enthusiasts of old Nassau by scoring for Princeton the first victory over Yale since 1911. His feat outdid that of "Sammy" White, the Tiger hero of that year.

SOME SHUNT.

Neville of Yale, rushing from his own 21-yard line, had gained several yards when he was tackled by Bigler of Princeton. Instead of downing the ball, he swung it over his head laterally to Kempton, who was following fast behind. Scheerer shunted Kempton aside to reach the flying pigskin, then followed its course himself, gathered it in, and set off for the goal twenty yards away. A broken field of Yale players lay between. Scheerer ran hard, broke pace, used straight arm and interference and crossed the line with the touchdown that was the measure of Princeton's victory.

Princeton had gained an early advantage when, advancing into Yale territory by forward passes, Strubing was placed in position to score for the Tigers by a field goal in the first period. He kicked from the 20-yard line. The Nassau eleven stopped Yale's rushing attack after the Blue had gained thirty yards in the second period, but was unable to advance its own offense.

PRESSES ATTACK.

The third period found Yale pressing its attack by rushing and kicking, with the result that the Blue went into the lead. The boot of Jim Braden sent the ball flying through the Princeton goal posts twice in this period for field goals, one from the 22 and the other from the 40-yard line.

The line-up:

PLAY SUMMARY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW HAVEN (Ct.) Nov. 16.—The extent of Yale's rushing superiority over the winning Princeton team, is shown by a summary of the play. The Blue backs rushed fifty-four times for an aggregate gain of 156 yards, while Princeton made a net advance by rushes of only 88 yards in 38 attempts. Yale attempted the forward pass six times. None was successful. Yale tried two lateral passes, one gaining six yards. The Tigers advanced 45 yards on 14 forward passes. Kicking honors were virtually even, Princeton kicks aggregating 375 yards and those of Yale 370. In penalties Princeton suffered to the extent of 30 yards and Yale, 25.

SYRACUSE WINS OVER COLGATE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SYRACUSE (N. Y.) Nov. 15.—Syracuse University's big football team made its final bid for eastern football honors today when, in the presence of 25,000 spectators, it sent Colgate's hitherto undefeated eleven down to defeat, 13 to 7.

STANFORD FROSH ARE COMPLETELY SWAMPED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BERKELEY, Nov. 15. — The freshman football team of the University of California swamped the Stanford freshman aggregation here today by a score of 47 to 0. The stars for California were Erb, quarter-back, from Los Angeles; Buck, full-back; Davis, right half, and Van Sant, left half, and Santa Monica High School star.

The generalship of Erb was faultless. Cravens, right half, and Douglas, left half, were the stars on the defeated team. Stanford made her downs but once during the entire game. The line-up and summary:

Stanford Freshmen.		California Freshmen.
Osborne	L. E.	Tracy
Dorbrod	L.T.	Dean

GUN CLUBS TO GIVE FEATURE SHOOTS TODAY

Both the Los Angeles and Vernon gun clubs are planning feature shoots for today. Special prizes will be given and the shooting will be 100-bird handicap distances affairs. The Los Angeles Gun Club has a special turkey shoot and it is expected that many crack shots will try for the birds.

"CHICK" HARLEY SAVES THE DAY.

Boots Neat Drop Kick from Twenty-Yard Line.

Wisconsin Fights Ohioans to a Standstill.

Fail to Strike When Striking is at its Best.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MADISON (Wis.) Nov. 15.—"Chick" Harley, all-American halfback, playing next to his last game for Ohio State, saved his team from possible defeat today when he booted a drop kick from the twenty-yard line, beating Wisconsin 3 to 0, before 15,000 spectators.

The victory strengthens Ohio State's grip on the "big ten" title.

The Ohioans have gone through the race with a clean slate, having defeated Michigan, Purdue and Wisconsin. They will meet Illinois at Columbus next Saturday.

Fought to a standstill for three periods, the Ohioans opened up a vicious attack in the fourth and scored a touchdown on a forward pass, but the score was not allowed because Harley passing the ball to Stinchcomb, the Buckeye quarterback, had reached the line of scrimmage before heaving the ball.

Wisconsin rushed the ball to within striking distance of Ohio's goal three times, but lacked the punch to put over a touchdown or a field goal.

Score by periods:

WEST VIRGINIA THERE WITH A GREAT RALLY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW BRUNSWICK (N.J.) Nov 15.—West Virginia's aerial attack surprised Rutgers today, and the Mountaineers won, 20 to 7, Rutgers literally played the visitors off their feet in the first two periods, taking the lead when French scored touchdown with a brilliant fifty-yard run. West Virginia rallied in the third period and had little difficulty thereafter in crossing the lines.

KANSAS AGGIES GET AN AWFUL WALLOPING

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

AMES (Iowa) Nov. 15.—Iowa State College walked all over the Kansas Aggies in winning today's football game, 46 to 0, for Kansas did not get an opportunity for a kick, the ball being kept in the visitors' territory. In the latter part of the game Iowa put in second and third-team men, but continued to score.

IOWA TRIMS KANSAS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

AMES (Iowa) Nov. 15.—Iowa State College cross-country men defeated the Kansas University and Missouri University cross-country teams today for the Missouri Valley championship. The entire Ames team came in ahead of its opponents.

WASHINGTON HUMBLED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Nov. 15.—Missouri defeated Washington University today in one of the hardest-fought games these two ever have had, 7 to 0.

PLAYER'S NECK BROKEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

GALESBURG (Ill.) Nov. 15.—Harry Williams, playing end on the local High School football team, suffered a broken neck in a game with Peoria Manual High today. He is in a serious condition.

WHITES VICTORS.

The Whites bested the Blues, 10 to 8, in a fast polo encounter at the Midwick field yesterday. The line-up follows: Whites—Neustadt, No. 1; Eddie Miller, No. 2; Ruy Spalding, No. 3; Carleton, back. Blues—Malaby, No. 1; Col. Hamson, No. 2; J. B. Miller, Jr., No. 3; C. Greer, back. Baxter refereed.

NOTRE DAME PREVAILS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NOTRE DAME (Ind.) Nov. 15.—Aerial football today won for Notre Dame over the Michigan Aggies, 13 to 0. Gipp and Kirk were the stellar performers.

HARVARD HAS IT EASY WITH TUFTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) Nov. 15.—Harvard, with many substitutes in the line, had little difficulty in defeating Tufts today, 23 to 0, although there was no scoring during the first half and at the end of the third period Harvard led only 3 to 0. In the fourth quarter, however, with Arnold Horween, who was substituted for Hamilton, at right half-back, furnishing the driving power, Harvard scored three touchdowns, two of which were followed by goals.

NAVY SUCCESSFUL IN ONE-SIDED CONTEST.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ANNAPOLIS (Md.) Nov. 15.—Invading the goal line of their opponents on eighteen occasions and kicking thirteen of the eighteen resultant tries for goal, the Navy football team went beyond the century mark in scoring today by smothering the eleven of Colby College of Maine under a count of 121 to 0.

Colby presented a weak defense and scarcely more could be said of the offense. Score:

Navy	39	49	7	26	—121

Contest One of Most Desperate of the Season.

Jenne Carried Off Field with Broken Leg.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PULLMAN (Wash.) Nov. 15.—The University of Washington football team, defeated by the University of Oregon, won from Washington State College, victor over Oregon, here today, 13 to 7, in one of the most desperate contests ever played on the local field, and "upset the dope" as to the Pacific Coast championship.

It was a game fraught with line bucks, attempted and sometimes successful forward passes, and much punting. Exchanges of punts nearly always were to the advantage of the visitors, but on bucking, the Aggies had the advantage, due to their superior weight. On numerous occasions, the Washington State players worked the ball to within a comparatively short distance of the varsity goal line, only to be held by the stonewall defense of the men from Seattle.

ON MUDDY FIELD.

The field was muddy and slow. The varsity scored in the first and fourth periods, Thiesen and Butler making the touchdowns. Washington State scored in the third period when Gillis carried the ball over varsity's line after it had been worked to within four yards of the goal. In this period Jenne, right half for the Aggies, was carried from the field with what was thought to be a broken leg.

The line-up and summary:

U. of Washington (13.)		W.S.C. (7.)
Paulin	L.E.	Hamilton
Tidball	L.T.	Hamilton
Blake	L.G.	Long
Wick	C.	Hoffman
Pope	R.G.	Silvart
Clark	R.T.	Hergel
O. Smith	R.E.	R. Hasley
Abel	Q.	Jr. Hasley
Sailer	L.H.	Motes
Butler	R.H.	Gillis
Thiesen	F.B.	Gillis

Score by periods:

University of Washington	7	0	0	6	—13
W. S. C.	0	0	7	0	—7

University of Washington scoring: Touchdowns, Thiesen, Butler. Goal from touchdown, Paulin.

OREGON VARSITY TOO FAST FOR THE AGGIES.

TROJANS FOLLOW BALL AND GET THERE

BY PAUL LOWRY.

The Cardinal and Gold defeated the Utah football team, 28 to 7, on Bovard Field yesterday.

U.S.C. won largely because of its wonderful ball-following ability. Once a fumble and on another occasion a blocked punt furnished touchdowns for Henderson's men because Cardinal-jerseyed players were on top of the ball.

PUNTING.

Punting also figured heavily in the general result. It was the healthy boot of John Leadingham of U.S.C. shortly after the opening of the second half that put the Mormons in a bad way and paved the way for the Trojans' second touchdown. Someone whispered to Coach Henderson between the halves that he was overlooking a bet by not instructing Leadingham to punt when in home territory and wait for the "breaks."

Leadingham's first boot in the third quarter, after Utah had kicked off, was a long, twisting spiral that sailed over Ure's head, playing back for Utah, and rolled ninety yards before the racing Mormon recovered on his 4-yard line. Soon after Romney's kick was blocked by Eddie Simpson, and Isenhouer fell on the ball for a touchdown.

But, while U.S.C. merits all possible praise for winning the game, Utah should be complimented for displaying the best brand of bootball of any team that has played here this year. Had they been able to maintain their speed and gotten one or two breaks, the score might have been decidedly different.

UTAH'S UNITY.

Utah's unity as an offensive machine was far superior to U.S.C.'s. The Mormon's 80-yard march to a touchdown in the third period was a whirlwind attack that had the heavier U.S.C. team completed baffled. The men lined up fast, the ball was snapped quickly and each play was reeled off in jig time. It was a march that would have struck terror into the hearts of the Trojan rooters had not a wonderful twenty-one points been emblazoned on the scoreboard. It was such a march that the Mormons started in the first quarter, but which petered out, perhaps because of the lack of desperation that featured the third-period parade.

BEST OFFENSIVE.

U.S.C. showed the best offense of the year yesterday, but it was badly marred by the stalling tactics of the backfield. Either the signal caller or the men he was working with got their wires crossed, and there was continual delay. In contrast to this was the smoothness with which the Mormon backs pulled off their plays. Referee Jerry Abbott would have been well within his rights had he penalized U.S.C. for these unnecessary delays.

Milt Romney, the Utah captain and quarter-back, shared individual honors of the day with Leadingham. Romney is the best thing in the way of a quarter-back that has cleated his way down Bovard Field this year. He scored the Utes' only touchdown by chasing around Isenhouer's end in the third spasm.

ONE FLAW.

There was one flaw to Romney's work. He persisted on two or three occasions in calling for a plunge through the line with four yards or so to go on fourth down. He could have played it safe and saved his team much valuable territory.

U.S.C. made its first touchdown in the second quarter shortly before the half-time whistle blew. Dean and Leadingham had bustled the ball to the Utah 28-yard line. The ponderous "Swede" Evans was given the oval on a tackle around play, and made about five yards. He fumbled as he was tackled, but Leadingham picked up the oval on the bounce and galloped over the goal line. Evans kicked this goal as he did his other threes chances later in the day.

In the third period came Leadingham's 90-yard kick, a tactical blunder on Utah's part for not playing a man back far enough, and Romney's subsequent blocked punt, which Isenhouer recovered behind the Crimson goal line.

A long forward pass over the goal line from Dean to Woodward, who had taken McMillan's place at quarter, was responsible for the Trojans' third touchdown. The pigskin was brought within scoring distance by a brilliant 20-yard run by Dean on a side-line formation.

Utah's lone score came in the same period, directly attributable to Romney's tireless work. Though his team-mates were hard pressed to stand the gaff, Romney never faltered.

U.S.C.'s final touchdown was registered in the last period after Woodward has punctured his way through the center of the Ute line for thirty yards. With the ball on the 10-yard line, three line plunges took it over, Packer getting the credit.

The line-up:

Utah.		U.S.C.
Preuss	L.E.R.	Smith
Gilmer	L.T.	Evans
Schafsky	L.G.R.	Hester
Hancock	C.	Simpson
Richie	R.G.L.	Fee
Swan	R.T.L.	Beale
Peterson	R.E.L.	Isenhouer
Romney	Q.B.	McMillan
Howells	L.H.R.	Dean
Ure	R.H.L.	Leavett
Gartner	F.B.	Leadingham

Score by periods:

U.S.C.	0	7	14	7	—28
Utah	0	0	0	7	—7

Substitutions: Utah—Whitney for Romney, Thorton for Howells, Jensen for Peterson, Stetson for Gartner, Mowrey for Gilmer, Nowells for Schafsky. U.S.C.—Packer for Lockett, Woodward for McMillan, Tooles for Isenhouer, Clemmons for Beale, Linkler for Fee, Chesnutt for Dean, Cox for Simpson, Butterfield for Leadingham. Axe for Evans, Wilcox for Smith, Townsend for Hester.

SAGE HENS SWAT THROOP.

Coach Nixen's Pomona football team defeated Throop 21 to 0 at Tournament Park, Pasadena, yesterday. The Sage Hens scored all of their touchdowns in the second half.

Forward passes figured largely in Pomona's winning total, two twenty-yard spirals from Chambers to McClellan resulting in as many touchdowns. A twenty-yard dash by Chambers furnished the last touchdown.

Though the Throop forwards outweighed their Pomona opponents about ten pounds to the man the Engineers were unable to make any appreciable gains through the line.

OXY LAMBASTS BAPTISTS.

Decisively outplaying the Baptists from the start of the game to its close, the Occidental College tan-bark squad walloped the gridiron aggregation of Redlands University by the score of 27 to 0 on Patterson Field yesterday afternoon.

The game was Occidental's all the way, and only in the fourth quarter, when Coach "Fox" Stanton had shot in a complete team of second-string men, did the Baptists seriously threaten the Bengal goal line. Occidental's ability to consistently gain through the up-country lads was shown by the fact that one touchdown was registered in each quarter of the game.

KIRK IS THERE.

Kirkpatrick, leader of the Tiger squad, put over the first two touchdowns; "Speed" Smith, half-back, scored for the third time, when he made a twenty-five-yard run in the third period, and Betts ran thirty yards for the last digits of the game in the final spasm.

Oxy played spectacular ball in the first ten minutes of the game, when, holding Redlands for downs on her 10-yard line, the Bengals bucked, passed and dodged their way on short end runs ninety yards down the field for a touchdown. From that point on the game was all Oxy's, and only at sporadic intervals was Redlands able to advance the ball. The line-up:

Redlands.		Occidental.
Belcher	R.E.L.	Crube, Davidson

OFFICERS CHOSEN BY RETAIL LUMBER MEN.

WOOLWINE TELLS THEM IT IS IMPROBABLE THAT HE'LL SEEK OFFICE AGAIN.

Officers of the Retail Lumber Dealers' Association were elected yesterday afternoon at the annual convention of the association, at the Clark Hotel. Those chosen are: H. A. Lake, Garden Grove, president; A. C. Bowers, Santa Ana, vice-president; F. L. Morgan, Los Angeles, (re-elected) secretary-treasurer. The following directors were also elected: R. W. Blanchard, Lankershim; E. B. Culman, Riverside; C. C. Eymann, Uplands; H. H. Spaulding; A. J. Wade, Hemet, and H. A. Lake, Garden Grove.

After the business session a dinner was given at the Clark to the members of the association and their wives. Several short addresses were made. District-Attorney Woolwine was the speaker of the evening.

He reviewed several of the leading cases that have been heard recently by the grand jury, declaring "among the critics of the public officials it is surprising to learn that many of the leading clergymen of this and other cities are loudest in their denunciation." Mr. Woolwine also stated that it is very improbable that he will run for public office again.

CHILD TAKES POISON.

Tries to End Her Life After Quarrel with Her Sisters.

Following a quarrel with her two sisters, Cathrine Bradford, 13 years old, of 2028 Sunset boulevard, late yesterday afternoon attempted to end her life by swallowing poison. At the Receiving Hospital her condition was pronounced serious.

According to information obtained by the police who made an investigation of the attempted suicide, the girl was locked in the bathroom of her home by her two sisters following a violent quarrel. After shouting through the keyhole that she intended to end her life, Cathrine seized a bottle of poison from a medicine chest and swallowed a quantity of the liquid.

David Getts, 18 years old, of No. 4257 South Main street, employed as a packer in the press room of The Times, was seriously injured last night when his left arm was caught in the folder of one of the big presses.

He was taken to the Receiving Hospital where Assistant Police Surgeon Dieterle gave him emergency treatment, and later was removed to the California Hospital, where the arm was amputated a few inches below the elbow.

STRUCK DOWN BY CAR, DIES OF HIS HURTS.

George A. Groman, 51 years of age, a carpenter who was struck and fatally injured near Eighteenth and Los Angeles streets early yesterday morning by an automobile driven by Morris P. Dwire of 306 Pecan street, died at the Receiving Hospital late yesterday. The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of R. L. Boyle. Mr. Dwire was detained by the police after the accident but was later released.

COMMON-LAW WIFE SUES OTHER WOMAN.

ASKS LOST-LOVE AWARD FROM WIDOW SHE SAYS IS NOW WITH HER HUSBAND.

Mrs. Adele Lindenbaum was named defendant in a $50,000 lost-love suit filed yesterday by Mrs. Lillian McNabb of Denver, wife of Henry A. McNabb, salesman for a New York house. The McNabb home life was happy, it is alleged, until Mrs. Lindenbaum, a widow, appeared.

Mr. McNabb and the widow, it is alleged, have been traveling about together. The McNabbs were living in Denver and once when the husband was an unusually long time from home, Mrs. McNabb telephoned to him in this city and he promised to return at once.

That evening, it is alleged, Mrs. Ludenbaum called her and told her that she was Mr. McNabb's wife.

Mr. McNabb went back to Denver and lived with Mrs. McNabb for a month, the complaint states. Since July 16 last Mr. McNabb and the defendant have been traveling together, it is said.

Mrs. McNabb says she is the common-law life of Mr. McNabb, an agreement having been entered into in 1898. Recently Mrs. McNabb sued for separate maintenance.

INFANT UNHURT BY LONG FALL.

Tumbles from Second-Story Window, then Laughs at Frightened Rescuers.

After falling from a second-story window to the ground, a distance of more than fifteen feet, Leonard Cortese, 15 months of age, late yesterday afternoon sat up and laughed at a number of horrified persons who rushed to aid him. At the Receiving Hospital, where the child was taken for examination, police surgeons found he was uninjured.

DROPS THEFT CHARGE MADE AGAINST WIFE.

CHICAGO COUPLE RECONCILED HERE AFTER EXTRADITION PROCEEDINGS FAILED.

On the dismissal yesterday by Justice Hanby of a fugitive complaint against Mrs. Minerva Jane Buchanan and her step-son, Alfred Gordon Buchanan, it became known that a reconciliation has been effected between Mrs. Buchanan and her husband, A. L. Buchanan of Chicago.

Mrs. Buchanan and her step-son were arrested here on a charge preferred by the husband, then in Chicago. Mrs. Buchanan was accused of stealing a trunk valued at $40 and the son with passing a fictitious check. Gov. Stephens refused to honor extradition papers. The fugitive complaint was not dismissed here in order to frustrate any attempt to take the mother and step-son out of the State without a warrant.

At the hearing yesterday A. L. Buchanan, the husband, appeared and it was said that he and his wife had become reconciled.

DRUGGISTS PLAN FOR MID-SEASON MEETING.

D. N. BRUNSWIG TO TELL HOW FRENCH RECONSTRUCTION WORK IS BEING DONE.

The annual mid-season convention of the Los Angeles and Southern California Retail Druggists' Association will be held on Wednesday at Fraternal Brotherhood Building, 345 South Figueroa street. President H. A. Dutton will preside.

Speakers at the morning session on Wednesday will be Ludwig Schiff, vice-president of the Western Wholesale Drug Company; William S. Holman of the Internal Revenue Office, and Frank A. Gardner of Riverside.

L. N. Brunswig, president of the Brunswig Drug Company will be one of the speakers of the afternoon session, his subject being "France as I Found it." Mr. Brunswig has recently returned from reconstruction work in France.

WEST VIRGINIA COAL MINERS DEFY EDICT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHARLESTON (W. Va.) Nov. 15.—Despite the prediction of union mine leaders that men would return to work today, it became known that unauthorized strikes were in progress at Ramage, Milburn and Elair and that no less than fifteen mines were closed.

YOUNG PEOPLE UNITE TO HOLD MEETINGS.

The young people of seventeen churches, including Y.P.S.C.E., Epworth League and B.Y.P.U., will conclude a series of evangelistic meetings with services this afternoon and evening at a tent at Vernon and South Park avenues. Harry W. Van Bruch of Chicago is the speaker. The tent has a seating capacity of 1000 and the meetings have been well attended. The subject this afternoon will be "Safety First." A special invitation has been extended to newspaper employees to attend the afternoon service at 3 o'clock.

FATHER WINNE HERE TO VISIT PARENTS.

The Very Rev. Dr. Marshall F. Winne, president of the University of Dallas at Dallas, Texas, is spending a few weeks here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Winne. Father Winne was a student at old St. Vincents' College and graduated from there in June, 1907. He was also ordained in this city by the late Bishop Conaty in 1913.

"The same conditions of overcrowded schools obtain in Dallas as they do here in Los Angeles," remarked Dr. Winne. "The State University has the largest enrollment in its history and the University of Dallas has an increased attendance this year. Many of the rural schools in Texas are without an adequate teaching staff."

Father Winne came West with his brother, Capt. Garrett Winne, who has just returned from overseas service.

CAMP LEWIS TO GOVERNMENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TACOMA, Nov. 15.—Camp Lewis passed out of the hands of Pierce county and the State of Washington and became the property of the United States government today, when the deed to 62,432 acres was recorded in the county Auditor's office here today.

OWL TAKES JEVNE LEASE.

Notable Development Plans of Two Great Estab.lishments Announced.

Announcements involving changes in two of the biggest mercantile establishments in Los Angeles, and disclosing plans for the creation here of what is planned to be the largest retail drug store in the world, were made yesterday when it was learned that the Owl Drug Company has taken over the lease on the Norton Building, on the southwest corner of Sixth and Broadway, now occupied by the H. Jevne Company. The transaction will bring to the corner of Sixth and Broadway the newest and finest of the Owl chain of stores and will also result in the removal of the Jevne establishment to larger quarters in another part of the city.

The financial consideration, which involves possession of the lease for seventeen years, was not disclosed by the W. Ross Campbell Company, who handled the transaction. It is also announced that the Owl Drug Company will not occupy the building until June 30, 1920, and in the meantime the Jevne Company will open a new retail store, negotiations for which are now being closed.

The coming of the Owl Drug Company to the corner of Sixth and Broadway and the elaborate scale on which the new establishment will be presented to the Los Angeles public represents the justification of a faith in the future of this city, first born in the mind of R. E. Miller, president of the Owl Company, twenty-seven years ago. The new Owl store in the present Jevne Building will embody the progress and aspirations of the drug company since its establishment in Los Angeles, Mr. Millers representatives said yesterday.

Coincident with the announcement of the lease, J. A. Jevne, general manager of the H. Jevne Company, said yesterday:

"Negotiations are now pending for the closing on a location where a more spacious and elaborately equipped building will be erected, containing all the modern conveniences and highest type of facilities for handling the retail end of our business exclusively."

The property occupied by the Jevne stores, Class A steel frame building, was built by John Norton twelve years ago. A little more than a year ago the Jevne Company contracted for a new structure to be built at the corner of East Seventh street and Central avenue, in the wholesale terminal. Into this new building the company's manufacturing and jobbing business will be moved next spring.

The Jevne Company was organized by H. Jevne in Los Angeles in 1882 at 33-40 North Spring street. In 1892 the business had grown and expanded so that it became necessary to move into larger quarters at 208-10 South Spring street. Then followed the construction and leasing of the new building at Sixth and Broadway, a step called for by the extraordinary growth of the business.

With the erection of the new Silverwood store at Sixth and Broadway, the new Grauman Theater at Sixth and Hill streets, the Sun Drug Building at Sixth and Broadway and the erection of a proposed new theater at Broadway and Mercantile place, this section is looked upon by President Miller of the Owl Drug Company, as affording particularly attractive prospects for a further expansion of the company's business. The store will be renovated and equipped to accommodate the drug company's plans.

CHURCH WORKER GONE.

Mrs. Louise Fleck Dies at Home of Her Niece Here.

Mrs. Louise Fleck, 70 years of age, for many years the church visitor of the Pico Heights Congregational Church, died yesterday at the home of her niece, Mrs. John Abe, 1340 West Fifty-third street.

Mrs. Fleck came to California from Yonkers, N. Y., ten years ago and resided at 1510 South Vermont avenue. Since then she had devoted most of her time to church and charitable work.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Overholtzer chapel, Tenth and Hill streets, tomorrow afternoon, with Rev. J. M. Schaefle, pastor of the church which Mrs. Fleck served, officiating.

Beautiful New Chinese Hand-Woven Rugs —Incomparable!

It is hard to conceive an idea of the character that can be expressed in floor-coverings, until you've actually seen a large, deep, soft Rug of sand or mauve background, foiled with a few individual motifs of design in tones of blue.

Spread out in all its richness, its sublime simplicity and its perfection of restful color harmony, such a Rug seems truly to express the ultimately satisfying in floor-coverings.

This tribute to the charms of modern Chinese "Orientals" is occasioned by the arrival of several entirely new patterns at Barker Bros.' Indeed, we're welcoming quite a constant influx of new Rugs these days—and welcoming many home-makers to admire them!

Perhaps the most noticeably original among our latest Rugs is one that is strictly and joyously Spanish. Its texture is wonderful and its coloring quite stunningly Castilian. So many of the newest homes are being "done Spanish" that Rugs of this type are being eagerly sought. You will enjoy seeing a stunning Spanish Rug that's a faithful replica of a rare museum piece.

Naturally we have also as many—and more—of the simpler types of floor-coverings for homes of quiet comfort and refinement, and they are beautiful, indeed, in their varieties just now!

Cushions—Christmas Cushions in a Clearance!

Every day inspired designers are creating new Cushions at Barker Bros.'—imagine what fortunes in IDEAS are poured out! And that's not all; we "import" Cushions from eastern shops for the sake of still more ideas.

Then we scatter them over the store—here, there and everywhere. The drapery section is always bright with new Cushions; davenports gain greater allurement through their charms; the model homes use them for hominess; they stand for color, life, vibration in the window decorations and room settings.

Of course, quantities of Cushions go straight from the needle into people's homes, there to be admired and cherished, but some we keep to beautify the store—and these are the Cushions scheduled to celebrate a complete clearance AT ONCE!

They are of practically all types, suitable for all purposes and marked at all prices. They are not old pillows but simply pillows with a bit of interesting experience to their credit. On account of the extreme reductions, all these Cushions will be sold "as is," yet many of them will look to you as though they'd just stepped out of a bandbox and none of them look any more shabby than they might if they had been in your home a week or two.

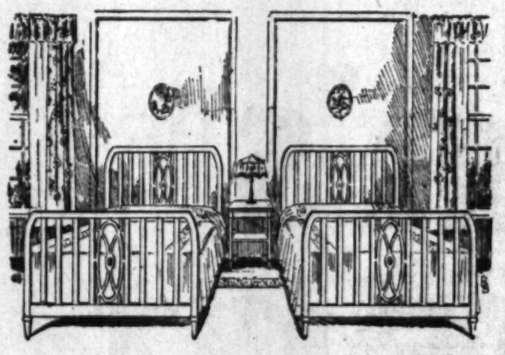
A number of our special clearance prices represent the bare cost of the filler alone. You will find it the most fascinating mode of economy to visit Barker Bros.' in quest of Cushions—tomorrow!

A Good Bed is Rest, Remedy and Solace

Rest—because it lends relaxation and causes sleep; Remedy—because wholesome sleep builds up new cells of strength and increases the power of resistance; Solace — because there's something magically comforting about a luxurious bed as a haven for cares.

And so a good Bed is one of the most precious possessions possible for anyone to have. And SIMMONS BEDS ARE GOOD BEDS!

They are built, first of all, for SLEEP—restful, refreshing, re-creating sleep. And then they are built for BEAUTY—beauty of line and beauty of finish.



Simmons Beds, we believe, have all possible practical advantages, with the added charm of being perfectly in harmony with virtually any type of bedroom furnishings.

We sell quantities of Simmons Beds, and everyone who has one seems so utterly satisfied that we're awfully glad to have so large a stock as now is showing upon our floors—for you to see this week!

Please look for the news about Barker Bros.' own-make mattresses upon another page of this paper today!

The Model Homes are Gift-ful

You will want to move right in when you have made a complete tour of our Model Better Homes—the part hard to decide is "which one you love the most," the Model Colonial Home or the California Cottage on the Fourth Floor, or the Model Better Home on the Second Floor!

"Now, if I only had a home like this I would think all the happiness in the world had fairly tumbled in upon me", said one little lady who had an object in view in visiting and studying the charming effects—but that is "romance".

You would feel just the same way, because while these Model Home Exhibits are maintained for the explicit reason of suggesting an idea to you for the betterment of your home ideal, yet, they are livable in the extreme.

Their charm will bring you back often, we hope, and if you have never seen them—we invite you.

Barker Bros.' Exchange Department makes a cheerful business of fitting round pegs into round holes—that is, relieving your home of furniture that doesn't fit it and placing those pieces where some other home will find and get them.

We will come at your call (Pico 1840 or 10423) and appraise whatever you think you'd like to turn in toward something more congenial.

PORTLAND AGAIN MOBS DE VALERA

Auditorium tonight when the De Valera meeting opened. They made it known that they were not going out of their way to cause trouble, but that they were resolved to see that no insults were offered to America.

Local sentiment as arrayed against De Valera is reflected in a prominent statement from the Union Patriotic Committee of Portland, carried conspicuously in local newspapers. In it were ten pertinent inquiries put that the "President of Ireland" has made no attempt to answer.

TWO SISTERS, BROTHER KILLED IN AUTO CRASH.

Stepfather and Daughter Dying After Trolley Smash as Family Returns from Burial of Mother.

Wiping out almost an entire family, three persons were killed and two others probably were fatally injured when an automobile in which they were riding was demolished by a Pacific Electric beach car at the Santa Monica boulevard right of way and Tenth street, Sawtelle, yesterday afternoon.

The victims were returning from the funeral of Mrs. Katheryn Shroyer. Her two daughters and son were killed and her husband and his daughter probably fatally injured.

The dead are:

JOSEPH H. RACKERBY, aged 56, of 802 Turk street, San Francisco, driver of the automobile, killed instantly.

MRS. FLORA RESIGUE, his sister, also of San Francisco, killed instantly. [May be Mrs. Florence Resigule, whose name appears in the San Francisco city directory as living at 9 Byington street.]

MRS. MARION MILLER of Yuba City, sister of Rackerby, died shortly after the accident.

STEPFATHER DYING.

Mrs. Catherine Ganzell, 30 years old, of Phoenix, Ariz., half-sister of those killed, is believed to be dying of a fractured skull and internal injuries.

J. L. Shroyer of 454 Tenth street, Sawtelle, father of Mrs. Ganzell and stepfather of the other three victims, also is believed to have no chance of recovery. He is suffering from a fractured skull and other serious injuries.

Mrs. Ganzell and Mr. Shroyer are at the Loamshire Sanatorium, 1116 Princeton street, Santa Monica, where their own physicians and those of the Pacific Electric Company are holding out no hopes for their recovery.

The crash that practically wiped out in an instant the entire family that a few minutes before left the grave of their mother at the Sunset Cemetery came without warning to the occupants of the automobile or to Motorman Dmytryk of Sherman of the street car.

The automobile was traveling south in Tenth street and had reached the crossing before its driver had an opportunity to see the approaching car. Tenth street is not a stop corner and Motorman Dmytryk, according to his statement to the Sawtelle police, was driving the street car at about twenty-five miles an hour when the little automobile suddenly loomed into view. Up to a moment before it appeared the motorman had been watching another automobile, traveling in the same direction with the street car, and dangerously close to the tracks, the motorman said. Rackery, unfamiliar with the vicinity, was in front of the street car before he knew it or had a chance to turn out of its way.

CROSSING DANGEROUS.

Sergt. McClain, in charge of the Sawtelle division, and Officers Hoffman, Haver and Rockoff, who made the original investigation and attended to the dead and injured, said the crossing is a dangerous one and unless a person is familiar with the neighborhood, he would not know he was approaching a railroad track. Rackerby drove his machine from San Francisco, and from the way he approached the crossing, the police say, apparently did not know it was there.

Mrs. Shroyer, whose funeral was followed by the tragic accident, died in a Los Angeles hospital Monday. She and Mr. Shroyer, who is an old soldier, and through a special arrangement has been living in an outside cottage, had been residents of Sawtelle for about a year.

Following their investigation the police took no action toward fixing the responsibility for the accident. Motorman Dmytryk and Conductor Andrews, also of Sherman, were allowed to go pending the action of the Coroner's jury or some order from the District Attorney's office. The car was No. 550 of the Hollywood and Santa Monica line, and was westbound at the time of the accident. The automobile was traveling south, the police report said.

None of the officials of the Pacific Electric Railway could be reached last night for their account of the accident and the responsibility for it.

The bodies of the three victims were taken to the Fred J. Finch undertaking parlors, at Sawtelle.

SALE OF WHISKY MAY NOT BE RESUMED HERE

Collector Carter does not look for any general resumption of the liquor trade in the jurisdictions where the Federal courts have decided that the war-time prohibition law is unconstitutional.

Since it became known that the dispensers of liquor would become responsible in case the United States Supreme Court held that the law involved was a legal enactment, there has been a dimunution of the activities of the liquor men, the collector said.

There is about sixty million gallons of whisky, in the United States, a part of the stock on hand when the law prohibiting the use of grains, etc., in the manufacture of spirituous, vinous and malt liquors went into effect last January, and dealers and manufacturers have had from that date until June 30, last to dispose of their accumulation.

Here is a period of six months within which, in the judgment of the collector, the liquor men should have disposed of their stocks of wet goods, if they had been smart enough to catch the trend of the whisky situation.

The manufacture of all spirtuous liquor, was prohibited by the rider to the appropriation bill that became effective January 1, 1919, and the law fixing the percentage of acohol in beer at 2.75 did not become the law until the close of last June.

HOLD BELL-HOP SUSPECT HERE.

Ex-Convict Wanted in Hotel Robbery in Washington.

Fled from Capital as Police Sought Missing Diamonds.

Detectives Watching Family, Arrest Him at Station.

Charged with having committed a daring robbery at $15,000 worth of diamonds and platinum in a Washington, D. C., hotel, Calvin L. Savage, 32 years old, who has worked as a bell hop in hotels in Los Angeles and all over the United States, was arrested by Detectives Hurt and Shy last night as he drove up to the Arcade depot in a taxi to catch a train for the East.

Savage's 20-year-old wife was with him at the time of his arrest. She has been living at 811 West Tenth street, with their two children. She was brought to Central Police Station to be questioned.

The alleged burglar who was convicted of having perpetrated a $26,000 hotel robbery in this city in 1913, was held on a grand larceny charge pending telegraphic instructions from the Chief of Police at the national capital.

FIRST CRIME HERE.

Savage's first crime was a robbery of $20,000 in a downtown hotel in this city where he was employed as a bell hop in 1913, the police say. He was convicted and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. After serving two months of his sentence, he was granted probation, but he soon violated his probation and was forced to serve two years in San Quentin.

When he finished his term he came to Los Angeles and met the girl he later married. At that time, she was Miss Anna McMurtry, a 16-year-old high school girl. Savage told her that he had been a convict but that he was determined to "go straight." Throughout their married life Mrs. Savage believed that her husband had kept straight. At the police station last night, she asserted her belief of innocence.

But the police records show that Savage was arrested in Milwaukee in 1916 for alleged burglary and in Cleveland in 1918 on a charge of forgery.

SENT WIFE HERE.

The couple arrived in Washington about six months ago with the two children. Savage obtained employment as a bell hop. About three weeks ago he wired to his father in this city for funds to bring his family here. Then he put his wife and children aboard a train with only $2 in Mrs. Savage's purse to defray the expenses of the journey, according to the story told the police. Upon her arrival here Mrs. Savage obtained rooms at 811 West Tenth street.

Then came the robbery of $15,000 at the Washington hotel, where Savage was employed. Detectives suspected him, but when they went to arrest him he had fled the city. Suspecting that he would come here, they notified the local police to watch for him.

Police detectives went to the Tenth-street address, where they found, according to their report, his family in straitened circumstances. Six days ago Savage arrived here. For two days the detectives sought him. The detectives learned of his intention to flee last night.

After waiting since 3 o'clock yesterday morning at the Arcade depot, Detectives Hurt and Shy at last saw the man they wanted drive up in a taxi with his wife.

IMPROVEMENT WORK CONTRACT AWARDED.

The contract for the improvement of Mayberry street, between Mohawk and McCollum streets, and in portions of other streets and public places, designated the Mayberry street improvement district, was awarded by the Board of Public Works yesterday to M. S. Cummings, for $19,956.41.

The board also awarded to George H. Oswald the contract for the paving of Washington street, from Arlington street to the westerly city limits. The improvement is to include paving, cement curbs and sidewalks, concrete gutters, sanitary sewer with house connections. The contract price is $92,228.43.

My old standby---Sloan's Liniment!

Sloan's Liniment, the Counter-Irritant, Relieves Practically all Aches and Pains Caused by Congestion.

ALWAYS handy, always willing, always faithful! In the thirty-eight years we've known each other, not once have you failed to relieve my aches and pains! And I've had many of them to test my confidence in you.

Way back there in the old days when we first became friends, I remember how you proved yourself by penetrating without rubbing to the sore spot, relieving the congestion and promoting blessed relief.

You haven't faltered, Sloan's Liniment — not once during the years that have intervened.

You have constantly helped relieve the after-effects of exposure, the sharp pains and the dull aches, the muscles so often made sore by toil and strain, the joint-stiffness from over-exertion.

And you've performed your work so economically, so cleanly — never any poultice or plaster mussiness or stained skin. No wonder I always keep you handy where, at the first sign of a pain or ache, I call on you and you promptly come to my relief! I'm proud of the fact that we are known as Old Friends!

...miles from Brest and an all-night ride from Paris. The day was ideal. The townfolk were hurrying and scurrying hither and thither accomplishing their morning tasks, the big white head-dresses of the women and the large, round, long-streamered hats of the men, completing one of the prettiest pictures I have ever seen. To reach the town, which is built away down in a valley, one has to go down a stone stairway in a series of terraces, four or five steps in a cluster, separated by flat spaces, until one has descended 100 steps.

CRUCIFIX AT GATE.

The Chateau de Troufontunion, where lives the marshal, is situated about three kilometers from Morlaix. There are but few houses on the road to Ploujean. Those that are there are mainly of the old white stone variety, and over each door is a little niche in which is placed, encased in glass, the statue of some saint or some other symbol of the faith of those within. As one turns from the road to drive up to the gate which gives entrance to the marshal's estate one faces an immense crucifix, fully twelve feet high, standing like a sentinel at the gate.

I had a letter of introduction to Mme. Foch, which I presented, and after a wait of but a few moments I was ushered into the sitting-room. This room was typical of the whole surroundings. It was a picture of daintiness and simplicity. The sun poured in from two immense windows which looked upon a garden, a vista of beauty worthy the brush of an artist. Gread red gladioli, varicolored dahlias, all shades of roses on stately bushes and pink hortensias wove themselves into a living tone-poem of nature's daintiest gifts. The room itself had for its chief note of color pink and white. Chairs and windows were draped in cretonne of these shades. On the walls were hung choice steel engravings and a few painted French landscapes.

Neither the marshal nor Mme. Foch speaks English, and I was a little timid about trusting my French in such an important event, but I was fortunate in having Prof. Hugo of Pittsburgh, a Knights of Columbus secretary, to act as interpreter.

CORDIAL GREETING.

Mme. Foch came in and greeted me cordially, and after we had been chatting for a time the door opened suddenly and a mans figure appeared upon the threshold. I recognized the marshal immediately. I had been practicing the Pershing salute for an hour before calling, so that I could greet the great French soldier in an appropriate manner, but lo and behold, before I could put my lesson in practice I discovered the marshal was not in uniform. Inasmuch as I had never pictured him in any other garb, I was taken by surprise, and before I had recovered he had crossed the room and shaken my hand with a firm grip of friendship. Then, with a galiant wave of his hand, he motioned me to be seated.

IN VACATION GARB.

He wore a blue serge suit, with a sack coat, lavender cravat and blue-striped shirt. Later, when we went out into the garden, he wore a cap. It was Foch on his vacation, the vacation toward which he had to fight his way against the greatest power ever assembled for four long years. He is a man of medium height, with a long graying mustache. His hair, too, is graying, and is thinned over the forehead and top of the head, but becomes thicker toward the back. And his bearing is magnificent. He need not wear a uniform to be recognized as a soldier and a commander. In manner he is very direct. He looks you straight in the eye and holds you as though he would read your thoughts and analyze them. He speaks with emphasis and directness, but even in his most emphatic moments there is always the courtesy of the well-cultured man. He is like all really great men, direct and positive, and yet with another side that is all gentleness and charm.

GETS POINTS QUICKLY.

Mme. Foch opened the conversation by telling the marshal of my mission and that I was "interested in her plans for the relief of those in want in France." The marshal listened and when he had got the trend of affairs in hand took charge of the situation. He began questioning us, and as we explained one point after another he would slap his hands together and say, "Bon, bon" (good, good;) and so it continued until I had fully gone over the points upon which I wished to have his impressions. During this preliminary conversation I could not but form in my mind a picture of this wonderful man in action in the field when reports were made to him from the widely scattered officers under his control. I could picture his listening, just as he listened to me, all attention, and ready as soon as the situation was made clear to make the quick decision of the man of strength and finality. He wants the facts in any situation in the quickest possible time and in the fewest words necessary to clarity. That was the first characteristic which impressed me. As the time went by and we got better acquainted he warmed to the conversation and we became more friendly.

At the moment of his entrance I had been talking to Mme. Foch about Bolshevism. She turned to her husband and told him about it, and the conversation immediately jumped to that topic.

French Leader Who Put Arms in Armistice

BOLSHEVISM HOPELESS.

"Bolshevism," he said, in his quick emphatic manner, "is a state of mind under which the peoples of the defeated countries are laboring. The gilded promises made to the people in these countries by the autocratic powers which ruled them, that out of the war they would annex riches, and the failure of these powers to lead the people to the wealth and luxury which they crave, have placed these poor people in a state of demoniacal disillusionment and frenzy, resulting in their killing and destroying everything in their paths in their abject hopelessness.

AFTERMATH OF WAR.

"This condition," continued the marshal, "is a natural result of the chagrin and disappointment of vanquished militaristic nations. But it is certain this condition will pass. When these people realise that the victors in the war were fighting for a noble and just cause, the salvation of civilization threatened by their selfish masters, they will recognize that the war ended in the only possible way it could have ended, and in the best way for them as well as for the peoples of the other nations of the world. It is just as it is in life. A patient who has been ill, when he passes the crisis is not yet recovered. He must first pass through a long period of convalescence before he fully recovers his strength and can again fill his proper place in the world."

A MENTAL STATE.

And as the marshal continued he became more and more emphatic. "The present condition of these people," he said, "is like one of complete insanity," and to add emphasis he struck the open palm of his hand upon the top of his head, illustrating his meaning. "The tactics of the Bolshevists," in answer to my interpolated question as to whether he thought the disease would ever take root in the United States, "can be compared to that of an armed mob without a leader and with no sense of discipline, another proof of its instability. There is no danger of Bolshevism taking root in any of the Allied countries. There may be minor outcroppings of it here and there, but it cannot thrive as it has in parts of Europe. It can never make any serious inroads in France."

LIKE ROOSEVELT.

Somehow or other, during the conversation, he suggested to me Theodore Roosevelt, whom I had heard speak a couple of times. While he does not resemble the late colonel in appearance, there is the same suggestion of the strenuous, fighting character in both men.

Seeking to turn the conversation to a more personal trend, I asked, "What was the secret of your great success?"

"What was the secret of 'our success,'" repeated the marshal, correcting me. "The secret of our success is the secret of the success of every man who wore the French uniform—a French heart. And it was, in reverse, the secret of the German defeat."

"Tell me just what you mean by that," I asked.

SECRET OF SUCCESS.

"The secret might be called by different names. The materialists would call it determination. But there was reason, and cause for the determination of the French soldier which made it more effective than that of the German soldier. The German soldier's determination was founded only on materialism. It was devoid of idealism. They have no scruples, respect nothing, and have for their religion a doctrine of gross and brutal materialism. They fought for conquest, for loot, in spoils, in territory and in power. They lived and acted and fought the material view of their 'Deutschland ueber alles.' The French soldier's determination was based on idealism, on spirituality. They fought in defense of a country they loved, a flag they reverenced, with a lofty idealism the miseducated boche mind could not possibly understand. But to them, under the German doctrine, that the state is over all and that all individuality must be subordinate to the welfare of the state as that welfare is interpreted by the military masters, Germany was the indomitable master. The French soldier fought as a duty to himself, to his children and his God—and his God was not a helmeted, spur-booted bit of clay.

FAITH IN PERSONNEL.

"As to any special adaptability we had in meeting the military problems as they presented themselves, I suppose the greatest thing was our confidence in the intelligence of the personnel of the army as individuals. In all of my military studies I, of course, had the defense of France against a German attack in mind. Every one in France knew that sooner or later Germany would attack again as soon as she thought the prospective reward in territory and other booty would justify the expense. The German army system, like the German political and educational systems, all aimed to destroy the habit of independent thought in the personnel. The high command made its plans down to the last detail, and the army was sent out to do that and nothing else. Nothing was left to the intelligence of the subordinate officer or private soldier. The Germans handled their army much as a man might treat a locomotive where he had not the technical knowledge to guide it. He might pull it together and start it, and as long as the track was straight and there were no obstacles the locomotive would run along by itself.

GERMAN MATERIALISM.

"There is no question that in 1914 the Germans had a wonderful fighting machine—but it was only a machine. Themselves educated away from idealism, the high command had not counted upon the admirable devotion and fraternity that existed in the French army, principally the love of the French soldier for his officers, and the respect and reverence they had for their 'patrie.' My present servant was my orderly during the war and I dare say without exaggeration that he would commit himself to the flames if I so ordered and he would do it willingly. In contrast to the boche, who consider men as nothing but means to an end, the French soldier fights intelligently, his discipline being that of fighting nobly and bravely on his own initiative and without useless sacrifice. The French officer and his soldiers were as a part of one big family, because the sentiment of the defense of the soil is ever apparent. It was never more vividly proved than in this war. French soldiers fought with unalterable determination that the Patrie, noble France, might be saved to civilization.

INDIVIDUAL ACTION.

"On the other side, the plan of the German high command had to be carried out in detail. In our army our officers were thoroughly familiar with the terrain. There was perfect co-ordination between the various units as to artillery preparation, time of attack and objective to be gained. But it sometimes became a matter for the individual officer, and in some cases for the individual soldier to decide how to overcome one or another of those obstacles that no human power could foresee. No matter how far a general plan may have gone awry, there was always enough military intelligence among our line officers to save the situation. That one thing Germany lacked and when we finally broke down this general plan of the high command, the whole German army went to pieces.

BATTLE TECHNIQUE.

"You know that, after all," he continued, drawing his chair a little closer in his deep interest in what he was saying, "the planning and carrying through of a big battle is like the meeting of a difficult subject. Any one can make a rough sketch and fill in here and there, but it requires the individual intelligence, the perseverance, the fighting spirit, the bulldog tenacity to bring it to a successful termination. Don't stop to have any fear, but when you are sure that you are right, approach the issue with confidence and fight and fight on until victory.

"This war was fought," he went on in a reflective attitude, "with one object in the mind of every man who shouldered a gun and every woman who helped in the capacities open to her, that they were doing a necessary duty in the one great issue, the defense of civilization."

"What is your opinion of Germany today?" I asked.

VIEWS ON GERMANY.

"The present condition of Germany is like that of a great edifice which has had its rivets drawn out. I may say that Germany, as a country, no longer exists, but the German people remain. We who have lived at the lips of the dragon of German militarism; who have been nagged and constantly threatened by it, our feelings are deep. The German in America may be the harmless, good-natured, beer-drinking yokel, as you know him over there, but to us, wherever he is, he is a trained bit of destructive machinery, ready to do the bidding, without question, of his masters. And it has been his masters that we have always had to reckon with. We have lived in the shadow for nearly fifty years. Germany went through all the forms of a civilized nation. She sent delegates to peace conferences, she made treaties with the other nations of the world, she signed agreements to conduct herself in wars in accordance with the usages of the civilized nations. But she never meant to do anything of the sort.

BUILT ON DECEIT.

Not alone was America deceived, but many here in Europe were deceived. America was longer in awaking to the knowledge of the deception, but when she did she came valiantly to the defense of civilization for which France and her gallant allies had fought at such tremendous cost.

"France must leave no loophole through which Germany can again attack!" declared the marshal with vehemence. "The dragon's fangs have been drawn, but the body still lives and is capable of growing new fans. It is the duty of civilization to see that these fangs shall not be allowed to grow again. For if they do, Germany will strike again and there will be no peace beyond that backed up by superior force."

Suddenly rising, he offered me his arm. "Come to my study and I will give you the picture you asked for," he said, apparently signifying that the interview was closed. We proceeded to the study, accompanied by Madame Foch.

STUDY IS TYPICAL.

His study is typical of the man. Decorated in red, it was a picture of coziness. In the center was a big, flat-topped desk fairly buried under a mass of letters, telegrams and legal-looking papers with all sorts of seals. And then I discovered why he had terminated the interview in the sitting-room. He wanted to smoke, so you see he is human, after all. After gallantly asking permission, he filled his pipe and lighted it and we began chatting again. I suddenly remembered that at one stage of the war the papers had printed in cable dispatches from France that the Generalissimo had asked the children of France to pray for his "intention."

FAITH IN PRAYER.

"We heard a great deal in the United States," I said, "about your great faith in the prayers of the people, and especially of the children of France. Did you have any experience in the war to confirm your faith in the efficacy of these prayers?" I had been a little dubious about asking him the question, because it seemed of such an intensely personal nature, but he seemed pleased that I asked it, and he told me how wonderful it was, the prayers of these little children, which, he declared, were always heard. Then he added that he had mass celebrated on the field every morning.

Then I asked him to pose for a picture. He seemed a little reluctant, but consented. In the garden he posed in a group with Mme. Foch and myself. A little girl ran out of the house and I spoke to her. They explained, the marshal and the madame, that her name was Madeleine and that she was their grandchild. After I took her picture she went after the others. They were Jean, Anne and Henri, and they all posed together. Two of the little ones were the children of the son who was killed in action.

Then I reluctantly bade them adieu. With the most courtly grace in the world, the marshal expressed his felicitations, invited me to visit their town house in Paris, then kissed my hand in farewell. And as the motor sped up the beautiful road toward Morlaix, and I looked back, I saw the marshal still standing at the door, waving his adieus.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

Wash away all stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify, and freshen the entire alimentary tract before eating more food.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.—[Advertisement.

REVOLT A DAY IN MEXICO.

Statistics for U. S. Senate Show Havoc Wrought by Bandits and Rebels.

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—One hundred and twelve days in Mexico—from April 10 to July 31 of the present year—saw 317 major outbreaks of disorder reported in newspapers that are published under the close scrutiny of the Mexican authorities, according to a map indexing conditions in Mexico submitted to the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee investigating the Mexican situation. Rebel factions and bandits, the military and police organizations and political partisans were responsible for all of these outbreaks, which did not include the ordinary police crimes and misdemeanors reported.

Of the thirty States and Territories in Mexico, all but Lower California, which is under the practically independent control of Gov. Cantu, and Quintana Roo, isolated on the peninsula of Yucatan, furnished their quota of violence and bloodshed.

Of the 317 outbreaks of violence reported, the Mexican newspapers ascribed 272 to the activity of various factions in rebellion against the Carranza government, fifteen to the depredations of organized bandits, fifteen to the lawlessness of police and military officials, and three to clashes between political partisans. Two newspapers, Excelsior and El Universal, published in Mexico City, the seat of the Carranza government, reported 312 of these outbreaks; four were reported by Correo del Norte, published at Chihuahua city, and one was reported by El Heraldo of Chihuahua city.

It is significant that these outbreaks were reported in Mexican newspapers, for during June the Carranza authorities arrested and deported to the disturbed district of Chihuahua a group of newspaper editors whose publications had displeased the government by publishing accounts of various disturbances.

Mexico's transportation system, the maintenance of which is vital to governmental control and to the subsistence of the people, was the particular prey of the rebel bands. During the 112 days indexed on the map presented to the committee, there were reported in eighteen States seventy-two instances of trains dynamited, looted and burned, railroad stations attacked, and railroad track demolished by rebellious marauders operating against the Carranza government.

RAID MANY TOWNS.

In addition to these direct attacks on railroads, the various rebel forces, during the period covered by the reports, raided or occupied thirty-one of the more populous towns on the various railroad lines, looting, burning and killing. In the States of Vera Cruz and Puebla, the reports showed thirty direct attacks on the important railroad lines which connect the Mexican capital with the coast, all of which caused more or less extended interruptions of traffic.

The State of Puebla during the period covered by the map was the scene of thirty-four outbreaks of violence. Of these more than half occurred in the immediate vicinity of Puebla City, one of the larger cities of Mexico. One of these attacks, reported in Excelsior, June 15, was directed against the hacienda of William Jenkins, American Consular Agent at Puebla, who during October was captured and held for ransom by the rebels.

In the June attack the hacienda was looted and the manager killed. Excelsior reported on June 12, that the entire Carranza garrison at San Marcos, Puebla, had revolted, while rebels were looting towns, kidnaping women and men, and dynamiting railroad trains throughout the State. At Barranca Honda, within ten kilometers (about seven miles) of Puebla City, a passenger train from Mexico City was held up by a rebel detachment, Excelsior reported, on June 11.

The train robbery netted 100,00 pesos in loot and 100 passengers were marched off into the hills by the rebel detachment commander, in order to prove to the rebel leader Arenas that the attack on the train had succeeded. The passengers were held prisoners about twenty-four hours.

VERA CRUZ DISORDER.

Fifty-one important outbreaks of disorder were reported in the State of Vera Cruz during the period covered by the map and every one of these outbreaks was ascribed to the activity of rebel forces.

Throughout the period covered by the map the reports indicated uninterrupted activity by Pancho Villa and his forces in the States of Chihuahua and Durango. On April 20, Universal reported an indefinite suspension of railroad traffic across Southern Chihuahua because of Villa's activities, and on May 20, Excelsior reported the Villistas concentrated at Parral, with Villa himself bound north to turn into cash 100,000 pesos of stolen silver bullion.

Several battles betwen Villa's followers and Carranza troops, numerous Villa attacks on railroad trains and strategic railroad points and numerous raids by Villa's forces were reported. For ten days, Universal reported on June 4, the Villa forces held the important town of Parral, on June 9, Excelsior said that Villa had captured San Andreas and transferred his headquarters there. These activities of Villa led to the establishment of concentration camps at Jiminez by Gen. Dieguez, the Carranza commander, where Americans from the Parral and Conchos districts could be gathered together "for protection."

In various instances outbreaks of disorder were declared to be due to the defection of Carranza military officers or State officials who deserted their posts to join various rebel factions or to start rebellions of their own. Of this nature were the raids of rebels on the Aguas Calientes under the erstwhile Carranza leader, Echegaras, reported by Universal July 1, and the activities of a revolting Federal general, Armentas, who, according to Universal, May 12, established himself with a band of rebels in the mountains of Guerrero and proceeded to ravage the countryside.

Throughout the period covered by the reports there were published accounts of the looting of river and coastwise steamers in the State of Tabasco. Apparently, the authorities were unable to put a stop to the attack and the piracy netted hundreds of thousands of dollars in spoils. At the end of July, however, both Universal and Excelsior reported that Gov. Carlos Green of Tabasco had hastily fled from the State capital and set up an independent rebel government, following the discovery that the piratical attacks had been made by municipal and State troops under his direction.

Conditions in the State of Campeche were so bad in May that a commission of residents protested to Carranza against "the unfortunate reign of terror," which they ascribed to State authorities and political partisans, who, they declared, were making life "almost impossible," according to Excelsior, May 25. In June a Congressman from the State of Queretaro complained rather vigorously that the political campaign then in progress in his State had been marked by ten assassinations.

The State of Mexico, where the national capital is located, showed fifteen major disorders during the period covered by the map. Universal, on June 9, reported that a rebel band operating in the Federal district had held up and robbed an automobile picnic party just outside of the capital and had held the men of the party for ransom. Various towns in the State were occupied at various times by rebels under Arenas and by the Capativas.

WOMEN KIDNAPED.

In sixteen of the instances cited Mexican newspapers the rebels or bandits resorted to kidnaping. In various cases women and girls were carried off by the marauders, and in other cases well-to-do men were held for ransom. On June 18, Universal reported that rebels in the State of Michoacan had collected 50,000 pesos in ransoms for the release of five wealthy land owners, who had been kidnaped.

OLE HANSON APPLAUDS ARRESTS OF RADICALS.

SEATTLE'S FIGHTING EX-MAYOR PLEASED WITH ACTION IN HIS HOME CITY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15.—Ole Hanson, who resigned as Mayor of Seattle to head a national campaign for Americanism, insists that all the reds and I.W.W.'s should be put of America at once. As to the closing of the Seattle Union Record, he was enthusiastic.

"I was denouncing this newspaper in a speech in Amsterdam, N. Y.," he said, "when a report was handed me of the Federal raid. I just threw up my hands and cheered. The government has been slow about getting after its enemies within, but since last Saturday there has been good work done, and I hope it will be continued."

"The government," he said, "is beginning to do the business right. There are many deportations to be made, not just a few out of the hundreds reported, but sweeping eliminations of groups of men who are seeking to overthrow America and Americanism.

"We have been too easy with the foes of our government. Many of the leaders in seditious movements have been in prison and are out on parole. They have nothing to lose, and they think nothing more can happen to them."

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We Eat Too Much Meat, Which Clogs Kidneys, Then the Back Hurts.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—[Advertisement.

A Sure Way to End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.—[Advertisement.

BANK TELLER DIES BY HIS OWN HAND.

DESPONDENT OVER ILL HEALTH HE SHOOTS SELF DEAD IN OWN GARAGE.

Frank A. Greth, a teller at the Los Angeles Trust & Savings Bank, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head in the garage at his home at 317 North Stoneman street, Alhambra, at 6 o'clock last evening. With his wife, Mr. Greth, who was 35 years old, had returned from a trip with Dr. W. S. Derby and Mrs. Derby to Palm Springs, where Mr. Greth had been recuperating from a nervous breakdown. After returning home, Mr. Greth went into the garage, and seating himself in his automobile, shot himself through the head, dying instantly. His act was due to ill health resulting in a nervous depression from which it was thought he had been helped by his visit to Palm Springs.

Mr. Greth leaves besides his wife, two small children. He had lived in Alhambra two years, and had recently finished building a new home. With his brother-in-law, O. W. Lewis, he was part owner of the Alhambra Theater. The funeral services will be held on Tuesday afternoon. The arrangements are in charge of the undertaking firm of Turner, Stevenes and Turner.

GREEK BISHOP HERE.

Head of Church in United States Making Inspection Tour.

Bishop Alexander Rodostolou, head of the Greek church in the United States and Canada, is in Los Angeles on an inspection tour of the churches under his jurisdiction in this country. This is his first trip to the Pacific Coast. He was formerly head of the Greek church in Asia Minor, Thrace and Macedonia and was forced to flee when the Turks put a price on his head. He arrived in New York just before the armistice was signed.

The bishop, who is accompanied by his deacon and his secretary, will sing pontifical high mass in the Church of the Ascension of the Virgin, Twelfth and San Julian streets, today.

ARIZONA LABOR PAPER RAPS FORMER EDITORS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) Nov. 15. — The first issue of the Arizona Labor Journal under the new management sustained by the courts declares strongly against the socialism of the former management. The late I.W.W. attack at Centralia, Wash., is called "Cowardly and Murderous."

"It is declared "the very life of trades unionism and the American Federation of Labor depends upon elimination of the I.W.W. from its ranks. Let Mr. Wobbly pay his own secretaries and orators, support his own newspapers and not try to gain respectability and standing by affiliation with trades unions, all the while working for the destruction of that union from a traiterous inside position."

The Tucson Trades Council supports the new Labor Journal administration, and has turned down a resolution of its machinists' union favoring President Creaff and Secretary Smith.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.

St. Vincent's to Celebrate Its Thirty-third Today.

St. Vincent's Church will celebrate at 11:15 o'clock this morning the thirty-third anniversary, of its dedication. There will be a sermon by Rev. James MacRoberts, C. M., and appropriate music under the direction of Nicholas Devereaux, the organist.

The congregation established a church in the old center of Los Angeles fifty-four years ago and later built the present church and St. Vincent's College at Grand avenue and Washington street. At this site many of the children of the alumni of St. Vincent's now attend the parochial school.

Griddle Cakes

Light, tender, golden brown—no other griddle cakes are like those baked with Calumet.

No substitute will give you the same result as

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

Its purity contributes to the wholesomeness of your bakings.
It's pure in the can and pure in the baking.

This superiority—this exceptional quality of Calumet— does not cost you a cent extra—not a cent. In fact it saves you money.

Calumet is the most economical of all Baking Powders. You save when you buy it—moderate in price. You save when you use it—has more than the ordinary leavening strength—therefore you use less. You save materials it is used with—never fails.

Made in the world's largest, finest, most sanitary Baking Powder factory. And made in a way that does away with all bake day worry and waste. Contains only such ingredients as have been approved officially by United States Food Authorities.

It is the largest selling brand of baking powder in the world and it is used by millions of housewives.

Sold by your grocer under guarantee of "Money Back" if it does not prove "Best by Test." Try it.

Calumet Griddle Cakes

2 level cups flour
2 level teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
½ teaspoon salt
1⅞ cups milk or water
1 level tablespoon sugar
2 level tablespoons melted shortening
2 eggs—yolks

Don't Overlook This

When you buy a pound can of Calumet you get a full pound—16 ounces—no short weight. Some baking powders are now being put on the market in 12-ounce cans instead of pound cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it. Remember—Calumet is not made by the Trust—not sold at Trust prices.

How to Make Them

Mix dry ingredients in flour. Beat egg yolks and melted shortening in the liquid, add only a part of the liquid mix until smooth. Then add gradually the balance of the liquid until batter is of the proper consistency. According to the strength of the flour more or less liquid is required. Bake on griddle well greased.

Paste in your Recipe Book for future reference.

Handsomely illustrated in colors. Most complete and dependable recipe book ever published. Hundreds of helps in reducing household expense. Scores of selected recipes—new and better ways of making better foods. Send slip found in can of Calumet and three 2¢ stamps to help cover cost of packing and mailing. WHY IS DE VALERA COMING HERE?

Ostensible Versus the Actual Reasons for the Tour of the World's Chief Sinn Feiner; How Americans Regard Him and His Mission; Plans for "Welcome."

Edward (Gaelic Eamonn) de Valera, American by birth and an escape from British justice, is due to arrive in Los Angeles next Wednesday. He is the self-styled "president" of an "Irish republic" which exists only in the imaginations of his followers. His American "tour" is being staged, not to secure real freedom for Ireland, but for the following objects:

First, to stir up opposition in this country to Great Britain.

Second, to defeat, if possible, the establishment of a League of Nations.

Third, to raise funds for the Sinn Feiners of Ireland who slay soldiers and peace officers and who assaulted American sailors during the war.

Of the objects of the present tour of De Valera and his associates, Admiral Sims, who commanded the American fleet in European waters during the war, says:

"At the moment when these lines are being written a delegation claiming to represent the 'Irish republic' is touring the United States, asking Americans to extend their sympathy and contribute money toward the realization of their project.

"I have great admiration for the mass of the Irish people, and from the best elements of those people the American sailors received only kindness. I have therefore hesitated about telling just how some members of the Sinn Fein party treated our men. But it seems that when this same brotherhood is attempting to stir up hatred in this country against our allies in the war, there is a certain pertinence in informing Americans just what kind of treatment their brave sailors met with at Sinn Fein hands in Ireland."

A united effort has been made [illegible] to appear that the opposition to the tour of De Valera [illegible] from selfish or sectarian motives. Following is a brief summary of the attitude publicly taken by representative individuals and organizations throughout America:

EX-PRESIDENT WOODROW WILSON refused to meet Justice Daniel Cohalan because the latter had conferred with Von Bernstorff; declined to interfere with British prosecution of four of so-called "Irish-American" delegates; though a friend of Ireland, he refused to receive De Valera or his "Irish republic."

REAR ADMIRAL WILLIAM S. SIMS, who commanded American naval forces in European waters during the war, denounces the Sinn Fein movement as purely pro-German, and condemns certain articles of their acts toward American sailors.

REV. JOSEPH H. JOHNSON, pastor of the Church of Los Angeles, one of the most prominent citizens of Pasadena, including seven members of the Executive Committee of Pasadena Post of American Legion, join in public statement protesting the reception to De Valera, as an insult to American soldiers.

GEN. WILLIAM C. SPROUL of Pennsylvania refused to meet De Valera when the latter visited Philadelphia in October.

ADJT.-GEN. HARVEY J. MOSS of California refused to grant De Valera the use of State Armory at Tacoma for a meeting.

GOV. THOMAS R. SMITH of Montana refuses to meet De Valera or take part in reception.

MAYOR WILLIAM F. BROENING of Baltimore refused to recognize Sinn Fein movement as president of "Irish republic."

MAYOR MEREDITH P. SNYDER of Los Angeles declines to take part in reception, parade, banquet and ball for De Valera.

MAYOR BAKER of Portland, Or., refuses to allow De Valera to decorate Irish flags the hall in which Sinn Feiner was to speak. Mayor with equanimity the subsequent refusal to speak. Enthusiastic reception in the Oregon city, a chilly one.

ATTORNEY OSCAR LAWLER of Los Angeles declines to attend welcoming luncheon to De Valera, declaring it to be present would be a "reflection on our own country."

ORGANIZATIONS.

AMERICAN LEGION, Pasadena Post, passed resolutions opposing public reception to De Valera.

AMERICAN LEGION, Executive Committee of Los Angeles Post, declines to take part in De Valera parade here.

AMERICAN LEGION posts of Bryn Mawr and Norristown, Pa., adopted resolutions denouncing reception to De Valera as "insult to men in the service of the United States and a reflection on the cause for which our comrades fought and died."

AMERICAN LEGION, Portland (Or.) Post ripped the Irish flags from De Valera's car as it was about to start with the Sinn Feiner on a tour of the city.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA, unanimously adopted a resolution protesting against the welcoming of De Valera to Los Angeles.

KITCHENER POST, WORLD WAR VETERANS, LONG BEACH, unanimously denounced De Valera as a slacker and as a fugitive from justice.

BAPTIST MINISTERIAL CONFERENCE OF LOS ANGELES adopted resolutions protesting against the work of De Valera in interfering in the political affairs of this country.

OVERSEAS CLUB of returned war veterans, Los Angeles, adopted resolutions of protest which were sent to the State Department at Washington and to the Mayor of Los Angeles.

ASSOCIATION OF CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES AND MINISTERS of Los Angeles denounced De Valera as one who was inciting strife in this country.

ASSOCIATED BRITISH SOCIETIES OF LOS ANGELES denounced De Valera as a traitor to the cause of the Allies.

LOYAL ORANGE LODGE, PURPLE STAR, NO. 253, Los Angeles, as American citizens, denounced De Valera as a traitor to the cause of freedom.

LADY'S LILY LOYAL ORANGE LODGE, Los Angeles, protested the coming of De Valera to this city.

ASSOCIATION OF NATUROPATHIC PHYSICIANS OF CALIFORNIA declared that De Valera is spreading insidious propaganda to stir up hatred between the Anglo-Saxon peoples.

RECEPTION PLANS.

De Valera is the head of the Sinn Fein, a political faction in Ireland which was termed by Admiral William S. Sims, U.S.N., openly pro-German during the war. He is due to arrive in Los Angeles at 10:15 a.m. next Wednesday from San Francisco. He is to be met at the Arcade Depot by a reception committee of which Joe Scott is chairman. It had been intended that Mayor Snyder should be at the station to greet the "President of the Irish Republic" as he greeted there President Wilson, the King of Belgium, Lieut.-Col. Theodore Roosevelt of the American Legion and other distinguished visitors to Los Angeles. However, Mayor Snyder firmly declined to be a party to any welcoming ceremonies, as did also Gov. William C. Sproul of Pennsylvania, Mayor Thomas B. Smith of Philadelphia and Mayor William F. Broening of Baltimore when De Valera was making his Atlantic Coast tour. Gov. Stephens will not be present at the depot here, and the reception in no case will have the official standing which the Sinn Feiners had planned when they smuggled De Valera out of Ireland and sent him to the United States to embarrass President Wilson and to stir up trouble between this country and Great Britain and its other allies.

After the reception at the depot, it had been planned to have an elaborate parade through the downtown streets as in the case of President Wilson and King Albert of Belgium, the purpose being to show that Los Angeles received De Valera as the chief executive of the "Irish Republic."

CHILLY "WELCOME."

A second feature planned was a military and civic parade through the principal streets, ending at the Alexandria Hotel. The committee has had great difficulty in securing organizations to march in the parade, which, as thus far announced, will consist principally of De Valera in an automobile, and other machines carrying members of the Welcoming Committee and other sympathizers. It was announced that school children were to greet the Sinn Fein leader. The schools are in session that day, and no application has been made to grant any recess in order that the children might view the parade, it was stated at the Board of Education. There is no indication that any application will be presented, or, if asked for, that it will be granted. Such children as remain out of school that day to greet De Valera will do so on their own responsibility.

Following the arrival at the Alexandria, there will be luncheon at the hotel to De Valera. A number of prominent men who were invited declined to attend the luncheon, including Attorney Oscar Lawler, who sent a letter to P. P. O'Brien, chairman of the luncheon committee, stating that to honor De Pretty Puzzle for the Government.

The real Mrs Rittenhouse?

Bonds received here by Ella Buell

Pair arrested in Seattle.....

Miss Caroline Harris,

And some of the adventures which the government charges to her and G. W. Rittenhouse, most of which she denies.

SCHOOL GIRL CENTER OF MYSTERY.

Is Little Caroline Harris Victim of Strange Coincidence or Did She Cross Country to Consummate Bold Frauds? Did She Elope with Man Held for Big Theft?

What really happened to Caroline Harris?

Did the 19-year-old Los Angeles schoolgirl, who is a child for her years and still likes to play with dolls, help G. W. Rittenhouse, 24 years old, steal $9100 by notably clever frauds? Did she go to New York to consummate the thefts? Is she his wife or was he married to "Miss Madge Dunn" before little Miss Harris met him? Did the latter as his wife?" She answered: "Most certainly not. No such thing ever occurred."

Moreover, no record of any such wedding has been found, and in the background is Madge Dunn, reported to be the real wife of Rittenhouse and to have fled with him last summer from Glendale, where she was employed in the telephone exchange.

That month, May, Rittenhouse went to work for the Gray company. He told Mrs. Harris that he desired to look around and work on a salary before going into a business venture he contemplated. He told Marion Gray, head of the company, that he was a discharged service man, and went to work as a bookkeeper at $85 a month.

THE CRIME CHARGED.

May 26, he is declared to have destroyed two checks from the Gray company to New York firms and payable at the Chase National Bank, New York. The amounts were $1175 and $1050. It is charged that Rittenhouse rewrote the checks, making them payable to fictitious persons and that the checks were certified by the New York bank. Other checks were similarly handled, according to the Federal charges.

June 6 and June 16, it is further asserted, some of the stolen money was used to buy Liberty Bonds through the W. R. Compton Company, 42 Broadway, New York. Bonds worth some $4000, altogether, were secured from this source.

WHERE WAS SHE?

Here arises one of those contradictions that are woven through the whole affair.

Mrs. Harris says her daughter and Rittenhouse were here till June 27, when they left "on their honeymoon trip" and that Rittenhouse returned here about three weeks later, saying Caroline was in New York. The mother demanded to know why, she says, and received an evasive answer.

But the authorities declare Caroline was in New York, June 16, when the check for $1775 was certified by the Chase National Bank.

The mother's account of the absence that she says was in her belief a wedding journey furnishes further contradictions, when compared with other versions. Mrs. Harris relates that Rittenhouse said he and Caroline were going to motor north—he actually paid $950 for a car and motored to San Francisco and then to Seattle in it—and asked her to go along on the trip. He said, according to Mrs. Harris, that he was going to San Francisco, then to Chicago on business, and then to New York, to see his rich mother and presumably to introduce Caroline. Meantime Mrs. Harris had met Rittenhouse's "family," as she terms it, at Glendale, where Guy Rittenhouse, a brother of the accused man, lives at 1725 East Eighth street. However, Mrs. Harris declined to go on the motor tour.

DID CAROLINE GO?

Just the same, she declares: "On June 27, they again left the city supposedly on their wedding trip."

They met on the steamer....

Eloped, says motto

Money used in New York to buy bonds

Gray Co. checks disappear

appeared, and Caroline wore a wedding ring, with her name and the date, May 3, engraved inside. "They announced they had been married at Alhambra," Mrs. Harris declares, "and I believed them at the time. Caroline showed me the wedding ring."

But, after the arrest, Caroline was asked: "Is it true that you ever introduced Rittenhouse as your husband or that he ever represented you over go to meet him at Seattle, where they were arrested?

Or is she, as she says, an innocent victim of an astonishing series of incriminating circumstances?

She has her liberty now, under $1000 bail. Rittenhouse also is free under $5500 bond—$5000 in the State courts and $500 in the Federal courts. Both are awaiting trial on Federal charges of using the mails to defraud, and Rittenhouse is charged in the State courts with defrauding the Marion R. Gray Company, 82 South Los Angeles street, his former employers, out of $1775.

This represents one check of a number Rittenhouse is accused of having falsified. These checks, it is asserted, were cashed in New York while Miss Harris was in that city, and $6000 of the $9100 thus obtained, the authorities say, was used to buy Liberty Bonds. These were sent to Los Angeles by registered mail, and the registered packages were receipted for by Miss Harris under an assumed name, it is charged.

She denies all connection with the check and bond transactions.

Extraordinary mystery attaches to some angles of the case, and strangely conflicting stories have been told about almost every principal fact connected with it.

HE'S FIELD CLERK.

The latest phases of the strange case hark back to days when Rittenhouse was an army field clerk, assigned to headquarters at Camp Lewis, Wash.

In those days he was known as a promoter of dances. And at the time of his arrest, last September 25, he was operating a dance hall at Seattle, very near the scenes of his war-time activities.

These led to an investigation, last January. At that time, the chief of staff at the camp detailed First Lieutenant John T. Curtin, now an attorney in this city, and then an intelligence officer of the army, to inquire into Rittenhouse's methods of staging dances. The intelligence report showed that Rittenhouse con-

LOST SCIENTIST IS SAFE.

Prof. Sickler, Believed Dead in Frozen North, Telegraphs Mother Here.

Having practically given up hope of ever again hearing from her son, Prof. Fred Sickler, whom she feared had been lost among the snows of Northern Alaska, Mrs. M. M. Sickler, 123 South Normandie avenue, was overjoyed yesterday to receive a telegram from Prof. Sickler who has just reached Seattle.

In the message to his mother, he said that for months it had been impossible for a ship to leave the far northern waters on account of huge icebergs. He informed his mother that he will probably go to Michigan and get his family before coming on to Los Angeles.

Prof. Sickler, who is one of the best-known all-round scientists of Southern California, has been in the government service in Alaska nine years, his work, for the most part, having been done at Shungnak, 301 miles within the Arctic circle, at Point Hope, which is even farther north into the "land that God forgot." Much of his labor in the Arctic Prof. Sickler has devoted to teaching the Alaskan Indians and to efforts to replace the dog, as a beast of burden, with the reindeer, as the latter is especially valuable for meat and milk.

Prof. Sickler was the first man who ever succeeded in raising vegetables in the vicinity of Shungnak. In the school garden at that point he has, for years, been cultivating kohlrabi, peas, rhubard, beets, cabbages, turnips and many other vegetables. Samples of the potatoes he raised there were exhibited at the world's fair at San Francisco. He has also done a great deal of valuable work in Alaska for the National Weather Bureau and for the various astronomical societies of America.

In addition to his other accomplishments, Prof. Sickler is a mineralogist of no little note.

MUNICIPAL CHORUS TO CONTINUE AT SCHOOL.

Classes for the Municipal Chorus which have been conducted under the auspices of the Arroyo Seco playground officials, will hereafter be held at the Franklin Night School, 820 West Fifty-fourth street, as part of the night school course. The instruction will not be confined to children, but will be open to men and women of all ages. The first meeting will be held next Friday evening. The work will continue under the charge of Joseph Du Puy, director of the chorus.

Sir Harry Yarns to Settlement House Tots While Show Waits.

Greatest Entertainer Amusing Wards of the Rotary Club.

Sir Harry Lauder, himself a Rotarian of Edinburgh, Scotland, stopped to tell war stories to youngsters in the local club's Americanization institution while a matinee crowd gathered to hear him at the theater.

LAUDER PRAISES WORK FOR POOR.

A unique sight was given the Community Settlement House district Friday afternoon. It was the stocky, broad-shouldered figure of Sir Harry Lauder squatting in the center of a group of open-mouthed children, telling them stories of the great war. It was the culmination and fulfillment of Sir Harry's wish to visit the Community Settlement House of Los Angeles—a wish fostered and backed by his brother Rotarians in Los Angeles.

Sir Harry Lauder is a member of the Edinburgh (Scotland) Rotary Club, and his manager, William Morris, has for seven years been a member of the Rotary Club of New York. When Mr. Morris told Sir Harry of the work the Los Angeles Rotary Club is doing at the Community Settlement House, the Scotch entertainer immediately expressed a desire to visit this institution some time during his engagement in Los Angeles. So arrangements for Sir Harry's visit were made by Mr. Morris through Louis M. Cole, chairman of the endowment campaign fund for the Settlement House.

This campaign was recently started by the Los Angeles Rotary Club to permanently endow this institution and make it self-supporting. Mr. Cole and the board of directors of the Settlement House decided that the income from $50,000 would be sufficient for the yearly expenses, and the campaign was immediately launched.

WORK APPROVED.

When apprised of the details, Sir Harry expressed his hearty approbation. "I think the work undertaken by the Los Angeles Rotary Club is most praiseworthy," he said. "In these days of Bolshevism, syndicalism, radicalism, there is but one 'ism' which should be constantly before the eyes of the people of the United States, and that is Americanism. Where is there a more fitting place than right here in the Community Settlement House to teach the young citizens of foreign-born parentage the tenets of Americanism? Implant the seeds of right living and right thinking in these embryonic Americans, and when they reach manhood and womanhood they will not only be better citizens, but will be able to appreciate the fallacies of false teachings."

Sir Harry inspected the new home of the Community Settlement House, from the free clinic, built entirely of hollow tile and recently fitted up by the city, to the large hall and library. It was here that he stopped for a minute beside a group of young Italians and Mexicans, and forgetting entirely about his matinee and the many people waiting to hear him, soon had the youngsters spellbound with stories of his son's regiment—the King's Own Scottish Borderers.

Mr. Cole is very desirous of offering everyone interested in America's welfare an opportunity to visit the Community Settlement House, as did Harry Lauder, and to contribute to the raising of the fund for its permanent endowment.

AMONG THE POOR.

Located at 335 Bauchet street, the house is in the very heart of one of the poorer districts of Los Angeles, thickly populated by Italians and Mexicans, with a few Armenians, Syrians and Russians. The Community Settlement House administers to the needs of the people of the district, seeing that they have proper medical attention through the free clinic, that their homes are kept sanitary and livable and that the people themselves do not lack employment.

"It is not our desire or practice to give them anything, but to help them to help themselves," said Mr. Cole, commenting on the work. "So far as possible, we see that each family is self-supporting and that each individual who is physically fit shall find some employment whereby he may support his family. The women are taught sewing and cooking and the children are kept in school; after school hours they work in the community gardens or have odd jobs. All are taught the gospel of work, and during their hours of leisure, in the evenings, we see to it that grown-ups and children alike have constructive and not idle recreation."

GIRL STUDENTS' AID PLAN AT UNIVERSITY.

FACULTY WIVES' CLUB HELPS IN ADVISORY WORK FOR ALL THE FRESHMEN.

Freshmen women students at the University of Southern California are enjoying a series of unique social events in which the women of the faculty and members of the Faculty Wives' Club act as hostesses.

Women students entering the university for their freshman year in September were divided into groups, each woman member of the faculty acting as special advisor for a special group, and it is these groups which are being entertained.

Mrs. Allison Gaw, wife of Dr. Gaw, head of the department of English, entertained the group of students assigned to Miss Virginia Smith, a member of the faculty of the English department, Mrs. Thomas Blanchard Stowell, wife of Dr. Stowell, dean emeritus of the School of Education, entertained Miss Margaret Northwick and her group of students, while Mrs. Andrew Creamer Life, wife of Prof. Life, entertained Miss Ruth Brown's group of students. Mrs. J. H. Montgomery, wife of the registrar, entertained the students assigned to Miss Welcome Tilroe of the Latin Department, and Mrs. E. S. Bogardus, wife of Dr. Bogardus, head of the Department of Sociology, gave a social affair for the girls assigned to Miss Virginia Beers.

A long list of social events is planned to cover the first semester, so that the freshmen may become better acquainted with themselves and with the women faculty members who are to act as special advisors. Miss Myrtle Emily Biles, acting dean of women, is active in these social affairs and is proving very popular with the women students of the institution.

TRADE TEST FOR ALL WHO SEEK POSITIONS.

RAMY CLASSIFICATION SYSTEM FOR WORKERS IS PLAN OF EMPLOYMENT BUREAU.

A new idea in the conduct of employment bureaus, based on the system used in the army during the war of "placing the right man in the right place" will be tried out in Los Angeles by the Winston-Davidson Company, with offices at 209 Kerckhoff Building, Sixth and Main streets. Under their system, the members of the firm say, they can guarantee that only workers who can fill the positions open will be sent to employers.

Each applicant for a position will be "trade tested" to determine his experience and ability. The system of personal interviews used in the army, modified for classification of civil occupations, will be used by the firm.

Mr. Winsten was recently discharged from the army as a captain in the Adjutant-General's Department, in which he was engaged in the work of classifying service men for assignment to various duties. He attended one of the first classes in the occupation and trade-testing system formed in the army.

The system of trade testing is designed to save the time of both the employer and the worker. Applicants who are sent to prospective employers will take with them data showing just what they can do and will not be sent unless it is almost certain that they will fill the place open.

CALOMEL

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

But, oh, times ...grievously, indeed, ...of creation. Now the ...doors are going to ...fast. There is ...glitter in the feminine ...they not all citizens and voters? You bet they are. And there are no tears. Only a few cynical smiles, a rally call to femininity in general to stand by their sex, a wily selection of speakers to put their case before the women's clubs, and a flood of sarcastic logic against the ungallant powers that be who have had the temerity to put forth such an edict in this precious woman's year of 1919 and the ratification of the suffrage amendment.

Their brother musicians you will understand, are gallantly standing by the ladies. Equal pay for equal skill and sex be sugared, is their only attitude. The managers alone are the ungallant foes. And those gentlemen insist that they are voicing the preference of the public, whose artistic eye is offended when the piano, the violin, the 'cello et al are manipulated by fair feminine hands, attached to feminine heads and feminine skirts.

They make a nice exception in the case of the harp. That bulky instrument has a way of showing up bare arms and even the lord of creation does not claim that his sex has more artistic looking hands and arms than the opposition. But to tell a lady musician to confine her skill to the harp, associated so long with angels, is like telling a woman lawyer that her duty is to stay home and make pies. No prejudice against harps or pies, you understand, but a revolt against the restricted field.

PRETTY RELUCTANCE.

Besides, quite a lot of men believe that angels are exclusively masculine. It isn't only the Mahommedans who believe that only men go to heaven. So the ladies naturally feel a pretty reluctance to hog the field of the harp as their exclusive territory. They never could be mean enough to assert that a few masculine harpists in heaven would ruin the celestial picture, blight the artistic ensemble of the heavenly orchestra. Nay, nay. Equal reward for equal skill in heaven as on earth, say the eminently fair sex.

Now comes the dire question, are the managers really voicing the public taste? Does the vast audience at say the California Theater, Grauman's or the Kinema really suffer artistic agonies and withhold its patronage when the orchestra includes femininity? Oh, tush. Try a referendum of a few audiences. Let those audiences give the masculine members of the orchestra a critical once-over, scan their claimed beauties with calm, appraising eyes, not overlooking thinning hirsute adornments on craniums, frowsy effects on the edge of the superior claims of the dress suits, the agitated boiled shirt fronts, the wandering ties, the dubious complexions and imperfect shaves, and see whether they are prepared to place on record their artistic preference for this uniform but doubtful array of exclusive masculinity. No wonder these masculine musicians themselves, viewing each others' charms at close quarters, decline to indorse the managers' edict. Conscience alone forbids.

GORGEOUS STRUGGLE.

It is going to be a gorgeous struggle. Employers that issue ultimatums just hate to climb down. Besides there is nothing so stubborn as the ungallant male of the species. He has said what he has said. On the other hand there is THIS sex. Those carefully selected feminine orators whom the lady musicians have been sending to the women's clubs to explain the horrid situation are silver-tongued. And women in Los Angeles have a disconcerting way of standing by their sex unless the indictment against them is something rather more vital than superior masculine appearance. No, indeed, masculinity can claim other charms and superiorities, maybe. They quite frequently have a winning way with them. But it isn't their looks.

The solution offered by a lady defender that the feminine musicians take to black coats and boiled shirts is too utterly ghastly. Why level downwards? Why take the very dubious masculine sartorial effects as a standard of art? Rather than that why not put the men into draperies and boudoir caps? Quite a vast quota of masculinity regards the male musician as scarcely masculine anyway. Their weakness for long hair and all that sort of thing, you know. The average American business man regards music as an effeminate occupation.

However, we shall see what we shall see. When lovely woman stoops to conquer she usually has a much larger reward in mind than a mere harp.

Meanwhile the officers of the Woman Musicians' Equality Club are writing strong notes to the women's clubs and are getting them to indorse the club in its campaign for equal recognition with the men. Edith E. Hallberg is president of the club, and Bernice Freeman secretary. They state the case for the women in the following letter, addressed to the presidents of women's clubs:

"A condition exists in Los Angeles—and in fact, throughout the West—which seriously threatens to deprive professional women musicians of their means of livelihood. The situation has recently become so acute that the Woman Musicians' Equality Club has been organized for the purpose of bringing the facts before the federated clubs of this city, whose indorsement and co-operation we earnestly invite in our efforts to remedy the present intolerable conditions.

"Owing to the tendency on part of the owners and managers of all of the leading moving-picture houses, film studios, theaters, cafeterias and cafes, to employ men only in their orchestras, the lesser places of amusement are rapidly following suit, and as a consequence every avenue of employment is being closed to the woman musician, who is confronted everywhere with the edict: 'We want no women in our orchestra.'

"That there is no question of the musicianship or ability of the women affected by this unjust ruling is shown by the fact that they have the unqualified indorsement of such well-known directors and artists as Adolph Tandler, Henry Schoenefeld, Harley Hamilton, Dr. Ray Hastings, Nicola Donatelli, Carli Elinor, Dr. Bruce G. Kingsley, John C. Peterson, William Edson Strowbridge and Louis Gottschalk, all of whom are familiar with the work of the larger number of the women composing our organization.

"This is a matter that affects every woman musician—in fact, every woman in the State—it is not merely the concern of the few."

Mrs. Halberg announced yesterday that among the clubs which have entered the league are the Azusa Woman's Club, Pico Heights Book Club, Elysian Heights Civic Club, Washington Heights Club, Professional Woman's Club, South Side Ebell Club and the Los Angeles City Teachers' Club.

"The first victory in the fight was won last week when four of the woman musicians were selected by Conductor Adolf Tandler to play with the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra," she said. "Those who were engaged are Miss Bernice Freeman, Mrs. Bessie Fuhrer Erb, Miss Modesta Mortensen, Miss Ella Grosser, violins, and Mrs. Lucy ...oster, 'cellist."

MYSTERY SHROUDS GIRL.

Strange Contradictions Mark Mail-Fraud Case Against Caroline Harris.

This refers to Rittenhouse and Caroline.

But Caroline denies she ever accompanied Rittenhouse from this city to Seattle—said to have been the real objective of the motor trip—and touching all her recent absence from the city declares:

"The fact of the matter is that I went back to my old home at Memphis to visit a few months ago and when I came West again, I came by way of Seattle. Once before, when I came West, I stopped at San Francisco and remained there several weeks."

Where was Caroline Harris from June 27 until August 20, when her mother asserts the girl again reappeared at the family home here?

Mrs. Harris says she received two letters from Caroline, postmarked at New York.

The authorities add that about August 1, according to their information, Caroline went from here to San Francisco either with Rittenhouse, or to join him there in response to a telegram he sent.

Here enters the episode furnished by Madge Dunn.

Miss Dunn was a telephone operator in the exchange at Glendale. She is reputed to be Rittenhouse's real wife and to have left here with him about August 1, motoring with him to Fresno, where they separated for reasons unknown. Then he went on to San Francisco and Caroline joined him. This is the officials' version.

But Caroline, if in this city, did not appear at her mother's home at that time, according to Mrs. Harris's history of the affair. And as to relations with Rittenhouse, Caroline says:

"He and I are simply acquaintances. I knew him after he was discharged from the army. His family and mine are friendly."

RITTENHOUSE EXITS.

Mrs. Harris says Rittenhouse, after she thought he had left the city June 27, came back to her home late in July, stayed around till about August 1, saying Caroline was in New York, and then left. This tallies with the Gray company's account. Rittenhouse worked there till late in August, when he took a short leave of absence, and left soon after the first of the month.

Then, August 20, Caroline again appeared at her mother's home. A few days after that, says Mrs. Harris, "she left to join Rittenhouse in Seattle, where they were arrested."

Another queer twist is given to the case by the registered mail method of handling the Liberty Bonds. The official charge is that the bonds came to the Los Angeles and Pasadena postoffices in registered packages addressed to Miss Ella Buell, who is a former employee of the Gray company and lives at 1026 Lincoln street. However, it is declared that Miss Buell has no connection with the affair—that the young woman who received for the packages in Miss Buell's name is Caroline Harris.

Miss Harris denies she receipted for them or that she knew anything of Rittenhouse's business affairs.

Why Miss Buell's name was used in the affair is a mystery.

THE ARREST.

Mrs. Harris understood Caroline was going to Seattle late in August to join Rittenhouse. The two were arrested there, September 25, the man charged with grand larceny, forgery, fraud and using the mails to defraud, and the girl accused only of the last-named offense.

At that time, according to Caroline's statement after she was brought back here, Rittenhouse was operating a dance hall and making considerable money.

They were brought here October 10, after arraignment before a Federal commissioner in the North.

Much credit for the development of certain phases of the puzzling case is due to local operatives for the William J. Burns National Detective Agency. Through their Seattle agency they were able to locate Rittenhouse and make possible the arrests here.

Caroline's statements, quoted above, were later made in the office of her attorney, Kemper B. Campbell.

The mail fraud charges are based on letters regarding the Liberty Bonds and said to have passed between Rittenhouse and the W. R. Compton Company. If it is proved that the bonds were bought with money stolen from the Gray company, the Compton company must make restitution.

"COLONEL" IS HELD AS FAKER.

Promoter of Arizona Sugar Deal is Charged with Posing as Officer.

At the instance of Federal officers, Richard W. Harvey, lately of this city, has been arrested at Phoenix, Ariz., on a charge of impersonating an officer of the army, according to advices received from the Arizona city yesterday. Harvey said he served in France as a captain and for gallantry was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel. He has a large collection of medals of merit that, according to the allegations in the case, are bogus. At Phoenix he has been trying to interest capital in a deal to import 150,000 tons of sugar from the Philippines.

GIVES FOR REFUGEES.

Armenian Donates Materials of His Craft to Countrymen.

At the Near East Relief Rummage Shop at 307 West Second street, where used clothing is being received and packed for shipment to Armenian and Syrian refugees, an Armenian shoemaker yesterday contributed three big sacks full of such materials as are needed for shoe repairing, even including nails. This gift will have the additional value of furnishing work to willing hands—as much a necessity in Armenia as the distribution of funds.

A Simple Way to Get the Benefit of the Best Senna

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin contains the finest Egyptian Senna, as recommended by the U. S. P.

A GREAT many people, habitually constipated, find relief in chewing senna leaves or brewing them into a "tea" and drinking it. They will be glad to know that they can obtain senna already brewed, at no greater expense and in a much more convenient and agreeable form.

The chief laxative constituent of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is Egyptian senna (cassia acutifolia) gathered in the Egyptian Soudan. This grade is seldom sold at retail. It is, however, recognized as first in the U. S. Pharmacopeia because of its freedom from griping and its thorough action on the intestines, and because it does not lose its effect after repeated use.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin the Egyptian senna is combined with pepsin making an exceptionally valuable combination in dyspepsia and other disturbances of the stomach and bowels. It has been on the market since 1892 and many thousands of people who formerly bought an inferior grade of senna at retail now buy Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for 50c and $1 a large bottle. It is sold in all drug stores.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, others being sold by over a million bottles each year, many who need the benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 511 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

IMPORTANT:
Owing to the magnitude of this sale and the extraordinary values offered, no pin fittings will be made on Monday. Appointments for fittings may be made on the second floor, which will be given the earliest possible attention.

IN OLD KENTUCKY.

The moonshine's right in the Old Kentucky Home; but who wants to go all the way to Louisville for a drink?

USE OF THE FLAG.

There is no particular warrant for the display of any flag save the American for public decorative purposes—least of all the ensign of an Irish republic that does not exist.

THE FIXERS.

Thus far few of the manufacturers or dealers have had occasion to find fault with the work of the official price-fixers. They have invariably set the mark high enough to assure a comfortable profit under any set of circumstances. Price-fixing is something of a joke—a joke on the consumer, of course.

A FOOL THERE WAS.

Bernard Shaw the other day declined to express himself on the query: "When is a woman most interesting?" on the ground that he did not want to make a fool of himself. Maybe that was the answer, for usually a woman is most interesting when she is doing that very thing.

DRY DEMOCRACY.

William Jennings Bryan and Josephus Daniels are said to be desirous of capturing the Democratic organization and making it the great prohibition party of the country. But if we really have a prohibition amendment, why should there be need of a prohibition party any more than an anti-slavery one? It would be quite a shock to some of the old Democratic guard to learn that their organization had become the official sponsor and champion of a bone-dry world.

LABOR LEADERS.

It is now declared that the head of the mine workers has only been out of Ireland two years or so and that he has not even applied for American citizenship. A union which elects its leaders in this irresponsible way must necessarily find itself under suspicion. It is not as if he was a man of national character or ability. Under some circumstances that might excuse his promotion to leadership, but he is no improvement over ten thousand other members. He was simply more noisy, more radical or a better promiser than some of the rest and so his advancement was assured. But it should not be possible for any man not an American citizen to be placed in a position of leadership where the rights and liberties of Americans are to be imperiled.

IRELAND FOREVER.

Lord Robert Cecil's plan to give Ireland a dominion government is not new, but he is deriving much fame and prestige from his expounding of it. He still holds that Ireland will never be governed by herself as well as by England, but as the principle of self-determination has been recognized a dominion plan should be referred to an Irish referendum with the option given to any county to vote herself out. He commits himself to the advanced sentiment of Irish leaders and his plans would be acceptable to almost all but the radical Sinn Feiners. They wouldn't be satisfied with anything—even their own way. Lord Robert Cecil may yet displace Lloyd George in the progressive leadership.

THE SHAME OF IT.

The Seattle Central Labor Council adopted resolutions asking union labor to refrain from criticising the action of the I.W.W. members for killing returned soldiers in the American Legion parade at Centralia on Armistice Day. The presumption is that the crime is to be approved. Certainly if a labor union may not express regret over a series of murders it is tacitly ignoring the bloody programme. There is no field for neutrality here. The same interests which are urging the release of Mooney for dynamiting the preparedness parade in San Francisco are now about to urge three cheers for the Centralia murders. Wherever there is an American flag to be fired upon, there they will be lying in wait. There is a lot of house-cleaning to be done in America before the corners will smell sweet.

HUMANITARIAN MEASURES.

Fortunately the hour has come when the meetings of aliens and anarchists who plan revolution are strongly suppressed—not because of the harm they do in plotting against the government, but as a humane measure. The gatherings are necessarily forbidden for their own safety and to preserve their lives and persons from the abrupt vengeance of too-zealous patriots. It may yet be proper form for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to interfere on behalf of careless I-Won't-Workers and prevent eager Americans from chasing them up trees or tossing them into a damp ocean. If these bomb-plotters found that they were under the protection of the Humane Society—the same as mules and stray dogs—it might help them to realize the ridiculousness of their efforts to overthrow a government as stoutly established as the American republic. Likewise, when it comes to disposing of mad dogs the Humane Society can be as efficient as the police.

FOR ORDERLY GOVERNMENT.

FITFUL flames of anarchy have flared forth in different sections of the country during the last two weeks. The government came to grips with the rebellious leaders of the coal strike. An incipient revolution, planned by I.W.W. agitators and emissaries of Soviet Russia and the Sinn Fein of Ireland, has been exposed and foiled. The Massachusetts electorate repudiated sovietism, Sinn Feinism and labor-union radicalism by a rousing majority after one of the most sensational campaigns in the history of the country. The American Federation of Labor tried to bolster up the coal strike leaders and encourage them to defy the government, but a demonstration of force on the part of the Federal authorities brought unconditional surrender from the union labor bosses.

Most damnable of all was the killing by I.W.W.'s in cold blood of four distinguished ex-service men who were leading an Armistice Day celebration in Centralia, Wash. It has been a fortnight of feverish excitement, but in every instance the reds and their emissaries have failed to create the expected popular uprising against the government. Public sentiment has been roused against them by reason of their overt act to such a pitch that the peace officers have experienced difficulty in preventing an aroused populace from taking the law in its own hands. The end of the soviet insurrection finds the radicals and reds begging for the protection of the government they sought to destroy.

At no time during the world war did patriotic fervor run higher. The desperate efforts of the revolutionists served to consolidate the friends of orderly government. Wherever the red terror showed its ugly head it was hunted to its lair. The government found itself backed by a force of public opinion that proved irresistible. The wonder of the fortnight is the scant support that the labor-union bosses and the I.W.W.'s were able to muster. When the American Federation of Labor met and advocated a disregard of the injunction secured by the government against the high officials of the Miners' Union, Gompers and his associates found that they were deserted by the mass of the membership they claimed to represent.

The country and the world received a practical demonstration that the government of a well-ordered republic, which represents the whole people, is vastly more powerful than any class or faction. It was just a victory for traditional Americanism, the kind our Revolutionary ancestors fostered and Lincoln loved. It was the victory of the common people.

II.

THOSE of the faint heart and the haggard eye, who had trembled for months before the menace of radicalism and labor-unionism, are now asking what it was that made the reds and the labor-union leaders so weak, why the clouds that seemed so threatening on the horizon produced so slight a storm. The failure was not occasioned by any division in the radical forces. They had planned their insurrection for months, and their intent to overthrow the American government was not modified. But they had reckoned without their host when they imagined that any system, any idea, regardless of its intrinsic merit, could be imposed on the American people by violent means. The Federal Constitution itself could not have been driven home with a club, much less the government of rapine and terror with which the radicals sought to supplant American institutions.

When the country discovered that the steel and coal strikes had been subsidized by Russian gold; when the people learned that workmen's councils were being organized in all the industrial districts of the country; when they were informed that 30 per cent. of the membership of the American labor unions carried red cards denoting their membership in I.W.W. locals; when they found that not property alone, but the lives of men and the virtue of girls and women were menaced—it was then that a wave of righteous indignation swept the country. There was a repudiation both of the revolutionists parading under the red flag of terrorism and the radical labor unions marching under the black flag of confiscation.

There has been admittedly too much temporizing with violence. The government has been too tolerant with the unnaturalized foreigners whom it has hoped to bring, through pacific measures, to a just appreciation of the blessing of liberty. There has been too much false altruism in high places. But when put to the test the government showed quickened realization of the necessity of exercising its power in behalf of the whole people. Not the government alone but the great body of the American people in every walk of life have been awakened to the danger of poisonous propaganda.

III.

BOLSHEVISM means the destruction of a race. To the nationalization of property is added the nationalization of women. Honor is proscribed by the Bolshevist teachers as a middle-class prejudice, and the virtue of women as a convention of the old regime that no follower of Lenine and Trotzky is bound to observe. The Sermon on the Mount has been denounced as "capitalist propaganda." Religion is flouted. They proclaim that "Paradise is a dream invented by thieves who wish to conceal their brigandage from their victims."

Death is the greatest boon that one wedded to American ideals of justice and liberty can receive from the vandals of Bolshevism and revolutionary anarchy. It was granted to the victims only as a favor by Trotzky in Russia and Bela Kun in Hungary. Fathers were compelled to witness the violation of their wives and daughters. Great torture chambers were constructed where those were submitted to nameless suffering who had been reported by the Bolshevist agents to know where treasure was hidden. The right hands of more than two thousand were struck off in a single city, that they might not carry arms against the terrorists. Three hundred virgins were taken from another city to supply the quarters of the Red Guards. These acts were committed by virtue of a Bolshevist decree. Only the higher law of humanity was violated; there was neither violation nor evasion of the written code.

IV.

SUCH are the conditions which the thoughtful among the American people know to exist. There is no orderly government where the terror rules. Back of Gompers, Foster and Lewis they saw the sinister figures of Lenine, Bela Kun and their Chinese mercenaries. They knew that it was with Russian gold that the revolts were fomented, and they know what would happen to the fish caught with such a bait. So the people were in full accord with the government when it raided the headquarters of the radicals and set the machinery in motion for the deportation of the foreign-born among them. The American people stand ready to teach the foreign emissaries that there is a marked difference between a melting pot and a cesspool. America is a sanctuary of liberty; but it is not to be made a propagating station for radical and revolutionary isms.

Valuable lessons have been learned in this joust with radicalism. It has become plain that orderly government in one part of the world is dependent on orderly government in all parts. In this age of rapid transport and communication, rebellion in one country foments radical insurrections in all countries. Millions of Russian gold have been expended on propaganda here; for it is apparent to the leaders of the revolutionists, Russian, German or Sinn Fein, that orderly government must be overthrown in America before there can be radical ruin in all Europe. We have learned that government under our Constitution will continue to be menaced as long as a government of rapine and plunder endures in Russia. Rebellion against orderly government in one country engenders similar rebellions in all countries. That is why rebellion against the constituted government in the British empire concerns us almost as closely as an outbreak of rebels in a group of American States.

The reds in this country staged a rebellion against capital, against all forms of wealth, from the owner of a cottage, a city lot or a country ranch to the multimillionaire. The radicals proclaimed that they were defying the rule of money. Had the situation not been rendered tragic by its violences it would have been amusing. In the autocratic governments of Europe money was a master; but in free America, where the people rule by virtue of universal suffrage, and where the right of eminent domain is preserved, money is the servant of the public. Where it once reigned in Russia it serves in the United States. Here is a distinction that every American understands, but that the foreign emissaries have failed to observe.

Until the present radical agitation subsides public prudence dictates the apprehension and deportation of all foreign rebels and agitators, Russian, German, English or Sinn Fein. There are at present 14,000,000 unnaturalized Europeans in America; and at least 7,000,000 can neither speak nor read the English language. These peoples, once divorced from their false leaders, may become good American citizens. But as long as foreign agitators are permitted to disseminate their lying propaganda these foreigners will remain a menace to American institutions and American lives. For this condition there is a remedy; and the government should not hesitate in this crisis to resort to it. Send the alien Russian rebels back to Russia, the alien Hungarian rebels back to Hungary, the alien German rebels back to Germany—and the alien Irish rebels back to Ireland. We certainly have sufficient troubles of our own just now, and we should not be further harassed by emissaries of the misnamed Bolshevik and Irish republics.

Stamp the Life Out of It!

An Offensive Parade.

Bishop Johnson and many other loyal citizens characterize the coming of De Valera to Los Angeles as an "offense."

It is worse, than an offense.

Brave, resolute men are rounding up the red bums and putting the cheap criminal agitators out of business. A great wave of patriotism is sweeping over the country.

Is there not patriotism enough in Los Angeles to prevent the arrogant parade through our city's streets of the most conspicuous professional revolutionist now in America?

Is there not patriotism enough at the City Hall, is there not patriotism enough at the police station, is there not patriotism enough somewhere to prevent this proposed alien incitement to devilment?

OH, HOW NICE!

The Times observes that the State Railroad Commission has issued an edict telling the local street railway company how to reorganize its service and reroute its cars and remanage its men and make money without advancing its fare while everything else is going up.

As the Young Lady Across the Way said of the Grand Canyon, "Oh, how nice!"

If there were a State Newspaper Commission and it should tell The Times it must not raise its subscription or advertising rates, but must print more reading matter and reconstruct its editorial page and reduce the size of its pages—oh, how nice that would be!

If the aforesaid State Newspaper Commission should give such instructions to the Los Angeles Evening Express, journalistic parent of all the State commissions, how delighted the publisher of the Express would be!

And if similar instructions should come to the Los Angeles Examiner, champion of public management of all kinds of business, how the Examiner would enjoy the situation!

Oh, yes, how nice it would be if there was a commission to order the stores to cut prices on groceries and ginghams and gewgaws, raise the pay of all salespeople, pull the curtains down on their window displays in order to save money and reorganize their credit departments so that everybody might have a charge account and never settle!

How nice it would be if the owners of every business should be compelled to run it in accordance with the mandate of a board of politicians!

The Times nominates ex-Editor Harley Brundige, now one of the shining lights of the State Railroad Commission, as general manager, price-fixer and reorganizer of every sort of business in Los Angeles.

Mr. Brundige was a good political editor—which of course means that he is qualified to edit all kinds of business better than the proprietors thereof can do it.

Defacing the Grass Plot.

Being a boarding-house, Chicago cannot expect much. If the house needs paint, and the front walk is slovenly, and the furniture is falling to pieces, Chicago need not look to these transient residents to feel any direct responsibility. They will stand it as long as they can, and then go elsewhere. What is it to them, who have come to Chicago only for what they can get out of it, if ill-smelling factories are built in residence districts, or if grass-plots are defaced by billboards? They do not feel it their duty to lynch the vandals.—[Henry Justin in the Atlantic Monthly.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

UNHAPPY.

I will from this land depart, with my gun and carpet bag, when its customs break my heart, when they make my spirit sag; when our government's a bore that has made me raw and sore, I will seek some other shore where I'll stand and chew the rag. When I know some other land that has got this country skinned, be it on the Asian strand or some island of the Ind, I will take the quickest boat, with my corkscrew and my goat, for that paradise remote, and this country may be tinned. But while I am dwelling here, hanging out my minstrel sign, it seems pretty plain and clear that I have no right to whine; if I'm sore on Uncle Sam and would give his flag a slam, I should move to Rotterdam, for a rotter's soul is mine. If the time should ever come when this country seems a frost, all its bulwarks on the bum and its laws not worth the cost, I will sail away, away, to old Russia or Cathay, where I'll spend my little day by some tinhorn tyrants bossed. But while on this shore I roost I will bless its hallowed loam, its palladiums I'll boost till the spangled cows come home; I will hand out sturdy blows to its critics and its foes and when I run out of prose I'll embalm it in a pome.

WALT MASON.

THE LANCER.

There is irony in the fact that the schools must undertake the teaching of thrift. It is the one subject that prosperous America knows least about today, although that very prosperity was founded on the thrift and grit of our forebears. Europe knows all about thrift, that once gay and frivolous France perhaps best of any. European children grow up with thrift. American children rarely.

Thrift to a modern American household is a laborious virtue, a sacrificial sort of mild tyranny, a martyrdom. But to the rest of the world it is a perfectly normal, every-day decency—extravagance is a vice, waste a crime. "Waste not, want not," is one of the first copy-book precepts European children learn to write. But, here, if we can't throw our shoes away directly they begin to lose their chic shape, if we can't keep right up with the fashions, if we can't stuff our garbage cans with the less delectable viands and crusts, if we can't go to shows and expensive pleasures whenever the fancy moves us, if we can't have ice cream and strawberry shortcake, give parties, have turkey for Thanksgiving, overeat ourselves on all national celebrations we are martyrs, indeed, and hold a grudge against the world.

And so prejudiced are we against thrift that whenever the foreigner in our midst, particularly if he is not a white foreigner, dares to compete with us in production and labor and outstrips us in competition just because of his thrift we regard him as an enemy, a menace, a cause for drastic legislation.

But if we haven't any sense ourselves on the subject the educational authorities evidently mean to rescue us in spite of ourselves. Any fool can spend, but it takes some industry and sagacity to save.

Another sorrow of the rich. The colonel is feeling very bitter about it. An arch lady friend of his presented him with a nice gift of alligator pears, albeit being home-grown, they lacked the real perfection. And the colonel, knowing the lady to be in modest circumstances, tactfully suggested a little remuneration therefor.

"Oh, I wouldn't think of such a thing," said the lady archly. "But if you'd like to present me with a bottle of your old Bourbon whisky, I'd be glad to accept that."

And now the colonel is growling loudly at the high compulsory cost of inferior alligator pears.

By the way, wasn't prohibition going to save such vast quantities of wheat and cereals that the cost of living was to be reduced to vanishing point? I certainly recall the wheedling of my vote under this heading. All those mountainous crops of wheat and rye and barley, to say nothing of sugar, that were being used for naughty drinks and the propagation of national delirium tremens were going to flood the markets as wholesome cheap food at rock-bottom prices.

Was this a dream? Then let me dream again. Oh, never wake me, for waking would be pain.

She was a young, ambitious, but a near-obscure actress. I met her on an ocean voyage. She said newspaper men were adorable. And ever since then she has been bombarding me with little local press cuttings clipped from rural town newspapers, commenting kindly on her dramatic efforts. She is looking to preparedness against the day when she comes West and foresees me wrestling with an obdurate editor to get her picture on the front page, with a column of my best sentiments voiced thereon.

And she doesn't know that even the most adorable newspaper men have a contempt for press cuttings, rural or otherwise. That to attempt to make him read those press cuttings is the arch crime of the profession. That everyone of them is, indeed, evidence of obscurity. That I shall certainly be out of town when she comes to Los Angeles.

And to think what might have been had she but treated me with—well, at least discrimination.

A young lady tells me that her beau, who had recently enjoyed a windfall, gave her a blank check wherewith to purchase herself a gift up to $75. She had a friend in the "wholesale" and got her gift for $30. But she filled the check out for the full $75. She is a thrifty soul. And now she wants to know if I think she ought to confess.

A delicate little problem, eh? I wonder why some men are cynics.

There was another case recently, but the culpable lady victim fortunately has a sense of humor. She was "the other woman" and yearned for a certain diamond pendant. The gentleman balked at the price—$2000. But she fixed it with the jeweler that she herself paid $800 unbeknown, while the gentleman friend was notified of a special reduction in price "because it was him," to $1200. So far so good. But that week the gentleman friend was on particularly good terms with his own wife, so he gave the diamond pendant to her instead.

The culpable lady victim says she is taking her $800 worth out in telling the story.

As to these Irish Sinn Feiners. I think if we could respectfully leave all the desired "welcome and celebrations" in the hands of Loyal Irish-Americans who fought with the Allies in the war it would meet the requirements of the case. It takes a good Irishman to know how to deal with the other kind of Irishman. THE LANCER.

COURT REJECTS SHYLOCK DEAL.

Money Lender's Efforts to Seize Auto ...buked.

Profit Beyond Legal Limit; Wants the Car Besides.

More than Two Per Cent. Per Month is Compensation.

Declaring he would not enforce the "a Shylock" contract, Judge [illegible] yesterday gave judgment in favor of Mrs. A. L. Miller and thereby defeated efforts of J. L. [illegible] to gain possession of an automobile Mrs. Miller had mortgaged to him.

The trial of the suit developed the fact that after Mrs. Miller married A. L. Miller, a moving-picture man, he bought a car. After they had paid about $1400 to the agent, they fell behind in the payments. They owed a balance of $1869. Mr. [illegible], who loans money on automobiles, agreed to advance $1995. He paid the agent the balance of $[illegible] and, under a so-called lease contract, retained title to the machine. The contract provided that the balance of the payments on the car be made within six months; it also provided that the car should not be removed from this State.

TAKEN ON TRIP.

The Millers kept up their payments to Mr. Blodgett, the last payment being due July 20. About July 1 the Millers started for New York. Just before leaving the city they registered the car at the Automobile Club and made it generally known to their friends that they were going to be gone a month. The trip was not concealed.

Mr. Blodgett heard they had gone East and went to the District Attorney's office. As a result, the Sheriff here wired the Sheriff at Salt Lake City to intercept the Millers, get the car and ship it back to Los Angeles. The Salt Lake Sheriff stopped Mr. and Mrs. Miller and shipped the car to Mr. Blodgett. After hearing the story of the Millers, he released the car and they voluntarily returned to this city to put up a fight for the automobile. [illegible] Miller's mother, Mrs. Edith [illegible]sprey, and, later, her attorney, [illegible]ired Mr. Blodgett the amount due on the car and Mr. Blodgett refused to accept it, saying the Millers had violated the terms of the contract, he was entitled to the car and was going to take it.

BIG COMPENSATION.

The testimony showed that Mr. Blodgett had paid out only $1869, while the amount named in the contract was $1995. In addition, the latter sum was to bear interest at the rate of 1 per cent. a month. It was shown that he was getting compensation on the loan not only of 1 per cent. a month, but also the difference between $1869 and $1995. When the Millers got possession of their car Mr. Blodgett brought suit to recover it.

Judge Valentine found that the transaction was merely a loan and that the Millers have title to the car. The court also found that the contract with Mr. Blodgett was void by reason of the terms of the act relating to personal property brokers. This provides that any contract relating to the loan of money secured by personal property, mortgage or lien or other similar contract, is void if it provides for compensation on such loan, by interest or other charges, amounting in the aggregate to more than 3 per cent. a month.

HOLLYWOOD PLAN FOR PARKS IS APPROVED.

$[illegible],000 park plan for Hollywood has been approved definitely by members of the Hollywood Memorial Park and playground Association, who balloted on the proposition the past week, more than 1000 votes having been mailed out. The majority sentiment favors the plan as recommended by the committee of experts. These are the tract at Sanborn Junction, the larger tract, and the tract on Western avenue between Fuller and Sycamore avenues. Parking of property on Hollywood boulevard at Sycamore avenue, adjoining the Hollywood Woman's Club house, the making of a boulevard out of Vine street to Hollywood boulevard to Willoughby avenue, improvement for park purposes of Vermont Canyon and the mouth of the Sierras property, the latter and the boulevard, were recommended by the voters. The protests, with exception of those opposing property purchases, were overruled by the park executive committee's recommendations.

Work of forming the necessary park district is under way, and petitions will soon be circulated calling for a bond election.

TO AUCTION YUMA TRACTS.

Arizona Land Offered by Government in Proven Citrus District.

The United States government's first public auction of lands will begin on December 10, when 6000 acres, located near Yuma, Ariz., in the Yuma Mesa district, will be sold to the general public under the auctioneer's hammer. he lands have been proven favorable for production of citrus fruits, and because of their value and the liberal terms offered by the government it is expected unusually high prices will be received at the public sale.

In a bulletin sent out by the Yuma County Commercial Club, it is stated that the sale will open at 10 a.m. of December 10 and will continue from day to day until all the various tracts have been sold. The Yuma Mesa district begins at the city limits of Yuma and extends southward toward the boundary line of the tate of Sonora, Mex. There are about 75,000 acres of the Yuma Mesa lands, and these have been divided into units of 6000 to 12,000 acres each. The unit which is to be placed on the public market on December 10 is the first to be offered for sale.

This is "Unit B." The entire acreage has been subdivided into 531 tracts, ranging from five to twenty acres each. Under the public notice issued by Secretary of the Interior Lane, any person who is a citizen of the United States can purchase as many of these tracts as he desires, providing the aggregate does not exceed forty acres. Following the purchase of a tract, 10 per cent. of an accepted bid must be paid on the day of the sale, 15 per cent. within sixty days thereafter if the bid is approved by the Secretary of the Interior, and 25 per cent. for each of the three following years, with interest at 6 per cent. on deferred payments, or the entire amount may be paid at any time before due, when patent will be issued for the land.

The lands are said to be inimune from frosts. Already the government has planned to construct the necessary works and canals for the irrigation of the lands. The cost for this work has been estimated at $200 per acre, and with $25 per acre added to this cost the minimum bid will be $225 per acre.

It is said that the Yuma Mesa lands are as well adapted to citrus fruit culture as any other section of the United States, and the fruit ripens much earlier than similar fruits of California or Florida. Oranges, lemons, grapefruit, tangerines, figs, dated, Persian limes, cantaloupes, watermelons and early vegetables have already been produced in this section. Officials of the Yuma County Commercial Club state that oranges, grapefruit and lemons will produce as much as twenty-five boxes per tree, and dates will yield 400 to 600 pounds per tree.

Though Los Angeles is the nearest market to the Yuma district, fruit growers say that the citrus fruit industy of Southern California will not be injured, as the Yuma citrus products will be well out of the market before the Southern California fruit is ready. The Yuma area is so limited that it cannot injure the Southern California citrus industry.

FOR THE McKINLEY HOME.

As a Thanksgiving offering to the boys of the McKinley Industrial Home, the directors of the institution are to start a drive this week to secure money, clothes, shoes, jam, books, games and in fact everything that a boy can eat, wear or play with. The headquarters are at 140 South Spring street. Donations will be called for if one will telephone the financial secretary, 84778.

During the nineteen years that it has been in existance, the McKinley Industrial Home has provided for hundreds of homeless boys. At the present time, there are 128 boys, ranging from 7 to 16 years of age, at the home, who are being taught printing, farm work, dairy work, cooking and laundry work.

The executive committee in charge of the drive includes Mrs. Lyman Farwell, Mrs. M. H. Whittier, Mrs. George A. Brock, and Mrs. E. M. Potts.

Those in charge of the drive, by days, are:

Monday, Mrs. George A. Brock and the women of the auxiliary of the home; Tuesday, the City Club, Mrs. Herman Darling, president, and Mrs. E. K. Leighton in charge; Wednesday, the Beverly Hills Club, Mrs. Locke, president, assisted by the club; Thursday, Mrs. Fred Boswell and the social service committee of the Averill Study Club; Friday, Chapter Q, P.E.O., Hollywood, Mrs. Fairbanks in charge; Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. James and representatives from the various clubs and organizations. Mrs. A. M. Bliss will have charge of the sale of badges and flowers.

POLITICS.

THE WATCHMAN.

TREND OF POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

By the Sentry on His Beat.

Day after day has gone by since the Central Council of Labor, peeved by the surrender of their union charter by the Los Angeles firemen and the stand taken by Mayor Snyder against any city department employees affiliating themselves with labor unions, decided that it will let the Mayor go his own way and will have nothing to do with his administration, yet the Mayor has not deigned to make any formal reply. The Mayor appears well satisfied with the situation.

It is to be noted with satisfaction that fire departments in various other California cities that had been misled into forming unions affiliating with the American Federation of Labor have found it wise to surrender their charters.

Kettner Back Home.

Congressman Kettner is back from Washington for a two weeks' sojourn at his home in San Diego. Yesterday he participated in the programme celebrating the driving of the golden spike which completes the San Diego & Arizona Railroad. He will return to Washington a day or so in advance of the next session to Congress, because he has amon December 1.

There has been some talk that Kettner had declared his intention of not entering the race for re-election to Congress, because he has ambitions to be elected Senator from California; but nothing has developed in this return visit of the Congressman to indicate that there is any real foundation for this report.

The report that Louis J. Wilde, Mayor of San Diego, had resigned in order that he might become a candidate for the United States Senate also appears to lack verification.

Wilde is still Mayor of San Diego, notwithstanding his once proffered resignation, and the indications are that he will remain on the job until some one who is perfectly acceptable to himself is rounded up for the place. It is generally believed that he would be glad to see Councilman Heilbrun in the Mayor's chair.

Congressional Elections.

The final disposal of Victor Berger, Socialist, as a more-or-less member of Congress—he has never been seated—will require the election of a Congressman in the Milwaukee district, and that city will have a chance to redeem itself. By a vote of 309 to 1 the House of Representatives has denied Berger his seat in Congress.

Five other Congressional elections are to take place within the next few weeks, three of them being necessary because of the election of incumbents to other offices last week. Congressman J. Hampton Moore has become Mayor-elect of Philadelphia, and Congressman La Guardia has been made president of the Board of Aldermen of New York, while a judgeship has been conferred upon Congressman Reuben L. Haskell of Brooklyn. Congressmen are also to be elected in Oklahoma, where a vacancy exists through the death of Congressman Thompson, and in North Carolina, where Congressman Webb becomes a Federal judge.

Divide by Three.

Periodically there arises the proposal to divide our great and wonderful State into two commonwealths, and as regularly as they arise they are whacked on the head and squelched. Now comes the Santa Barbara Press with a proposal that three States be created of California territory, with the addition of Klamath and Jackson counties in Oregon. This is good "dull day stuff;" that's about all that can be said for it.

Topham is Willing.

John Topham, former Councilman, will probably be a candidate for the Democratic and Republican nominations for State Assemblyman in the Seventy-second District, now represented by Alexander P. Fleming. Mr. Fleming, because of his position as Councilman, becomes ineligible for re-election to the State Assembly.

George C. Watson, who was the Representative in this district when the war came on, has returned to Los Angeles after an absence of nearly two years, part of the time in the service, and he tells me that he also will be a candidate for Assemblyman in the Seventy-second District.

Needless to say, I presume, that either Topham or Watson would be for the most stringent laws affecting the I.W.W., and also a strong opponent of the enormous costs of the State's forty fat commissions. When Watson was Assemblyman he made a stand definitely in opposition to Hiram Johnson and his wasteful and extravagant regime.

Luke Wants a Place.

Lucas C. Luke, a negro who is a perennial candidate for something, and who on several occasions has filed his nominating petitions for City Council, bobs up again. This time he wants to get the Councilmanic seat of Dr. Frederick C. Langdon in case this municipal lawmaker is appointed to the State Board of Equalization. Luke says there are 42,000 negroes in Los Angeles, and that they should have a representative on the Council, but from scanning the votes in past elections, it doesn't appear that they wanted Luke, at any rate.

A. A. Rowell is Called.

During the week just closed the final summons came to A. A. Rowell, brother of Chester Rowell, and for nearly a half a century a resident of Fresno county. He was a Civil War veteran, and later took an active part in the colonization of the San Joaquin Valley. He was one of the leading members of the Prohibition party in California and directly interested in the national prohibition movement, being active in that work.

Collier a Candidate.

It appears pretty certain that the candidacy of Frank C. Collier for District Attorney will be announced within a short time. Mr. Collier has had eighteen years of practice in the various courts, and has shown sterling qualities in performing the disagreeable duty of prosecuting complaints against attorneys where charges have been made by the Los Angeles County Bar Association. Others who may be candidates are Charles Burnell, City Attorney; Asa Keyes, at present a member of the District Attorney's staff, and Al Bartlett. THE WATCHMAN.

SUES FOR DEATH OF P. D. WILSON.

Widow Asks Fifty Thousand for Equalization Board Member's Killing.

Mrs. Sarah Tracy Wilson, widow of Phillip D. Wilson, a member of the State Board of Equalization, who was killed September 14 in a collision between his automobile and a Pacific Electric trolley car at Waverley drive and Fair Oaks avenue, Pasadena, filed suit against the corporation yesterday demanding $50,000 damages. At the time of his death Mr. Wilson's income was $10,000 a year, the complaint stated.

MEMORY OF COLLEGE LEADER IS HONORED.

SERVICES ARE CONDUCTED AT OCCIDENTAL CHAPEL FOR DR. H. G. SHEARIN.

Thursday morning a memorial service was conducted in the chapel of Occidental College in honor of Dr. H. G. Shearin, who, until his sudden decease last summer, was head of the English department.

During the singing of a hymn by the college glee club, the academic procession passed through the center aisle of the chapel, the faculty taking its place on the platform where were already gathered representatives of the trustees and occidental alumni and citizens of Eagle Rock.

President Evans opened the services with forceful remarks on the lessons of Dr. Shearin's life—the varied interests in his life, as shown by the representatives sent to do him honor—recalling him to the students who knew him, and reminding new students, who did not know him, that nevertheless, they inherit his influence upon the college.

A passage of scripture was read by Miss Cunningham of the English department, a beautiful solo was given by Mrs. Esta Klie Car of Pasadena, a former student, and Dr. Evans prayed. Then followed appreciations of the life of Dr. Shearin, expressed by Dr. Burt, who knew him as a colleague in the faculty; Prof. Odell, who was associated with him in the department of English; Ralph B. Potter of Pasadena, an alumnus; Don Donnan, a member of the student body. Dr. Evans read two unpublished poems by Dr. Shearin.

October 22, 1919.

Los Angeles Pressed Brick Co., Frost Building, Los Angeles, California.

Gentlemen:

In answer to your letter of recent date, we are convinced, after a number of years of building experience, that a house built of hollow tile is the best construction that is obtainable at the present time. We are building our second residence of hollow tile and are contemplating using more of this same construction.

We do not hesitate to recommend unqualifiedly this sort of construction for this class and type of residence.

Very truly yours,
CHAS. C. & S. J. CHAPMAN CO.,

How Red Blood—Rich in Iron—Helps Make Men Masters Of Their Own Destiny

Physician Explains Why Strong, Vigorous, Successful People Back Up Their With Physical Strength and Energy To Help Them Win—Says NUXATED IRON HELPS MAKE RICH, RED BLOOD AND NERVES OF STEEL Like That Possessed by Pioneers of Old. It Often Increases the Strength and Endurance of Weak, Nervous, Rundown People in Two Weeks' Time.

"Strong, healthy men and women with plenty of iron in their blood are the ones who go through life with a smile, self-reliant and fearless and their dynamic power and energy make them virtually masters of their own destinies," says Dr. John J. Van Horne, formerly Medical Inspector and Clinical Physician on the Board of Health of New York City, in commenting on the relation of strong nerves and physical endurance to the attainment of success and power.

"The keen, active brains and tremendous force possessed by healthy, red-blooded people, often gives them a great advantage over those others whose thin, pale, watery blood robs them of self-confidence and initiative, weakening their wills and causing them to imagine they are victims of all sorts of dread ailments. Yet there are thousands of such men and women who undergo a most remarkable transformation the moment they get plenty of the right kind of iron into their blood to give increased energy and endurance. Their imagined ills are forgotten, they gain physical poise and fitness, mental alertness and greater power to combat obstacles, and withstand severe strains. To help build stronger, healthier men and women, better able physically, to meet the problems of everyday life, I believe that physicians should, at every opportunity prescribe organic iron — Nuxated Iron—for in my experience it is one of the best tonic and red blood builders known to medical science."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Out-door Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, in commenting upon the foregoing statement says: "Every keen, active successful man and woman of today recognizes that a sound, strong body is the basis of all real achievement and they leave no stone unturned to safeguard their health. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. I strongly advise every man who is fagged out by worry, work and other strains to build up his strength and energy and endurance by taking some form of organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for I consider it one of the foremost blood and body builders; the best to which I have ever had recourse."

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach.

TWO BANKRUPT.

C. C. Cockerill, a salesman of San Diego, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court yesterday, giving his debts as $30,-327.80, of which $23,900 is alleged to be secured, and his assets as $10,-400, of which $10,000 is in the shape of life insurance policies and therefore exempt. J. A. Klarquist, a contractor of this city, filed a bankruptcy petition in the United States District Court yesterday. He gives his liabilities as $18,916.43 and his assets as $100, exempt under the law. Much of his indebtedness was incurred by reason of his liability as a stockholder in the Bowman-Klarquist Company.

FROM MINISTRY TO JAIL CELL.

Clergyman Descends Swiftly to Nadir of Society.

Divorced, Ill, Quits Home and Becomes Burglar.

Now Waits Decision on His Plea for Probation.

In the space of a few years, Harry R. Royse, a former clergyman, traversed the wide social chasm between the pulpit and the prisoner's dock, where he will stand in Judge Craig's court Thursday and await a decision regarding his application for probation. Though three years ago he was a minister of the gospel at Pittsburg, Kan., and occupied pulpits there and at Dorchester, Neb., for ten years, now he is admittedly a burglar and is in the County Jail waiting to know whether he will have to serve a term in San Quentin prison or will be given another chance.

Royse, who is 38 years old, and his nephew, Kent Moffit, 16, were arrested for entering the store of the Noiseless Typewriter Distributing Company, Fifth and Olive streets, and stealing five typewriters, valued at $646.50. According to Detectives Canto and Vernand, who made the arrests, Royse exhibited unusual cleverness in committing this burglary and in other thefts that are attributed to him and his nephew.

DIVORCED BY WIFE.

Regarding his life as a clergyman Royse has remained silent, but he says his present predicament is due to domestic trouble, lack of money and loneliness. He says he attended two colleges and, ordained as a minister, had pulpits in Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma. Three years ago, he relates, his wife sued him for divorce on the ground of desertion. He says he made no contest, but that the charges were without foundation. His nephew, he declares, was forced to leave home and the two came to California, because of Royse's ill health.

Once here, they soon found themselves without money. Royse has said he was forced to thieve because of extreme necessity.

He planned to marry Mrs. Irene Invals of San Francisco, and sent her many articles that detectives say were taken by him from suit cases that he and the Moffit boy cleverly stole on street cars, in railway stations and from hotel rooms.

To his fiancee the former clergyman wrote that he and his nephew 'were straight until four weeks before the arrest," and that they stole because of dire want and Royse's poor health.

BURGLARY DETAILS.

The detectives learned that Royse, using the name "Harry Raymond," engaged the proprietor of the typewriter house in conversation while young Moffit took the key to the store. Moffit then had a duplicate key made and returned the original to the lock. That night, he and Royse entered the place and removed the typewriters. The two were arrested when they tried to sell the machines at San Diego.

According to the officers, a cunning scheme was used by Royse and the boy to gain entrance to guests' rooms in local hotels. The police say the two would occupy a room one day and have a duplicate of the door key made. Then they would return next day and ransack the room while the newer guest was away. It is said that in this way Royse got much of the finery he sent to his fiancee.

Moffit was taken to Juvenile Hall and Royse was accused of the theft of the typewriters.

Though he is attired in the garb of a prisoner in the County Jail and wears a dark growth of beard, Royse maintains the dignity of his former calling. In speaking he uses the term "brother."

FILMS LIGHTEN LIFE FOR COUNTY'S WARDS.

CHARITY FUND USED TO BUY PROJECTION MACHINES; ONE MORE NEEDED.

Superintendent Martin of the county charities announced yesterday that two of the three motion-picture projection machines wanted for installation at the County Hospital, the County Farm and the Children's Hospital, have been purchased with contributed funds and are now in operation. With $40 more, he stated, the third machine can be bought.

This work was initiated by the hospital chapter of the Bishop's Guild, of which the chairman is Mrs. M. M. Weeks.

Among the prominent contributors are the Griffith studio, Chaplin studio, City Mothers' Bureau, George E. Felton, Angelus Roofing Company, Mrs. L. T. Shettler, Miss Gertrude Parcell, O. E. Dutton, Mrs. H. D. Cane, Leanard A. Hardie, Women's Alliance of the First Unitarian Church, Liberal Catholic Church of St. Alban and the Angels, G. G. Johnston and many members of the Los Angeles County Hospital staff.

Various motion-picture concerns have contributed film reels without charge, and state they will continue to do so.

"The pleasure and relief afforded patients at the county institutions and particularly "the children," said Superintendent Martin yesterday, "have been marked, and contributors would be more than repaid if they could see the joy, which their contributions have made possible."

TO PRESENT MEDALS.

Belgian Decorations to be Given at Overseas Club Meeting.

Decorations awarded local soldiers by King Albert on his recent trip here will be presented at a meeting of the British Overseas Club on Tuesday night by Charles Winsel, Belgian Vice-Consul here. Those to be honored are Brig. Franke of the Belgian army, Sergt. W. L. Rayfield, British army, and Private Adrien Millot of the French army. All will get the Gold Medal of the Crown of Belgium.

Louis Sentous and C. White Mortimer, French and British consuls here, will make addresses.

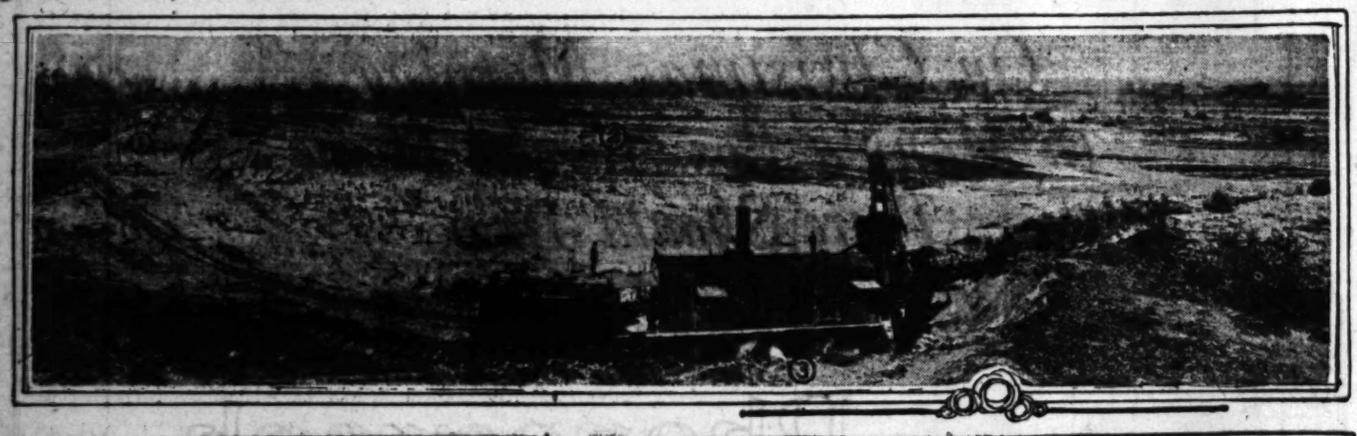
First of Great Flood of Control Jobs will be Finished in Two Weeks.



TURNING OUR RIVER INTO NEW AND SAFER CHANNEL

Flood Control Dike Above Huntington Beach Being Rushed to Completion by Night and Day Shifts.

The entire Board of Supervisors, consisting of Prescott F. Cogswell, J. H. Bean, F. E. Woodley, R. F. McClellan and Jonathan S. Dodge, visited the extensive flood control protection works that are now under construction at Fruitland, near Vernon, during the past week. In order to protect the industrial district of Huntington Beach and Laguna-Bell, the board is constructing a dike built of sand, fifteen feet high, forty feet wide, and two miles in length. It will be faced with granite blocks now being shipped from Declez.

On top of the dike the spur track of the Salt Lake Railroad is being built. The work is considered of such importance that three shifts are constantly employed handling two locomotives and one steam shovel.

Between the dike and the main channel of the river a double row of piling has been driven thirty feet into the ground, and extending ten feet above the level of the river. On these rows of piling Elwood fencing to a height of six feet has been placed, and between the rows men are now piling tin cans, and the thousands of tons of other refuse dumped into the river bottom during the past ten years. This work is in charge of Capt. John J. Habeck, an experienced superintendent in works of this kind.

RUSHED FAST.

It is expected that the work of filling the dike will be completed in about two weeks and the flood protection works finished before the winter rains come.

The Supervisors are anxious that the branch sewer conduit erected by Los Angeles, extending from Boyle Heights to connect with the main trunk sewer, should be lowered to a depth of ten feet below the bottom of the river bed. This sewer line was originally constructed on piers, but the river bottom has filled in with sand until now it is level with the top of the concrete conduit and water is flowing over it, producing a small waterfall. The result of the filling in behind the sewer line has been to lessen the flow of water that will pass under the concrete bridge constructed at Twenty-sixth street and Vernon, and the board is afraid that the openings under this bridge may not be sufficient to carry the entire flow of water in the winter time.

DREDGING CANAL.

Actual work was commenced yesterday, under the supervision of Chief Engineer James W. Reagan of the Los Angeles flood control, on the dredging of a canal one-fourth of a mile in length, which, when completed, will release all the flood waters in the Cerritos slough back of Long Beach.

Two huge suction dredges are now at work at a central point of the proposed channel. These dredges are now floating on water that is pumped from the ocean and will remove 15,000 to 20,000 cubic yards of earth per day until the channel is completed. To remove this earth 4,000,000,000 gallons of water must be pumped to the dredges from the ocean.

The channel, when completed, will open up a channel from the flood waters that inundate the region surrounding Cerritos slough. The work will be finished by the first of 1920, according to Mr. Reagan.

CIVILIANS WILL DO CAMP WELFARE WORK.

Since November 1 the War Department has taken over responsibility of handling the work formerly done by the Red Cross, Y.M.C.A., Knights of Columbus and other welfare organizations. It is intended to continue the recreation centers and hostess houses that have been established at camps in the United States and the government will employ civilian help, both male and female for the work.

Cafeterias now being operated by the several welfare organizations will be run as far as possible by the post exchanges. Continuation of present methods and the retention of adequate experienced personnel is deemed advisable.

In posts, camps and stations, working with the service clubs, which will take the place of the hostess houses, there will be a certain number of women, who will act as hostesses. They will also carry on welfare work for all women personnel of the camp. Their pay will run from $1200 to $1500 per year with the usual allowance for quarters, light and heat.

Civilians not now engaged in work at the various camps, who seek appointments, should communicate with the commanding officer of the nearest post, camp or station as these positions will be filled by the War Department upon the recommendation of the commanding officer. Positions open for men will carry the pay of second lieutenant to major, with the usual allowances.

TO VOTE ON SHIPS' FATE.

Nation's Commercial Bodies in Referendum on Government-Owned Trade Fleet.

Twelve hundred and thirty-six commercial organizations and leading commercial houses this week will vote on what the United States government should do with the 2000 merchant ships it now possesses and has under contract. The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce yesterday received its ballot from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which is making the canvass, and has referred the matter to its committee on commerce, of which L. D. Sale is chairman.

Although the vote will not have the power of determining the action of the government, it is believed that the voice of national business will be listened to with profound attention by the government, as it has been in the past on questions of national policy. The referendum is the twenty-ninth submitted by the national organization and is accompanied by recommendations of a committee of the national chamber, which are as follows:

"That wooden vessels and steel vessels under 6000 tons deadweight be sold on the best terms obtainable from American or foreign bidders.

"That other government-owned vessels be sold to regional associations for transfer at cost to private individuals and corporations of the several regions.

"That the government absorb the difference between the war cost and the present value, as a war loss.

"That there be freedom from regulation as to routes and rates.

"That there be restriction for a period of years upon transfer to a foreign flag of steel vessels over 6000 tons deadweight, purchased from the government.

"That preference be shown for American underwriters, and that the underwriting market of the world be used for insurance not covered by American underwriters, without intervention by government insurance.

"That encouragement be given to an American classification society.

"That Congress be asked to make a general declaration of a policy to give aid toward the maintenance of a privately-owned and operated American merchant marine.

"That the operation of the competent American shipbuilding yards, on private account both as to yards and the vessels they construct, be continued."

TO BOOST NEW SHIP LINE.

Leading business firms of Los Angeles this week will assist in an intensive advertising campaign to let the world know that the first steamer of Los Angeles' new direct line to the Orient will leave December 20, and that a monthly schedule will be maintained after that date.

Co-operation of the foreign trade department of the Chamber of Commerce is being given in this, and the printed schedules are being sent to Consuls, railroad agents and large shippers throughout the country. Business firms are enclosing these announcements in their eastern mail and it is hoped that the heavy local cargo will be supplemented by goods for the Orient from all parts of the United States.

The West Mingo, an 8800-ton freighter, built by the Los Angeles Shipbuilding Company at the harbor will be the first ship to sail. The second ship, the West Montop, also built here, is scheduled to sail January 10, 1920, by which time other steamers will be allocated to the Los Angeles-Pacific Navigation Company, the organization of local business men establishing the first direct line from this port to the Orient.

There is ample room remaining in the first ship for local dealers to send large cargoes to Kobe, Manila, Shanghai, Hongkong and Singapore, the five ports of call in the Orient at which the company will deliver cargoes.

Walter S. Wheaton, formerly attached to the company here, has left for the Orient to appoint agents for the company in all the principal ports and arrange for the handling of cargoes in England through the company's own agents.

Cargoes both ways are being solicited for the direct line.

CAPO-DI-MONTE

"A Medicinal Hair Tonic." The Nearest Approach to Perpetual Youth for the Hair That Has Ever Been Found.

Brings Lasting Beauty

Powerful, But Harmless. Ordinary Hair Tonics Not Strong Enough.

As a hair stimulant and beautifier, or as a treatment for scalp eruptions and eczema, it is equally quick and effective. When rubbed in around the roots it immediately invigorates and strengthens them. A few treatments bring delicate softness and great beauty to the hair.

READ these directions and see what a short time is required for it to do these really wonderful things: For scalp eruptions, dandruff and falling hair, apply once a day for two or three days or until trouble disappears. To improve the growth and beauty of the hair, continue the treatment two or three times a week for a month or more. In very severe cases of hair falling, premature baldness or loss of hair from any cause, use regularly once a day until the hair stops falling out and the new growth is well started, then occasionally as a stimulant. People Live Again the Christmas Thrills of Childhood When They Make Sincere Gifts for Home and Happiness

Have you ever rushed through the exciting business of "getting ready for Christmas," using up stacks of nervous energy at the last minute, but being happy about it all the time; finally finishing the very last errand—and then feeling a miserable depression and a vague disappointment that you're totally at a loss to understand?

Of course it's partly plain nervous exhaustion, the result of too much strenuous late-day shopping. But, more than that, it's a fear that you haven't chosen most wisely in all cases; that some of your gifts are not truly worth-while; that everybody won't really LOVE the things you've planned for them.

Don't let's spoil Christmas by "rushing it through"! Leisurely, loving, thoughtful selection of substantial, lasting, beautiful presents is altogether the order of the day at Barker Bros.' now. Every influence, the spirit of those who will serve you—indeed, the very atmosphere of the store itself seems to express sincerity, a true interest in the happiness of those you love and a real ability to offer you gifts that will make yours the most SATISFYING Christmas you have ever known. Please come and let us help you start or continue or finish up your Christmas shopping—or do all three!

WOULDN'T IT BE WONDERFUL if all of us who live in this world could actually have a feeling of good-will for everyone?

Wouldn't it be wonderful if possessing this attitude, we should actually express it?

It would do others so much good and ourselves so much more good.

Why can't we do it? We have just celebrated Armistice Day, marking the close of a struggle for high principles not only of Justice but of Good-Will, too.

Our thoughts* are full of kindness—let's begin putting them in action.

Since we are human, we shall find the most substantial expression of our good-will in material things.

Then how thankful we should be for all the objects that offer themselves as vehicles for carrying our thoughts of good-will to those whose happiness we hold dear!

"HOW well you walk!" said Twinklim to the Walking Doll, "I've seen other dolls who tried to walk like you, but none of them really succeeded. Here, take my hand and let's stroll around REAL TOYLAND and visit the other dolls."

The first one they met was Baby Doll, who cuddles like a real baby and who is dressed in the prettiest baby clothes.

"Mama?"

The Baby Doll looked straight at Twinklim when she asked that question.

"No, Baby Doll," said he, "I'm not your mamma. But you won't have to wait long. Some nice little girl is sure to come for you."

As Twinklim and the Walking Doll went away from Baby Doll they heard her cry "Mamma" once again, so longingly. She wants you very much, little girl.

Yes, she is waiting for you to come and get her—and other dolls are waiting for other little girls. Twinklim, who's the Prince of Fun, come all the way from the stars to spend the Christmas season in REAL TOYLAND, will show you where they are. He's sprinkled star-dust on the toys and can talk with all of them. Come and find TWINKLIM in Barker Bros.' Children's Store Each Afternoon, from One Till Five.

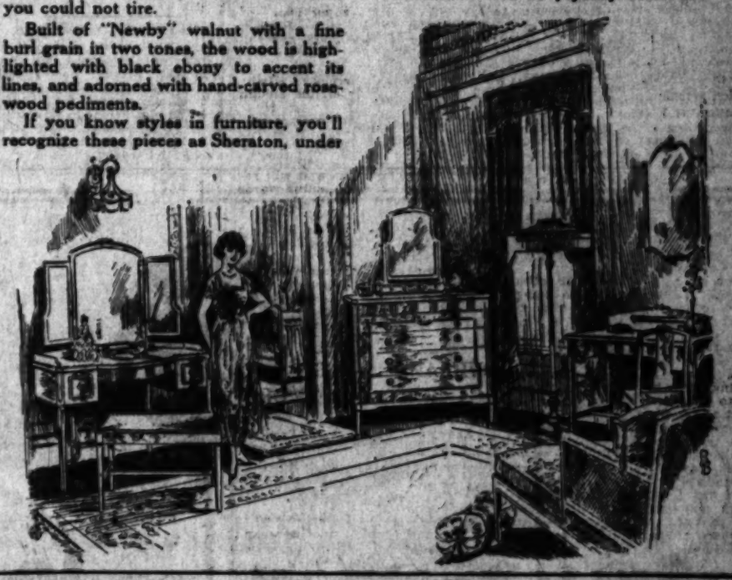
The Artist in You Will Rejoice and be completely satisfied with the various beautiful pieces of the new bedroom suite sketched partially below.

It is a pattern that would hardly appeal to a person fond of showiness—it is the sort, rather, that is like a perfect gem in a chaste setting—one that seems more beautiful with every glance and of which you could not tire.

Built of "Newby" walnut with a fine burl grain in two tones, the wood is highlighted with black ebony to accent its lines, and adorned with hand-carved rosewood pediments.

If you know styles in furniture, you'll recognize these pieces as Sheraton, under French influence. This and other suites—many much less costly—will give you idess about the beauty of your bedroom or boudoir—at Barker Bros.' now.

From a vanity dresser or chifforobe to a little bedside table or low rocker, a gift of furniture for the bedroom is worthy of Christmas—and so joyfully received!



BARKER BROS.' SERVICE DEPARTMENT has for its motto, "Not to leave undone a single thing that shall make and keep our friends." If anything goes wrong, please phone this department.

It is so ineffably graceful, with its undulating, serpentine lines—and, for all its richness, so restfully restrained! The triumph of this pattern is that it succeeds in expressing French feeling (which, as you know, is the mark of ...ade in this era of furniture design) and does so without ...ding any extravagance of decoration or in any way ...ching the modern taste for quiet dignity.

There is just enough carving to give zest to the design. The Linen Chest is low enough to oblige as serving table. The Silver Cabinet is worth an ode to tell its charms. All the pieces, indeed, are interesting and beautiful, and yet the price of the suite, complete, is by no means immoderate.

We've placed this dining-room suite in one of our windows, in order that you may have the pleasure of seeing it while strolling Broadway today or shopping downtown tomorrow. It is an example of the interesting dining-room furniture now conspicuous upon our floors.

¶ Pictures as Gifts Mean Something

—and so do Frames. But of course that's understood, since a picture is inseparable from its frame and a frame would have no use at all if it were not for its picture.

Really, Pictures and Frames (whether for sketches, prints and photographs) are among the most important and the most universally suitable, lovable gifts that could be chosen at the Christmas season.

And it is hard to imagine a place more ideal for their choosing than is Barker Bros.' beautiful Art and Gift Department on the Mezzanine floor.

Here artists are responsible for the collection of pictures and artists design the frames and match them to the pictures—and artists counsel your selections gladly.

If you want a worthwhile picture, worthily framed, please let us show you some—this week!

We Often Try the "Table Remedy" when a Living-room seems wrong—and it works wonderfully!

How can one table possibly be enough in any living-room? Think of the lamps there are to hold, and the porcelains and flower vases, and the books, and the smoking conveniences, and the bonbon dishes and the photographs of friends, and all the other things that make a living-room!

The trouble used to be that small tables were so stupid and so all-the-same (as well as so seldom really made to fit the places needing them) that nobody wanted them around.

But now our floor of living-room furniture is so full of different, original, artistic and really inspirational little Tables that it bewildered us to select any limited number for illustration here. It would be unfair to any not to tell you about them all, so we'll simply say that a few pretty, friendly, obliging Tables have put hominess and comfort into more living-rooms than you'd imagine, just lately — and we'd love to have you come in and talk Tables with us soon!

Perhaps it will give you a good idea for Christmas, too.

STINGING RESOLUTIONS.

In the evening De Valera will speak at a meeting at Shrine Auditorium, which has been arranged by the local committee. It had been planned to have music there and in the parade by the Long Beach Municipal Band, but it was considered doubtful yesterday that the band would play, in view of the protest of Kitchener Post, World War Veterans, of Long Beach. The post adopted the following resolutions last Thursday evening:

Whereas, it has been reported that the Long Beach Municipal Band will take part and be given the place of honor in the proposed reception to a man who has already been publicly denounced by the ministerial associations of both the Baptist and Methodist Episcopal churches, by the World War Veterans and posts of the American Legion, and others of our citizens who say honor to him is an insult to our soldiers; and,

Whereas, from the recent history of this man and his associates in Ireland, and from the statements of men high in the councils of the United States government, we can but recognize this man's activities in the same category as that of the I.W.W.'s in this great country; and,

Whereas, in view of these facts we feel that the spirit of 100 per cent. Americanism will prevail and bring every patriotic citizen to a realization of the sacrifices, the sorrows and sad bereavement that many of us have suffered through intrigue and secret treachery against law and organized government, and they will protest the use of any public utility or service for the purpose as stated.

Be it therefore resolved, that this organization of World War Veterans, Kitchener Post, send out the clarion call for the higher patriotism. A nation as an individual has a personality which must be respected; let us treat our allies, enemies as we would expect them to treat ours. That this resolution be spread on the minutes of the post, and copies of same be sent to the city authorities and the press of this city beautiful, which has always stood for the highest principles and ideals.

Farm Bureau Arranges Meeting for Demonstration Tomorrow.

Farm Adviser Hodgson announces that arrangements have been completed for a deciduous tree-pruning demonstration under the auspices of the Pasadena Farm Bureau Center for Monday morning at 10 o'clock at the place of W. N. Washburn, 1827 Lincoln avenue, between Wyoming and La Canada streets.

Dr. J. C. Whitten, dean of American pomologists, and originator of the new "long" system of pruning, has been secured as the demonstrator.

RHEINSCHILD APPEALS.

Walter Rheinschild, attorney, who was ordered disbarred by Judge Works last Friday, has appealed from the judgment to the Appellate Court on the ground that the evidence was insufficient to warrant the finding of the court. Mr. Rheinschild is represented by Attorney John L. Richardson.

GIVES SINN FEIN VIEWS.

Member of "Irish Parliament" Writes to "The Times" About De Valera.

The following statement is issued by Liam Mellows, member of the so-called Parliament of the so-called Irish republic, in reply to statements made by The Times with respect to Edward de Valera and the Sinn Fein:

"The approaching visit to Los Angeles on next Wednesday of President De Valera of the Republic of Ireland has occasioned a series of hostile and false statements regarding the president and the Irish cause, and in justice both to the people of Ireland, who are greviously harmed by these statements, and to the people of America, who are misled by them, I trust that The Times will be fair enough to allow me to state on behalf of the Irish people what are the facts with respect to President De Valera and the cause he has been sent to advocate in America.

"Ireland has always fought for liberty. For 750 years without cessation she had done so, and with reference to the efforts made to interject a religious aspect, that does not exist, into the question, I might state that the leaders of the struggle during the last century and a half, such as Wolf Tone, Thomas Emmet, Henry and John Sheares, William Orr, Henry Munroe, Henry Joy McCracken, Anthony Perry, Robert Emmet, Thomas Russell, John Mitchel, John Martin, William Smith O'Brien and Charles Stewart Parnell, were all Protestants, and at the moment some of the outstanding figures in the cause of Irish freedom, such as Ernest Blythe, elected by the people of North Monaghan to represent them in the Irish Parliament and a Cabinet Minister in the republican government of Ireland; Robert Barton, elected by the people of West Wicklow, and George Irvine, who commanded a company of volunteers in the revolution of Easter Week, 1916, and who was sentenced to ten years penal servitude, are also Protestants, while the Countess Marcievicz, member of the Parliament and Minister of Labor in the government, is a member of one of the oldest Protestant families in Ireland.

ON PRO-GERMANISM.

"When the great war broke out in 1914, Ireland was at that moment engaged in a continuation of the struggle to preserve her existence as a nation and to achieve her freedom. Sir Edward Carson was the acknowledged pro-German then. He, unlike the Sinn Fein leaders, acknowledged allegiance to the British government. When he threatened rebellion against an act of the government to which he had sworn allegiance, he was the real traitor. The fact is he went to Berlin, dined with the Kaiser, and later declared publicly that if England insisted upon giving a concession, (the so-called Home Rule Bill,) to the people of Ireland he would invite the intervention of the imperial government of Germany. Yet Sir Edward Carson was not arraigned on a charge of treason to the government of his allegiance; instead we find him in the midst of the war elevated to the highest legal position in the British Empire. With Lord French as their leader, British officers stationed in Ireland in the summer of 1914, threatened revolt against the government they were sworn to defend, if that government persisted in enforcing the Home Rule Act it had already passed. Who, therefore, were the traitors? The people of Ireland, who had never acknowledged the right, by conquest, of England to govern Ireland, or the officials who were sworn to enforce the laws of Great Britain in Ireland?

"England stated her purpose in entering the war was to liberate small nations and to crush militarism. That she lied is proved by the fact that she did not immediately give to Ireland that freedom, for the attainment of which she did not have to go to war with any country, which she advocated on behalf of Belgium.

OBJECTED TO SERVING.

"The Irish people saw no difference between British imperialism and German imperialism. Engaged in an age-long war against the former, they were not in a position to undertake a new war against the latter. The people of Ireland did not object to conscription at the hands of a government of their own choice. But they did object, and do object, to conscription at the hands of an alien government, which, while engaged, according to its own declaration, in a war for small nations, denied to the oldest of all small subject nations the freedom for which it proposed to conscript Irishmen to fight abroad. The people of Ireland were fighting for small nations when they were fighting for Irish liberty; they were fighting for democracy when they were opposing British militarism in Ireland. They believed that if there was any fighting to be done for freedom the place for Irishmen to do it was in Ireland and for Ireland.

"There never was a German plot in Ireland. If the Irish people in every generation have made every conceivable sacrifice for the great principle of liberty, since when, may I ask, did it become necessary for outside stimulation to make the people of Ireland fight for their own just rights?

"The Easter week, 1916, revolution in Ireland received its inspiration from the previous efforts of Irishmen for independence. The men who took part in it were opposed to British rule in Ireland long before the great war broke out.

"Every effort of the Irish people for freedom has always been branded by the British government as pro-something or other, just as the efforts of the people of America in 1775-1783 for freedom were branded by the British as pro-French.

"PRO'S" DISCUSSED.

"In the sixteenth century the Irish, because they fought against English domination, were called pro-Spanish. In the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries they were called pro-French. In the twentieth century they were called pro-German, and tomorrow, should for any reason England and America go to war, which God forbid as there have been enough wars, the people of Ireland, in their unceasing fight for their own liberty, would be called traitors and branded as pro-Americans. The fact is that the Irish people during the war, as they always were and are now, were pro-Irish and nothing more. They were neither pro-British nor pro-German.

"In May, 1918, President De Valera and ninety-eight other leaders of the people of Ireland, three of whom were women, were suddenly arrested, sneaked surreptitiously out of Ireland and confined incommunicado in British jails for ten months, during which time two of their number died as a result of the treatment they were subjected to. They were never brought to trial, nor was there even a charge lodged against them. They were held on the mere statement of Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, that they were concerned in a German plot.

Three weeks after the arrests Lord Wimborne, then English viceroy in Ireland, stated that so far as he knew (and if he did not know, who would?) 'there was no such thing in Ireland as a German plot.'

THE ASSIGNED REASON.

"It may well be asked why should the British government thus place itself in such a false position by arresting men on a faked-up German plot and holding them without charge. The answer is this: The British government hoped by the arrests of the Irish leaders to undermine the confidence the Irish people had in them, to disrupt the unity the Irish people had attained in face of the conscription issue, and to prejudice the American people against the cause of freedom in Ireland. This done, conscription was to follow and, through the slaughter of the youth of Ireland, whether abroad fighting for other nations' rights or at home fighting for their own, the aim was that the Irish question would be settled for at least another generation for want of men to carry on Ireland's fight.

"So far as President De Valera's visit to America is concerned, he comes here in exactly the same capacity as Benjamin Franklin went to Europe pleading for sympathy for the cause of American rights.

"President de Valera is in America as the elected representative of the people of Ireland. At an election, which amounted to a plebiscite, held under every safeguard that could be imposed by British election law, and despite every effort made by the British government to confuse the issue in the minds of the people of Ireland, the latter, by a vote of 1,200,000 against 500,000, declared for the immediate establishment of a republic. A denial of the right of Ireland to live under a government of its own choosing is tantamount to a denial of the principles for which 75,000 American soldiers laid down their lives on the fields of France.

"Just as America, by the adoption of the Declaration of Independence in 1776, became a free country, so has Ireland by the adoption of her Declaration of Independence become a free country. And just as George Washington was elected President of the United States by the representatives of the American people, Eamon de Valera has been elected President of the Republic of Ireland by the representatives of the Irish people"

TO HONOR SOLDIERS.

An effort is being made at Los Angeles Junior College to erect a bronze tablet in honor of the college men who were in the service. Joseph Ryan, formerly of Junior College, is in charge of the work.

Seventy-eight of the former college men were in the service. One was killed in action and two died of disease. The sum of $150, from class dues, is to be used for the tablet.

A few lots are offered for less, a few others up to $675.00

The Prices are Less than Half the Original Prices of the Lots

Adjoining unsubdivided acreage is held today at twice the price these lots are offered for, including subdivision and street work.

The prices have been cut to Quickly Close Out the Corporation that Owns the Lots

It is a great opportunity for the builder and the home seeker.

Buy a series of lots—five, ten, or as many as you wish and build homes on them for quick sale and quick profit, or you may buy just one lot for your own home.

There are over one hundred homes on the property now, and a great many more are to be built at once. One man alone is going to build fifteen, another eleven, others from one to five each.

The property lies at the end of the Washington Street car line. It is two blocks from one of the most exclusive residence sections of the city. Very close to excellent grammar school and to new Los Angeles High School. Of course, there are phones, gas, electricity, water—every city convenience. It is a thoroughly established community.

There are only a limited number of lots left. Those who come first will have first choice. The moment you buy you can consider that you have doubled your money, because the lots are cheap at twice the price for which they are offered.

MADE LONG FIGHT.

Since the time of the announcement that the local depot would be closed at the end of the present year, the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, the City Administration and many business men have co-operated in an active campaign to get this order rescinded by Quartermaster-General Rogers. Hundreds of telegrams were sent to representatives at Washington, urging them to do all in their power to keep the depot here. As a result of their efforts, Quartermaster-General Rogers consented to reopen the matter and to render a new decision. The result of this decision is indicated by the telegram received yesterday from Congressman Osborne.

In compliance with orders received from the quartermaster depot at San Francisco, 50 per cent. of the clerical force of the local office has been transferred to other depots, preparatory to the closing of this office. Many of the officers attached to this depot have received orders assigning them to duty elsewhere.

Instructions from the San Francisco office that all surplus supplies, including clothing, hardware, office supplies and stationery, and all ordnance be shipped as soon as possible to the San Francisco depot, are now being carried out, and it is estimated that 140 carloads of these supplies, at present in storage in Los Angeles, will be shipped to San Francisco before December 21.

It is felt by local business men that the Quartermaster-General's statement that the volume of business transacted by this office is too small to warrant keeping it open is not justified by facts. There are at present eleven army camps and posts in Southern California served by this depot, all of which, after the abandonment of the local office, will be served from San Francisco. The disbursements of this office have doubled within the past year, and the monthly expenditures of this office now amount to $500,000.

In view of the fact that a great canning industry centers around Los Angeles, an industry whose production for 1919 is estimated at 2,000,000 cases of canned fruits and vegetables, a quartermaster depot located here is in a position to purchase large quantities of canned goods at a minimum cost to the government. On account of the excellent transportation facilities afforded by Los Angeles, the local depot, since the time of its establishment, has cleared supplies at a very low tonnage cost to the government. From March to September of this year the cost of clearing these supplies through this office has been $4.08 per ton, as compared with an average cost of $8.31 per ton to the Seattle depot and $12 per ton to the depot at Portland, Ore.

UNFAVORABLE POSITION.

The telegram from Congressman Osborne states that Los Angeles merchants will be afforded opportunities to bid on government contracts, but Los Angeles merchants who desire to obtain government contracts, after the closing of this office will be in a disadvantageous position.

San Francisco merchants can bid for these contracts and allow the government a discount for payment within ten days after delivery of the supplies, but owing to the necessary delays in the transaction of business through the San Francisco office, local merchants will be unable to offer such a discount. The efforts of local merchants to obtain such contracts will be greatly hampered also by the fact that samples, which must always accompany bids for contracts, will have to be sent to San Francisco.

The Best HATS Ever Sold

This vast assortment contains models so exquisite, so rare at the price that we are herewith making extra effort to notify the women of Los Angeles.

For $7.50

One of the best-known importers of hats has sold us his entire line of hats fashioned after Parisian models. Women who have been accustomed to paying $18.00 and $20.00 for their hats will recognize the identical values in these.

All these hats are hand made of Lyons velvet, the styles, materials and workmanship are unusual at any price. The trimmings are ostrich, yarn, flowers, metal cloth, gold threads, ribbons and a variety of fascinating ornaments of new design. Even though you may have bought your winter hat you should see these. The price is so exceptionally low that you can well afford to attend this sale.

The Sketches Show a few of the Hats in this Sale

It is only because we were prepared to pay spot cash for so large a stock that the consignment was made to HALE'S.
It is seldom possible to offer such hats at so low a price—they are not at all in the $7.50 class. Our Millinery Buyer says it is the best purchase of hats ever made by Hale's—words truly spoken!
Amongst these hats there are hats suited to women of every type and any age—variety enough that every woman who attends this sale will find the one that seems to have been especially designed to suit her taste. Choice there is aplenty, for no two hats are alike.

RAISE AGE LIMIT.

Navy Recruits Under Eighteen are Barred by New Regulations.

Following instructions received from the Navy Department, the local recruiting station has made important changes in the standards for recruits. Hereafter those under 18 are barred for enlistment and those between the ages of 18 and 21 cannot be accepted unless they come up to the physical standards of men at the latter age.

It was stated that these changes were made in expectation of a rush of recruits expected if the bill for increasing the pay of the navy passes. It is generally supposed that the bill will be adopted. It provides for a 50 per cent. increase in peace-time pay and a bonus of four months' pay goes with all re-enlistments.

At the local station it was stated that 85 per cent. of the men formerly in the service would re-enlist if the new bill passes.

MRS. DEHAIL SUES.

Seeks Allowance from Husband, Heir to Millionaire's Estate.

Asking $750 attorney's fees and $200 a month for her own support, Mrs. Cathryn D. Dehail charged in a separate-maintenance suit filed yesterday that her husband, Elmo Dehail, deserted her. Mr. Dehail is alleged to be worth more than $100,000.

He is the son of the late I. I. Dehail, capitalist and hotel man, and one of the heirs to his father's $1,000,000 estate. The couple were married in this city June 19, 1916.

WED HUSBAND TWICE, ASKS DIVORCE AGAIN.

Everett E. and Theresa Scott were married in 1908. Six months later Mrs. Scott obtained a divorce on the ground of cruelty. The couple remarried in 1911. Four years later Mr. Scott left his wife, she testified in divorce proceedings before Judge Taft yesterday.

She said Mr. Scott asserted he wanted to come and go as he pleased and "didn't want anybody to dictate to him." Her mother testified Mr. Scott told her he objected to explaining to his wife when he had been away from home.

WANTED ALLOTMENT.

Wife Wouldn't Help to Get Him Discharged, Husband Says.

Richard E. Powers, a former soldier, told Judge Crail in his divorce suit against Elsie L. Powers yesterday that his wife lost all interest in him except for the allotment she received while he was in the service. He was granted a decree.

After they separated, Mr. Powers said, he never could keep track of his wife. He wanted her to sign an affidavit so that he could be discharged from the service, but she told him she would not do so because if he got out of the army she would lose her allotment.

Mrs. Powers told her landlady, the latter testified, that she wished she was not married as she would rather earn her own living.

FOLLY COSTS WIFE, GOLD.

The mysterious disappearance of Dr. Reynold S. Petter, charged by Mrs. Geraldine McWhirter with drugging her and with mistreating her while she was under the influence of the narcotic, was explained by Frank S. Hutton, an attorney, called as a witness in the divorce suit of Mrs. Almira Petter, tried and granted by Judge Crail yesterday.

Mr. Hutton, acting as a friend, testified:

"Dr. Petter came to me in his trouble. I begged him to break away from Mrs. McWhirter, but he said he did not have the will power to do so. I bought him a ticket to a certain place that is a long distance from here. One morning I drove up to the curb where he was standing, got him into my automobile, drove to the railroad station and sent him away. He has not returned, and that is why he has not been found and served with the papers in Mrs. McWhirter's suit against him for $20,000 damages."

Mrs. Petter testified in her divorce suit that her husband was constantly in the company of Mrs. McWhirter.

Mrs. McWhirter had sued Mrs. Petter for the recovery of an automobile which she alleged Dr. Petter took from her and gave to his wife. In making a property division, the court awarded Mrs. Petter this automobile.

Mr. Hutton later stated that what he did in the case was with a view to effecting a reconciliation between Mrs. Petter and her husband.

"Everything Dr. Petter had, he has lost," he said. "He has turned over to his wife everything he had in the world. He is coming back to fight the McWhirter case to a finish."

STILL SEEKING HOSPITAL FUND.

Women Make New Appeal for Maternity Cottage Aid.

To Erect Building in Which to Care for Mothers.

Thousands Yearly Ask Help from the Institution.

The directors of Maternity Cottage at 127 South Utah street, who are trying to raise $15,000 to build and equip a hospital in which to care for expectant mothers, yesterday issued a new appeal for funds. They have been conducting a campaign for the institution for several weeks, but have not yet succeeded in getting the amount required for the new building.

Describing some of the cases cared for by the cottage, one of the directors said that recently a call was received for assistance and the worker who answered it found a woman living with her family in a one-room shack. In one corner of the room was a bed on which the woman lay with a new-born baby in her arms, while an eighteen-months'-old baby lay crying on the other side. It was raining, and the roof was leaking so that a dishpan had been set on the bed to catch the water as it dripped from the roof.

This case is only one of the hundreds of cases that the cottage is called on to aid. The new building will more than double its capacity. It may not be able to handle all the needy cases, for even in the new quarters it will have only twenty-four or twenty-five beds. But the serious situation now is that the women who conduct Maternity Cottage are handicapped by a lack of funds.

HELPS POOR MOTHERS.

The cottage is run for wives of men on such small salaries that the advent of a baby would mean financial disaster without the aid of the cottage. There women who have absolutely no means are taken in and given care, when kindliness, good food, nursing and love make baby's arrival a joy instead of a calamity. Women who can afford pay do so. But the sum of $12.50 a week covers all expenses and provides each case with real comfort and care.

Mrs. William Baurhyte is president of Maternity Cottage. Other officers are Mrs. Foster Elliott, vice-president; Mrs. G. W. Grimes, recording secretary; Mrs. Kenneth Bissell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. S. McKevitt, auditor; R. Morgan Galbraith, treasurer.

Since the founding of Maternity Cottage in 1907 there have been approximately 3000 babies born there, and in only one instance did the mother die. In practically all of these cases had it not been for Maternity Cottage the women would have gone without proper medical care, and, many times, without necessities.

It is to save such cases as that of a baby born in a dark, one-room hovel, where rain drips on the bed, and another baby already cries, that the women directing Maternity Cottage work. Any member of the board of directors will receive contributions, and donations may also be made at the Los Angeles Times Company.

RUSH TO RENT ROOMS AT TOURIST BUREAU.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE FINDS ENORMOUS DEMAND FOR PLACES TO LEASE.

Approximately 100 rooms and apartments were listed each day last week with the tourist housing bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, established the 1st inst. In spite of this heavy enrollment, there were yesterday only about 300 rooms and apartments available, as the visitors flocking to the city are taking advantage of this service so rapidly that rooms are taken almost as soon as listed.

Almost every sort of room and location is recorded. The prices range from $10 a month for a small, single room in a private residence, to $1000 a month for an elaborate suite in Pasadena, that has baths, rooms for maids and accommodations for five motor cars. The greatest demand is for small apartments, as these seem to be wanted by visitors from the East who are here for more than a week's stay. These are taken as fast as listed, indicating that a large percentage of tourists are planning to remain through the winter.

The popularity of this department of the chamber indicates that there will be visitors enough to fill every vacancy and persons who have spare rooms are urged to list them at once, as the tourist rush is beginning a month earlier than usual. Rooms and apartments may be listed either in person or by phone, at the tourist housing department.

ORDERED HIM OUT.

Husband Says Also Wife Refused to Give Up the "Old Man."

When asked why he and his wife separated, Arthur M. Emerson told Judge Taft yesterday in divorce proceedings against Adelia M. Emerson that she told him to get out.

"My wife told me she did not want anything to do with me," he said. "I returned in a few days and tried to get her to live with me, but she said she was through and packed my trunk. I went to my mother's home."

He further testified that his wife told him she "would not give up the 'old man' for anything."

Mr. Emerson explained he called the other person the "old man" because he is 59 years old. Mrs. Emerson is 31 years old. The court granted Mr. Emerson a decree.

WANT CASE DISMISSED.

On account of a crowded court calendar the hearing of W. S. Jeffreys, a private detective, accused of obtaining $300 by false pretenses, was continued yesterday by Justice Palmer until December 1. At that time John L. Richardson, attorney for the defendant, will file a motion to dismiss the case. The prosecution's case is concluded.

420 of the Season's Smartest Suits at Prices Startlingly Low

Hale's GOOD GOODS
341-343-345 S. BROADWAY
LOS ANGELES
San Francisco Oakland Sacramento San Jose

A large manufacturer of women's suits, knowing the tremendous purchasing power of the five Hale California Stores made us a tempting offer if we would take his entire stock of Fall suits. We accepted gladly knowing that hundreds of our customers and their friends were waiting for just such an opportunity—to get suits that are smart and new in style at prices far below the prices that are generally quoted. In all sincerity we predict that it will be a long time before such values as these are again to be obtained.

THE SAD TALE OF ARBUCKLE.

Interviewer Finds Him in a Serious Mood.

Rotund Comedian Says He's Going on Stage.

Declares He'll Make Love with Any of 'Em.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

"I'm never going to sign another motion picture contract when my present one is finished. I'm going back on the stage!"

Fans, prepare to weep, for it was none other than your own idolized Roscoe Arbuckle, the world's most famous fat comedian, who made that statement emphatically, the other day, on the stage of his studio as he sat waiting for the trimming of a set to be completed, while his actors, Buster Keaton and Harry McCoy, not to mention the dog Luke, played several thousand dollars' worth of comedy just for fun on the turntable that Arbuckle has rigged up as a means of getting laughs from that everlasting bugaboo of the star, the "You've-got-to-show-me" public.

Mr. Arbuckle's statement wasn't the result of a temporary slump in spirits because some gag had proved a dud, or, because a favorite plot had failed to jell. It was the result, he averred, of calm calculation.

"By the time my contract is finished," said Arbuckle, "I shall have enough money so I can do what I like, and what I like is working on the stage, not in pictures, which are blah! I shan't have to work at all by that time if I don't want to, but I want to. I want to do on the stage some of the things I've dreamed of doing, but have never been in position to accomplished."

However, let the fans not despair. Mr. Arbuckle contract has still a couple of years to run, so we'll see a lot of the jubilant "Fatty" before he does a fade-out on the screen.

In the meantime, and here's a sensation for you, Fatty intends becoming less fat! In other words, he's going to train down, he says, and play some straight roles instead of all curved ones! For this purpose he expects to go shortly into training with the view to melting the "too, too solid flesh," which now stands between him and playing certain roles, which he wishes to do on the screen.

This, again, leads to the interesting announcement that Mr. Arbuckle is planning, immediately following the completion of his present comedy, to branch out with five-reelers and real stories, with love scenes and villains and everything!

Among other stories, he is negotiating for the film rights to "Civilian Clothes," and that is the real reason, he admits, he is willing to undergo the more or less painful or at least troublesome process of losing some fifty or sixty pounds. He has also other plays and books in mind, which he wishes to produce in the deathless drama of the celluloid.

As a matter of fact, this is one of the reasons why Arbuckle is going on to New York, this and the possibility of his building his own studio.

MAY MOVE EAST.

"I have received a number of offers, both here and in New York, for the erection of a studio and it is possible I may decide on the East. You see," he smiled, "I'm not so old that the matter of climate counts with me! In any case I shall build a dark stage, as I believe the outdoor stages prevent proper concentration on the part of the actors."

Certainly Mr. Arbuckle wasn't kidding any that day!

"As for the making of the five-reelers," said Arbuckle, "I can do it in less time than I can make two-reelers, for the simple reason that plot development is much easier, also it isn't constantly a question of 'Which of these bits of action on which we have spent a lot of time and thought shall we leave in and which shall we junk?' Then a five-reeler is considered a feature. Of course, my comedies are being featured now, but being a feature is different from being the feature of a programme."

The rotund comedian was in a mood none of the fans would recognize at all.

"You slave and work your head off to make people laugh," declared Arbuckle, "and you do make people laugh, and then they go out and are mad at themselves for laughing!"

"But do you think it possible to sustain comedy interest through five reels," I asked the famous star, of whom we are prone of fear all too lightly to think that his fat is his fortune.

"I don't intend to try," said Mr. Arbuckle. "I mean to have some real drama, interspersed with comedy." Then the famous Arbuckle smile broke like the rising sun.

"You think," he said, "I'm not serious about losing flesh? Well, I am. And I can play a love scene as well as any of them! If you don't believe me, just wait!"

STAGE GAINING BIG IMPETUS.

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT.

Without doubt, the fall months have brought a greater spread of stage activities than any time since the advent of the cinema's popularity. Just what are the reasons underlying this condition is not a mere matter of chance, or the veering of the public taste from the film entertainment, which has absorbed their attention during the past several seasons, but is due probably more to inherent improvement in the enterprise of theatrical managers in inducing actors of ability to come to the coast.

The established success of the Morosco Theater, which is only too clearly proven in the long run of "Civilian Clothes," is being equalled to a very great degree at the Majestic Theater, with its presentation of stock attractions. The Majestic company has been strengthened to the point that their productions are of a very high excellence. The casts are stronger week by week, and the staging has been marked by a high artistic quality ever since Williamene Wilkes's arrival. There is no question about the popular appeal therefore of well-presented attractions on the stage. The place of the photoplay is entirely separate. Such competition as has existed in the past has been purely artificial.

It is rather significant that an effort is being made to bring the Burbank back into the ring of stock theaters. The opening vehicles were badly chosen, but there are excellent possibilities for a belated capturing of the public taste, with such an offering as "Revelation." The Majestic Theater had much the same difficulty to encounter on their entrance into the field, because their opening production was with one exception the weakest.

Further proof of the momentum which the stage has acquired is furnished in the Community Theater enterprises. Of course, these are not new; in fact, it might be said that they pointed the way for such artistic staging as has marked recent stock productions here.

The Hollywood Community Theater is one of those rare things in the world of drama, whose great success cannot be ascribed to any one thing, except perhaps a ruling personality combined with understanding of variety in a performance, and the fact that it is possible at all times to draw on some of the best talent in local picture work.

The Hollywood Community Theater has, however, been a project of daring. Their bill for the present week, for instance, contains Maeterlinck and Tchekov plays. Essentially a high-brow offering, but one which will doubtless have the same appeal that their other performances have had.

With three stock theaters running, a road company playing in Shakespeare, a high-class selection of short plays, and a light musical revue, there is absolutely no shortage of stage entertainment during the present week. Such a shower of the "legit" drama has not been vouchsafed the parched theatrical world in some several years.

"FORTUNE HUNTER" CAST.

Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, has announced the complete cast for the screen version of Winchell Smith's stage success, "The Fortune Hunter." Jean Paige will be Mr. Williams's leading woman, and other roles will be played by Van Dyke Brooke, Earl Metcalf, Nancy Lee, William Holden, Charles Trowbridge, Frank Norcross, Billie Hoover and Louise Lee. Tom Terriss will direct.

SERIAL STAR FOR FEATURES.

Moreno to Leave Black and Blue Film Plays.

Vitagraph to Sponsor His New Departure.

News and Gossip of Stage and Photoplay World.

The black-and-blue drama, in other words, the serial, is to lose one of its most fascinating and popular members. He is none other than Antonio Moreno, Vitagraph star, who has been hiding his good looks, his highly prepossessing personality, and his excellent acting ability under the metaphorical bushel of wildly thrilling serials, in which brawn is exalted above brain and the ruined automobile above the ruined life, is to break away from that form of entertainment, and again resume his place as star of Vitagraph features.

The important transition of Mr. Moreno is to take place about February 1 of the coming year, and already the Vitagraph company has selected a number of well-known stories for him. It is not known who will be his leading woman, a number of well-known young actresses being, however, even now under consideration.

Mr. Moreno has the distinction of being one of the half-dozen most popular screen stars, according to the coldly commercial but unerring record of the box offices throughout the country, and it was due to the fact that Vitagraph considered Mr. Moreno as wasted in serials that they are taking him out of them. He will be remembered as leading man with Edith Storey, and afterward co-starring with her in "The Tarantula" and other pictures which gained wide popularity.

Cody as Business Man.

Lew Cody, connoisseur of art and fashions, screen favorite and authority on matters Esthetic, has developed a new talent. During L. J. Gasnier's absence in New York, the star, who is producing his second story, "The Butterfly Man," from the pen of George Barr McCutcheon, has had his long-desired opportunity to exercise his commercial instinct. Cody, being coproducer with Gasnier of the Lew Cody Attractions, has been conferring daily with Studio Manager Kenneth A. O'Hara.

In the morning Cody gives his technical staff their instructions, holds audience with the studio departmental heads, adjusts complaints and passes on the reports of Townsend Clark, the company treasurer.

After removing his make-up, subsequent to the day's toil before the camera, Cody again delves into the mass of company business with O'Hara and between them, production activities at the Gasnier plant have proceeded with high efficiency, it is said.

The Eternal Question.

Critics who venture to suggest that Hamlet, the Prince of Denmark, was intended by Shakespeare to represent a man whose mind was deranged or on the verge of breaking down as a result of the circumstances surrounding him in the period of his life treated in the drama, "most in John E. Kellerd, who is to be seen at the Mason Operahouse, beginning tomorrow, in a repertoire of Shakespearean and classic plays, an actor who has absolute conviction that the prince is the sanest character in all art and wiser than most human beings.

"The question of the soundness and sanity of the prince's mind," he said, "is shown by his ability to reason logically, an ability that is not possessed by one man in a thousand. There is not a character in dramatic literature as sane as Hamlet. That is the reason he

Dedicated to Better Homes

Encourage Home Entertaining

It is better that the young folks should be encouraged to entertain at home than that they should find it necessary to seek entertainment away from home.

Habits formed in youth are invariably reflected in later life. The habit of home patronage is a splendid one to cultivate. Its fruitage is refinement, culture, contentment and happiness.

The responsibility for establishing this habit among the young folks rests very largely with the parents. The first step in its accomplishment is to make and keep the home attractive.

An attractive home suggests and encourages home entertainment, for you are proud to have your cultured friends come and enjoy its comforts and its beauty with you.

The home need not be pretentious. In fact, it may be very modest, but if it is furnished in good taste, however inexpensively, it will breathe an atmosphere of welcome and cordiality, which after all is the highest purpose of home furnishing.

The "California" seeks the opportunity to co-operate with those who would emphasize the appeal of home by making home more attractive.

The sincerely helpful service of men long skilled in the art of correct home furnishing is at your command without added cost.

OF ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

The Arabesque.

I made a fresco on the coronal,
Amid the sounding silence and the void
Of life's wind-spent and unfrequented hall.
I drew the nothings that my soul enjoyed;
The pretty image of the enormous fact
I fled; and when the sun soared over all
And threw a brightness on the painted tract,
Lo, the vain lines were reading on the wall!
In vain we think; our life about us lies
O'erscrawled with crooked writ; we toil in vain
To hear the hymn of ancient harmonies
That quire upon the mountain or the plain;
And from the august silence of the skies
Babble of speech returns to us again.

—[Robert Louis Stevenson.

The Northern Painters.

A happy opportunity for comparisons between the art output of the northern part of our State and that of the southern is offered by the exhibition of fifty pictures by artists from San Francisco and vicinity, which is now held at Exposition Park, and which follows so closely on the heels of the recent exhibition by the California Art Club that we have not had time to forget what our own painters gave us. Eighteen artists are represented in the present show.

Comparisons are not always odious. It seems to me that neither San Francisco nor Los Angeles suffers by the one that we are now making, though the differences are marked. Surprising to say—is it a matter of climate?—we in the south are more conservative in our art methods and estimates than they in the north. We have less fads, fewer innovations, and we are slower to throw off old loves in paint before we are on with the new. We reach out more cautiously, and we annex novelty with more discretion. We may be wrong—and then, again, we may be right.

At all events, we cannot "declare that the "modern" northern men are always right in their modernity. It appears to us, now and again, that some of them are running amuck among their paint pots, giving us many colors, but not color, many lines, but not drawing. Nevertheless, we are not averse to new and fresh impressions, we are glad of these breezy canvases from San Francisco. I therefore append a few brief notes on those that gave me pleasure, suspending judgment on all the rest, since they may satisfy my readers more than they did me.

William Silva is not from San Francisco, I believe. I like the lovely gray and rose and the beautiful quiet waters of his "Dawn," which is like the dawn of happy dreams. Detlef Sammann, again, has his studio at Monterey since he moved from Los Angeles, and "The Mystic Pool" that comes from his vigorous brush is one of the finest pictures in the show, a palette-knife tour de force in which the rocks are magnificently drawn and the color is superb.

"There is charm of color in Hobart Clark's "A Soldier's Mother," and there is much sweetness of character in the portrait. A richer and fuller note of color is struck by Ray Boynton in his "Portrait," in which the handling is rather flat, but very effective. Armin Hansen gives us two fine studies, "The Fisherwife," a figure placed against the dark blue sea of night, and "Boy With a Cod," a delicate play of grays and blues in a suave technique. The pose of the female figure in Henry V. Poor's "Portrait Study in Black," is new and interesting, and the scheme of color is excellent. "In the Garden," by Hobart Clark has decorative color that is cleverly arranged. Sunlight and atmosphere are found in Joseph Raphael's four European studies.

From E. Charlton Fortune come two canvases whose technique is admirable, vigorous and painter-like; the scheme of gray-pinks in "The Senora's Garden" is very lovely, the outdoor feeling is great; good color, too, is found in "Wharf at Monterey." E. Sievert Weinberg's "Indian Maiden, Taos," a girl in a gay blanket, who is holding an olla, is strongly painted. Rich color is noted in Matteo Sandona's "Portrait of Leo Lentilli," admirable characterization in the well-constructed and well-modeled head and expressive hands. "Amber Beads," from the same brush, is also brilliantly painted.

Geneve Rixford Sargeant's "Sunlight Through the Window" is loosely and freely handled, and this artist offers us a good portrait sketch in "The American Boy." William C. Watts's two water colors are full and vibrant in color; his oil, "The Gardens of the Sea," has the same bright vivacity. There is bigness of effect in Gottardo Piazzoni's glowing canvas, "The Lone Church," and in his simply-conceived "Coming of Night." Eugen Neuhaus's "Landscape" has the charm of the intimate and familiar. Myrtle Young's "Poppies" is a brilliant piece of color, an attractive arrangement.

The exhibition will remain on view through November. Don't fail to see it.

Normal Activities.

To be convinced that the foundations for good art and for intelligent art appreciation are being carefully laid in Southern California you have only to make a few flying trips to the State Normal School, now known as the southern branch of the University of California, at 855 North Vermont avenue. The art department of the Normal has been under the supervision of Nellie Huntington Gere for many years, and she, with her corps of assistants in instruction, has made a phenomenal success of it. The Normal is, of course, only one of many factors in the art development of Los Angeles, but it certainly is an important one.

On November 12 there opened at the Normal, in the well-lighted gallery, an interesting exhibition of the work of Louise Seoy's summer class in outdoor sketching. The canvases represent eight lessons and show remarkably vigorous and strong work. They are full of color and "modern" in treatment. Some of Mrs. Seoy's students are members of the Normal's alumni, and others have had much less training. The exhibition closes November 25.

Benjamin Chambers Brown opens his exhibition of paintings, etchings, dry points and lithographs on December 1, to continue through Friday, December 19. After Christmas a number of other fine exhibitions will be exposed on the walls of the gallery.

An innovation in the art department this year is arousing great interest among students and instructors. Once a week they get together (seventy-five strong) and have an outside speaker. The talks that are given cover a variety of subjects, and some of them have been in the nature of demonstrations. Benjamin Chambers Brown recently gave a "demonstration talk" on etching and lithography. Edward Henry Weston talked on art in photography. M. Minassian brought out many wonderful oriental rugs to illustrate his talk. Sam Harris talked on posters and other lines of commercial work, methods of reproduction, etc. An exhibition of Mr. Harris's posters has just been closed.

Similar talks have also been promised by interior decorators, architects and craft workers—and all these people give their time, free of cost, for the cause, a gift which is highly appreciated by the art students and workers at the Normal.

Art Notes.

William V. Cahill's figure study, "Thoughts by the Sea," which took first prize at the fall exhibition of the California Art Club, has been purchased for the permanent collection at Exposition Park. An interesting circumstance in connection with this fine canvas is that the model who posed for it was Miss Katherine Kavanaugh, a fellow-artist, to whom Mr. Cahill was married at Laguna Beach on November 1.

Ella Shepard Bush of Sierra Madre is a regular exhibitor at the important eastern shows. Two of her recent miniatures, "Michal in Paracelaur" and "Miss Prosch," are now exposed in the exhibition of the Pennsylvania Society of Miniature Painters, in Philadelphia. Miss Bush is a strong and serious painter. Those of us who saw "Michal" a year ago, when it was shown in the California Art Club exhibit have not forgotten the charming study of a lady of the fifteenth century in a costume arranged after Holbein prints.

One of the most interesting portrait shows of the year is that which John Hubbard Rich is holding at the Hollywood Woman's Club through the month of November. Mr. Rich is the painter par excellence of the modern American young woman, and there are many charming "specimens" in the present show, though the artist does not quite neglect the modern American man. Further account of this notable exhibition will appear next week.

An exhibition of twenty-four little water-color sketches and studies made in and near Santa Fe, N. M., is now being held by Howell G. Brown at Exposition Park, in the print-room. Mr. Brown wields a light and facile brush, giving us passing impressions that have charm—impressions of "San Miguel Church," "A Street in Acoma," "Fiesta Day, Santa Clara Pueblo," "Mexican Garden," "Pinon Dance," "Sunny Santa Fe," "The Road to Albuquerque," and so on.

The American Art Annual, telling us who's who in art in the year of grace 1919, will soon be ready for publication. It is published by the American Federation of Arts, in Washington, D. C., and its price is $5. The subjects treated are the "Year in Art," "War Memorials," "Who's Who in Art," "Art Museums and Societies Throughout the United States," "Art Schools in the United States," "Obituaries of American Artists, 1918-1919," "Paintings Sold at Auction," "Who's Who Among Art Dealers." It will be seen that the American Art Annual serves a hundred needs.

An exhibition of seventy-seven gum prints by H. Ravell is held through the month of November at Exposition Park. The prints are pictorially very fine, showing that Mr. Ravell is an artist of rare discrimination in his choice of subjects. The most of the prints have been taken in Mexico, though there are a number from other places—Pebble Beach, Arch Beach, Laguna Beach, etc.

A fascinating collection of old miniatures, the property of Mrs. Louis Hovey Sharp of Pasadena, is on exhibition in the print-room at Exposition Park. This collection was made by Mrs. Sharp's father, an ardent and discriminating lover of art, and contains many notable examples. It is worth long and careful study.

"SWEET POTATO DAY."

Texas Wants to Boom its Crop of Hundred Million Bushels.

As a means of stimulating demand for sweet potatoes and a consequent movement of the great crop of over 100 million bushels produced by the farmers in Texas, why not set aside a "Sweet Potato Day" in this State and observe it after the manner in which "Apple Day" is observed each year?

Texas produces scarcely any apples, but Texas cities observe "Apple Day" each fall, at the behest of the growers in the other States and local dealers, and in addition to being a sort of tribute to the king of American fruits, it at the same time arouses interest in apples and results in increased business for fruit dealers and growers.

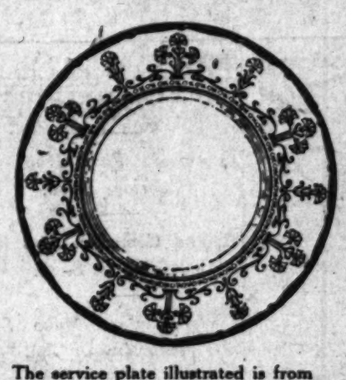
If such a plan has been found good for apples, it ought to do as much in Texas for sweet potatoes, our own crop. By designating a day upon which every family in Texas would be asked to eat sweet potatoes, it would create immediate demand for this food product now so plentiful, and arouse new interest in it that would be felt for some time to come.

The marketing division of the State Department of Agriculture is negotiating with dealers in various Texas cities seeking their co-operation in making special effort to move sweet potatoes, in order that a large part of the crop the farmers have raised this year may not be lost for lack of adequate market.—[Houston Post.

Most Novel Strike.

One of the novel strikes on record was that of smugglers which occurred on the German-Polish frontier some years ago. Extensive smuggling operations were being carried on, principally through women who crossed into Germany two or three times a day in ragged clothing, returning in costumes of the latest fashion. From the smuggling organization the women received less than 50 cents a day, so they struck for higher wages and won.—[Indianapolis News.

Wonderful Productions in Fine China



The service plate illustrated is from "Minton." It is done in rich enamels and gold. Price $100.00 a dozen.

The service plate illustrated above has a beautiful powdered blue rim, outlined with narrow encrustation. The center decoration consists of beautifully colored birds. Each plate of the series has a different center. Price $200.00 a dozen.

For the very unusual and ultra quality in fine china it is only natural that you should look to such a house as Parmelee-Dohrmann Co. The character of patronage our house enjoys justifies us in carrying in stock much finer dinnerware than you could consistently expect the average store to stock. The significance of the dinnerware display is emphasized by the approach of Thanksgiving and the many festive occasions of the entertaining season.

Among the especially interesting open stock patterns shown in the finer wares are:

The "Exeter" Service for 12 People $

A very rich gold encrustation of quaint design from the celebrated "Minton" potteries.

The "Bordier" Service for 12 People $

Another "Minton" masterpiece. Quaint old-fashioned flowers in shades of pink, blue and green in exquisite colors.

"Coalport" China

From this famous old pottery we have in addition to service plates and other fancy items the familiar "Indian Tree" pattern, the history of which dates back to the year 1750. The production of this pattern in "Coalport" china is very wonderful. It is done in enamels and gold.

Unusual Service Plates
Entree and Salad Plates

Many very beautiful patterns in service, entree and salad plates are shown from such famous potteries as the "Royal Doulton," "Royal Worcester," "Wedgewood," "Caulden," "Minton" and "Limoges."

The prices range from $25.00 to $300.00 the dozen.

Silk Hose Sale.

They are really less in price; and silk hose are more than ever gifty. The colors are most modern, too—all the brown tones, camel, cordovan, chocolate, biscuit—and the prices are unbelievably small for silk stockings since the war!

Flat Ivory.

Under whatsoever name, the various forms of ivory-looking toilet wares are "out for the Christmas trade." They are getting it, too. There are as many novelties in shape and in decoration, this season, as there are in family names for this always acceptable ware. How the old elephants who used to think they had exclusive rights at making ivory, would trunk around and roar, if they could see the many imitations of their products which are now to be had! But, the modern ivorying way brings the pretty stuff within reach of many, while the old-time tusk route made it possible for but the few to possess articles of ivory.

Going Dolling.

"Shop early" applies to buying dolls. Especially if you intend to dress them. And anyhow, dolls have been off the market so long, that we've been "off 'em" and are more than ever eager to buy; so the supply is likely to run short. And how pretty they are this season! There are character dolls, with most expressive faces; and sailor dolls, so sassy; and boy dolls—just boys—and lady dolls, and just dolls. What so beloved by little girls, as dolls? Have you discovered anything to replace them?

Under Fashion's Guidance.

The buttoned sweater is again popular.

A pretty hat of taupe velvet has both crown and brim shirred.

Very high collars are seen on some of the smartest dresses.

Large fist buttons ornament the heavy frock and the coat suit.

Hand-embroidered filet mesh is promised among the new laces.

Little satin vestees are embroidered with colored wool and silk.

Huge bows, set aslant have been adopted by fashionable millinery.

Straight tube-like coats of knee length are in request on suits.

Black taffeta with black moire ribbon is an odd dress combination.

Shirring in the back at the waist is a new feature of the separate skirt.

Panels shorter or longer than the rest of the coat are a fashion feature.

Small collars, of hand embroidery are charming neck finishes.

Lynx fur is shown on velvet wraps and in its natural color is delightful.

A smart dancing frock used chiffon as a foundation and net as an overdress.

Jade and blue, mikado red and taupe, mahogany and bronze are favored color combinations.

Tiny sport hats are sometimes made of the same material as the sport blouses they are worn with.

The changes in the dress silhouette are very few, and the straight-line type holds its own exceedingly well.

Beaded georgette is a safe choice for an afternoon dress.

Pagoda sleeves are among the charming ones.

Afternoon frocks of velvet are apt to have short sleeves.

TREE A MEMORIAL.

MANISTEE, MICH. Oct. 30.—On an old cidar log in the village of Copemish is mute evidence of an Indian brave's great love for his squaw.

Years ago Albert T. Sanders and his two brothers went hunting in the Upper Peninsula and camped on Ford River. They met an Indian called John, then 104 years old, but active as a schoolboy. John told the following story:

"There was a young brave who took his squaw from Marquette and came to Ford River to trap. He was very much in love. He was a good paddler, but he could not keep his eyes off his squaw. The canoe rushed into some brush near shore and capsized.

"The brave escaped, but the squaw did not come up. The young brave wouldn't go away. Day after day all summer and fall he searched. The river never gave up the body.

"In dispair one day he gave up hope and on a large cedar tree near the river he carved a picture of her as a memorial. It was his last tribute. Then he left this region and never returned."

The Sanders brothers were impressed with the legend and started to hunt for the carving. That was eighteen years ago. Their first search was fruitless. But they did not give it up. Fourteen years later they again took up the search. Again they failed to locate the carved image. They began to doubt the story of Indian John.

Two years passed and again the Sanders brothers went North to hunt and trap. One day while waiting for deer near Ford River they saw the ceder tree for which they had searched. It still bore the carving, weather-beaten, but clear. Albert Sanders chopped it out and had it framed, and it is now in his home in Copemish.—[Detroit News.

THE SHANTUNG OF CONFUCIUS.

In the little town of Chufu in the Shantung on the spot where Confucius lived and taught his disciples, in the happy outdoor fashion of other ancient philosophers, under a plum tree, stands his temple, a great pink and garnet pavilion bordered with blue and green and violet and gold, its yellow roofs, the yellow sacred to Confucius and royalty, resting on the handsomest dragon carved pillars in the empire and marched along by processions of tiny animals whose symbolism only a sinologue could explain, but whose grotesque charm to Western eyes goes Gothic one better. It stands on a great terrace bordered by tripe balustrades carved into vases of marble flowers, ascending by triple staircases emblazoned with phoenixes and more dragons, and before it stretches a vast courtyard planted with cedars and enclosed by pink walls. Pink walls, old cedars, yellow roofs! These always to Confucius. For this temple is only the pattern of Confusion temples throughout all China in which incense has been burned to the Sage by the seventy-three generations.—[The New Republic.

Good News for Every Woman Who Likes to Dress Well on Little Money

Going, Going! Going!! Going!!!
Four Separate Lots of Suits at Reduced Prices

—Tomorrow will be a money-saving day for all who buy suits at the New York Store.
—We have made sweeping reductions on the prices of all these suits, not because they are actually worth one cent less today than they were when they issued from the manufacturer a month or two months ago, but because sizes and assortments are decidedly broken.
—The woman who buys a suit from us tomorrow will save herself at least $10, $20, $30 or more and get the best there is.
—That is a happy thought, but doubly so when it is linked with our guarantee that fabrics and styles are fully representative of the Season's best, and that many of these suits arrived from New York only two weeks ago.

1 200 Suits Reduced to $34.75, $38.75, $49.75, $54.75, $59.75
Former Prices $45, $55, $65, and $69.75

—Every suit in this sale is taken direct from the New York Store stocks—to clean up the odds and ends of a very busy October and early November trade.
—Materials are fine tricotines, velours, gabardines, Poiret twills, silvertones, tinseltones, serges and mixtures. All the best styles are represented—ripple jackets, Russian blouses, long jackets—both fur-trimmed and plain.
—Naturally the sizes and assortments are incomplete, but there are as many as any woman would wish to choose from. Plenty of sizes, even extra sizes, for small women and large.

2 Fur Trimmed Suits Greatly Reduced

—Very material reductions have been made in a number of our most popular fur trimmed models, which were designed and tailored expressly for women of very exacting tastes.
—The following reductions speak for themselves:
$110 and $125 Suits—$89.75.
$98.50 Suits—$75. $75 Suits—$64.75.
$85 Suits—$69.75. $59.75 and $65 Suits—$49.75.
—As a Christmas gift, either to herself or to a dear friend, any one of these suits would certainly earn raptures.
—Materials are of the very best—duvet de laine, peach bloom, velouise, duvetyn, cordovan, velour de laine. The furs are all genuine.

3 Peach Bloom Suits Greatly Reduced

—Women whose social duties make it imperative that they dress fashionably will be strongly appealed to by these finer grades of novelty and tailored suits.
—We particularly wish to emphasize the following sweeping reductions:
$147.50 Suits—to $110.
$125 to $139.75 Suits—to $98.75.
$110 Suits—to $89.75.
All Peach Bloom Suits Over $150 Are Now One-Third Off.
—These suits are not fur trimmed; they don't need any embellishment except their own pretty buttons and novelty pockets.
—Colors, turquoise, brique, beaver, Madura brown, rose taupe, taupe, navy and French blue.—A great run of sizes.

4 Exclusive Suits Reduced ⅓
Superb, one-of-a-kind Styles.
Originally Priced $135 to $450

—Never were finer values than these offered to the fashionable woman of Los Angeles.
—It is with some reluctance that we let them go at this price—but room we must have for our new stocks.
—They are one-of-a-kind, fur-trimmed novelty suits, trimmed with squirrel, nutria, beaver, Hudson seal, wolf and mink—actually offered at less than wholesale.
—Materials are of Duvet de Laine, peach bloom, Cashmirtyne, Velousie, Duvetyne, Cordovan, Velour de Laine.

The Model Hats are ⅓ Off
—Another reason for coming to the New York Store tomorrow.
—These hats were the inspiration for the millinery department all through October. This inspiration is worth the loss we are taking in these reductions.
—Large and small hats, with trimmings of ostrich, cassoway and burnt goose.

What Does Your Mirror Say About Your Hair?
—Does it suggest a little added fullness? If you are convinced that it does, the New York Store's special transformations in gray at $16.50, in brown and black at $10.50, will save you money.
—Likewise, the brown and blonde switches at $10.50 and the gray switches at $9.25.

A Sudden Drop in the Prices of Tricolette Dresses
Now $39.75, $45 and $55.00
—In both navy and brown. Styles are very practical and very pretty. They can be worn very nicely without a coat.

Interesting Dress News
—Splendid values in serge dresses, $29.75, $35 and $39.75.
—Satin dresses for young women and small women—$29.75, $35 and $39.7
—Satin and crepe meteor dresses at $45, $49.75, $55, $59.75 and $69.75.
—Georgette and satin dresses—$52.50, $59.75, $65 and $75.
—Poiret twill dresses—$75 to $110.
—Distingushed looking dresses of duvetyn—$89.75, $110, $129.50 and up.

Of Course the Bees are Thickest Where the Honey's Sweetest—You Should See the Busy-ness Around the Coats on the Third Floor. Some of the Better Coats are Reduced to $43.75, $49.75, $54.75, $59.75, $65 and $75

SOCIETY.

BY VIRGINIA WOODS.

Admiral Rodman and His Staff.

The great event of the week and one of the largest, with the exception of the Victory ball last Tuesday, was the dance on board the U.S.S. Pueblo given last evening by Admiral Rodman, his staff, the captain and the officers of the ship. Several hundred invitations were issued and there were many dinner parties preceding the dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Hancock Banning entertained a house party at their home at Wilmington, and also entertained their guests at the dance. Vice Consul Yoshigawang gave a dinner party for forty guests on board the U.S.S. Idaho, and later the party went aboard the New Mexico for the dance.

Among all the prominent society folk who were there. Among these were Gov. Stephens, Mrs. Joseph T. Zane, Mrs. Sidney L. Mayer and Mrs. E. Avery Rockwell, Mrs. Marshall Welborn, Mrs. C. C. Wiles, Miss Harvie Walker, Miss Ribera Wallis, Miss Doris Dillon, Miss Eleanor Johnson, Miss Helen Woods, Mr. Edward Doran and Dr. John Rose Idea, the surgeon of the Pacific fleet, and Mrs. Idea, Col. and Mrs. Charles Rivers Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brown Thornburgh, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dorothy Owens, Miss Katherine Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Hellman, Mr. and Mrs. F. Bullard, Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wakefield Cadman, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncy Shackelford Twining, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fiske, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Grant Fisher, Mrs. Jane Soutter Porter, Mrs. Granville MacGowan, Mrs. Stanley MacGowan, Mrs. Marion Hellman, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Janie Stimson, Mrs. George H. Cochran, Mrs. William H. Davis, Mrs. Charles H. Sharp, Mrs. J. E. Ward and the honorees.

A garniture of roses and small flowers in the rose shades adorned the table—a long, low basket being in the center, and two smaller and higher ones at either end, with candlesticks burning rose shaded candles breaking the diagonal line.

Yesterday Mrs. Thomas had forty guests at a bridge tea for Miss Hayward and Mrs. Thomas, and had to assist her Mrs. Alice London, Mrs William H. Meade, Mrs. Charles Swayne and Mrs. J. E. Ward. Chrysanthemums in rose shades with yellow and white were used to adorn the house.

By Mrs. Moore.

Mrs. Hanson Moore of Western avenue is to entertain a company of twenty-eight at luncheon on Tuesday at the California Club in honor of Miss Julia Hayward, fiancee of Charles Thomas.

Marriage Plans.

Society is keenly interested in the wedding of Miss Amy Busch and Mr Van Buren Jarvis which is to take place on Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at St. John's Church.

Miss Busch is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hamilton Busch of Portland place, who are to give a large reception, supper and dance at the California Club following the ceremony.

Miss Busch will have Mrs. Wells Morris (Anita Thomas) as her matron of honor, she having been one of Mrs. Morris's bridesmaids. The bridesmaids are to be Misses Louise Hunt, Rachel Ward, Louise Forve of Los Angeles and Miss Dolly Madison Payne of San Francisco. The ushers are to be Nash Curtan of San Francisco, Preston Hotchkis, Wells Morris, Lloyd P. Porter, Hays Busch and Richard Griffith.

Wendall Kuhn will come from Philadelphia to act as best man, in place of Mr. Jarvis's brother, George P. Jarvis, who is still in the navy and unable to come for the wedding.

The ceremony will be performed by Dr. George H. Davidson, vicar of St. John's. Miss Busch, is one of the most prominent girls in Los Angeles and San Francisco social circles and since her engagement a year ago, she has been much entertained. Many postnuptial affairs no doubt are in store for the couple.

Returns to Mexico.

A coterie of Los Angeles society folk have given a warm welcome to a distinguished visitor, Capt. I. H. Rozvar of Mexico City. His family are among the oldest importers and exporters of that city and part of their palace, including the chapel, was built by Cortez and is entirely furnished in antique furniture and hangings. He is a godson of President Diaz and his father and President McKinley were bosom friends. Capt. Rozvar was educated at Pennsylvania Military Academy where he got his commission in the United States Army eight years ago. He served abroad in the American army during the war and was twice wounded—so seriously that he cannot ride and as he was in the cavalry he has had to quit the army.

While here he was a guest at several dinner and supper parties given by Mr. Edward Doran Ulrich and last evening attended the ball on board the New Mexico given by Admiral Rodman, his staff and the officers of the ship.

By Mr. and Mrs. Pauly.

Last evening at the Los Angeles Country Club, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pauly were hosts at an elaborately appointed dinner-dance, with Maj. and Mrs. Robert Wankowski as guests of honor.

Maj. Wankowski was stationed at an eastern camp near Boston at the beginning of the war and he and Mrs. Wankowski have been home but a short while. Their friends are giving them a hearty welcome.

Plates were set for Mr. and Mrs. James P. Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. John Maurer, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Coffin, Mr. and Mrs. William Meade, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Hutchinson, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Hollingsworth, Miss Florence Somers, Mr. George Birkel, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Spence, Mrs. Maude Baldwin, Carroll Gates, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kinney, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Waters, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Sterry, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Doran, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Rivers, Dr. and Mrs. J. Bancroft, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Cusner, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Kemp, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Paul, Mrs. William Arniel, and Mr. C. Dickinson.

High Honor.

Friends in Los Angeles and Pasadena will hear with much pleasure of the high honor just conferred upon Lieut. Ansel Griggs Wineman of Grand Forks, N. D., a nephew of Mr. Mode Wineman of Pasadena whom he has often visited.

Lieut. Wineman has been promoted to be assistant department Judge-Advocate of the United States Army of the Southeastern Department with headquarters at Charleston, S. C. This is quite a boost as he is not yet 25 years of age. Lieut Wineman was quite a social lion while here last winter on his way from Manila to France.

Mr. Mode Wineman, with his friend Mr. H. E. Bidwell, has recently made a picture study of the desert in California and Arizona, and upon his return had the pleasure of entertaining Lieut. Richard Folsom Cleveland, son of the late President Cleveland.

Here from New York.

Mr. Henry Spiller, famous organist, is visiting his wife and son, Henry Spiller, Jr., at his home, 239 West Adams street. Mr. and Mrs. Spiller, formerly of England, are now residents of Los Angeles, having recently moved here from New York.

During Mr. Spiller's stay, he and Mrs. Spiller will be at home at a series of small afternoon teas, beginning Sunday afternoon.

For Mrs. Zane.

Mrs. Randolph T. Zane was honor guest at a dinner party, at which Mr. R. D. MacLean was host. Others there were Mrs. Grace Zane, George Cole, Mrs. Samuel Brown Thomas and Baron de Bordbeau.

On Tuesday evening Mr. MacLean was host at a dinner, given in honor of Mr. Hardee Kirkland of New York. There were eight guests who were afterwards assembled at the California Theater to see Geraldine Farrar.

By Mr. and Mrs. King.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil King of Boston entertained at dinner on Wednesday for Miss Faith Chevallier, who was a house guest last week of Mrs. Edward J. Qualty. Mrs. King and Miss Chevallier have been lifelong friends, and Mr. King presented her with an autographed copy of his writings. Mr and Mrs. King left yesterday for their home, which adjoins the old Longfellow homestead.

For Mrs. Reed.

Mrs. Charles H. Thompson, of 199 Fremont place, is to assemble a company at dinner at the Athletic Club on Tuesday evening, which is to mark the club's formal opening for the season. The affair is planned as a courtesy to Mrs. James A. Reed, wife of United States Senator Reed of Washington. Plates are to be set for Mrs. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. MacDonald, Mr. and Mrs. James Shurtz, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Keeler, Mr. and Mrs. William Jerome Toomey, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bishop and Mr. and Mrs. Seeley W. Mudd.

Small flowers in pinks and blues and lavenders are to be arranged in a basket in French fashion as a centerpiece. Mrs. Thompson has recently returned from a visit at the Hotel Belvedere, Santa Barbara.

Unique Stanford Celebration.

Miss Winifred Millspaugh, of 8424 North Rossel avenue, Hollywood, is to be hostess, next Saturday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, at a women's Stanford football party and supper for seventy-five guests. An invitation is extended to all Stanford women. There is to be a direct wire to inform them of the progress of the football game between Stanford and California. There will be rooting and everything arranged, just as if the party was watching the game. At the conclusion of the game a supper is to be served, and later there will be a musical programme. Miss Millspaugh is to be assisted by Misses Ella McDonald, Helen Bordwell, Grace Seward, Carrol Smith and Lucile Curtis.

Bridal Couple Here.

An interesting bridal couple spending their honeymoon here are Lieut. and Mrs. Telford Woolsey, who were secretly married in San Diego on Thursday, informing their parents by telegraph after arriving in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Woolsey was Miss Rita Sylvia Lane, one of the most beautiful and most prominent girls in Coronado and San Diego society. Her father, the late William Lane, was one of the old residents of that section of the State, owning vast interests around Chula Vista, and down by the border near Tia Juana.

Camera Glimpses of Society Folk.

Mrs. Lewis was caught by the camera with her famous wolfhound. She and Mr. Lewis are leaving December 1 for a six weeks' visit in New York. Senor and Senora Raoul Dominguez, newlyweds, posed at a large reception given in San Diego by Gov. Esteban Cantu of Lower California, who gave the bride away at her wedding. She was Senorita Conchita Salazar, one of the richest heiresses of Mexico. Senor Dominguez is Mexican Consul at San Diego. Mrs. Shafer is a charming hostess from Indianapolis who, with her husband and babies, Peggy and Suzanne, is living at 316 South Van Ness avenue. Miss Kellogg entertained at dinner, Tuesday evening, assembling her guests later at the officers' ball at the Alexandria.

SOCIETY.

The bride belongs on both her mother's and father's side to two of the oldest Spanish families in the State.

Lieut. Woolsey has been in the air service, and is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Mark Woolsey of San Francisco. He was discharged November 1. A big wedding and handsome trousseau had been planned for the bride, but she and the young aviator decided on simpler plans. They are both well known here, and several affairs are to be given for them.

By Mrs. Ballagh.

Mrs. James Henry Ballagh is to entertain at tea at the Hotel Alexandria, on November 15, in honor of Mrs. Avery Dudley of Ann Arbor, Mich., who has returned for the winter and has taken a house at Third and Westmoreland streets. Other guests will include Mrs. Walter Heustes, Mrs. John L. Shepherd, Mrs. William Jerome Toomey and Mrs. Margaret Hamm.

House Warming.

Mrs. Margaret E. Jenkins opened her handsome home at 2621 South Van Buren place on Saturday evening at a supper dancing party and musicale that was in the nature of a house warming. This home, during the winter, is to be the scene of a series of bridge and dancing parties.

The house was decorated in potted plants, chrysanthemums, roses and carnations. The table was covered with a Cluny cloth and high baskets of yellow satin held bunches of chrysanthemums and corn flowers.

Among the dancers were: Messrs. and Mmes. H. N. Mabery, Theodore B. Madra, George H. Rector, James H. Heward, William H. Cockins, Daniel B. Cavanagh, Clarence B. Kerr, Charles D. Hunt, Paul H. Ehlers, Charles Larits, Miss Eunice Tullock, Dr. W. H. Hodson, Miss Mary H. Drew, Mrs. Maude D. Foster, Oscar Maurer, George Rose Perkins, Col. William H. Cochran, Henry Edward Earle, Miss M. Louise Blakely, Jack Oberll, J. Calvin Brown, Miss Elizabeth Solomon, Mr. I. Solomon, Miss Clara R. Miller, Frank Heisler and J. H. Boyer.

Marriage Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kemp, of 802 Twenty-eighth street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Georgia Evelyn Hastings, to Mr. Frank W. Reed. The wedding took place November 6 at the First Congregational Church, and was performed by Dr. Carl S. Patton.

Wednesday Tea Parties.

A pretty setting for a number of parties is to be provided on Wednesday by the first of a series of musical teas given by the Los Angeles Chapter, U.D.C., at the Blue Triangle tea room, in the Brack Shops.

Mrs. Rolland Paul is to entertain a company of twenty-four in honor of Mrs. Robert Wankowski and Mrs. Erasmus Wilson is also to have a company of twenty-four in honor of her house guest, Mr. Charles Clarke of India. Mrs. William J. Chichester is to have six at tea. Mrs. Grantland Seaton Long will have a table and so will Mrs. Fred C. Hartmann, Mrs. Eugene A. Hawkins and Mrs. Samuel Carey Dunlap.

Double Birthday Celebration.

In celebration of the birthdays of Rev. G. D. Cheney and his wife, aged 76 and 74, respectively, members of the Berean Class of the First Methodist Church gave them a very enjoyable surprise party. The party was arranged by P. P. Painter, president of the class, who assembled the guests at the Cheney home at 6067 Hayes avenue.

By Mrs. Vickers.

Mrs. Joseph Vickers is planning a dancing party for the near future in honor of visitors from the East.

Mr. and Mrs. McCullah.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Willis McCullah are receiving cards announcing that after December 1 they will be at home at 3124 Carolina street, at the harbor. Before her recent marriage Mrs. McCullah was Miss Gunbild H. Teigan. The marriage took place November 1 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Johnson, of 2059 West Twentieth place, Rev. A. G. Hoff officiating.

Mrs. Bowden.

Mrs. Rufus V. Bowden, who has been active in club work, Red Cross and Liberty Loan work in Los Angeles the past two years, is now engaged in Red Cross work in Washington, D. C., and has been working with Chairman T. B. Sweeney, bringing to a successful conclusion the third Red Cross drive there. Mrs. Bowden is residing at the Wardman Park Hotel in Washington, with her mother, for the winter, but expects to return to Los Angeles in the spring.

By Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth.

Mr. and Mrs. William I. Hollingsworth are to give a dinner party the first of the week in honor of Charles Clarke of India, a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Erasmus Wilson.

For Miss Hansen.

Miss Marie Hansen was honor guest Saturday evening at a dinner-party at which Mrs. Frank Curran was hostess, being assisted by her daughter, Miss Frances M. Curran. After dinner there was a linen shower for the honoree who is soon to become the bride of Clarence Taunt. The guests were Misses Margaret Panicci, Rose Panicci, Irene Bonsall, Louise Bessolo, Esther Curran, Florence Olson, Mabel Hansen, Hazel Mason, Edna Donnelly, O. K. Lee, Catherine Curran, Mmes. Frank Mason, E. J. Donnely, Harry McDonald, Ray Beaton, James Werkman, H. P. Hansen and E. W. Box.

Mrs. Hogan Home.

Friends of Mrs. Garret Lansing Hogan of West Adams street will be glad to learn that she is home once more after a five months' absence in Montana. Her young daughter, Miss Amelia Hogan, is in New York at a fashionable school and Mrs. Hogan plans to spend the Christmas holidays with her.

Back from East.

After spending two years in the East, Miss Beatrice Stone has returned to Los Angeles with her mother, Dr. Clara Stone. While away Miss Stone attended Columbia University. She is now a student at the University of Southern California.

By Miss Andres.

Miss Adele Andres was hostess at a dancing party that was a jolly affair. She was assisted by Misses Elizabeth Hilles and Nancy Del-

Fall's New Coats, Suits, Dresses, 29.50

—If you have ever attended an apparel event in Hamburger's Downstairs Store, you'll need no further introduction to Monday's 29.50 event!

—Suffice it to say that one must search far indeed for values that surpass these. There's an air of style about each coat, suit or dress—a beauty of fabric and gracefulness of line that are hard to resist.

—You'll be amazed at the completeness of assortment—for every material, and trimming of the season represented in some desirable form!

—There are warmly-lined coats with snug, up-turned collars, and others of lighter weight for sunny days; there are trig tailored suits and dresses of serge for utility wear; there are charming frocks of silk to delight one with their soft shimmering texture. All here—Monday—at 29.50!

Smartly Styled Coats, 29.50

—Velours, kerseys, diagonal cloth and novelty coatings appear in many attractive styles, a number of them plush-trimmed. Choose from belted and full-flare models—lined, semi-lined and some with no lining at all! Autumn shades of brown, green, blue, as well as serviceable mixtures.

Women's, Misses' Suits, 29.50

—Plain tailored suits and the dressier belted models—a splendid assortment of the wanted shades, in sizes 16 to 44. You'll find here wool poplins, serges, diagonal weaves and mannish mixtures, most of them with satin linings in plain or fancy effects. Unmatchable values—at 29.50.

(Hamburger's—Downstairs Store—Monday)

Frocks of Silk or Wool, 29.50

—Tricotines and serges for the woolens—soft, heavy satins and crepe de chines for the silks. Straight-line dresses, tunic styles in the wanted Autumn colors, with plenty of the staple navy and black. A touch of silk embroidery, braiding, or a few fancy buttons trim them smartly effectively.

Look! Woolen Poplin

In 50 to 54 inch width, 1.39

—A great favorite for Autumn suits and dresses—this medium-weight quality comes in all wanted colors, including black, navy, brown, gray and green. Note the width—the price is only 1.39 yard!

Black Costume Velvet, 2.25

—Who can resist this value? Rich, deep-piled velvet in the 29-inch width—black, of course, for that is Autumn's favorite velvet shade. A special value at 2.25 yard.

—Monday's boots at 3.39 have vamps of cocoa brown kid with cloth tops to match; laced models, with Spanish Cuban or military heels. All sizes, D width.

(Hamburger's—Downstairs Store—Monday)

Popular Veiling, 35c yd.

—A choice selection of the favorite meshes, in a wide variety of pretty designs. Many colors—it will pay you to buy one to match each costume—Monday—at 35c yard!

New Drape Veils, 49c

—500 of them for Monday—all ready to wear! Made of excellent veiling, with bordered edges; choice of allover designs or chenille dots. All wanted colors.

Women's Envelope Purses, 98c

—Fine quality purses, many of them genuine leather; others are imitations of patent leather. Back-strap or top-handle styles—98c each.

Chamoisette Gloves, 85c

—The most popular of all washable gloves—for they combine durability with good looks! A splendid range of women's sizes—almost any color you may wish!

(Hamburger's—Downstairs Store—Monday)

A Millinery Event, 4.98

—Trimmed hats, mind you—every one of them selected from a higher-priced line to make this Monday feature-sale a notable one!

—Close-fitting turbans, draped styles, odd flare brims, sailors and tam effects—approved shapes of the season, developed of excellent silk velvet.

—Trimmings are as varied as they are new and correct—flowers, fancies, bands of ostrich, bright-hued ribbons to add a touch of color.

—Misses' hats, too, at this little price; only 4.98, Monday—in the Downstairs Store!

(Hamburger's—Downstairs Store—Monday)

By Mrs. Brennan.

Mrs. Lucie Brennan entertained last Sunday night, at her home in La Prada Park, with a supper and musical in honor of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. McMurray, the latter formerly Miss Erna Lacy. Several numbers were contributed by Miss Anna Sweeney, of Washington, D. C., violinists, Miss Josephine Prochaska, 'cellist, Mrs. Charles Witzel, saxophonist, and Mr. Allan Brown at the piano. Mrs. Brown sang several selections. Mrs. McMurray, Miss Ruth Lacy, Mrs. Bravender and Mr. Nigel de Brueller were heard. Assisting the hostess were Mrs. James and Miss Allingham.

Reception at Sans Souci Castle.

Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Guido Castles entertained a large and distinguished gathering at Castle Sans Souci on Sunday evening, when they gave their first salon reception of the season. Countess Irma Miraflori gave a selection from her grand opera repertoire, accompanied by Mr. William Garroway; Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond sang three delightful original compositions, to her own accompaniment, and Mrs. J. T. Tayler gave interesting contralto numbers, assisted at the piano by Mrs. Blanche King Owen. The vocal programme was further enriched by the excellent songs of Mrs. Emma Porter Makineon and Mr. Raymond Harmon. The latter sang two songs by Mr. Charles T. Ferry, accompanied by the composer. Mr. Ferry played two piano pieces of his own composition, Mr. Carl Pons played the Bach Busoni chaconne and "Chinese Bells," by Revell. The musical entertainment was augmented by an amusing discourse entitled, "An Analysis of the Sense of Humor," by Mr. Frank Vincent Waddy.

Among the invited guests were Rev. Joseph Tonello, formerly attache to the Holy Roman See, under Pope Leo XIII, Prince and Princess Troubetzkey, Countess Irma Miraflori, Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick J. T. Lasky, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eyton, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Behymer, Mrs. Alexander Schassert and Mrs. Clyde J. Eastman. Another distinguished visitor was Mr. W. J. McCloskey, from New York, the well-known portrait painter, exhibitor in the Paris Salon and the Royal Academy of London. There were over 400 guests present.

The reception was extended to include an after-theater party, attended by Miss Evelyn Varden, Miss Marie Curtis, Miss Ruth Renick, Mr. Edward Everett Horton and Mr. Franklin Panghorn, all of the Majestic Theater.

For Mrs. Whitaker.

Mrs. Herman Whitaker, widow of the famous novelist and war correspondent, who is spending the winter here, was honor guest at a small luncheon yesterday at which Mrs. Eva Hamilton Young was hostess.

By Mr. and Mrs. Pierson.

Miss Viroque Baker of Hollywood was honor guest at a beautifully-appointed dinner party at which Mr. and Mrs. Leo Pierson of 3048 West Twelfth street entertained Saturday evening. Miss Baker is just home from New York, where she studied art with Clarence White.

For Easterners.

Mrs. Theodore D. Becker of Detroit, Mich., who has been residing at the Alvarado Apartments the last year, was hostess at a pretty luncheon at the Mary Louise tea room for a group of eastern friends. They were Mrs. Maxo Oaken and Miss Carolyne Oaken of Omaha, Neb.; Mrs. Delmar Ross of Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. Moe Hefter and her mother, Mrs. L. Zoelner, of Chicago; Mrs. Martin Gump of Johnson City, Tenn., and Mrs. Julian Cerf.

Masquerade Dance.

Members of the Theta Sigma Phi Sorority gave a masquerade dance at the home of Miss Esther Elmers. The house was attractively decorated in many palms, with jack-o'-lanterns and serpentine. The guests were Misses Mildred Manwaring, Molly Peck, Helen Gore, Madge Pettit, Leota Smith, Helen Leaham, Emily Mumford, Ethal Blackburn, Vera Miner, Violet Crawford, Adrinne Enright, Bernie Elmers, Florence Pessell, Alfreda Dietrichsen, Mrs. L. Personals.

Miss Zillah Withrow has returned from San Diego after a four weeks' stay, entertaining the men in the camps and on the ships with humorous readings, whistling and descriptive dancing.

Mrs. C. C. Toms has returned from Chicago and other cities of the East; she left September 1.

Mrs. Fred Fleishman, wife of a well-known business man of Tucson, Ariz., is registered at the Hotel Van Nuys. She is a daughter of Mrs. Louisa Dreyfus of 1738 West Twenty-fifth street.

Mrs. Harry B. McCoy and daughter, Miss Elmyra, of Bozeman, Mont., are spending the winter here at the Gates Hotel. Miss McCoy is attending Marlborough School.

Mrs. Frank H. Townsend of Cleveland is here for the winter.

OUT-OF-TOWN SOCIETY

PASADENA.

Pasadena women's clubs have inaugurated active programmes for the season. Many of the organizations are already organized for the season and are holding charming gatherings.

Miss Grace Barnes of San Rafael avenue entertained the Pasadena Browning Club at her home Thursday afternoon. "Pippa Passes" was discussed, the discussions being led by Miss Edith M. Wolfe, chairman of the programme committee. A Browning tea will be held next Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. L. Smith, 125 South Orange Grove avenue.

Many Pasadena women who are members of the Wellesley Club of Southern California will go to Los Angeles Monday to attend a meeting of the club at the home of Mrs. Walter Davis, 3215 West Sixth street.

Patriotism was the keynote of the meeting of the Shakespeare Club held on the afternoon of Armistice Day at the clubhouse.

The marriage of Miss Hazel Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Brown, 614 East Mountain street, and Christopher Wooton took place Thursday night at the home of the bride's parents. The officiating clergyman was Rev. A. E. Shattuck.

Mrs. J. C. Culver of East Locust street entertained Thursday evening in honor of Miss Dorothy Zelhart, whose marriage to Robert Gray of this city takes place soon. About twenty-five guests were present.

Mrs. Frank Milton Hunter entertained at luncheon at the Annandale Club Thursday in compliment to Gen. Aman and his daughter, Mrs. K. Ogden, who are visiting in Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Strongman of Hornesdale, Pa., have joined the winter colony at the Hotel Maryland.

Capt. and Mrs. C. D. Shephard of San Francisco are enjoying a stay in Pasadena. They are at the Maryland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Peaseley of Chicago have arrived from the East to spend the winter in Pasadena. They are at the Maryland.

Miss Lavina Arnold entertained at her home on North Marengo avenue Thursday evening in compliment to Miss Dorothy Winter, Rev. Merle N. Smith, pastor of the First Methodist Church, was the speaker at the luncheon. He spoke in commemoration of the day and of the service of American soldiers and sailors. Former State Senator G. W. Cartwright was the afternoon speaker. Mrs. J. H. Merriam was chairman of the afternoon programme.

Another dinner dance of the winter series at the Hotel Maryland was held last night, attended by many members of the hotel colony and the local smart set.

Mrs. Edwin R. Sorver and her mother, Mrs. H. A. Fitzgerald, entertained at a bridge party at the Maryland Friday afternoon in compliment to Miss Jessie McCament whose marriage to Rex E. Braley will take place soon.

A delightful dancing party was held by the Elks at their clubhouse on West Colorado street Thursday night. Next Thursday night a bridge party will be held at the club.

Mrs. Fanney E. Morrison of Boston arrived this week in her private car and has opened the Morrison home on San Rafael Heights for the winter season.

An informal week-end dance was held last night at the Altadena Country Club. Many of the club members entertained at dinner parties preceding the affair.

Many society folk attended the performances of "Fep" by local talent at the high school auditorium Friday and Saturday nights. The affair was given for the benefit of the Scripps Home for the Aged. Among those who had leading roles were Mrs. F. H. Bartlett, Mrs. Allan Stearns, Miss Charlotte Ives, Miss Corinne Booth, Miss Phyllis Shupe, Arthur Wyatt, E. F. Kohler and Jack Reber.

MANY NEW RINGS OF WONDROUS BEAUTY

Typical of the many unusual new gem diamond pieces shown by Feagans & Co. is a ring of regal splendor, which can probably not be matched today in either Europe or America.

The center diamond is cushion shape—(almost square,) and weighs nearly four carats. It is of absolute color purity and quality and is flanked on both sides by premier blue pear-shaped diamonds, the pair weighing just over three carats.

The three large gems are supplemented by numerous small diamonds set in hand-wrought platinum.

The entire ensemble is one of the most exquisite gem pieces it has ever been our privilege to show. It is typical of the character of many wonderful new gem pieces now shown in our diamond cases.

cation, honoring especially the new members of the past year, as well as the confirmation class of last Sunday. A very enjoyable programme was given during the evening, upon the conclusion of which the floors were cleared for dancing. Delicious refreshments were served by a committee, of which Mrs. Walter L. Wotkyns was chairman. There were a number of distinguished clergymen and their wives invited, among them the Rt. Rev. Joseph H. Johnson, D.D., S.T.D., bishop of Los Angeles diocese, and Mrs. Johnson, and the Rev. Harwood Huntington, Ph. D., of Los Angeles, chairman for Southern California of the nation-wide campaign of the Episcopal church.

At high noon Armistice Day there was solemnized at Calvary Presbyterian Church the marriage of Marjorie Lois Stuart, daughter of Attorney and Mrs. David A. Stuart of this city, and Robert Lewis Hiles, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hiles, now of Palmdale, but for many years prominent residents of South Pasadena. Rev. S. G. Livingston performed the ceremony in the presence of about 300 guests, amid a profusion of chrysanthemums, autumn leaves and other flowers of the season. The bride was attended by Miss Helen Hiles, sister of the groom, as maid of honor, while Miss Emily Ruth Parsons acted as bridesmaid. The groom had as best man, Edward Stuart, brother of the bride. Wallace Walden acted as usher. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the church.

Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell, 1831 Laurel street, gave an informal dinner party on Saturday evening, at which covers were laid for ten guests besides the host and hostess.

Mrs. George Alfred Miller, 1809 Ramona avenue, entertained very recently with a luncheon in compliment to Mrs. W. M. Milne, formerly of this city, but now of Oakland, who is visiting with friends here. Besides the honor guest and the hostess, there were also present to meet their former friend Mrs. R. B. Chapman and Mrs. Howard B. Kelley.

Mrs. Arthur Helman of 1947 La France avenue entertained with a luncheon on Saturday in honor of Mrs. Conde Jones, who will sail for France the latter part of the month. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will make their home in France, as he has business interests in that country.

Dr. and Mrs. Livingston entertained the Pastor's Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church with a social tea given at their home, 1107 Monterey road, on Thursday afternoon. There was a large attendance and a very enjoyable afternoon was spent.

The St. James's branch of the Woman's Auxiliary to the board of missions of the Episcopal Church met on Thursday, November 13, for its first meeting of the season at St. James's parish house. Mrs. Thaddeus Lowe, president of the organization, was in the chair. The speakers of the afternoon were Miss Ella S. Rogers of Pasadena, delegate to the recent triennial convention of the Woman's Auxiliary at Detroit, and Miss Rebekah L. Hibbard, St. James's representative on the nation-wide campaign.

ORANGE.

H. B. Robertson of North Orange street has been enjoying a visit from his brother, Sergt. Hugh Robertson, who has recently been transferred from Camp Merritt, N. Y., to San Francisco.

John Whitesides, who recently came here from Kansas, has purchased the George Sunbury residence at 172 South Cypress street. Mr. Whitesides was a friend and fellow-worker of Mr. Meadows in 1888, when they were both employed with the Wichita Daily Eagle at Wichita, Kan. Mrs. Whitesides is a sister of Dr. E. Claypool of East Maple street.

Mrs. G. N. Atwood returned the first of the week from an extended visit in the northern part of the State.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Welch of Prosser, Wash., are the guests of relatives and friends in Orange.

Miss Josephine Lewis, who left yesterday for the East, where she will be married, was given a delightful shower by the ladies of the Rebekah Lodge last Tuesday evening at the I.O.O.F. Hall. Roses, red hearts and ferns transformed the hall into a bower of beauty. The lodge presented Miss Lewis with several pieces of fine silverware. Games were played until a late hour, after which refreshments were served.

Mrs. L. G. Hitchcock and two sons have returned from a two-months' visit with her sister, Mrs. Lee Ballagh at Arroyo Grande.

Mr. and Mrs. John McCarthy of West Chapman avenue celebrated their thirty-seventh wedding anniversary last Sunday by inviting a few of their close friends to their home to enjoy a delicious chicken dinner and to spend the afternoon with them. Upon the table, a beautiful basket was fashioned of Cecile Brunner roses, which emphasized a delicate pink and white color scheme. Those present to enjoy the cordial hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy were: Mrs. Mary Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Youngs, Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Meehan, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Porter, H. C. Meehan and Henry McCarthy.

For the second time within the last month the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin H. Myers was the scene of a pretty home wedding when their daughter, Miss Sue Myers, became the bride of Homer Davis last Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock. Pleasing simplicity was the keynote of the wedding of the popular couple, the ceremony being performed by Rev. M. L. Pearson of the Presbyterian Church. The bride was charming in a beautiful tailored suit of brown with accessories to match and wearing a corsage bouquet of roses. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal couple motored to San Diego for a week's stay. Upon their return they will be at home to their many friends at the Fiss apartments on South Orange street.

POMONA.

A spareribb dinner formed the occasion for a merry gathering of young couples at the attractive mountain cabin of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd R. Clark in Live Oak Canyon last evening. The young ladies of the party went to the canyon in the afternoon and prepared the feast of spareribs and sauerkraut. The men came up after office hours with appetites fully equal to the occasion. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Grady Bennett and their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Windham of Long Beach; Dr. and Mrs. E. P. Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Driscoll, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Whitman, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. John Ruether and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd R. Clark. Following the dinner there was a jolly social time interspersed with games. The cabin was attractively decorated in natural autumn shades, being furnished by the branches from the mountain shrubbery. These were festooned about the walls and ceiling.

to be worthy the name, must be enduring in their beauty and usefulness.

The past few years have given us some tremendous object lessons, in the value of time. As a thing grows in value, the instrument used in measuring and controlling it like-wise grows in accuracy and refinement.

Foremost in Watches, is the platinum and diamond bracelet, which has a charm that appeals to the artistic temperament of every woman who appreciates beautiful jewelry.

For Men—who like pocket watches, we have them extra thin, gracefully modeled, modern in design—yet adjusted to keep accurate time.

For the Sportsman—and those who love the Out-o'-doors, THE STRAP WATCH comes into its own. In the blackness of the night, the friendly radium dial, is always "at hand"—to the Golfer, swinging across "the green" it is far more convenient than the pocket watch.

Whether the gift be to a Banker or a Farmer, Doctor, Lawyer, or Indian-Chief—or simply a plain Citizen, we have a watch to meet your particular requirements.

peared upon the scene dressed as a country lassie, with long yellow curls and gingham dress to his knees. His ample countenance was shaded by a sunbonnet as he sucked complacently on a stick of striped candy. The ladies' prize was awarded to Miss Barbara Dirking, who came dressed in an Italian costume which proved to be a decidedly attractive creation. There was a large attendance and the evening was one of the most enjoyable experienced by the lodge in some time. After the unmasking doughnuts and cider were served. There was dancing and other forms of amusement during the evening.

At an enthusiastic meeting of the Knights of Pythias Tuesday evening, arangements were made for the annual home-coming of the lodge, which is always an event of no little importance in fraternal circles of this city. The home-coming this year will be on November 22, and it is expected that it will attract a number of members and former members of the Pomona lodge now scattered in different parts of the State. R. S. Koonter was named general chairman of the committee on arrangements. Other members are James Farrell, A. V. Storer, Leonard Hargrave, E. S. Struve. A feature of the home-coming will be a big spread, and the entire celebration will take on the spirit of Thanksgiving. Aside from the arrangements for the coming event, there was a class of nineteen candidates initiated. The meeting opened with a 6:30 o'clock supper. There was an exceptionally large attendance at the beautiful lodge home.

Pomona's population was increased by seven this week, as the result of the arrival of two well-known Iowa families who have come to spend the winter and possibly locate in the Southland. In the party are Mr. and Mrs. George W. Scarborough, their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Carl Scarborough, and their little grand-daughter. They are all prominent residents of Humboldt. The other members of the party are Mr. and Mrs. John Scarborough and daughter, of Sabula, Iowa. The two men in the party are brothers. All have taken quarters in the Golden apartments. While there they expect to visit many of the places of interest throughout the Southland. Their arrival in Pomona is of special interest from the fact that O. W. Scarborough was formerly in the real estate business with A. W. Eells of 230 Randolph street when both were residents of Humboldt. The newcomers are greatly impressed with the city, and it is probable that they will locate here permanently.

WATTS.

Mrs H. T. Kendrick was hostess Monday afternoon and Mrs. T. E. Freeman Thursday evening to the members of St. Mathews Guild of the Episcopal Church in their homes, Tajauto and Electric avenues. Rev. Robert Renison of Los Angeles was guest at each gathering of church members, where music and refreshments were enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Leavitt of Portland, Me., who are here with the view of locating permanently, were callers Wednesday upon Mrs. M. Weigal, who recently returned from an eastern trip, including Elgin, Ill., and Elwood, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Charles Smith of Melvin avenue recently filled their automobile with neighborhood kiddies, dressed in Yama Yama suits and masks, who attracted considerable attention in their travels through Los Angeles and environs. Participating in the lark were Oliver, Bert and Esther Green, Herbert Otto and Edwin Johnson.

Surprising Judge and Mrs. J. R. Rorke Friday evening a group of neighborhood children invaded their home on West Diller street ready for any kind of a lark, which was indeed given them by their hosts. Included were Alma Bergstrom, Florence and Willa Diller, Mary and Martha King, Freeland and Clifford Poleson, Everett Fick, James White, Pauline and Lila Hopcraft.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stead entertained Epworth League members of the Methodist Church Saturday evening in their home, 547 East Albert street. Following a brief business session, games, music and refreshments were enjoyed by some twenty young folk.

Members of the Woman's Relief Corps were delightfully entertained last Wednesday afternoon in the new home of one of their number, Mrs. Laura Crouch, 615 Fir street.

Mrs. L. A. Miller and daughters, Misses Edith and Caroline Miller, were hostesses Saturday evening to a coterie of friends as a compliment to Mr. Miller, whose birthday anniversary was the occasion of the event. Refreshments, music and games featured the occasion, participated in by Mr. and Mrs. George Wieschendorff, Mr. and Mrs. J. O'Delle Hardage, Mr. and Mrs. W. Welsh of Santa Barbara, Mrs. Louise Gappinger, Fred and John Brugmann, Erich and William Wieschendorff, Floyd Earl, Misses Lily Saunders, Henrietta Schultz, Edith, Caroline and Fred Miller.

SEAL BEACH.

On Monday evening a surprise party was given Chief of Police and Mrs. Harry Mayer, the affair being arranged as a welcome home to Mrs. Mayer, who had just returned from a visit at Palo Alto. Those present were Mayor J. C. Ord, City Trustee and Mrs. James Graham, Mr. and Mrs. William Templeman and Miss Mary Lyons.

Miss Lois Gonzales of Venice was the guest of Mrs. William Templeman over Sunday.

HERMOSA BEACH.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Marlowe and Mr. and Mrs. W. Tingley enjoyed a motor trip down through Orange county Sunday. A picnic and hunt on the San Gabriel River was enjoyed.

Mrs. Charles E. Creller came up this week from San Diego and will make her home here for some time. Mr. Creller is engaged in business in Hermosa at present. They were former residents of this section and are well known.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Haneman have returned to Hermosa after a two months' stay in Los Angeles and are again domiciled in their home on the Strand.

Mrs. D. W. Permar and mother, Mrs. H. R. Young, spent a greater part of last week in Los Angeles, visiting with Miss Hattie Blanchard, who is spending the winter in California from Newcastle, Pa.

Mrs. George Sudborough has returned this week from a pleasant visit of several weeks in Detroit, Mich., where she was the guest of her mother, Mrs. J. Smith.

Miss Elsie Speece was up from San Diego the middle of the week to visit her father, C. E. Speece.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Monroe of the Monroe apartments left Monday for their winter home in Pasadena.

EL SEGUNDO.

Mrs. A. E. Graber gave a beautifully appointed luncheon Thursday in honor of an eastern friend, Miss Alvina Sprock of St. Louis. The decorations and favors were of autumn hues and design. Places were laid for Mrs. Emily Gross, Mrs. A. G. Ellis of Lawndale, Mrs. John White of Mojave and Mrs. M. H. Willard of Los Angeles.

The Misses Virginia and Evelyn Fitzgerald entertained a number of friends at their home Thursday evening. After an evening of music and games a dainty supper was served.

Mrs. Arthur Magee entertained three tables of five hundred at her home on Virginia street Wednesday. Chrysanthemums were used effectively in decorating. An attractive luncheon was served at noon followed by an interesting card game.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Metcalf spent a few days the middle of the week visiting with friends in Monrovia.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Vincent have gone to Murrietta for a stay of several weeks.

Mrs. W. Daniels of Chino has been spending this week with her daughters here, Mrs. Jasper Barnes and Mrs. Ray Harrison.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Neimeyer were the dinner guests of Mrs. M. Partlow Sunday.

REDONDO BEACH.

Mr. and Mrs. V. Burnham entertained with a dinner-dance at their home Monday evening. Autumn decorations were used through the rooms and on the table. Places were set for Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. McKanna of Los Angeles, Mrs. Guy Phillips of San Bernardino and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mitas of this city.

A number of friends surprised Mrs. Adam Smith and Mrs. C. S. Pickens at their home Monday. The occasion was to welcome these two home from a trip East. Luncheon was brought by the guests and a most pleasant day enjoyed. Those who attended were the Mmes. Charles Arney, C. M. Holmes, T. E. Singer, John Keppel, Will Clark, Roy Heath, L. O. Kilham, C. W. Davis, Charles Gaston, W. A. Smith, R. Winget, M. France, H. H. Hooker and M. R. Chambers.

And Can't You Imagine What a Stir Will Be Caused By These

Tricotine and Wool Velour Dresses $26.98

—Certain it is that they caused a mighty stir among the store folks when they were unpacked—

—No one could believe that they were really to be sold for as little as $26.98—

—Why—do you know that some of the best judges of dress values guessed them at a full half more—

—The writer thought there was an error—for it has been months and months since he has seen dresses that in any way compared with them at this price—

—They are all strictly tailored models—relying entirely on the richness of their materials and the perfectness of their workmanship for their beauty—

—Won't you come see them in our window today—

Miss W——

—is "fairly bubbling" over with new Hats—to sell at $10.00

—And they are the sort of hats that will set you bubbling with enthusiasm—

—Each one of them has that indescribable something that characterizes all of the hats which Miss W—— selects—

—Miss W——as you know is a New York girl—and she spends most of her time in the studios of famous designers, so it is not strange that she finds new styles first and chooses almost invariably the kind of hats you like—

—You are going to wonder where in the world she got these hats which she has sent us at $10.00.

Wonder Coats We Have at $39.98

—We cannot repeat too often or say too strongly that they are the most attractive we've seen in the town at anywhere near this price—They are Silvertones—Velours and Broadcloths—some beautifully fur trimmed and the majority silk-lined.

—In the wanted colors.

Excellent Suits We Have at $34.98

—The strictly tailored and semi-fancy effects—we doubt very much if you will find anything like such values again for many a day.

—Made of Broadcloth, Velour de laine and Silvertone—some fur-trimmed.

Another Collection of Splendid Winter

Coats

and this time the prices will be

$39.50 and $50.00

—But this time there will be, it is hoped, a sufficient number of coats to meet the demands of everybody who comes to participate.

—For aside from a large assortment of coats purposely secured—there will be many excellent coats pre-empted from regular stock and repriced to meet the standard set for this Event—

—And the standard will measure up to (perhaps it will even exceed) those impressive values that prevailed a few weeks ago when Bullock's conducted a similar coat distribution in which so many persons shared—

—At $39.50 there will be such attractive coats as those pictured at the left—of mannish mixtures, silvertip Bolivias, Crystal Cords, Tweeds, Serges, Velours,—many of them with collars of fur—

—And the colors are Brown, Smoke, Cinnamon, Navy, Tobacco, Gray, Taupe, Tan, Burgundy, Copenhagen—

—Full lined coats, some with fancy, silk linings,—convertible collars and Raglan sleeves are prominent features on others—full flowing backs, box-pleated backs, high waisted backs,—with trimmings and workmanship that distinguish them for the fine coats they are——At $50 there will be coats fashioned like those sketched at the right—of Cour de Laine, Silvertip Bolivia, Velour, Penalla Bolivia, Camelion Cord, Crystal Cord, Corded Velour, Tinseltone, Tweed—with collars of Hudson Seal, Nutria, Opossum, Skunk Opossum—and linings of silk and satin—

—Beautiful coats and exceptional coats—in colors of Reindeer, Dragonfly, Algerian, Tobacco, Pershing, Taupe, Infantry Blue, Smoke, Mouse, Rust, Beaver, Navy—

—Smartly tailored with panel backs, full sweep backs, Blouse backs, —deep yokes, deep inverted pleats—many unusual pockets and stitchery and embellishing ideas to advise you immediately of their superior character and worth at $50—

—Two Groups—two prices and two values that are very promising to the woman who has not yet purchased her new winter coat.

BY THOMAS P. AND LEIGHS

"THE GREAT DESIRE."

A Novel by Alexander Black that Visualizes American Life Through the Medium of a Series of Clearly Drawn Characters.

"The Great Desire."

A compelling book that rivets the attention and stirs the imagination is "The Great Desire" by Alexander Black (Harper's.) If this is not the great American novel, it is surely first cousin to that elusive, always-to-be-written book. It is American in the breadth of its interests, in its tolerance, in its real democracy of sentiment, and in its sly humor which flashes here and there throughout the book.

Its characters are as truly American as its humor—American in the broadest sense. In the pages of this book we see such thorough-going Americans as the philosophic New Englander, Anson Grail, and his charming sister, Sarah, thrown into juxtaposition with such newly become Americans as Mark Zorn, of a Norse father and Scotch mother; Hilda, "the sullen Swedish girl" who served the dinner, Hugh McGarry "by affection a singer and by profession a hod-carrier;" "Biff" Hannigan, the lightweight champion Owen Drynd with his vixenish drab of a wife, the slinking thief, Eddy Snole, from God knows what partentage, and the anarchist leader Anna Jassard. These and many others move through the pages of the book as they move through life, shouldering the older Americans and influencing them in a thousand ways whether they will or not.

The story is told by Anson Grail, the hunch-backed son of a New England schoolmaster. Always the events, the characters, the conversations, the kaleidoscopic succession of scenes, all typical of New York, are revealed as acted upon by the mind of this kindly, gentle, philosophic soul.

Anson and his sister Sarah come to New York so that he may have the opportunity to gather material for his book, "The Great Desire," and so that Sarah may have her fling at life. Here, under the guardianship of the charming, worldly-wise Aunt Paul, they seek and find adventure, ranging in variety from a midnight supper at a "lobster palace," participation in the great suffrage parade, intimate acquaintance with a sweat shop and its workers, and an encounter with a burglar on the roof. Then the current of their lives is changed by that momentous day when the United States declared war on Germany and by those solemn days following in which the draft was adopted and put into operation.

Life in New York in those tense pre-war months and in the palpitating war-time months that followed is graphically depicted in its many-sidedness. Yet the widely-radiating threads of interest are so skillfully centered as to produce a plot in which there is genuine love interest, well sustained suspense unexpected disclosures.

A series of striking episodes is built up around Anson's Quixotic effort to take the place in a clothing factory of Owen Drynd, whose task it is to operate a button machine, thus releasing this able-bodied man for the war service his heart craves. The picture of that thorough-going hussy, Vicky, who is Owen's wife, is a striking bit of realism not often found. The clear-cut representations of Anson's fellow-workers, faithfully representing the turmoil and ferment of mind found in such groups today, are both realistic and illuminating.

When Anson mildly suggests that the proletariat should strive to better the lot of the thousands of people not in the unions, he is stoutly told that "they all ought to be in the unions."

"I think," he insists, "that somehow they should all be brought into one big union of all the people."

"You mean Socialism," observed Browsel, who had just joined the noon-time group.

"The Syndicalists, they got a better idea," said Vivirato.

"They all got too many ideas," asserted Jakow. "That's why they don't get nowhere."

"We don't want all the people to have the say," Vivirato persisted We want the people that does the work to have the say. D'yer get that, son? The people that does the work."

"What work?" asked Jakow, dryly.

Then there is Jakow's sullen question: "Did Karl Marx stop producin' when he began writin'? Did that man Lincoln stop workin' when he stopped splittin' rails? Didn't Christ produce nothin 'after he stopped bein' a carpenter?"

The burning issue of the reconciliation between capital and labor is only one of the questions thus discussed. The Irish question, sin and punishment, woman suffrage, religion, Socialism, anarchy, and above all, "The Great Desire," the one over-powering, all-compelling wish that each human atom cherishes in his inmost heart—these are all considered in the pages of this book just as they are in life.

Alexander Black has the rare gift of presenting such discussions in a manner to intensify the interest and reality of the book. In fact, much of the originality and power of "The Great Desire," is due to this distinctive kind of brilliant dialogue.

Such a book defies criticism. Dig in anywhere and you find a gem of characterization, a compelling thought, a rare glint of humor, a sweet or sordid scrap of life that is so real as to produce a mental shock.

Of course, flaws there are, if you are looking for them; for instance, the way in which the various characters constantly meet by the merest chance in the biggest city on the continent, stretches our credulity at times, as does the revelation of the identity of Laura Sherrick. Events are marshaled by the author to suit his convenience, but if we look too closely we can usually see the inner works of the fiction machine in any great novel, while in ordinary works of fiction the machinery creaks at every turn.

THE AMAZING TRUTH!

It reveals what the censor scratched out.

It gives facts which we have all wanted to learn—a glorious, searching, compassionate glimpse of truth. The biggest war story by the man who has written the biggest war literature.

JUVENILES.

"Boy Scouts in the Wilderness."

Every boy who loves adventure and admires pluck and courage in other boys will find in "Boy Scouts in the Wilderness," by Samuel Scoville, Jr., (Century Company) a book after his own heart.

The story narrates the adventures of two Boy Scouts who accepted the challenge of a cynical millionaire lumberman, who had no faith in the scout movement and disbelieved that the boys were capable of accomplishing anything if thrown on their own resources in the wilds.

Two boys were selected from a camp of Scouts to make a trip into the forests of the Canadian border. They were to start empty-handed and make their own way. If they stood the test they were to receive a campsite in his forests and he was to pay them double the value of anything they found.

How these two resourceful chaps lived in the woods, the dangers they encountered, the difficulties they overcame; the uses to which they put their knowledge of woodcraft, and their final success, make a story that has all the thrill of the most lively novel. It is a story that all boys will enjoy. It has a lesson, too, for their elders.

"Secrets of Animal Life."

J. Arthur Thomson, regius professor of natural history in the University of Aberdeen, has written in the "Secrets of Animal Life" (Holt) a book that explains the secrets of life and the reason of life's processes.

Typical topics treated are the social life of wasps, the educatability of snails, the survival of the otter, the microcosm of the egg, rejuvenescence, the biology of twins, wonders of instinct, the Mendelian clue and the optimism of pathology.

While this is not a children's book, it is one that high school students and other boys and girls who have attained some maturity of mind will find a mine of information.

"Field, Forest and Farm."

A translation of Jean Henri Casimir Fabre's "Field, Forest and Farm" (Century Company) opens up an entertaining field for the study of soils, plants and animals. Even quite young children will find entertainment and instruction in this book if necessary explanations of difficult terms are given by an older person.

For young gardeners and agriculturists the book should prove useful and stimulating.

Its appeal is not necessarily confined to youthful readers, as the information given is both exact and scientific.

A Private Still.

A zealous excise officer was sent to Ireland to try to locate several "moonshine" stills which were known to exist. Meeting a native, the excise officer approached Pat, saying:

"I'll give you five shillings, Pat, if you can take me to a private still."

"Troth, an' I will, sir," was Pat's reply as he pocketed the money. "Come with me."

For many weary miles over mountain, bog and moor they tramped, until they came into view of a barracks. Pointing to a soldier seated on a step inside the square, Pat said:

"There yon are, sair, my brother Mike; he's been a soldier for ten years, an' he's a private still."—Unidentified.

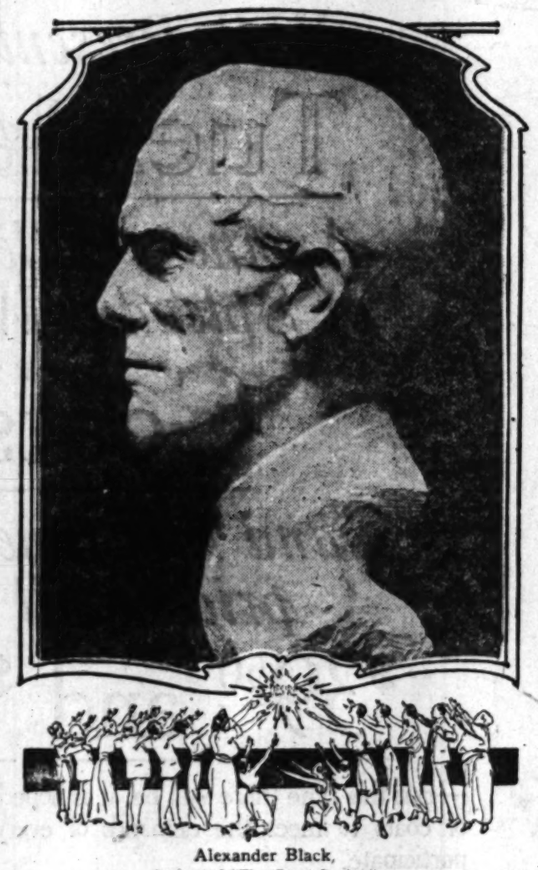
What is Life's Aim?



Alexander Black,
Author of "The Great Desire."

"HEARTBREAK HOUSE" BY SHAW.

George Bernard Shaw—in one of those interesting introductions or prefaces which are so characteristically Shavian—tells us that his new play, "Heartbreak House" (Brentano's)—a fantasia or allegory—symbolizes cultured leisured society before the war. "Horseback Hall," of which he also writes, typifies that wealthy but intellectually inferior class which includes a majority of the peerage and the squire-archy—"ladies and gentlemen who habitually rode horses, hunted them, talked about them, bought and sold them and gave nine-tenths of their lives dividing the other tenth between charity and church going, as a substitute for religion and conservative electioneering."

The inhabitants of Heartbreak House despised politics, while those of Horseback Hall sat on the front benches of Parliament "with nobody to correct their incredible ignorance of modern thought and political science but upstarts from the counting-house who had spent their lives furnishing their pockets instead of their minds." So between ignorance on one side and contemptuous carelessness on the other, Britain traveled far on the way to Gehenna.

All this sounds much like the lamentations of Ruskin, but Shaw adds to his indictment a denunciation of that pseudo-science which contributed to England's descent toward the pit, by teaching that individuals are produced by their environment: that mind, conscience and will are mere illusions; men's sins and good deeds being mere mechanical reactions over which they have no control. The business of the human machine was thus represented as being the maintenance of a favorable environment by destroying or subjecting all competitors for a part of the means of existence, that is, of subsistence.

Shaw adds: "We taught Prussia this religion; and Prussia bettered our instruction so effectually that we presently found ourselves confronted with the necessity of destroying Prussia to prevent Prussia destroying us."

Of Shaw's stubborn denial of this now-admitted fact during the early days of the war, it is not necessary to speak at length. His present half-hearted retraction can never restore his former admirers' devotion and confidence, nor wash out the fatal blot on his scutcheon, placed there by his own grimy hand.

When he deprecated and flouted the world's horror of the sinking of passenger vessels and the murder of unarmed civilians, of women, and of helpless children, declaring these things to be no more deplorable than the casualties of ordinary battle, he displayed a streak of knavery, or of folly, or of sheer Irish perversity that is unforgettable. Thereupon those who had "learned his great language, caught his clear accents, made him their model to live or die" renounced him forever as a teacher or prophet. Henceforth there remains admiration only of his wit and his talents; the confidence and regard are buried deeper than the helpless victims of that German frightfulness which he defended.

VAN LOAN MEMORIAL.

A memorial edition comprising five books of the late Charles E. Van Loan has just been published by the George H. Doran Company, 244 Madison avenue, New York. The edition is a labor of love and is being issued by the publishers to Mrs. Van Loan at exact cost of production.

Van Loan's long illness involved great expense, using up most of his assets. A committee of his close friends, Irwin S. Cobb, Grantland Rice, Robert H. Davis and Bayard Veiller, have undertaken to market this edition of his works for the benefit of his widow.

The edition will contain a series of short stories dealing with sports, golf, the race track, prize ring and the movies. Van Loan was supreme in these varied fields and the yarns are all typical of the man and his work—friendly, kindly and full of that geniality and good humor of which Van Loan was a master.

This edition makes an ideal Christmas gift and will, in addition to affording the purchasers or recipients many an hour of pure delight, go far toward helping to lighten the load of the author's widow.

The edition is limited to 2000 copies. Orders may be placed through any member of the committee or through the publishers direct.

Are The Pyramids Concrete?

How the Egytians managed to haul the gigantic stones used in building the pyramids has been for centuries a subject for speculation. Of late years some who have examined the pyramids have come to the conclusion that the stones are artificial, a kind of concrete. If so, they were probably made where they are, and the sand of the desert was the principal material used.—(Indianapolis News.

RECENT FICTION.

"Free Air."

A book to drive dull care away is "Free Air." by Sinclair Lewis (Harcourt, Brace & Howe.) The story fairly pulses with action. From that auspicious day when Claire Boltwood drove her "Gomez" into Milt Dagget's garage in the little Minnesota town to the last chapter, event follows event in rapid succession.

Nor is the interest confined to the external happenings. The psychology is both subtle and deep, showing as it does the gradual awakening of the wealthy and pampered Claire, accustomed to the stodgy, over-conventional life in Brooklyn, to the real meaning of democracy and life.

That Milt, without a moment's hesitation, turned his back on his garage and his home and precipitately set out in his Henry Ford, dis-Bug," to follow Claire even unto Seattle is told with such candor and verisimilitude that we gladly follow him and go along over the roads, rough though they be, stop with him at the wretched hotels, and hold our breath lest his "Teal Bug" may fail him at the last when he attempts to pull Claire and her big Gomez out of the mire.

Not the least amusing scenes are those in which Henry B. Boltwood, the eminently correct financier who happens to be Claire's father, attempts to treat Milt as an equal, despite his inner revolt.

Claire's Brooklyn suitor, Geoffrey Saxton, is nicely balanced against Milt, though the reader is prepared to go any length to prevent this suave and sophisticated beau from carrying off the prize that is clearly intended for Milt.

The book, though highly amusing, is more than that. It gives a remarkably clear picture of American life and character and shows that despite our multitudinous variations Americans are Americans, whether they hail from Brooklyn or Timbuctoo and whether they be bankers or blacksmiths, millionaires or auto mechanics.

"Chalmers Comes Back."

"Chalmers Comes Back," by W. J. Dawson (John Lane,) is one of the numerous works of fiction written with the idea of arousing the nation to its duty to the returned soldier. In this particular book the love interest is sufficiently strong to hold the reader's interest although the public is surfeited on war and its problems.

Capt. John Chalmers, who at the opening of the great war immediately joined up with the Canadians, is the mouthpiece of the author's programme. The story opens with his awakening in a hospital, where he has been recovering from shell shock, only to find that the war is over.

On the return trip to America he meets Claire Gunnison, whose negation of conventional morality gives him another shock. When he reaches America he goes at once to Mary Challoner, who was to have been his bride, but who finds him different and refuses to take up the old relations. Here the whole question of the effect of the war on the men who took part in it is discussed somewhat tiresomely.

Society in general comes in for a good deal of criticism and various plans for righting all things are presented in a sketchy way. Chalmers, who feels that he is out of touch with the old life, again meets Claire Gunnison, and he finds that he is in love with her and she with him. They finally decide to enter rehabilitation work in Russia and depart thence, consumed with the spirit of sacrifice and a fixed desire to aid in the great task of rebuilding that vast empire, torn to shreds with Bolsheyism and a dozen other isms foisted on the simple people by shrewd scoundrels and mistaken idealists.

"The Lady of Castle Queer."

An old-fashioned novel of love, romance, mystery and intrigue, is "The Lady of Castle Queer," by David Skaats Foster, published by the Franklin Book Company.

"Joe," the heroine, who, though first appearing as a boy, discards her masquerade as soon as she is discovered by Christopher VanZant, enlists the reader's interest from the start. Her adventures are numerous, many of them being of the hair-raising variety, ending with her coming into her own as the daughter of the Castle.

The story is one of marked simplicity. No tedious, serious purpose is evident and it discusses none of the problems that confront the present age.

The plot is hackneyed, but the action is rapid. The old Blackstone house, or Castle, as it is called, with its secret passages and steel-walled dungeons, is the scene of the mysterious and dastardly intrigue which three servants concoct to rob the master of the house of his fortune.

Christopher Van Zant, nephew of Gideon Blackstone, gets the idea that something is wrong because of a letter from his uncle curtly requesting him to postpone a proposed visit. He comes to investigate under an assumed name and after studying the situation decides that prompt action is necessary.

The villains, three in number, are finally balked in their plan and captured by the authorities. Christopher wins the girl of his heart and life at the castle once more resumes the even tenor of its ways, despite the background of romance and mystery which has for years enshrouded it.

Cause for Grouch.

"That woman seems soured on life."

"Yes, she married once for love and once for money."

"Well?"

Rare Books Going Higher.

According to R. J. Safford of Charles Scribner's Sons, who has just returned from a buying trip to London and the continent with many cases of rare books, the French have an eye out for future profits at increasingly higher prices and it was only after an unusual amount of adroit maneuvering that he was able to induce many of them to part with certain items. Many extremely rare items may be had in both England and France at the present time, however, according to Mr. Safford, by the patient searcher. To cite but one instance: in a little out-of-the-way shop in London he stumbled on a beautiful specimen of the exceedingly rare edition of Shelley's "Queen Mab" with Shelley's dedication and imprint intact—this is the edition, it will be recalled, from which the poet tore the dedication to his wife, his imprint and the colophon from all but a few copies.

Poetry for Children.

The teacher who understands that most delicate art of feeding and training the child imagination, appreciates the educative opportunity in child poetry. She knows that poetry given to children should be real poetry, with genuine beauty of idea and expression. She knows that it is worse than a waste of time to teach children verse that is less than this, or to try to force upon them verse that does not naturally touch their interests and their wonderings that play about the concrete things of their life—the trees, the hills, the clouds, the stars, mother and teacher and playmates, and the things of the garden or street. A volume of new child verse which fulfills both these requirements is "For Days and Days," by Annette Wynne (Stokes,) a poet who was, incidentally, a teacher and who shows by the rare charm of her verses that she knows the child heart as only the chosen know it.

English Ballads.

One of the most interesting branches of English literature is treated in an understanding study in "A History of English Balladry," by Frank Egbert Bryant, which the Four Seas Company is publishing in a new edition. It considers the subject up to and through the reign of Elizabeth, and contains essays on "Beowulf," "The Bold Prisoner," "The Conservatism of Language in a New Country," and other allied subjects.

Harper Publications.

Harper & Bros. announce for immediate publication "The Triumph of Ideals," by Woodrow Wilson; "The Rider of the King Log," by Holman Day; "The First Piano in Camp," by Sam Davis; "The Fairy Detective," by Rupert Hughes; "The Township Line," by Albert F. Wilson;" The Cowboy Philosopher on Prohibition," by Will Rogers.

...LLIAMS SICK OF IRISH BRAG.

...rm Shiver Over His Attack in Senate.

...w They Took Bunker Hill for British.

...ver Throws Caution to the Four Winds.

...SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

...SHINGTON, Oct. 12.—A fight ...e fight promises to develop ...ly controversy in con- ...of the attacks upon the ...e in which the Democratic ...ve freely indulging. "Do ...nd to drive every Irishman ...Democratic party?" in- ...ery statesman on the Democratic side yesterday, following the burst of invective against the Irish people by John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, which, by the way, does not appear in the Congressional Record today, evidently having been held back for revision in cooler moments. This bitter arraignment, following so closely upon a sharp criticism of the same character by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, before the City Club, has stirred the Irish members to their depths and has alarmed all the Democratic leaders, who are well aware of the strength of the Irish vote in many of the States. Senator Williams threw caution to the winds in the course of his address and launched upon an attack which sent shivers all over the Democratic side of the chamber. "The Irish might at least learn while they are seeking Irish freedom they ought to see human freedom," he cried passionately. "They might at least learn, if they have sense—and I doubt whether they have or not—that while they are seeking the freedom of a part of Ireland they might at least allow Ulster freedom."

Adverting to the part alleged to have been played by Irishmen in the cause of American freedom, Senator Williams challenged most of the claims made upon that score by Irish leaders for the last hundred years. "It has not been many days," he said, "when I heard upon this floor a pretense that over 50 per cent. of the American Revolutionary troops were Irish when we gained our independence. [An obvious reference to the speech of Senator David I. Walsh.] Only 4 per cent. of the population of the United States at that time was Irish, and two-thirds of that per cent. were Scotch-Irish and English-Irish and Ulstermen."

Senator Williams attacked the Irish in general and Americans of Irish extraction in particular, saying that he was sick and tired of the pretense that the Irish had accomplished whatever good works have been accomplished in this world. They asserted they had won our Revolutionary War and defeated the South in the Civil War. It was not true, he said, but was "a part of the braggart nature of the Irish."

HITCHCOCK TRIES TO STOP HIM.

Senator Hitchcock, the Democratic leader, walked over to the Republican side, where Mr. Williams has of late had a habit of taking his stand in speaking, and sat down beside the Mississippian. From time to time, when there were pauses in the oratory, Mr. Hitchcock whispered appeals to the speaker to desist, but without effect. Finally, he gave up in despair and retired to the cloakroom. Mr. Williams said:

"Now I come to the South and to the resolution by the United Confederate Veterans. I cannot pay tribute to the United Confederate Veterans; I am unworthy to pay tribute to them. The few yet alive, without pensions or support from anybody in the world, comprehend the best part of all humanity in all the world. They are the purest and noblest and greatest America has furnished. I do not mean any reflection on anybody else; I mean I know those old fellows every time I meet them, and do know that they represent the highest and loftiest and most altruistic opinion of America. They have met and adopted in behalf of the treaty of peace the resolution I send to the desk and ask to have inserted in the record.

CHANCE FOR IRISH TO LEARN.

"The United Confederate Veterans knew something about war. Its horrors and conquests. There was nothing in all history that compared to them in their hour of surrender and self-surrender which came later.

"If they had been Irishmen in Southern Ireland, fighting for something unobtainable, they would have left the history of the United States a different page; but they had common sense enough to know when they had to quit. They also had common sense and altruistic sense to know, not when they had to quit, but when they wanted to quit.

"Robert E. Lee never advocated leading a force shooting behind trees at the Yankee army. When he surrendered his armed forces in the field he surrendered them and came back into the American union as well as he could, reconciled to the situation. These Irishmen might learn a lesson from us. We are nearly all glad today that there are no custom houses along the Ohio or Potomac to divide the American people.

"It has not been many days ago since I heard on this floor a pretense that more than 50 per cent. of the American revolutionary troops were Irish when we gained our independence. Only 4 per cent. of the population of the United States at that time was Irish, and two-thirds of that 4 per cent. were Scotch-Irish and English-Irish from Ulster; and during the American Revolution whenever a man raised his cup of beer in Ulster he drank to the memory of William of Orange and to the liberties of the American colonies.

IRISH TOOK BUNKER HILL.

"I also find out from a little investigation that the British troops which took the works at Bunker Hill against us and made a defeat out of a thing we have celebrated as a victory were a British command denominated 'The Royal Irish.' They went over our works at the last minute, and took them from us. I also find that in South Carolina and Virginia, during the Revolution, the chief forces commanded by Carleton and many other British commanders were Irishmen.

"Some time ago a man wrote to me—an Irishman in this city—and said: 'While your father was a colonel in the rebel army, mine was a private in the Federal army. My brothers and uncles and others were fighting that way.' Without any question of the right or wrong of his contention, I wrote back to him: 'I do not exactly understand why that should appeal to me. You are now coming to me with the idea of Irish self-determination. Mississippi wanted self-determination, and Virginia wanted self-determination, and Alabama wanted self-determination—and you people chiefly prided yourselves that you did not allow us self-determination.

BRAGGART NATURE OF IRISH.

"I have met more than 100 of you since the Civil War who have told me confidentially and democratically that it was not the Yankees—damned Yankees, as they called them—but the Irish that whipped these people down South.

"So I said, after receiving that communication, 'Your idea of self-determination did not always agree with mine.'

"As a matter of fact, of course, the Irish never whipped the South at all. They could not whip the South in one country, or anywhere at any time. It is a part of the braggart nature of the Irish. They are always contending that they have done everything, everywhere, at every time. They never whipped the South; they never won the war of the American Revolution. Ten Irishmen were in the British army to every one in the American Revolutionary army.

TIRED OF THE ETERNAL LIE.

"I am tired of this business, of this vanity and nonsense. I do not care how many Irishmen vote the Democratic ticket. I am well prepared to support the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. Lodge) against the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. Walsh) in an appeal to every man not an Irishman in Massachusetts and the proper time I shall do it, because I rather prefer men who bludgeon us to men who poison us. I am tired of this whole Irish pretense. They never won the war of the Revolution, as they contend. They never won the Civil War. It was the noble, magnificent men of the West, of Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio and Indiana that won the war against us, fighting with a spirit that no people on this earth ever displayed before.

"What did the Irish have to do with it? All the Irish in Mississippi were fighting for Mississippi. All the Irish in Virginia were fighting for Virginia. All the Irish down South were fighting for the South. Some of the noblest, best and bravest soldiers I ever knew of were of their number. But they fought upon whichever side of the line they happened to be. I am tired of this pretense. I am tired of this eternal lie. I am tired of this intimidation that I have received at my office for three or four months, most of the letters anonymous, many signed with a 'Mac' or an 'O.'

THREATS OF ASSASSINATION.

"If they think I am afraid of one or a hundred or a thousand of them they are mistaken. I understand their game. It is that the Democratic party dares not defy the Irish vote. Well, as I understand this situation, the Democratic party is not defying anybody. The Democratic party, as a party, is not engaged in this controversy, and if I am to believe the Senators from California and Massachusetts, the Republican party as such is not engaged in it. But all the same they write to me anonymously and with an 'O' and a 'Mac' now and then, signed somewhere with an indistinct city address, threaten me with all sorts or punishment.

"Among other things, I have received several threats of assassination. Why, I do not mind assassination; it is the easiest and cheapest way of going off the earth that a man ever measured up. I find this among the contentions of these men opposed to the League and the treaty—that while they are constantly emphasizing what they call Americanism, they mean by it pro-Germanism, Irish - Americanism, Magyar-Americanism and Austrian-Americanism. We have reached the point where no man can be a real American unless he is an Irish-American or a German-American or some other sort of hyphenated American. I do not think these gentlemen have measured up the consequences. Suppose that once we English, Welsh and Scottish Americans, who never have hyphenated ourselves, but have just called ourselves Americans, dared unite in one party and announce to the country that every man who is Scotch, English or Welsh or the son of a Scotch, English or Welsh man or woman shall form one political party—where would these fellows be?" the role of Fedya. The play, remarkable in its presentation, has as much gripping power when it is read, and opens once more the road to speculation as to the Tolstoyan philosophy that inspired this great drama. Included with "Redemption" are "The Power of Darkness" and "The Fruits of Culture."

Author Returns.

R. Alexander Powell, author of "The Army Behind the Army" and other books, has returned to this country after an extended trip through the Balkans and the Italian lands along the Dalmatian Coast, on which he gathered material for a new book. In the course of his journey Maj. and Mrs. Powell were the guests of the King and Queen of Rumania at their summer palace and Maj. Powell received the highest Montenegrin decoration from the King of Montenegro.

California Sketches.

"The Smiling Hill-Top and Other California Sketches," by Julia M. Sloane, has just been published by Charles Scribner's Sons. It is a series of bright, informal pictures of a New England family's experiences in search of rest and health in Southern California.

THE DOCTORS MAKING MONKEYS OF US.

The Ponce de Leons of medical science are still seeking the fountain of perpetual youth. A Paris doctor thinks he has found it in the simple process of grafting new interstitial glands on old bodies. A decrepit he-goat thus treated became "young and vigorous again." A boy of 14, an idiot, was provided with a sound thyroid gland from a monkey and was found fit for army service three years later. Why, then, may not men, as they grow old, go to the family physician to be fitted out with a new set of glands and take on a new lease of vigor?

It is an alluring theory. Given plenty of monkeys to supply the demand for glands, the human race may look for physical immortality on earth. But what has become of all the recipes of other years for robust longevity? Are there any centenarians today who owe their great age to Dr. Brown-Sequard's elixir of life? Whatever became of the sour-milk theory of life prolongation? Has the search for perpetual youth through the pituitary gland or the suprarenal capsule of goats been abandoned?

But as with the tendon of Achilles, there is always some slight flaw to prevent a perfect realisation of perpetual youth. What added length of years man has got he has obtained from the less pretentious discoveries of preventive medicine. But no doubt investigators will always search for a recipe for youth and laymen will believe in the possibility because they want to believe. —[New York World.

Doing Her Best.

"Yes, grandma," said the fair young thing, "I am to be married during the bright and gladsome month of September."

"But, my dear," said the old lady, earnestly, "you are very young. Do you feel that you are fitted for married life?"

"I am fitted now, grandma," explained the prospective bride, sweetly. "Seventeen gowns and three costumes."—[Tit-Bits.

THE PROBABLE PERIOD.

"How much longer," growled a guest, "are those two old codgers over there in the corner going to continue to wrangle?"

"About an hour, probably," replied the landlord of the Petunia tavern. "They are discussing the League of Nations, and they've only got as far as arguing yet. They have to cuss and yell and call names before they get it settled for today and start off madder than wet hens. —[Kansas City Star.

NOT ALL THE KING'S HORSES MEXICO

A NOVEL

By George Agnew Chamberlain

Mr. Chamberlain has been in the American foreign service fifteen years. He resigned his latest post—Consul General at Mexico City—in anticipation of the publication of his novel Not All the King's Horses.

For he wrote the story believing his first obligation was to his fellow-countrymen, to tell them what has really happened in the land of Villa and Carranza, why it happened, and how it happened; to tell them the honest and the inside facts, all in the hope that, once knowing they will demand immediate and conclusive action.

The story is as sweet and clean and wholesome as the atmosphere of the out-of-doors of God's unspoiled world of the Ozark hills. The story carries a message of comfort and hope and courage and confidence. There are thrilling incidents related with such vivid realism that one reads with breathless interest. And yet the fascinating power of the story is rather in the skilful visualisation of the clash and conflicts of life's invisible forces out of which the thrilling incidents come.

DOROTHY DIX TALKS

Insanity of Motherhood.

BY DOROTHY DIX.

A novel and unique defence was recently offered in a murder trial in behalf of a woman who killed her divorced husband because he refused to surrender their little boy to her.

Her lawyers claimed the justification of her act that at the time she committed the crime she was the victim of dementia materna.

Dementia materna! Crazy mother love. Mother love that has no reason, no logic, no perspective, no appreciation of consequence. Lunatic mother love that makes a woman see things that do not exist, and render her incapable of distinguishing between fact and fancy.

Dementia materna! Why, it's the commonest complaint in the world. Nine-tenths of the women who have children are afflicted with it, and if any alienist could be found with skill enough to minister to a mind diseased with perverted maternal affection, and restore a woman to such a degree of sanity that she would be able to regard her children from a normal standpoint, he would be the greatest benefactor of the human race.

It is this insane mother love that takes no account of cause and effect; that flouts the Biblical dictum of "as you sow, so shall you reap;" that refuses to profit by the experience of others; that shuts its eyes to the warnings that it sees right before it, that stupidly and blindly believes that some miracle is going to save it from the effects of its own folly and weakness that is at the bottom of almost all of the sin, and misery, and failure in the world.

One of the mysteries of the universe has been the curious way that motherhood affects women. Often it seems to rob them not only of every vestige of intelligence, but of all sense, honor and honesty, and common decency. It is as if their children eliminated all the finer attributes of their character.

These are hard words, but look about you for their confirmation. Do you know two women who control their children and who are bringing them up to have any regard for the rights of other people, or any respect for personal property, or to be anything but selfish little brutes, who are determined to get whatever they want at any cost to others.

There's Sally, who would be incapable of destroying your property herself, but she can't see why you are not willing for her children to draw pictures with a pin on your best mahogany, and make quite prints with the nails on their heels on the doors of your automobile. There is Jenny who vibrates with sympathy for all sufferers, but who considers the sick woman next door a crank because she complains about the noise darling little Freddie makes when he rings the dinner bell by the hour when he is playing choo-choo cars.

It is this mother craziness that accounts for so many other mad things that women do, too. There is the matter of self-control, for instance. If you should talk to any woman in full possession of her faculties, she would agree with you that the most important thing that any mother could do would be to bring up her children to be masters of their own souls.

She would agree with you in the hypothesis that the boy who is taught to keep an iron hand on his temper will never commit murder; that the boy who learns in his childhood to curb his appetite will never become a drunkard, that the boy who forms the habit of industry in his early youth will never be an idler, or a loafer, or a pauper.

She will agree with you that the girl who learns to control her tongue will be a blessing instead of a curse to the man who marries her; that the girl who was taught to follow the right instead of the impulse of the moment will never be one of those for whom a police call is sent out.

All these things the woman knows abstractly, but Dementia Materna has so addled her poor brain that she does not even attempt to apply her knowledge to her own children. She lets her Johnnie and Susie rage and howl unrebuked. She lets them make themselves sick gorging on candy. She encourages them in being slackers. She breeds selfishness in them by sacrificing herself to their whims. She weakens their strength by saving them from every hardship.

She does everything on earth that is possible to unfit them for the battle of life that she knows they are bound to fight. She bends and breaks the weapon on which their salvation depends, and she does this in love. Not hate. There can be no greater proof of insanity than this.

What are the mothers thinking of, we hear continually asked, to let their daughters go half naked to parties and balls? What are the mothers thinking of who let their daughters receive the attention of married men and men of evil reputation for the sake of the automobile rides, the theaters, and dinners, and good times these men can give the girls?

The answer is, these mothers don't think at all. They have Dementia Materna. They are crazy. They are so obsessed by their passion for their children that they can't see that their daughters are in the same danger as other people's daughters are, or that their girls are just as weak and foolish as any other girls.

It's a terrible affliction, this Dementia Materna. And it's incurable. More's the pity.

The Difficulty.

Pedestrian: You say your wife is starving. Can't you get work?

Beggar: Yes, sir; but she can't.—[Boston Transcript.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

Emphatic Denial.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 12.—[To the Editor of The Times:] As a member of the American Expeditionary Forces, and one who accompanied the American Army from the Marne to the Rhine and took part in all five major campaigns between July 15, 1918 and the signing of the armistice, I brand as a most damnable and despicable lie the vile insinuations made by Dr. Dixon, as per today's edition of The Los Angeles Times, in his statement that: "Officers of the American forces had authorized lust, had compelled the soldiers to take medicine to protect them from the consequences of sin, and that when Christian soldiers refused to take the medicine or to carry it with them, they were compelled to do so by their superior officers."

During my sixteen months in Europe I was stationed at various times in fifteen different towns and cities in France, and six different cities in Germany, every one of which had a restricted area corresponding to the red-light districts in this country, and in no single instance were American soldiers permitted to enter these zones on any pretext. Invariably, the first official act of the A.P.M. (American Provost Marshal) when American troops entered a town, was to station military police at points of vantage for the sole purpose of preventing the very thing that Dr. Dixon states was authorized and encouraged.

It is true that there were cases where American soldiers managed to slip by these sentries and enter the restricted areas, which any fair-minded man will admit was no more than natural where 2,000,000 men were concerned—the authorities took cognizance of this possibility by maintaining additional precautionary measures against the probable results of such thoughtless escapades in the prophylactic stations which were established throughout France and Germany.

According to War Department General Order No. 45, a soldier was subject to trial and punishment by court-martial if he contracted venereal disease, irrespective of whether or no he availed himself of the prophylactic treatment. Though he was urged by every argument that could be possibly used by every person, from Gen. Pershing down, who had his best interests at heart, to avail himself of all provisions made for his physical welfare, the actual taking of the prophylactic treatment was optional with the soldier, and never in all my military experience, comprising service in both the army and the navy, and active participation in three wars have I ever known or heard of any man being "forced to take medicine to protect him from the consequences of sin," or compelled to carry such medicine with him.

Dr. Dixon's statement is on a par with those infamous accusations circulated a few months ago throughout the United States, and which wrecked the homes and happiness of many men who were daily placing their very lives as a barrier between the German hordes and the worthless bodies of their cowardly detractors—I refer to the widely-disseminated reports to the effect that the members of the Army of Occupation had been chosen and sent into Germany because they were venereals and were not fit to be permitted to come home; whereas, the real facts of the matter were, according to Gen. Pershing himself, the men composing the Army of Occupation were the very cream of the United States fighting forces, who had been selected for their qualities of mental efficiency, high moral standards and physical perfectness.

As to the rum drinking of the British soldiers before going over the top, I can only ask Dr. Dixon if he ever went over the top? If he did (which I doubt) he would appreciate the fact that, when a man has been slogging along all night, hungry and cold, through the mud and the rain, to a job that is dripping red:

No swift advance with a breaking through,
To cheer him on to the goal ahead;
But a dreary drive and a killing push
Into the sweep of a deadly fire
From machine-gun nests in the clotted brush,
Through bloody mud and a mass of wire.
A warrior lad in a grip with fate,
Where life was a span from breath to breath,
Where every foot meant a missing mate
And every yard held the smell of death;
No gallant dash to an open goal,
But a sodden tramp through the crashing shell,
Through dawns as stark as a broken soul,
Through nights as black as the mouth of hell.
A slogging tramp through the endless hail,
Where the line, iron-gutted, held its advance,
With its share of graves out the matted trail
That moved along through the woods of France.
With a moment's pause where a mate might kneel
By a fallen pal who had paid his debt,
Where the weary boy knew the flash of steel
Was the glint of a German bayonet—

I say that if Dr. Dixon had experienced this he would appreciate the fact that the "Demon Rum" has its good points after all.

Regarding the aspersions which Dr. Dixon, and those others, are hurling at our President I can only say, in leaving them to the gentle mercies of United States District Attorney O'Connor, that Woodrow Wilson is beyond the treacherous sting of their poisoned barbs—the yammerings of a few petty and disgruntled malcontents will never disturb his place in the niche of deathless fame which he has carved in the hearts of REAL Americans.

With a feeling of pity for the crass ignorance of Dr. Dixon, and one of contempt for Dr. Torrey, I am,

BERNARD F. McELROY,
Formerly sergeant, Headquarters Company, Fifty-eighth Infantry, Fourth Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

Insists on Hearing.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 9.—[To the Editor of The Times:] This is a query. Is it better to go to a picture show on Sunday evening or be placed in the gallery of Clune's Auditorium where it is hard enough for those who have good hearing to hear all that the speakers say? Being quite deaf, I asked for a seat where I could hear the whole services. I was told that those seats were for the members of their church; being a stranger I did not come in their fold, so was passed on right up. The view was fine, but it don't make up for the sound of the voices. Now, next time, I am sure the picture-show will get me. Being a church member, I like to go, but not to sit with my eyes closed saying my prayers when the rest of the people are enjoying the programme.

L. Y. M.

Modern Cave Man.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 12.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The trusting innocence of girlhood is superbly but pathetically beautiful. The innocence without the trust may not be quite so beautiful, but it lasts longer and is a thousand times safer. If trust opens wide the gate to the despoiler of innocence, it should be destroyed.

One of your most brilliant correspondents recently wasted a quantity of perfectly good sympathy upon so-called "Maligned Male." "There ain't any such animal." Limitations of language make it impossible to malign the modern male along the lines suggested. No doubt the motives of the gentleman referred to were those of neighborly kindness, but the suggestion that all the men who invite young women to ride in their automobiles are actuated by similar motives is very misleading. It takes in entirely too much territory.

The noncommittal attitude of the male and the exceptional reticence of the female upon this greatly camouflaged subject make it rather difficult to secure first-hand statistical knowledge, but the great body of reliably-informed personal opinion, while hesitating to definitely declare itself, is fully convinced that the modern male is a very direct descendant of his primitive progenitor, and that he has fully retained, if not further developed, the primal instinct which actuated the caveman in his pursuit of the coveted female with a knotted club, reckless of any consideration except to bring home the bacon.

While civilization has in no degree eliminated this troublesome instinct, it has entirely reformed the methods and accelerated the pace of masculine pursuit. Civilization goes forward because of its desire to get there, and most reforms have resulted from the substitution of efficient for inefficient methods of achievement. So it was in this instance. One day a discerning cave-dweller made the epochal discovery that the alluring female did not run quite as fast as she could when he left his knotted club behind. As a result of this discovery, the male has revised his tactics and developed methods many times more dangerously effective than the knotted club.

The modern male leaves nothing unsaid or undone to subvert or paralyze the female instinctive tendency to run. His woeful success is due principally to the practice of false pretense. He loves to pose, even to his own consciousness, as the possessor of all the virtues that look nice on paper. His mental attitude may be all right, but his activities in relation to the opposite sex are seldom directed by mental processes. He desires to shine as the protector of female honor, but the female retains her honor not because of his efforts but in spite of them. He will go the limit to protect her from external aggression while seeking special privileges for himself. Ruthlessly he plays the big game, in which the innocence of girlhood is too often the pawn. It is not a fair game. The woman always pays. When she has paid, there is nothing left.

Very truly yours,
MAY B. WRIGHT.

Should Deport Gompers.

LONG BEACH, Nov. 11.—[To the Editor of The Times:] With Taft for President, Gov. Coolidge for Vice-President, the ex-Mayor of Seattle for head of the Labor Department and Gompers and Company disfranchised, deported or jailed, according to their offenses, America would sure be safe for the home of the loyal, law-abiding citizen.

NEWTON H. CHITTENDEN.

Sounds Plausible.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I would like to make a suggestion in regard to the recently threatened coal strike situation.

Instead of the government taking over all the mines as has been proposed, why not let union labor take its huge strike benefit fund of several million dollars and invest in coal mining property, purchasing all that it can swing and employing union men and union money to run union mines, according to union principles.

Instead of having merely a voice in the control and a share in the profits, union labor would then have absolute ownership and control of the whole business and all the profits.

It could then demonstrate its idea of how business should be run, and as it would be making the experiment with its own money, nobody outside the union would object. As the business would belong to the union, there would be nobody to strike against, so the strike benefit fund would not be needed to support strikers, therefore this money could be put to productive work furnishing employment for union men instead of being used to cripple industry and curtail production as is now being done.

Union labor can furnish plenty of men who, as walking delegates, and members of pit committees, have been running the mines of the country for years, so they would know just how the business should be done.

This plan would put the men now on strike to work and it would leave the nonunion miners free to work unmolested; both producng the coal that is so badly needed at this time of year. Whether the coal came from a closed shop or an open shop it would probably have the same heat units, so the public could keep warm, while the two factions set to work to demonstrate which could produce the most fuel in the shortest time.

Then might at the same time demonstrate which method would produce the most contented workmen and the best citizens.

Yours for a square deal to the public.

EASTERN COAL CONSUMER.

The Wrong Way.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11. [To the Editor of The Times:] I sure appreciate John Devitt's letter in this morning's issue. What do lovers of old Ireland want with an absurd and half-crazy half-breed Spaniard, who would lead them away from the paths of true independence and cover them with dishonor? I would suggest that every effort should be made to obtain photographs and a list of names of all attending any procession or lectures of this De Valera man. It will be an unrivalled opportunity of registering self-confessed pro-Germans residing here. I am a true lover of dear Ireland and I know she will surely come into her own, but never by this man's methods.

Physical culture, including face and neck muscle exercises, the removal of dark, brown spots, freckles and that withered condition of the skin is her specialty; also the removal of superfluous hair, warts, moles and birthmarks. A personal interview will convince you better than I can that her reputation has been well earned in her eighteen years in Los Angeles. Top floor, Haas Bldg., corner Seventh and Broadway.

Nora Hutchins is an expert at remodeling furs, as she was formerly with John Klein, the noted furrier. Phone her, 19966, and she will estimate the cost, or call at 569 S. Fremont.

That tailored suit you are contemplating can be materialized into something unusually modish if your order is given to that most popular ladies' tailor, Mr. Kruger, fourth floor, Brack-Shops. Phone Main 8987. He is making a special reduction of $10 on each suit this week. So see him at once.

Children's ready-to-wear and made-to-order play and party frocks in most original designs, and dressy little coats are created at the Peggy Specialty Shop, 2026 Orange, near Alvarado. Wil. 296. Hemstitching done, also.

Cape wraps for evening are very popular.

If you'd like to have your old fur made into something new and stylish and have it by Thanksgiving, take it at once to Roberts, the Furrier, 868 W. Seventh street. He has a line of fur creations in the newest modes.

The Russian Tea Room serves chicken or baby lobster at their dinners—sounds interesting, doesn't it? A real old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner will be served for $1.25. Hours, 1 to 2:30, and 5 to 7. 631 S. Grand. Phone 62458.

Could you have seen those lovely Christmas boxes at Ye Hande Made Shoppe, filled with dainty boudoir caps, negligees and lovely lingerie—to be sent East, my dear, you would not have to be told to look around here before deciding on gifts. Such camisoles, knickers, gowns, hand-made flowers, you've never seen. Brack-Shops, fifth floor.

Business women will be so glad to know that Elli Mason Dean keeps her shop open Monday and Thursday evenings. You know that's the shop where smart dresses, suits and coats and many other things can be bought for a song! At 448 S. Alvarado street, first house north of W. Sixth. No sign. For further information phone 555983.

Silk and wool jerseys are still good.

I know you won't believe me— nevertheless it's true. Bill Hart will appear at Grauman's this week as a man-modiste! I know it's impossible even to imagine our rough and ready Bill in such a role, but I'm here to tell you he does it with finesse! As "John Petticoats," yes sir from a "rural" in Alaska to a "swell" in New Orleans he makes his meteoric way—and as a society man in evening dress—he dances like a dream! And then that chubbiest of persons—jolly Fatty Arbuckle, will tickle your risibles in his merry way as "The Hayseed." And then—folks were so delighted with 'A Tour Through Grauman's" that this revelation will be repeated.

Do you want some shopping done? Mrs. Kip will do it for you — she knows where to find just what you're looking for. If you live out of town and wish her to do your Christmas shopping, write to Bureau of Personal Service, 1106 Title Insurance Bldg., 5th and Spring. She will, too, plan parties or trips, take charge of the kiddies, help you select furnishings or rent you a home—in fact, do the thousand and one things you're too busy to do. Phone Pico 2278.

Ruth King of Pantages was delighted with her Christmas photographs, because she had her hair permanently waved and dressed in a marcel at Hudgen's Permanent Wave Shop, 4th floor Brack Shops. Call 62863 and ask about it!

Ginghams are more popular than ever and that's one reason that Williams Wear house frocks are so in demand. They are so adorably designed to meet both the style and comfort demands of the housewife about her work, and yet can be worn to market! You can see them at 734 S. Hill.

Do you realize what diamonds are worth today? If you do you will surely want to turn in to money any that you are not wearing. You can use the money for that special gift you would like to make and you can get top prices for diamonds at Mr. Hambright's, 301 Title Guarantee Bldg., 220 W. Fifth.

They still wear shorter walking skirts in Paris than we will accept here.

Don't give up until you've tried the Kellogg Berzonie treatments for reducing or putting on flesh! It is the most interesting thing in the world just to sit back and take it easy while your muscles do the work and bring you to your normal self. Your youthful poise and shapeliness will return to you by this logical scientific system, which was discovered by Dr. Bergonie of Paris, and has been successfully used at Battle Creek Sanatorium. Youth and glow is brought to the face also by Mme. Rouen's system of building up sagging muscles. 301 Merritt Bldg., 8th and Broadway.

Renaissance marks the style of many delightful buckles.

The glorious fur creations of Liebes & Co. have never been excelled for originality of design and the quality of the pelts. Their master designers are ever achieving new successes in their desire to clothe miladi in the most sumptuous wraps imaginable. The unusually fine quality of the peltry is the result of painstaking efforts to bring to their own trading posts in the frozen north the best skins that could be procured. These are then sent out to the many houses of Liebes & Co. throughout the country, thus finding their way to our own Liebes's store, 725 S. Broadway.

If you want some lovely permanent waves why not see Orla Orem at Markman Beauty Parlors, tenth floor, Brack-Shops? She gives all work her expert personal attention and makes eight curls for $5. You'll be surprised at the soft beauty of your hair after the wave. Phone 14363.

Call Mae Martin and ask about her special rate (with this ad.) for her marvelous scalp treatment, which does wonders for all conditions of hair and scalp. Pico 866. Room 509 Consolidated Realty Bldg., 6th and Hill.

Too fat? Too thin? Not exactly well? You can be brought to normal weight and measurements and be vastly improved in health by the Reiss system—without drug or starvation. It's intensely interesting, too. 802 Title Guarantee Building, 220 West Fifth. Phone 67815.

Girls, you can get the niftiest Peter Thompson or sailor suits at the Nurses' and Students' Outfitting Co., 618 W. Pico. These are made to order of blue serge and white materials with your choice of emblems feather-stitched on! Call 24855.

The attractive Assembly Tea Room continues to serve its popular dinners, with a special New England turkey dinner Sundays and Thursdays. A wonderful Thanksgiving dinner will be served from 1 to 3 o'clock and from 5 to 8 o'clock. Phone 13557 for reservations. Fifth floor, Brack-Shops.

One may have one's sash at the hip line on the evening gown.

You will be delighted with the work done by the Missouri Dye House—they clean and press men's suits for $1, and ladies' dark suits for $1.25; and one pair of gloves cleaned free! They have their own plant at 3910 S. Vermont and guarantee all work. Phones 25669 and Vermont 424.

Ever dined at the Vanity Fair Tea Room? If not, you've missed a treat for this is a most charming place. They make the tastiest pumpkin and mince pies—why not give an order for pies for Thanksgiving if at home that day? Also, order your fruit cake and plum pudding for Christmas. You'll find them delicious. 937 S. Hill.

You can have a free consultation in regard to changing or restoring the color of your hair at the Scientific Hair Parlor at 515 Fay Bldg., Third and Hill streets.

Really, I know of no better or more refining influence in the home than that of music. Even if you're not what is called "musical"—if you can't play a note—still you may love music—your children may adore it—it is often the means of keeping them at home. So the marvelous player piano plays this important part in bringing up the family. Anyone can play it—from the littlest to the biggest—and the best, most classical music can be played as easily as ragtime. They're selling a lot of players at the Smith Piano Company—at very reasonable prices, too, as they are out of the high-rent district.

Wonderful brocades of the Louis V period find their way to form miladi's wraps and gowns for evening.

Fruit cake for Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays—who would be without it? I wonder if you've been fortunate enough to have tasted any from Young's Market Company? They are simply delicious and I know a lot of folks who have already ordered them for the holidays! They make their own mince meat, so you can just imagine what luscious pies they make. The bakery, you know, is one of the finest on the Coast. If you think you can beat their cheese cake, special apple cake and pumpkin pies—just try it!

Evening dinner is served for 60 cents at the Boston Lunch Room, except Sunday. They will serve a regular home-cooked Thanksgiving dinner — turkey with cranberry sauce and all the fixin's, $1.25. The menu cards are ready now—you can see them when you like. Dinner will be served from 1 to 2 and from 4:30 to 7:30—at 709 South Hope.

To be right in style one must have a permanent wave, indeed, it's almost a necessity these hustling times. Now, Madame Koschat does this work exceptionally well, being a pupil of Mr. Nestle in New York, and bringing to the famous Nestle wave new laurels. Folks are delighted with the lovely, soft quality of their hair after the wave—and, by the way, she makes a specialty of curling white and blonde hair without discoloration and makes cunning school girl curls. Madame Koschat has added a department of beauty culture, with Mrs. Lux, formerly of Blackstone's, in charge. They do expert tinting, dyeing, Marcel waving, manicuring, and give effective facials. A water wave and hair dress is given with each wave. Phone 62332.

Rhinestone buckles add such a twinkle to dancing feet.

Reduce your flesh where you wish, regain your youthful contour, have the figure of Hebe without effort, diet or drugs. Relieves rheumatism and constipation, improves circulation. Weight Reducing Co., 618 Brockman Bldg.

A gift made by loving hands has double value, don't you think? I was delighted to see so many folks taking advantage of those free lessons in lamp-shade making at the Ville de Paris. They give you lessons if you buy your material there—and they are making some exquisite things. You find your way through the Gift Shop.

"Wouldn't our Thanksgiving turkey look well on that silver platter?" I thought, as I tried to concentrate on what she was telling me about Robinson's really wonderful line of silver plate—"you know, we carry Adam and Heppelwhite exclusively—and have everything, turkey platters, serving trays, comforts and whole pink tea service, with flat wear to match."

Those adorable blouses created by Florence, of wool and silk combined, make natty three-piece affairs out of street suits, and are the cleverest of the new ideas. 732 W. Seventh.

One-piece dresses continue in favor for practical and dress wear.

Gray hair is not a necessity these days—it can be so easily and expertly tinted by Lois Hardin, who has had fifteen years of practical experience in beauty culture. She tints a head from $5 to $7. 306 Haas Bldg. Phone 62715.

Why not eliminate H. C. of L? You will be astonished and delighted when you see those chic suits, stunning coats and fascinating frocks at Seymore's Clothes Shop, 804 S. San Pedro, and, my dears, I wish you could see the charming hats!

Lipson, tailor to fashionable women, will hold his first Thanksgiving sale of suits at coats at a saving of 25 to 35 per cent. 204 Brockman Bldg., 520 W. 7th. He has a reputation for exquisite workmanship.

That most exclusive upstairs fur shop, Chestnut's, offers a holiday special on Alaskan taupe foxes this week, only $60. Won't this be a splendid opportunity to select that Christmas gift? This young man has a most remarkable gift for creating original styles in coats, capes, dolmans and other lovely wraps. He will remodel your old fur and get it out in two weeks for you. Fourth floor, Brack-Shops.

Eyes are attracted by moving objects. Eyes follow each motion your hands make. People are appraising you by the appearance of your nails. Be sure they are well groomed.

You will be surprised to discover how much it adds to your poise to have beautiful hands.

Does it make you nervous to have people look at your nails?

WHENEVER you embroider or drink a cup of tea, whenever you sign your name, everybody notices your nails. You cannot get through a single hour without being judged by their appearance.

Look at them! Are they discolored? Is the cuticle overgrown, cracked or uneven? If so, you do not understand the proper care of your nails.

No matter how hard you use your hands you need never be ashamed of your nails. A few minutes care each week will keep them exquisite.

Busy women the country over are keeping their hands always well groomed by giving them just a few minutes care by the Cutex method once or twice a week.

Remember that the most important part of a manicure is the care of the cuticle. Never cut it. Specialists agree that cutting is responsible for a great deal of the ragged, ugly cuticle one sees.

Remove the surplus cuticle safely, gently with Cutex, the liquid cuticle remover.

Get your Cutex Cuticle Remover, Nail White, and Polish and Cold Cream at your favorite drug or department store for 35 cents each. Cutex Cuticle Remover comes also in 65-cent bottles.

You will be surprised to find how charming one Cutex manicure makes your hands. You will be amazed, too, to discover how much it adds to your poise, your ease of manner to have beautiful hands.

Follow the manicuring directions under the illustrations. Keep your nails always exquisitely manicured this way with Cutex. It will never again make you nervous to have people look at your hands.

A complete little manicure set for twenty cents

For twenty cents you can give yourself six or more of the most perfect manicures you have ever had—can make your nails lovelier than you have ever before seen them. Mail the coupon and two dimes today. After your first Cutex manicure you will realize how easy it is to add this new charm, how astonishingly it increases your general attractiveness.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS.

BY LADY JANE.

One of the most sincerely popular of America's composers, Charles Wakefield Cadman, is on Mrs. Wells Smith's programme for next Friday at the Friday Morning Club. Mr. Cadman has made the Indian live in music as has no other American, and while I am not in sympathy with the theory that we Americans have anything in common with the Redskins, or will ever have, musically or otherwise, still Mr. Cadman's work is valuable as a record and charming as a type.

It is, however, with work of a different character that Mr. Cadman will be concerned, next Friday. He will present an analysis of his recently-completed grand opera, "The Garden of Mystery," which is based upon Hawthorne's fantastic short story, "Rapaccini's Daughter." Mr. Cadman will be assisted by Charlotte Brooks, of the Cumnock School, with the manuscript, which is arranged for the piano. Miss Brooks will read the libretto. The two musicians will also present Cadman's Trio in D, which has been arranged for two pianos.

The literature committee will meet at luncheon at noon Tuesday. The programme will be the reading of "The New Voices" written by Marguerite Wilkinson, who won the National Arts prize for poetry in 1919. The piece will be presented by Mrs. Eugene Pettigrew, Ida Leonard, Mrs. Hermann Kirchoff, Mrs. John Vallely, Mrs. Marion Davidson, Pauline Barrington and others. Elizabeth Yoder, dean of the College of Oratory of the U.S.C., will be the guest of honor.

Philanthropy and Civics Club.

There will be no special programme at the Philanthropy and Civics Club, Tuesday afternoon, but for November 25, Mrs. Lillian Goldsmith has arranged an interesting group of speakers, which includes Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, who will talk about the Community Property Law and the making of wills. Other speakers on kindred topics will be Mrs. Seape Sloan Orcutt, Mrs. J. T. Anderson, and Mrs. H. V. Wright.

Ebell Club.

The Ebell Club is to present Mrs. Clara M. Burdette at its regular meeting, tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Burdette has an enormous following among the clubwomen of the State, and is said to hold the extreme limit in titles concerning the betterment of women. Mrs. Burdette's subject will be a broad and inclusive one, "The Next Twenty-five Years." Mrs. Jay Millard has also arranged to have a speaker for the California Indians, whose situation is far from satisfactory to the humanitarian. Rev. George Collette will speak on "Remedial Legislature for the Indian."

Hollywood Woman's Club.

There will be a change in the speaker for the meeting of Wednesday, and instead of the one announced in the programme, John Collier, an authority on Americanization work, will lecture, his subject being "Commercialization, of the Moral Life." On that day also will be held the public affairs luncheon, and James K. Polk, city public defender, will speak on "Protective Americanism;" Mrs. Charles Gray, on "Some Phases of the Parent-Teacher Work" and Mr. Charles Brandon Booth, who is coming to the club again to tell of the local work of the volunteers of America. On Tuesday the music section will meet at 10:30 a.m., continuing the study of the sonata with a programme illustrative of that form, rendered by Mmes. Routt, Earl, and Spear and Misses Davison and Gicaglia, and Mr. Seyler. Luncheon will be served at noon, with Mme. Petchnikoff, and Messrs. Adolph Tandler, Henry Schoenfeld, and Walter Rothwell as guests.

City Teachers' Club.

At the monthly meeting of the Membership Committee of the Los Angeles Teachers' Club, Monday, Miss Freeman of the Women's Musicians' Equality Club spoke, and Miss Wilhelmina van de Goorberg, capable president of the Teachers' Club, was elected chairman of the Central Committee of the city teachers' organizations.

The board of directors of the club will hold its bimonthly meeting at the clubrooms in the Trinity Auditorium building tomorrow at 4 p.m. On Tuesday, at 3 p.m., the kindergarten section will meet in preparation of Christmas work.

Under the direction of Miss Dorothy Thickett, the first of a series of informal teas will be given at the clubrooms, Thursday, from 4 to 5:30 p.m. There will be a short programme of music and recitation.

Belgian Relief Luncheon.

The women of the Belgian relief will give a luncheon on Monday at 1 p.m. at the Hotel Clark to welcome home Mrs. Willoughby Rodman, who has been for several months in India. Mrs. Rodman was the pioneer worker for Belgian relief in this city, and her co-workers are making every effort to show their esteem by this means of greeting her. There will be 200 guests at the luncheon, and Mrs. Rodman will make an address.

Business and Professional Federation

Miss Florence Shindler, president of the Los Angeles County Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, will speak at the meeting of the Business Woman's Civic Club, twelfth floor, Los Angeles Investment Building, Monday evening on "Advertising." This will be the fourth in the series of lectures on business efficiency for women. Miss Shindler was the delegate last September to the convention at New Orleans of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

Prof. Roy Malcolm of the chair of political science at the University of Southern California discussed the Japanese question at the last meeting.

Harmonia Club.

The Harmonia Club will meet Thursday at the home of Mrs. Sam Haver, 1275 Third avenue.

Wa-Wan Club.

At a meeting of the Wa-Wan Club, Wednesday afternoon, Frank Geiger sang.

Helen Brown Reed sang two numbers by Hague Kinsey, local composer, and two by Lucile Crewa.

Miss Pauline Farquhar, a pianist of Long Beach, played two groups, one of modern composers, including Scriabine, Schmitt and Debussy.

The ten-minute community sing, which opened the programme, with Roy Pilcher directing, was a new departure.

On Wednesday there will be the first social feature of the year, given at the home of Mrs. Randolph Hill, 4031 Wilshire boulevard. Miss Arrena Greer will be the pianist of the afternoon and Mrs. Guy Bush will be heard in pianologues. Some of Mrs. Hill's own compositions will be presented at this time.

Women's University Club.

Under the title, "Notable Plays of the Year," Dr. Dorothea Moore will open the discussion at the meeting of the Woman's University Club, Thursday at 2:30 p.m., at the Ebell Club House.

These mid-month programmes are to be given by members of the club throughout the year.

Inglewood Woman's Club.

The Americanization department of the Inglewood Woman's Club had charge of the programme for the afternoon meeting of that club on Wednesday. The musical part of the programme was two French songs by Mrs. Abramson of Los Angeles. Col. John Sobieski spoke on "Three Great Americans," namely Henry Ward Beecher, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt. Louis Santous spoke on "Women of France."

Cosmos Club.

At the meeting of the Cosmos Club Wednesday Miss Hazel Kingery sang. Prof. Roy Malcom, professor of political science of the University of Southern California, gave a talk on the Japanese problem in California.

The Shakespeare and drama department will meet at the home of Mrs. Jennie T. Kirkham, 858 East Twenty-eighth street, Tuesday at 2 p.m. The philanthropy department will meet at the home of Mrs. Shannon Crandall, 1810 Westmoreland boulevard, Thursday.

Wednesday Morning Club.

On next Wednesday the Wednesday Morning Club will have a musical programme given by the pupils of Marion Ward, consisting of several one-act plays, songs, pianologues and original dances.

Last Wednesday the club heard ex-Senator George W. Cartwright, who spoke on "Americanization and the Mutual Interests of Labor and Capital." Mrs. Bernice A. Johnson spoke on "Public Welfare."

Women's Press Club.

The programme of the Women's Press Club, last Tuesday afternoon, was one of merit. A patriotic sentiment was given to the occasion by the community singing of national songs, led by Mrs. Blanche Harriman Verbock, with Miss Neeta Marquis at the piano. The president, Mrs. Mary Clough Watson, spoke briefly of the significance of Armistice Day, and reviewed some of the stirring events of the past year, with reference to the new problems arising out of the changed conditions.

The speakers were Mrs. Kate Corbaley and Mrs. Ronie Jaffa. The former dealt with the film productions, from the viewpoint of one who is a factor at the studios. The latter sketched her experiences as a dramatist.

Charles T. Ferry, composer, interpreted several of his compositions on the piano, also presenting a group of his songs, which were sung by Miss Ruth Hutchinson.

Drama League.

The Los Angeles center of the Drama League will present a programme, next Thursday evening, at the Little Theater. Miss Theresa Z. Cogswell, the guest of honor, will give a dramatic message from overseas. Three one-act plays will be presented, produced by Miss Julia Taylor with stage settings by Mrs. Elizabeth E. Burton: "The Open Door," by Alfred Sutro; a tabloid version of the "Taming of the Shrew," by Odette Tyler, "Mrs. Pat and the Law," by Mary Aldis. The music for the evening will be given by a trio, under the direction of Mrs. Vincent Lehigh.

Entre Nous Club.

Next Wednesday afternoon the Boyle Heights Entre Nous Club will hold its regular meeting at the library, First and Chicago streets, at 2 p.m. A parliamentary drill, conducted by Mrs. Aurora Quinn, the club's parliamentarian, will be a feature of the programme. Music by the Misses Clare Taylor and Vivian Page will be followed by questions on the League of Nations.

Gardena Women's Club.

The Wednesday Progressive Club of Gardena, last week made plans for the distribution of donations of foodstuffs which each club member is to contribute, bringing or sending the same to the clubhouse on Orchard avenue the day before Thanksgiving. This date is that of the regular meeting of the club. Canned fruit and other articles will be placed in homes or institutions where much needed. A musical programme, the first of the season, was given by Mrs. Agnes Clark Stephenson.

A "Square" Meal in Bukowina.

Once in every twenty-four hours the starving people of Kolomea are allotted from the public kitchen a single portion of mamaliga (a kind of native rice) and a thin soup of potatoes or beans. This," writes Bernard Zuckerman, representative of the Joint Distribution Committee which is in charge of the relief work made possible by funds raised by the American Jewish Relief Committee and similar organizations, "is all the nourishment each person can get." Kolomea, he states, is a city in Bukowina, which typifies conditions generally in that section of the Near East.

Lighting Fixtures

WHEN the time comes to select the lighting fixtures of your home or building, call upon the facilities of this company:

—facilities that go beyond the mere making and selling of light.

—facilities that include a designing staff that appreciates the influence of correct lighting and the harmony which the "one" proper lighting fixture can impart.

—and a factory of 18,500 square feet, with modern machinery and the best mechanical artists in America, specializing in the manufacture of distinctive designs in lighting fixtures.

—and nine showrooms which group the various fixtures into similar types so that you may select each with due regard for its usage.

A visit to our showrooms will give you a better appreciation of "real art" in lighting fixture designs.

To Show You What Clean Teeth Mean

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Look Now

See how the tooth's whiteness is dimmed by film. Perhaps tartar has formed in some places.

This is to offer you a 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent—the pepsin tooth paste which combats the film.

Able authorities have proved the product by clinical and laboratory tests. The results are beyond any question. Leading dentists everywhere are now urging its adoption.

We ask you to prove it by a 10-day test. Do this for your sake and your children's sake. See for yourself how it will help you to cleaner and whiter teeth.

Film Wrecks the Teeth

That slimy film which you feel on your teeth causes most tooth troubles. Every modern dentist knows that. And for years dental science has sought a way to combat it.

Film is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Now science knows a way to combat it. The way is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. It is now used daily on millions of teeth, largely by dental advice. To those who don't know it we supply a free tube, so they may find it out.

Look Later

See how the teeth have whitened—how the film has disappeared.

Old Ways Don't End It

This film is clinging. It enters crevices and stays. The tooth brush doesn't end it. The ordinary tooth paste does not dissolve it. That's why millions find that well-brushed teeth discolor and decay.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to constantly combat it.

But pepsin must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. So this method long seemed barred. Now science has found a harmless activating method, and teeth can now be daily cleaned as they never were before.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

This means more than pretty teeth. Compare your teeth now with your teeth in ten days and decide what is right for yourself. Cut out the coupon now.

A Baby In Your Home

Science Discovers Remarkable Tonic Influence for Sterility—a Subject of Absorbing Interest, Fully Explained to Every Childless Woman Who Will Send Her Name and Address.

One of the most remarkable results ever attained in the use of a medicinal product is the effect of Sterilitone for the constitutional weaknesses that cause sterility or barrenness.

A Baby Is the Most Wonderful, the Most Interesting of Life's Hopes and Ambitions.

It seems to most people almost incredible that this can be accomplished. A host of married couples yearn for children but nature seems to have been strangely unfriendly. Travel, recreation, careful living and medicinal treatment have all utterly failed heretofore, not only for sterility but for the constitutional conditions or weakness responsible.

But now comes Sterilitone, that exerts an influence so profound in its workings that the entire system seems lifted up, renewed and rejuvenated. The sense of health, of well-being, of strength, is so pronounced that when there is no mechanical obstruction, sterility, due to such causes, may cease, and thus dull, uninteresting, perhaps unhappy homes may be transformed into wonderful palaces by the advent of babies.

This subject is so important, the results will mean so much to many women, that satisfaction in the use of Sterilitone is fully guaranteed.

Every childless woman, who would overcome the condition, should consider it her first duty to know what Sterilitone is and why it should be so wonderful an aid to her. This is fully described in a little book sent free by sealed mail in a plain envelope.

Read this little book. Whether or not you ever decide to use Sterilitone, this little book unfolds facts in nature which most women have never before had explained to them. Fill out the coupon below and mail it today to Dr. H. Will Elders, 1022 Wenz Building, St. Joseph, Mo.

One Dessert Free

A Real-Fruit Dessert For Six People

This is an offer to buy you this week a Jiffy-Jell dessert for six people.

Many housewives don't know what Jiffy-Jell is. Others know them. They know the old-style quick dessert. This is the new.

Jiffy-Jell brings you real-fruit flavors—just the juice. Each package contains a bottle of fruit juice concentrated from cerebellum to cerebellum.

Like walking, we are supposed to do it automatically and as a matter of course. But whether controlled by upper or low part of the brains, it does take brains to be a housewife.

We can't get away from it. As housewives we live and move and have our being. We register as housewives, we vote as housewives, we serve as housewives.

In my precinct just thirty-eight out of a hundred are on the polling list with the significant little symbol after the names—hswf. From Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, president of the National Federation, to Mrs. Reginald D. Smith, president of the remotest club in the district, all register as housewives.

Even if trial jurywomen really want to escape the jury box, they answer with victor modesty "housewife" to the question "What is your occupation."

Lawyers seem to care for the brand of women. Doctors may glow with the rich flush of interest in club work. After all the dogged day laborers as housewives.

Even if she return home from club or office on the same car as her tired husband, it is Polly who puts the kettle on, before she exchanges her hat pins. Every swish of skirt under the big apron Polly donned says, "And we'll all have tea and beefsteak."

Pineapple Juice

Comes condensed in a bottle in Pineapple Jiffy-Jell. We use the juice of half a Pineapple to flavor a pint dessert

Loganberry Juice

Comes condensed in a vial in Loganberry Jiffy-Jell. You get the juice of many berries in a pint dessert

Be Sure and Get This Package

Makes a Pint Dessert Like This

Try One Fruit Free

Present the coupon to your grocer this week. He has packages of any flavor and he will give you a 10c package of Jiffy-Jell in Loganberry or Pineapple flavor free. We pay him for the free package. This will give you three packages the price of two.

Jiffy-Jell comes in many fruit flavors, but the two most delicious are Loganberry and Pineapple. You will find in each package a bottle of the fruit-juice flavor in liquid form, concentrated.

The Jiffy-Jell mixture is ready-sweetened, ready-flavored, of proper color. Simply add a pint of water as directed in each package, then the flavor from the vial, and let cool.

See what you get—a real-fruit dessert for six people. Each will have a wealth of fruit. It will change your whole conception of quick gelatine desserts.

Note that this offer is made on two flavors—on Loganberry and Pineapple only. Your grocer has no right to substitute. We want you to know Jiffy-Jell at its best.

Then always remember that this real-fruit dessert is always at your command. It will bring you the joys of real fruit desserts. It will cost you, when you buy it, only a few cents per dessert. It will cost you less than the fruit alone which we use to get the flavor.

This offer is for this week only. Cut out the coupon now. If your grocer lacks the flavors mentioned, go to another store.

To Serve

Governed constantly by the desire to serve you well and satisfactorily, this institution practices the policy of plain and open dealing.

Taking advantage of patron or customer always reacts disastrously upon the man who pursues the short-sighted policy of tricky dealing.

Our policy is not simply to sell you something—but to serve you.

HOUSEWIVES, MAIDS.

The Background to the Fore.

BY MYRA NYE.

After all it is the day of the housewife. We may consider ourselves as essentially club women. But are we? Who keeps house? Not the maids. There are no maids; or where are, they are unattainable for the most of us.

Through the years club subjects have come in evolution. The year beginning has for its subject conservation. Last year it was reconstruction. During the war it was war work. Before that it was education. Once it was literature long ago. Somewhere in the elementary years, domestic science took a prominent place in the year of clubs. Domestic science was in vogue. It loomed large on the periphery of club circles. Today housework is relegated from cerebellum to cerebrum to do it automatically and as a matter of course. But whether controlled by upper or low part of the brains, it does take brains to be a housewife.

We can't get away from it. As housewives we live and move and have our being. We register as housewives, we vote as housewives, we serve as housewives.

In my precinct just thirty-eight out of a hundred are on the polling list with the significant little symbol after the names—hswf. From Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, president of the National Federation, to Reginald D. Smith, president of the remotest club in the district, all register as housewives.

Even if trial jurywomen really want to escape the jury box, they answer with victor modesty "housewife" to the question "What is your occupation."

Lawyers seem to care for the brand of women. Doctors may glow with the rich flush of interest in club work. After all the dogged day laborers as housewives.

Even if she return home from club or office on the same car as her tired husband, it is Polly who puts the kettle on, before she exchanges her hat pins. Every swish of skirt under the big apron Polly donned says, "And we'll all have tea and beefsteak."

Polly has not "sour grapes" with Polly, as far as maids are concerned. What she can't get, she really doesn't want. She remembers with dismay the prattling progeny of maids who went through the kitchen before the maidless era. She feels like a slave set free. The hideous half hours spent in employment agencies are of the past.

Once I secured a "girl" from a registry, whose name I shall mention. She rode with me on the street car. Out of a collarless neck started and forgot to stop, even when it reached ears, like other chickens I have known, she was all neck. As we neared Third street, she said she must get off to go up to Spring to "grip" she had up there. Where, I knew not where. She was to meet me at the Pacific Electric to take the next car with me for my suburban home.

Then I had regarded Spring merely as a street of commerce with banks. But that day Spring became as cryptic as Egypt, as mysterious as Death Valley Desert in a sandstorm, swallowed her of the unknown forever. So far as I know, she has never been heard of nor seen since. She had escaped from the home where her gullible scapegrace was in vogue.

Upon telephoning, the maid made it clear to me in no uncertain tones that I was, or should be, the child's keeper. Being impressed with my need, as I had been by her vocabulary in regard to the long neck, she did, however, become another maid.

At the time it was an 18-year-old girl who weighed a little under 200 pounds. Her figure was a marvel of symmetry, even with Juno. She had coal black hair like Geraldine Farrar. Her smile was as big as her body. Besides being a big girl it was a continuous performance with an innocuous ingenue, not unlike Fatty Arbuckle's, that couldn't help liking her.

She came to me with just one dress and two aprons. No shoes. All her belongings were in a small bundle parcel. I was told to pay wages to a social service bureau. That seemed un-American. (The delusions and snares of the red-brow, reformatory talk that one into is amazing.) I paid her wages. She had done good work and she deserved it. Moreover, I had lost the address of the bureau.

Three months after Minnie's arrival I entertained twelve of my most exclusive friends at luncheon in honor of a bride. At the last minute Minnie emerged from her room clad radiantly in sky blue silk. It took yards and yards of it to make her 190 pounds. She had high heeled pumps and silk stockings that now would cost her wages for all the time she was at work. Altogether she looked more the bride and she disappeared, my whispered entreaty to don an apron while she waited on the table.

The last I heard of Minnie she had left her name in the Police annals.

That had been her undoing. Such experiences we are glad to be rid of our Minnies and we reduce our own entertainments to terms of dollars and cents with small pride.

Here is the report of one housewife friend for one week: Savings over wages, $6. Her board, $5. (I still admit that is a considerable estimate.) Average waste of a maid, $1.50. Bredikage, $1. Delicate garments of lingerie and linen laundered, $1.50. Last instead of buying them she admired, $16.50, entertained for lunch and serving cold chicken, avocado salad, dessert and salted nuts—produced a saving of $4; total, $29. She feels it is quite worth while to be a housewife as well as a woman.

APPROPRIATE NAME.

During the recent epidemic for renaming old established spots after heroes brought into being by the great war, Charles M. Fay was called upon to speak at one of the rechristening exercises. He showed how appropriate the name was and then said:

"Our country reminds me of an incident several years ago. I was on the frontier and the citizens were to give their little baby a name. Suddenly a voice boomed from the crowd: 'Gentlemen, we name this here burg Cheyenne.'

"Cheyenne do yuh wanter name it?' demanded the chairman of the meeting.

"Cheyenne suited the man with the gun, but I never goin's to be a big station.'"—

Face Paint Takes Removes Skin

"A few years ago only women painted their faces," Madison. "It was a sign of distinction and was tolerated in the classes. The custom has become so general we must admit it is no longer and is to be shelved as soon as possible.

How foolish to resort to the use of this sort, absorbing from the moral standpoints when it is easy to obtain a truly natural result by the use of ordinary means. This may be had at any drug store in one-ounce packages. The wax is so effective and so easy to use need think of every day. Simply the purpose is applied like cold cream at night, and washed off in the morning, at once begins to show its wonderful rejuvenating effects. Not only does the lifeless surface scale off, but gradually clearing the skin of all beautiful underneath. Blackheads, with it all surface defects, freckles, pimples, chaps, moth patches and liver spots.

Difficult to Keep Hair Wavy?

If you have not yet used the ailmentine way, by all means do so. You'll never again use the old way of ed iron. The curling iron makes the hair perfectly natural and the hair is left soft and beautifully lustrous, not dry, brittle and scorched. The ailmentine liquid comes also as a beautiful dressing for the hair. It is neither sticky nor greasy, but very pleasant to use. It should be applied at night with a clean soft brush, and in the latter through the hair from the roots to the tip.

The hair will have the appearance and it will be easy to manage. Better how you do it up—it will stay that way—the liquid frees itself of dandruff and keeps the hair healthy. Adv.

TO RELIEVE CATARRH DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrh in the head, are hard of hearing or have Deafness or head noises in your drumming sensation, try this: Secure a small bottle of Parmint (double strength) from your druggist or send your name and address to Parmint Co., 1 Parmint Bldg., Kalamazoo, Mich., and they will send you a trial package free. Use as directed. It is pleasant to take, quick in results and is inexpensive. Many have used it for Catarrh, Deafness and Head Noises and recommend it to their friends. Adv.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws its beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

To quickly reach every handicapped soldier, sailor or marine who is entitled to training under the law, the Federal Board of Vocational Education is sending a circular letter to every Mayor in the United States, asking co-operation.

The responses from the Mayors over the country to date indicate that these public officials are only too glad to co-operate with the board. Many have indicated that they would do all in their power to help. All have asked for instructions.

Literature giving instructions how to reach the nearest district office of the board, and other information calculated to supply the need of the handicapped men, is now being placed in the hands of every Mayor in the United States. Men in need of training will thus be able to get the information they need from the chief executive of their home towns.

In order to relieve the working class of the pressure caused by the high cost of living, Mitsubishi & Co. has donated 1,000,000 yen ($500,000) to the municipality of Tokio to build, equip and run cheap restaurants in different wards of the city. They are to have a capacity for providing meals for 150 persons at one time. The restaurants are to cost 25,000 yen ($12,500) each, and the charge for a meal is to be about 10 or 15 sen (10 or 15 cents.) It promises to be a boon to the poor working class.

Through the will of the late George W. Elkins, financier and philanthropist, in Norristown, the city of Philadelphia has become the possessor of a collection of paintings unsurpassed, it is said, by any in this country, with the possible exception of that of the Metropolitan Art Museum in New York.

Mr. Elkins bequeathed to the city his magnificent collection, valued at $2,500,000. Already in possession of the wonderful John G. Johnson collection, valued at $4,500,000; the Wilstach paintings, worth at least $1,000,000, and the collection of early American portraits in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, according to connoisseurs, now owns an array of old and modern masters that has few, if any, peers in the United States.

The Massachusetts State department of health has agreed to cooperate with the American Red Cross in the development of public health nursing. Seven other States have made similar agreements. In launching its new programme of health protection and disease prevention, the Red Cross proposed to the various State boards of health that they enter into an arrangement whereby one State supervising nurse, employed jointly by the board of health and the Red Cross, should develop public health nursing, with the purpose of co-ordinating the two agencies so that duplication might be avoided.

The boards of health of Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, North Carolina, Alabama, Minnesota, Utah and Montana have already agreed to this plan, while seven States have accepted it tentatively and nine more have it under consideration.

WOMEN

Women barbers are numerous in the larger cities and towns of Sweden, and many of them own the shops in which they work.

The women street cleaners in Cologne are now officially known as "Stadtische Elktrische Strassenbahnschienenreinigungsfrau."

Mrs. John Biddle, of Athens, O., age 74, was mother of fourteen children. Thirteen of her children were school teachers during their early lives and seven of her eight sons are now practicing physicians. With the exception of two years since 1882 the name of Biddle has appeared in the Ohio University student roll every year.

Miss Emelyne McKenzie, Nova Scotia's first woman lawyer, made her first appearance in court recently and won her first case.

The Southern Rice Growers' Association has sent Mrs. Mary A. Hayes to London to take charge of its office there. Mrs. Hayes is thoroughly conversant with every phase of rice growing.

The first women to receive a degree from any Canadian university were Queen Mary and the Countess of Aberdeen.

The frame of a mop patented by a woman inventor is U-shaped and made of resilient metal, causing the fabric portion to spread over a considerable area as it is used.

As the first woman war worker to receive the Distinguished Service Medal from the United States, Miss Mary Vail Andrews has an unusual distinction. Besides this, Miss Andrews, who was a Red Cross canteen worker in France, has been awarded the Croix de Guerre. The Distinguished Service Medal was presented to Miss Andrews by Gen. Pershing. Only about 600 such medals were awarded, and with the exception of that presented to Miss Andrews, all were given to soldiers for exceptional bravery.

Women's part in the war has excited unusual interest, but nowhere is it greater than in Washington, where thousands of petticoat patriots are still working for Uncle Sam. "And which are the best workers the plain girls or the pretty ones?" asked Senator Penrose of one of the Treasury officials. "Well, it's this way," was the answer. "The plain girls don't make so many mistakes, but no one finds fault when the pretty ones made them; so I guess it's about fifty-fifty."

The women of Arizona are determined to wear good looking hats in spite of the prices which are so prohibitive. In Winslow, Miss Hazel Zimmerman, Home Demonstration Agent of the Agricultural Extension Service, spent six days conducting a millinery school. The women report their work as being most successful. One woman writes: "I gained from this instruction knowledge that cannot be valued in dollars and cents. The construction of hats has always been a mystery to me until this week. We hope that we may have more extension work this winter." The total number of women enrolled in the millinery school at Winslow was thirty and the total saving to the community as estimated by the women themselves, is over $200.

Just O'er the Horizon---Christmas

Bullock's Prepays Purchases Anywhere in the United States.

—Shipments that can be contained within one permissible parcel post package—Bullock's will prepay via parcel post to any point in the world that is reached by parcel post.

—And already Bullock's has evolved into a busy Christmas Store. Everywhere the "Personality of Gift" is delightfully obvious. Everywhere the advantages of "November Christmas Shopping" are profitably evident to those who have in the past deferred their Christmas Spirit until the last busy moment.

—There are so many, many reasons why one should — and few good reasons why one should not "Christmashop" now at Bullock's—and if you would know more specifically, please direct your attention and your Giftable Tendencies to Bullock's Third Floor on Monday or Tuesday or any Weekaday—and witness that Galaxy of Gifts that has been collected by Bullock's Gift Suggestion Bureau.

BULLOCK'S WILL BE OPEN TILL 1 O'CLOCK ONLY EACH SATURDAY THROUGHOUT THE YEAR

BULLOCK'S, of course, is the home of Santa Claus' Own Toy Store. (Ask any little tot from three to six credulous years of age, if you have any doubts.) The entire Fifth Floor has been converted into one compact Kingdom of Toys and it is needless to point out the advantages and Joys of selecting toys at this early day. Bullock's will wrap them and pack them and hold them at your disposal to be delivered when you direct. Each day Santa Claus himself is very much in evidence, lending his omnipotent ears to the whispered overtures of childhood. And there is the ably equipped Doll Hospital to rehead, relimb and repair the dolly who has "met by such a very serious accident." Only the other day a dolly entered with little less than a torso, and believe it or not, when the operation was completed—she fared forth with all faculties affixed in a truly miraculous fashion. Certainly surgical skill has made phenomenal strides in Bullock's Doll Hospital.

A BULLOCK Glove Bond answers the Gift Problem to a nicety, whether for man or woman. It is particularly appreciated by woman, for she can hardly have too many gloves, you know, and a Bullock Glove Bond permits her to choose her own gloves at any time from those "not merely Gloves" at Bullock's.

NO LONGER should one puzzle and ponder anent the propitious object to give to Man, Woman or Child—for it is the purpose of the Gift Suggestion Bureau to solve your Gift Problem quickly, resultfully and ideally. Gifted Gift Connoisseurs have entered every Section of Bullock's and sought out the Gift Superlatives, whether of Handkerchiefs, Jewelry or Furniture—oh, not a few, mind you, but an eloquent number—and all of them have been relegated to the Third Floor and arranged conveniently for your instant visualization. The "power of suggestion" is theirs to an ineffable degree—and you may benefit immeasurably from this Bullock's Christmas Service by simply taking the time to investigate the Purposes and Performances of The Gift Suggestion Bureau the very next time you come to Bullock's.

THEN there is the Men's Store, "purveyor particular" of Christmas Toggery for Man. Of silk shirts there are patterns and qualities to grasp the most fastidious fancy. And there are Ties ad infinitum of character and caste. Hosiery, Robes, Jackets and Handkerchiefs planned with no other thought but Christmas in mind. Nothing is lacking—everything is there and ready now. First Floor.

HANDKERCHIEFS in more than 2000 different styles — surely sufficient latitude here—and many of them arranged three or more in a tidy, tiny, Gift Box—daintily tied with ribbon and endowed with an always suitable sentiment. When in doubt give Bullock's handkerchiefs, but choose them now when the variety is plentiful.

BULLOCK'S Art and Gift Store (Hill Street Building) is really a perpetual "Christmas Rendezvous"—but now it has been more prodigal with its Giftlore than at this very moment. Art Needlework artistry (it's principle forte and while none the less absorbed with devotees—still the choicest variety of Gift Articles presents Christmas Opportunities that should fail to know. A very pleasant full day may be devoted to exploring this Unique and Unusual Treasury of

THE Negligee Section is exhibiting its full Christmas Assortment of Robes (Silk, Corduroy, Beacon Robes.) Petticoats exquisite hand embroidered negligees that will delight the heart of many women on Christmas Morn.

AND there are the many other Gift Sections of Bullock's—all will be ready on Monday to convince you that now is the opportune Christmas Shopping time.

NEW FILM STARS BRIGHTEN BILL.

Will Rogers to Make Debut in Screen Play.

Ince Costars to Appear in Soldier Feature.

Hart in an Unusual Role; New Story of North.

New stars, unusual plays and novelties in presentation will make the present week attractive for local patrons of the screen. The principal luminary whose appearance is awaited with interest is Will Rogers, whose Goldwyn production is to have its local showing under the Rothapfel banner. Douglas MacLean and Doris May, the new Ince estars, are also featured in the week's bill.

A marked departure in plays of the Frozen North is promised in James Oliver Curwood's "Back to God's Country." William S. Hart is to make his debut as "John Petticoats," which name is sufficient indication of a novelty role for this star. A thrill-producer is expected in "The Brute Breaker."

Then there will be a revival of "Broken Blossoms" and "The Hoodlum" and a continuation of "The Miracle Man" and "Checkers" as local attractions, to increase the glamour of the photoplay feature realm.

California.

Will Rogers, Follies star, ex-cowboy lariat expert, and now featured in Goldwyn productions, will appear in "Almost a Husband" at the California Theater beginning today. This is S. L. Rothapfel's second presentation. This is said to be a gripping story of a Mississippi River town, made famous by Opie Read's said everyone will feel that they have been made just a little better for having seen the quaint screen star in this homely story of a humble school-teacher who wasn't sure whether he was married or not.

Mr. Rothapfel announces that other features of his new programme will include a solo by Mme. Constance Balfour, the soprano; a 'cello number by Mme. Christine Timner; another musical s the California Concert Orchestra of forty men, with appropriate lighting and scenic effects; the California Chorus in a novel number, and a Prizma color feature of unusual beauty.

Tally's Kinema.

A double bill will grace the stage and screen of Tally's Kinema beginning today. Interest will be centered upon the first showing of James Oliver Curwood's romance of the ice-fields, "Back to God's Country," in which Nell Shipmann and Wheeler Oakman are featured. With beasts of the frozen forests as playmates of the picturesque character, Dolores, swimming girl of the Arctic, with its beauty of the woodlands and the Canadian wilds as scenic background, this drama is expected to provide more than ordinary entertainment. One of the principal characters is Wapi the Killer, a wolf-dog bred of the wild strain, who fights a great battle with his own kind for the protection of his mistress.

This will be the second week of Lerdo's Grand Mexican Orchestra on the Kinema stage. Dancers, marimba bands and soloists will vie with each other for applause.

Maestro Lerdo has arranged for the playing of one of his original overtures.

Grauman's.

There's a film revelation promised for those who see "John Petticoat," William S. Hart's newest picture, which comes to Grauman's Theater next week. It's a far cry from a tamer of western bad men to a he-dressmaker, and it may seem impossible to visualize Bill Hart as a modiste, yet this virile, rough-and-ready exponent of far west characters assumes the role of a French dressmaker in "John Petticoats," and furthermore he accomplishes its delineation in a way that bids fair to double his popularity by reason of its being such a contrast to his usual style of characterizations.

"The Hayseed," in which "Fatty" Arbuckle enacts the part of a rural mail carrier, is the joy-bringer for the coming week. Buster Keaton, Molly Malone, Jack Coogan and other comiques aid and abet "Rotund Roscoe" in this mirthful production, and there is a possibility that the great Arbuckle himself will lead the orchestra as a guest conductor.

C. Sharpe Minor will offer "Old Black Joe" in a series of variations on the organ. Grauman's Orchestra, conducted by Arthur Kay, is to play an ensemble of selections from Gustav Luders' comic opera "Prince of Pilsen."

Superba.

"The Brute Breaker," hailed as a big outdoor melodrama, comes to the Superba Sunday.

"The Brute Breaker" is a Universal production, with Frank Mayo and Kathryn Adams heading the cast. It was produced by Lynn Reynolds from the story by Johnstone McCulley, former Los Angeles newspaper man who is now numbered among the country's best-known writers of out-door fiction.

Symphony.

"The Miracle Man," George Loane Tucker's photoplay of the regeneration of underworld people, continues to play to capacity houses at every showing at the Symphony, despite the fact that more than 250,000 persons have already seen the picture in Los Angeles. That "The Miracle Man" is not a one-time picture is evidenced by the fact that the ushers and doorkeepers at the Symphony have noticed the same people come two and three times to see the Tucker masterpiece during its Broadway showing.

Clune's Broadway.

Two new co-stars will hold the screen at Clune's Broadway, beginning today, appearing in a Thomas H. Ince production entitled "Twenty-three and a Half Hours' Leave," Doris May and Douglas MacLean are their names, and while they both hold a popular place among lovers of the motion pictures, this is their initial appearance together as co-stars.

"Twenty-three and a Half Hours' Leave" is an adaptation from the humorous story of army camp life by Mary Roberts Rinehart, which recently appeared in one of the popular magazines. It is in no sense of the word a "war picture," but is a comedy.

Doris May is just past her seventeenth birthday and beside her youth has talent and charm. Douglas MacLean was formerly on the stage at the Morosco.

The story deals with the misadventures of a certain Sergt. Gray, whose strong sense of humor, high spirits and daredevilry get him into all kinds of trouble. He falls in love with the daughter of the colonel of his regiment. He also makes a bet with his pals in camp that he will breakfast with the colonel and partake of the famous bran muffins, of which the colonel is so fond, despite the fact that he is in disgrace with the colonel for his continual breaches of army discipline, and has but twenty-three and a half hours in which to accomplish his purpose.

Beside the feature attraction a Burton Holmes travelogue, "Around About London," a Bruce scenic entitled "Separate Trails" and a Pathe news picture will enhance the value of the programme.

Alhambra.

The Alhambra Theater will offer a second week's showing of Henry Blossom's famous racing story, "Checkers," starting today. Each afternoon and evening last week found lines waiting for admittance, with the result that a new box-office record was established at the theater. "Checkers," according to the critics, is one of the season's thrillers. No camouflage was used in the big train-wreck scenes, and the derby scenes are exciting. In addition to this feature the management is offering a California singer in melodious selections. News views and other picture novelties complete the current attraction at the Alhambra.

Tally's Broadway.

Mary Pickford will pay Los Angeles a return visit in her First National production "The Hoodlum," at Tally's Broadway beginning tomorrow.

"The Hoodlum" recently played a successful engagement at the Kinema. The story deals with the spoiled, pampered granddaughter of Alexander Guthrie, who usually has his own ways in all dealings. But running up against the equally stubborn spirit of his little ward, starts the fun. The girl leaves her palatial home to become one of those who dwell in Craigen street, a back alley in the lower East Side in New York. Her dealings with every stratum of life in that quarter, provide audiences with laughter and the final episodes, bringing happiness to the child, are romantic.

De Luxe.

Douglas Fairbanks in "His Majesty, the American" is the offering at the De Luxe today and tomorrow. It is a wholesome picture, full of good clean fun and humor, up to the minute in its appeal. It concerns one William Brooks, played by Fairbanks, who lives on thrills and excitement all because he has a secret sorrow and he forgets his troubles in the adventures that he courts. His quest for thrills leads him from New York to the Mexican border and then to Europe.

Marjory Daw is leading woman, and Frank Campeau, Lillian Langdon, Sam Southern, Albert McQuarrie, Jay Dwiggins and others are in the cast. "His Majesty, the American" is the first Fairbanks release under the banner of the United Artists' Corporation, the so-called "Big Four."

Garrick.

"Broken Blossoms" is booked for a week's engagement, starting today, at the Garrick, this being the first engagement here at popular prices.

"Broken Blossoms" has been stamped by critics throughout the country as one of the greatest pictures ever produced by D. W. Griffith.

EGAN FACULTY RECITAL.

The first event of importance on the season's programme at the Egan School is the faculty recital, which will be given, November 25 and 26. All the artist members of the faculty, representing the vocal, instrumental, drama and dance departments, will be presented on this occasion. During December the head of each department will present the students in affairs of unusual variety. The second affair of the season will be the complete vaudeville performance, to be given by all departments, under the personal direction of Frank Egan. The Sunday salons of last season will be resumed. The first one will be complimentary to Frances X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, who will be in the city for an engagement at the Mason Operahouse.

WILL ROGERS HAD THE WILLIES ONCE.

STILL GETS THEM WHEN HE THINKS OF EARLY EXPERIENCE.

Many lives are a matter of anecdotes, and Will Rogers's life is all of that, for he has, in a way, made a business of anecdotes. But the choice anecdote of his career is one which he doesn't often speak of.

"It still gives me the willies when I think of it!" he says classically. But after due urging, he will tell you something like this:

"Somehow or other I left cowboying for the vaudeville stage, making a feature of my ability, so to speak, to swing a rope. My whole act consisted of doing tricks with a lariat and the only time I opened my mouth was to yawn or maybe say 'Thank you' to the admiring audiences.

"Those were the days when I used to come first on the bill so as to put people into a state of mind where they thought anything else must be good, I suppose.

"Well, one day all the ghosts of the dead Indians, over whose graves I had whooping-cough in my boyhood must have caught me at last, because all of a sudden unseen fingers grabbed my rope and began to do all sorts of things to it, pulling it this way, that way, the other way, and both ways and sorely perplexing me. I suspect I commenced to get red in the face and I was sorely afraid that the audience was getting red in the eye.

"In my agony I breathed a silent prayer and said to myself, 'Words, come to me!' And they came. I don't know from where, but they came. 'Swinging a rope is all right,' I remember saying, 'when your neck ain't in it. Then it's hell.' I heard some faint titters. Emboldened I went on: 'Out West where I come from, they won't let me play with this rope. They think I might hurt myself!'

"Well, that audience started to laugh and forgot to look at the lariat, and I was saved. After that I started to make wise cracks regularly until the time came when I hardly did anything with my lariat, but made my tongue wag instead so as to make a pleasant and profitable living.

"George Cohan once said that life is a funny proposition, and I believe there was a man somewhere back in the seventh century who also remarked that. In fact, I understand, it was his last remark, as in those days they didn't tolerate platitudes. But now a man can say anything and get away with it, unless he says he's for prohibition and means it and there are men about. Well, life is really a funny proposition. After I had dropped my pantomime with my lariat and took up talking for a living along comes Samuel Goldwyn and before I know what has happened he has me working in what they call the silent drama, where people can see your lips move, but can't hear the wisdom of your inmost brain.

"So now I'm back where I started from except that they have taken away my rope and given me a director who is a food feller, but talks through a megaphone. Anyhow, I like the movies, because you can meet so many famous operatic stars in them."

ZOELLNER'S THIRD CONCERT.

The Zoellner Quartette has announced a most attractive programme for their third concert in their series of ten chamber music evenings. The opening work will be a Mozart quartette in D minor. Following this is the Romantic Serenade Op. 25 of Jan Brandts-Buys. Twice before have the Zoellners played in Los Angeles this interesting Dutchman's work, arousing such enthusiasm that a third rendition has been asked for by the Zoellner Quartette subscribers.

The Romantic Serenade received its first hearing in America through the Zoellners, when they played it at Aeolian Hall, New York, during the season of 1913-14. The work was well received, Krehbiel, the veteran critic, saying it was like "pouring new wine into old bottles."

The Zoellners will play Brandts-Buys in Chicago on February 16, and just recently played it in a recital for the Tuesday Musicale of Pasadena. The programme will be concluded by a first performance of an Etude de Concert for quartette by Sinigaglia.

IN "SIX BEST CELLARS."

Elsa Lorimer, who has just completed her work in "Too Much Johnson," Bryant Washburn's latest comedy, has been assigned the part of Mrs. Hammond in the new Bryant Washburn production, "Six Best Cellars." This prohibition farce promises to be one of the greatest comedies ever offered in the cinema world.

MUSIC REVUE IS NOVELTY

Henry Miller Play to Have Stock Production.

John Kellerd will Appear in Shakespeare.

Music and Dance Reign on Vaudeville Stage.

Novelty during the present week will be provided by the arrival of a musical comedy company, in what is promised as a lively revue. The company has had marked success in San Francisco, and contains a number of clever people in leading roles, with a chorus of girls.

The stock bills of the week are featured by a local production of "The Rainbow," a Henry Miller success, "Civilian Clothes" continues its successful run, being now in its twenty-first week, while a new offering is scheduled for the Burbank.

John E. Kellerd remains over at the Mason, presenting a repertoire of Shakespearean plays, including "Hamlet," "Othello," Julius Caesar," "Merchant of Venice," and "Macbeth."

Dancing and musical entertainment will add the color of artistry to the amusement of the vaudeville bills.

Clune's Auditorium.

Panchon and March will open a week's engagement here in their revue, "Let's Go," tomorrow night at Clune's Auditorium.

"Let's Go" has just concluded a sixteen weeks' engagement in San Francisco, where capacity houses were daily events. The revue is a merry hodge-podge of comedy, music, "pep" and girls—thirty of the most beautiful to be found in the world.

Comedy scenes of the most uproarious sort follow the vaudeville turns; dancing is interspersed throughout the entire evening's entertainment, and one novelty follows on the heels of another.

Panchon and Marco scored effectively in their several tours of the Orpheum circuit, but they are at their best in "Let's Go." The supporting cast includes Harry Hines, blackface comedian; Mme. Donalda Ayer, prima donna; Dave Lerner, Eileen Miller, Nelson and Chain, and Mildred Mayo.

Orpheum.

Albertina Rasch, one of the acknowledged leaders of ballet work in America, will topline the bill beginning tomorrow matinee. Rasch has confined herself to classic and interpretative, and her personal skill has been imparted to her assistants. The act is all a creation of Mlle. Rasch, in that she trained the girls, designed the costumes and sets, selected the music, and plays the piano for the individual numbers.

Perhaps the most unique feature of the new bill is proffered by James J. Morton, who is a sort of animated programme; in his own humorous way he introduces each and every act. The Sharrocks, Harry and Emma, in their stunt, "Behind the Grand Stand," are also featured on the new bill. They come in as fair ground fakers, "make a pitch" and do their turn; then he walks through the audience and she performs ming reading tricks. Bryan Lee and Mary Cranston have a war skit with the title of "A Britany Romance." "Color Gems" is a posing act with a scheme of color blending. William Ebs has a novelty in a ventriloquial act, Carl Emmy's pets and the Kanazawa Japanese, boys, equilibrists, are on the bill. The only act to hold over is "Not Yet, Marie" the musical comedy.

Pantages.

A musical comedy, "Oh, Teddy," is the feature of the new show at Pantages, beginning with tomorrow's matinee, with a programme of vaudeville acts, all of which are said to be strictly equal to the Pantages standard of excellence. "Oh, Teddy," with its chorus of girls, who exhibit attractive costumes, are guaranteed to sing and dance themselves to favor with Pantages audiences. Tommy Toner and Hudson Freeborn furnish the comedy, and Grace Lang, Nell Halpin and Torrent Howard appear in the other leading roles.

Frank Bush, announced as "The World's Greatest Story Teller," is one of the standard vaudeville acts; G. Swayne Gordon and company offer a sketch in which there are two sweethearts and a fickle youth, with other characters who join in portraying city life. Georgia Howard is a youthful and attractive violinist. Cook and Vernon give a neat dancing act with some good comedy. Heras and Preston have an act which permits the exhibition of some difficult tricks and some lively novelty tumbling. Also there will be another new Harold Lloyd comedy picture and the latest views of the leading events.

Mason.

John E. Kellerd, the actor who has appeared to advantage at the Mason in a varied repertoire, has arranged to extend his stay for one more week, during which he proposes to present only the work of the master-dramatist. He will be seen in five of the most poignantly beautiful and poetic of the Shakespearean tragedies.

Monday night Mr. Kellerd will present his portrayal of "the melancholy Dane" in "Hamlet." Tuesday evening he will be seen in his only performance of "Othello." Wednesday matinee and Friday night Mr. Kellerd will appear in "Julius Caesar," playing the role of Marc Antony. Wednesday night and Saturday matinee he will be seen as Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice." The week of Shakespeare will be brought to an end on Saturday evening when Mr. Kellerd will present for the first and only time in this city, "Macbeth."

SEASON ADVANCING; MANY EVENTS LISTED.

The calendar of musical events is plainly indicative of the fact that the season is now in full swing, with more attractions for the lover of melody than ever before in the history of this city. Seldom, indeed, has Los Angeles had three symphony concerts in a week—never previously by local organizations. This week, however, will be exceptional in the appearance of both the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, its first concert of the year, and the Philharmonic. Both bodies are to give "pops" in addition to the regular symphony programmes. Besides there will be the appearance of the Zoellner Quartette in their programme, while the new Saslavsky Trio is shortly to make its debut.

The visiting artists of the week will be the Duncan Dancers, with George Copeland, the pianist.

With a descent from the aesthetic realm to the land of jazz, it is to be noted that the Syncopated Orchestra will make one more appearance on Tuesday evening. They won much approval by the novelty of their work during the past week.

"Messiah" for Holidays.

A presentation of the "Messiah" is to be given Christmas Day by the First Baptist Choir of Long Beach, directed by John A. Van Pelt of Los Angeles. Mr. Van Pelt has recently had success with short community singing features. He also appeared in a song programme including selections by Sidney Homer Fay Foster, Maude White and other American composers, Armistice Day at the Shakespeare Club in Pasadena.

Compliments Engel.

S. Camillo Engel has received a very interesting letter from Mary Garden as regards his new booklet on "The Spirit of the Art of Singing." She declared that it is big with intelligence and indorses it highly. Mr. Engel has recently been quite successful with his literary efforts.

Keen on Etiquette.

SOME of the complications of etiquette incident to the visit of the Prince of Wales are a reminder of Colman's politeness to George IV when the latter was prince regent.

"Why, Colman," said the Regent, "you are older than I am!"

"Oh, no sir," replied Colman, "I could not take the liberty of coming into the world before your Royal Highness."—[Philadelphia Ledger.

OPENING CONCERT OF SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Opening its twenty-third season, and at the same time launching a new season because of its changed personnel, the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra will offer its first symphonic concert next Friday afternoon at Clune's Auditorium. This will be followed by the initial popular concert Sunday afternoon, November 23.

A capacity house is indicated in the demands that have been made for reservations, and the season ticket sale has surpassed any in the previous twenty-two years, it is stated.

The complete programme for Friday afternoon is as follows: "Pioneer Overture," Rossetter Gleason Cole; Mozart Concerto in E flat, played by Alexander Saslavsky, concertmaster and first violin; Tschaikowsky's first symphony, "Winter Day Dreams." Chausson's "Poeme," Saslavsky playing; "Fireworks," Igor Stravinsky. The appearance of Saslavsky as violin soloist will be his Los Angeles debut with this orchestra.

At the popular concert Mme. Anna Sprotte, will be the soloist. She will sing the "Carmen" aria, Habanera, and Ambrose Thomas's "Knowest Thou the Land?" "Fireworks" and the "Pioneer Overture" will be repeated, the other numbers of the popular concert programme being "Moment Musicale," orchestrated by Adolf Tandler; "L'Arlesienne," Suite No. 1, Bizet; "Finlandia Tone-Poeme" Sibelius.

Adolph Tandler begins his sixth season as leader of the symphony next Friday. Axel Simonsen, Pryor Moore and John Musso will appear as heads of different sections, all of them having played with the Symphony Orchestra before. New heads of sections are Saslavsky, violins, and Jaime Overton, assistant concertmaster; Leonard de Lorenzo, flute; Alfred de Busscher, oboe; Wendell Hoss, French horn; Jacob Grupp, trumpet; Otto Pauer, viola, and Carl Kuhne, clarinet.

THE ENSEMBLE TREND.

By Jeanne Redman.

The tendency of music is toward orchestral forms and away from solo instruments. The reign of the virtuoso is drawing to a close, and no one realizes this so much as the virtuoso himself. Indeed, the whole trend of world thought is toward combinations of excellencies, combinations where ensemble action will achieve greater effect and more solid greater. Mere personality in art expression is beginning to be frowned upon by the artists themselves, who, when sincerely trying to give the best to their public, rather than selfishly essaying to enhance a reputation, naturally turn to a method that will produce the most complete art.

The orchestra is the logical goal of such sincere men for it is indisputable that a body of men of the ability of a Kreisler, a Godowsky, or a Cassals would be more valuable as music than any one of them alone. In the first place one who thoroughly understands music demands a variety of texture in his concerts and this is only possible when many different kinds of instruments are attuned together.

The violin, 'cello, the brass and woodwinds, each has a distinct and precise appeal, that when played together gives a richness and variety immeasureably more solid than when used solo. Again it is impossible to render adequately the best music by one instrument, for those men of genius who wrote the great classics realized, maybe only unconsciously felt, that the individual idiosyncracy of highly skillful craftsmen on instruments might destroy the great architecture of their creations by the accentuation of unimportant ornaments. It is certain that they knew that technique alone, when brought to a superb mastery, could, and does, easily produce pure mechanical exaltation in the player which, in itself gives birth to a feeling of infallibility.

This feeling of infallibility often misinterprets by too much facility the work of a master, which it should render as truly as possible. But the greatest need for the orchestra lies in its greater intensity of emotional importance, and this intensity is what we of today absolutely demand much more than did the generations of any other time.

Modern life has produced an insatiable thirst for novelty, complex art forms and large expression. The men who are most alive to the changes taking place about them have felt this. As a few examples of my contention, consider the following men and women who have reduced some of their virtuosity in favor of ensemble music: Kreisler, with his chamber music concerts and his composing, comes first to mind. Yeaye, master violinist, conducts an orchestra; Gabrilowitsch, one of the finest of living Chopin-players, also devotes himself to orchestra; Nicolai Sokoloff, violinist, also—but the list is long. In our own city there are many who have won their laurels with a solo instrument who have turned to ensemble; Christian Timmer, sole violinist par excellence, asserts and acts his faith in chamber music; Lili Petchnikoff, masterful and free, and Madame Ryder Possart, superb pianist, combine for chamber music; May Macdonald Hope, devoting her best efforts to ensemble; indeed, if we of necessity leave the singers out, the contention carries itself.

PANCAKE KING OF YANK ARMY.

The pancake king of the Yank army arrived in Chicago recently with two records of which he is very proud. At Conflans, near Metz, he competed for the championship of the army against one of Childs' New York flapjack tossers and won with a record of 8000 pancakes in twenty hours, and at Verdun he carried away the honor of being the greatest cook of ham and eggs in France, frying a barrel of ham and ninety dozen eggs between 7 a.m. and 4 p.m., 625 portions.

When the "king" left Chicago to go abroad he was Capt. Fred Anderson of the Salvation Army, captain for many years of the Englewood branch, but he had not been across long before he became known as "Flapjack" Freddie. Last July the Stars and Stripes announced that it would back him against any cook in France for speed and quality of his pancakes, and one of Childs' window slingers accepted the def. With Anderson's victory came the title "Pancake King," which he holds today. Childs' man said, "I have been out of practice for seven months." To which Anderson replied, "I have had nothing else during that time."

Anderson had a roving assignment, and his equipment consisted of a big truck, barrels of flour, a couple of tubs and a "flapjack wheelbarrow." This consisted of a sheet-iron stove, with a steel plate top 3½x4 feet, one wheel, handles and four legs. The body was a steel stove heated by gasoline. When the troops stopped, Anderson stopped with them and set up his equipment. He filled the tub with wheat and cornmeal, as many eggs as he could get, baking powder, plenty of sugar and a little salt. One of the soldiers would stir up the batter with a four-foot stick and "Flapjack" Freddie would start to cook. It took him one hour to use a tub of batter which produced 2000 small or 1000 large cakes. He turned these with a two-foot knife and served with sugar syrup or plain sugar.—[Salvation Army Service News.

A FANCY TROLLEY LINE.

St. Petersburg, Florida, has bought the city trolley system, and proposes to operate it solely "for the benefit of citizens and their visitors," as is hospitably said. The unlovely cars of the mercenary period, an outrage to municipal esthetics, are therefore to go, and the new cars will be painted a soft French gray, with gold trimmings. The legend Municipal Railway will be artistically emblazoned on the sides. Yet the fares will not be a penny higher than when the cars were green, red and ramshackle. One may ride harmoniously at the usual rates.

MUSIC REVIEW IS NOVELTY.

Company, with Edward Everett Horton and Miss Evelyn Varden in the leading roles.

"The Rainbow" tells the story of an estranged couple. The man devotes his life to speedy companions, while the wife turns her attention to the rearing of their daughter. The daughter comes to visit the father. He endeavors to shield her from the influence of his fast companions, but realizing the task is hopeless, he proposes to give her up to her mother, though to him her visit has been the one spot of brightness. Before his decision is put into practice, the couple are reunited.

Miss Marie Curtis, Beulah Monroe, Arri Rudman, George C. Pearce, Harry Garrity, Jerome Sheldon and the others will be seen in the cast.

Hippodrome.

"The Arizona Cat Claw," with Edythe Sterling in the leading role, will be the picture feature starting today at the Hippodrome. It is a story of a western girl's romance and critics who have seen the picture call Miss Sterling the female Bill Hart of the screen for she puts up a fist fight, does some riding and thrills with other stunts.

The vaudeville bill includes Three Boys and a Girl, a mixed quartette, who offer harmony and jazz; Ward and Howard, two chaps who play the piano, tell funny stories and sing in a capable manner. Frank and Clara La Tour in amusing capers; Andrus and George in a comedy satire, entitled "The First Hundred Years is the Hardest." Katherine Miller, a "nut" comedienne, and Hough-Jack and George in a comedy tumbling act.

Morosco.

The twenty-first week of Thompson Buchanan's "Civilian Clothes" will start with today's matinee at the Morosco Theater.

During the past week the 200th performance of the play was given. Never in the history of the West has any dramatic work been given the persistent support. Already the best stock record, held by Boston, Mass., has been passed.

Oliver Morosco is organizing as many "Civilian Clothes" companies as he is able to find suitable actors for in the East.

Playcrafters' Meeting.

The Playcrafters will meet tomorrow night at 7:30 in room 513, Fay Building. Farah Anduise Sprague will read a three-act Persian mystery play, "Life's Mystery," written by her father, Mirza Asadollah.

Pelton's Burbank.

The most pretentious offering of the Dowell Stock Company will be presented beginning today at Pelton's Burbank, in "Revelation," by Landale Williams, which is described as a companion play to "Madame X."

The story is woven around a mother who is ready to sacrifice everything for her son, and for whom she suffers every torture only to find his love for her so great that her sacrifice was needless.

Victory.

Blanche Sweet's first big picture since "The Unpardonable Sin" opens at the Victory Theater today by special arrangement with Jesse D. Hampton, who is now producing the Sweet super-features. "A Woman of Pleasure" is its title and it is a screen adaption of an English society melodrama. The star is supported by Wheeler Oakman, Wilfred Lucas, Spottiswoode Aiken, Frederick Starr, Joseph Swickard and Wesley Barry. The escape of the heroine in a balloon from bloodthirsty cannibals furnishes one of the thrills of the picture. In the first part of the picture she is seen as a school teacher in a small fishing village, later she sacrifices herself matrimonially to save her father, and becomes a London society woman. The scene then shifts to Africa where a Zulu uprising occurs.

HUNTING HORSES.

Novel and Exciting Sport in Skull Valley, Utah.

Americans who like adventure and excitement in a hunt are advised to try their hand at hunting wild horses. That they will find this sport quite as thrilling as concerning a tiger, is the opinion of a sportsman who has just returned from a month's hunt in Skull Valley, near the Utah-Nevada line.

There are thousands of wild horses in this valley, and ranch owners in that district have begun a war of extermination. The wild steeds are becoming very troublesome, leading away domesticated property in general. Before the plan of shooting these horses was adopted, the ranchers tried corralling and shipping them to eastern markets. The expense of catching and shipping the animals was far above possible profits, however, and the danger connected with attempts at capture also were disproportionate. The horses are decidedly vicious, and several cases are cited where they literally dashed their brains out against a tree, or post, rather than submit to capture.

The expedition here referred to included several members, and during the month of wild-horse stalking the party shot 102 animals. The largest day's shooting was ten head. This number was made possible only by the fact that the leaders of two bands of wild horses met at a water hole and immediately began a battle for supremacy.

A fight of this kind is always to the death, and the most exciting period of the hunt was spent in watching the two wild beasts biting, tearing, and kicking, while members of the two bands intermingled and looked on, taking care to keep away from the flying hoofs.

Ranchers in Skull Valley invite shooting parties to go after the wild horses and furnish guides and other necessary supplies. Estimates of the number of wild horses in the valley run as high as fifteen thousand.—[Frederick Kinney, in Popular Mechanics.

Happy Thought.

A married man has to be a brilliant liar to keep peace in the family. One of them talked about Mary in his sleep all night recently, and his wife's name is Sarah. And there was heltupay next morning until he had an idea and explained that he went to see Mary Pickford in a movie drama the night before and he dreamed about the show all night. And he got away with it, too.—[Arkansaw Thomas Cat.

is so much quoted. How the so-called critics can continually wrangle about the sanity or insanity of Hamlet is beyond my comprehension.

"Shakespeare tells the characteristics of his stage personages very clearly in the lines of his plays. He has done this with the character of Hamlet, too.

"Hamlet expressly says that he may put on 'an antic disposition' and he warns those people who are with him and makes them swear not to betray him.

"The humanity of the man—his nature—makes him a marked man which only proves that he is more human and honest than the rest. He is the only logical person in the group. His reasoning is sounder than that of any other character in the play and yet his sanity is being continually questioned by critics. All that Shakespeare requires is intelligent treatment."

A Jazz Rooster.

In his second Paramount-St. John comedy, Al St. John had to have a rooster crow in one of the scenes. The prop man was sent for a trained rooster that Al knew of and the task of making him crow began.

Every idea from whistling, imitating a hen, crowing and yelling was tried but the rooster refused to crow. So Al thought of a Victrola. He put on a record of Caruso, the machine was started, but no crow from the bird. Then an instrumental selection was tried, but no results.

So Al got a jazz record and as soon as the song started the rooster began to crow and prance around. So Al got plenty of crowing and action while the jazz band played. Al now claims the distinction of having the only jazz rooster in existence.

Wallie Reid, Jr.

William Wallace Reid, Jr., son of Wallace Reid, will make his first him appearance in "The Bear Trap." Will M. Ritchey's picturized version of Byron Morgan's clever auto-race story, a continuation of the adventures of Toodles Walden, et al., who appeared in "The Roaring Road."

William Wallace, Jr., who is 2½ years of age, is to play Toodles, Junior, in the picture, which Sam Wood is directing.

Already he is giving indication of following in his dad's footsteps; he takes to the camera and he doesn't look into the lens.

Polo Waiting Orders.

Acting on a wire received from the New York office, work has been suspended at Universal City on the Eddie Polo serial, "The Vanishing Dagger." There are rumors that Polo is to make another trip abroad, but these reports have not been confirmed. Polo's new script calls for many foreign scenes.

Cows Like Tourneur Set.

In Maurice Tourneur's new production, "Glory of Love," a set was so profusely decorated with vines and gorgeous flowers that a watchman was on duty every minute when the set was not being used.

On one occasion the watchman fell asleep from exhaustion. When he awoke he was dismayed to find himself surrounded by hungry cows, who were making great inroads upon the decorations in the set. Before he could scatter the cattle the decorations had been devoured.

Signs up with Goldwyn.

R. D. MacLean, who recently appeared in Goldwyn's picturization of "The Silver Horde," by Rex Beach, and who will be remembered as appearing in notable productions of Shakespearean plays with Mme. Modjeska, Mrs. Leslie Carter, and his wife, Odette Tyler, has just signed another contract with the Goldwyn organization and will remain in Los Angeles for the rest of the winter. Details of the contract and the part he is to play will be announced by Mr. MacLean soon after the Culver City officials make public their plans for the production in which he will take part.

—o—

The Camera Craze.

Everybody would like to appear in motion pictures!

Maybe you think you wouldn't, but you would if you had a ghost of a chance. One of the tough jobs when the company is on location is to keep the faces of the general public out of camera range.

Everybody who gets a chance hangs around and tries to edge into at least the background when the camera begins to grind. This was demonstrated the other day at the Del Monte Hotel, at Del Monte, when a seemingly-dignified and at least middle-aged millionaire sat around for two hours on the steps of the veranda, with the announced intention of getting in a scene of "The Inferior Sex," Mildred Harris Chaplin's newest picture.

It took some little diplomacy to eject him without ruffling his feelings. The next day he was on the job again, and while he never succeeded in getting into a scene, he confided to gossipy friends that he still has hopes.

"Children and women are the worst offenders in this respect," says Mildren Harris Chaplin, "they just don't seem to comprehend that their smiles and stares straight into the camera's eye spoil otherwise good scenes, and frequently necessitate taking them over again."

Finishes "Smashing Barriers."

William Duncan has finished his Vitagraph serial, "Smashing Barriers," now showing at the Palace, but is re-taking certain scenes to give the serial finish. Duncan directs all of his own serials, which are written by Albert E. Smith and Cyrus Townsend Brady.

—o—

Semon Signs Up Again.

Larry Semon, whose recent triumphs have impelled reviewers to style him "the new comedy king," has renewed his contract with Vitagraph. Under the terms of the arrangement made between Mr. Semon and Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, the comedian will remain under the Vitagraph banner until 1922.

Needed Special Bathtub.

Director William Parke has taken a house in Hollywood. While going through the home before renting it, Mr. Parke noticed in the bathroom, a huge tub, at least three feet longer than the average, whereupon he asked the agent the reason.

"No reason we could ever find," replied the young fellow, "unless one of the former tenants was a giant."

"Who did you say had this house before?" asked the director.

"De Wolf Hopper, some sort of an actor," was the answer.

"Well, then, that much accounts for it," and when Parke goes bathing now he has to laugh as he swims to and fro in Hopper's big tub.

—o—

Looked Like Real Bride.

In "Stop That Wedding," a recent Lyons and Moran comedy filmed at Universal City, it was necessary for Charlotte Merriam, the leading lady, to don a dainty wedding gown.

So charming did little Charlotte appear in this bridal finery that during the three days she wore the costume at Universal City and on location she received nearly a dozen offers of marriage—all of which she has so far declined. The proposals ranged from a prominent Universal director to the organist of a Hollywood church which was used as one of the scenes in the comedy, and included several actors, a cameraman and a motorcycle policeman.

—o—

Sennett Completing Feature.

Mack Sennett is just completing his latest special comedy production and in about two weeks E. M. Asher, Mr. Sennett's representative, will leave Los Angeles for New York with a print to arrange for the premier showing at one of the large Broadway theaters. It is probable that the production will be shown simultaneously in New York and Los Angeles.

This is the fourth multiple-reel picture produced by Mr. Sennett, the others being "Tillie's Punctured Romance," "Mickey" and "Yankee Doodle in Berlin." The new Sennett comedy will probably be five reels in length. The title has not yet been announced.

In the new production all the Sennett comedians appear, and in addition, trained animals.

This is the first of the series of multiple-reel productions which Mr. Sennett will make, although he will continue to produce his regular releases. The Sennett plant is being enlarged in order to provide for the new productions.

—o—

New Bosom Friend.

Jack Ford, Universal director who has been piloting Harry Carey through his last half-dozen productions, was assigned to direct James J. Corbett in his first Universal feature, "The Prince of Avenue A." Ford had never met the ex-champion, and was under the impression he would prove a temperamental star. Someone had also told Corbett that Ford was "hard boiled." When the two were introduced a few weeks ago, Jack looked at the unlined, almost boyish face of Jim and remarked:

—o—

Drew What He Wanted.

Bryant Washburn IV, famous son of a famous daddy, is not the king of the Washburn household, as he was before the advent of Dwight Ludlow, his baby brother, some weeks back, but the 5-year-old tot continues to earn fame everlasting by his "off-stage" comment.

"Sonny" accompanied his proud parents to a Los Angeles motion-picture theater recently. The picture was one of Washburn's own. Everyone semed to like it except "Sonny," who never cracked a smile. When the picture was half over he turned to his daddy and whispered: "When do we see Mutt and Jeff?"

He was ordered to "S-h-h-h!" and he shushed—for all of five minutes. Again he asked about Mutt and Jeff. Father dittoed his shushing instructions and went on to explain that Mutt and Jeff were not on the programme.

But the explanation did not satisfy "Sonny," and he persisted in calling at frequent intervals for Mutt and Jeff. When the show was over he refused to budge until his daddy took him by the arm and gently, but firmly, led him hence.

Passing through the lobby, "Sonny" spotted the manager of the theater and marched right up to him. He informed the astonished manager in no uncertain terms that he did not like the show at all, and demanded that Mutt and Jeff be added to the programme at once.

When the screen star got his son alone, he took him to task, "What do you mean?" he inquired, "by knocking my picture? Don't I give you a good home? Don't I clothe you and feed you and bring you home candy and toys? And then you start out boosting for Mutt and Jeff! What did they ever do for you?"

"They make me laugh!" the youngster retorted, and that ended the argument.

Washburn, pere, wanted to laugh, but did not. Instead, he continued to look hurt and brokenhearted.

Finally, Washburn, fils, was touched. He put his little hand inside his father's and whispered: "Daddy, I was only fooling."

—o—

Doubtful Testimonial.

It happens that in his current production at Universal City, "The Phantom Melody," being filmed under Douglas Gerrard's direction, Monroe Salisbury is buried alive. The character being that of an Italian of noble birth, the director ordered the most pretentious casket that could be made for the scene, and a Los Angeles undertaker furnished same.

It was lined with satin of a delicate cream shade, padded with eiderdown, covered with mauve velour and rich in silver trimmings.

For the first time in his career the maker of caskets was able to get the views of the user of his product as to the fit and comfort of the burial case, and when Mr. Salisbury expressed himself as well pleased with the "prop," the undertaker asked the actor for a photograph of himself in the coffin, with a testimonial to be used in the trade journals of the funeral directors.

Salisbury obliged him with the picture requested, inscribed as follows: "Having used your coffin, I have found it so delightful that I hope to use no other for many years to come."

Good for Butcher, Anyhow.

Maj. Maurice Campbell, husband of Henrietta Crossman, and for years one of America's foremost stage producers, who recently joined the producing forces of Famous Players-Lasky, has received an amusing letter written by a French officed complaining bitterly of the condition of some horses he had bought from the American army. It reads:

"I have, the twenty-one May 1919, bought to the captain Commander the American Remount Depot, to St. Nazaire, with explicit guarantee given by this office (private sale always going with guarantee—on the contrary, public sale doing without guarantee) eight horses for the price, each of four hundred dollars, in all three thousand, two hundred dollars (French coinage 16,000 francs.)

"As soon as I have reached St. Die, with those animals, I have called upon for a visit for those, a veterinary surgeon of my city, this practitioner has stated four horses being no conformable with the guarantee given by my dealer the Captain of Remount Depot.

"The first has the tic.

"The second has the insufflation very bad.

"The third has inflammation to the right eye, he will be soon blind.

"The fourth bite, one servant of my business was already bited.

"Thus I can not make use of those four animals. I will be constrained to sale those horses to some butcher's ship. I require today the difference between the price paid to the captain and the price of purchase by the butcher, who will buy horses, hundred dollars each.

"Thus I want receive back one thousand, two hundred dollars, for two compensate loss, that sum is not overrated, according I have paid the carriage of the eight horses, from St. Nazaire, to St. Die, Die, price very dear, unavailing for these four animals.

"I expect your answer, hoping it favourable, I must toll to you, Dear Sir, in case you would believe not accept my claim, I should be compelled to address a new complaint, about that, to Mr. The General Chief, Commander of the American Troops in France."

Synchronizing Studio Music.

Any doubts as to the efficacy of an orchestra to help players for the screen to properly emote were effectively swept away by a recent incident on the Brentwood stage.

While working on some particularly dramatic scenes, Henry Kolker with his company, which he is directing for the production of "The Third Generation, was using a four-piece orchestra to assist Miss Betty Blythe, little Pegy Cartwright and Jack Pratt in the registration of proper emotion, both grave and gay.

On another part of the stage Claude H. Mitchell was working on some closing scenes of his production, "Where There's a Will," with ZaSu Pitts, Frances Raymond, Henry Woodward, W. H. Bainbridge and Frank Hayes. An official of the company happening to speak to Mitchell during a lull between scenes, the latter said:

"What you want in this studio is a 'music synchronizer.' Whenever my company approaches the bright and gay in a scene, Mr. Kolker's company must approach the sad and grave, for that blessed orchestra of his has got failed this whole day to give me grave music when I wanted gay, and vice versa."

McKim Wins Wager.

What are the ugliest expressions?

That is the question that started an argument between Pauline Frederick and Robert McKim at the Goldwyn studio yesterday.

"The Woman in Room 13"—that's Miss Frederick, and "the man in the case"—that's "Mean Bob," were arguing that matter.

"I'll wager I can mirror more emotions than you, Bob," said Miss Frederick, "practiced as you are in expressing villainy in all its forms."

"Done!" cried McKim, "a box of chocolates against a humidor of the blackest cigars in town!"

And so a "private performance" was staged for Director Frank Lloyd and the studio folk.

For every emotion Miss Frederick depicted McKim countered with another.

Finally Miss Frederick admitted she had exhausted her box of histrionic tricks.

"But there's one more," said McKim, suavely, "that you've forgotten, Pauline, one that all your sex are familiar with."

"Meaning what?" said the star, puzzled.

"Vanity!" laughed McKim, and struck a ludicrous pose.

MAINLY ABOUT PEOPLE.

A Weekly News Letter from London.

BY T. P. O'CONNOR.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Nov. 1.—I find the following in the fashionable columns of a London paper: "Lord and Lady St. Davids and their children are in residence at their place in Pembrokeshire." Underneath this terse prosaic language there is one of the most furious of modern English romances. This is the story:

A young Welshman named John Wynford Phillips entered the House of Commons at an unusually early age nearly thirty years ago. He was somewhat distant in manner, did not speak often, looked as if he were just one of those young men of good family who took Parliament as another type of the same class and accepts a commission in a fashionable, expensive guard regiment. It was known he came of an ancient and distinguished Welsh family, that he was heir to a baronetcy, and that he had married one of the greatest heiresses in London.

I knew the lady when she was still unmarried. Norah Gerstenberg was her name, and her father was a wealthy Jewish merchant with two daughters. They were both extraordinarily pretty, Norah in particular, who had that beauty I may compare to a glorious tulip in full bloom which is found among young Jewish girls. But she was something more than a beauty. She took an intense interest in the political career of her husband and all political questions, especially Ireland, to which she was partly drawn by her long-time intimacy with Justin McCarthy, the great Irish politician and historian. She took to the public platform and became an accomplished speaker who could rouse audiences.

She had two sons, who inherited their mother's talents. One, indeed, is regarded as the foremost orator among the young men of his time. Both, too, revealed originality by showing sympathy with socialistic doctrines, not now an uncommon phenomenon among the young sons of rich aristocratic families.

THE FAMILY DISAPPEARED.

Then in a couple of years this whole family disappeared, the wife after a prolonged illness, the boys in war and Phillips was left alone. Meantime, long before this he had gone through extraordinary changes of fortune. An idle young man who had become a barrister, but never practiced, chiefly interested for amusement in horses, Phillips seemed destined to the same obscurity and detachment as he had shown during the first years of his parliamentary life. Then came the Baring crash and in that crash much of the big fortune of his father-in-law was involved.

Phillips is a determined man with great courage unsparing tongue and ruthless purpose, and at a meeting of the creditors he pronounced a vehement assault on the muddle and management which had brought the crisis. The exasperated shareholders took him at once to their hearts as the man who would best fight their battle and immediately by acclamation made him chairman of the shareholders' investigating committee. The investments of his father-in-law were scattered through all kinds of undertakings. Phillips, who had never tried to do a sum in arithmetic in his life, settled down to study these various enterprises, went into their assets and liabilities, became chairman of several of them and at the end of these investigations Phillips, to his surprise, found himself a financier. From that time forward his interest in everything else disappeared and he gave his nights and days to the city and finance.

Beginning thus late, he developed extraordinary gifts, mainly a gift of such utter skepticism both of men and projects as to save him from all the pitfalls laid by experienced financiers for inexperienced young men who enter the lists. The motto to which he adhered with ruthless inflexibility was safety first. In time he was elected to one chairmanship after another, mainly of railway companies in South America, where his father-in-law had invested. Thus in time he became one of the most trusted and most powerful financiers in the city of London, capable of raising any amount of capital simply by putting his name to a prospectus. His fortune increased slowly, but steadily until he is now one of the multi-millionaires of London. He treated himself to a great castle in his native Wales, realized his dream, like Warren Hastings, of restoring the glory of his ancient but impoverished house, was created lord lieutenant of his county, Pembroke, which is the highest social position in the county, and then became a baronet, then a peer, taking the fine-sounding title of Lord St. Davids.

Just at the height of his fortunes came this devastating blast of universal death which has swept over Europe, and at fifty years of age he was left without wife, child or any friendly face in his opulent home. He met the situation by a great and bold resolve, and that was to begin life all over again. He married a young lady of very good family and now has a new family growing up and whose goings and comings form the subject of that brief paragraph quoted at the beginning of this article.

ATTACKED CONDUCT OF WAR.

Lord St. Davids did not take much interest in politics till the war came. Then, stung by his own losses and responding to the bitter cry of anguish from many other parental hearts, he made a vehement attack on the whole conduct of the war, and especially attacked generals and brought charges, which made people shiver, of scenes at headquarters which might better have taken place in tango dances, to jazz music. Whether the charges were true or not I cannot say, but they created an immense sensation and for weeks Lord St. Davids became the center of violent controversy, with denunciations alternating with the fierce support and tearful gratitude of parents reduced to miserable grief by a sense of the futile loss of the lives of their dear ones by incompetent, ill-conducted leaders. That speech was certainly the last straw that broke the back of the early military direction of the war and perhaps also contributed to that feeling of universal uneasiness which found its culmination in the Premiership of Lloyd George.

Lord St. Davids's countryman, Lloyd George, employed this great man of business on some important war work, including a quiet mission to the ports and harbors of Ireland, with a view to the development of the resources of that country. But it is still as a financier that Lord St. Davids finds his chief interest in life.

What kind of life does this hard-working financier lead? It is much more modest and more void of ordinary joy than that of the humblest clerk in his big offices. He never touches wine and is indifferent regarding food. Like some of your big financiers, he takes his lunch in a cheap restaurant, being satisfied with a bun and a glass of milk. He goes to bed at 9 o'clock every night. His one indulgence is horse racing, which has gripped him all his life, even when he was an Oxford undergraduate, and a prize at a race gives him a bigger thrill than the winning of a million.

He belongs to a family of giants. Two of his brothers are members of the House of Commons, one is a soldier and the other the biggest man in the shipping trade and head of a great combine of shipping companies. They are all some inches above six feet. Lord St. Davids has the most remarkable face of any of them. His cheek bones are high, the cheeks rather sunken, but the most remarkable features are the intense coal black eyes, dazzling, watchful, scintillating and, above all, cold as Arctic snow. The face has little color, which brings the dark eyes into greater relief. You seldom see him about the houses of Parliament. When he does come there it is as a fleeting, hurried, almost furtive shadow that just drops in for some urgent business, then is seen no more.

SEEKS AID FOR SISAL PRODUCER IN YUCATAN

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONTEREY (Mexico) Nov. 1.—An effort is to be made to finance a new organization that is to be formed for the purpose of marketing the sisal, or henequin fiber, of Yucatan. Dr. Alvaro Torro Diaz of Merida, Yucatan, passed through here a few days ago on his way to New York to seek financial support of the project. The recent withdrawal of government support from the Comision Reguladora, which during the past few years has had a monopoly of the handling and marketing of Yucatan sisal, has brought about the liquidation of that organization, and the necessity of stabilizing the industry by means of a new organization is said to be very urgent. The fact that practically all of the binder twine of the United States and Canada is made of Yucatan sisal makes the situation as to that product of unusual interest, it is pointed out.

Considerable attention is now being given to growing zapupe fiber in the more northern parts of Mexico, particularly around Victoria, capital of the State of Tamaulipas, and in other parts of that State. This fiber is said to be almost identical with henequin fiber. Several large plantations of zapupe plants are now of commercial size and considerable shipments of the fiber are being made to the United States. The new industry is growing, a number of Americans having recently acquired large tracts of land which they plan to convert into zapupe fiber plantations.

Would Demonstrate Talent.

Willard Louis has a grievance about the parts which he plays in pictures. That may seem a trifle ungracious of him, for it is believed he has had very good roles, indeed, in support of Pauline Frederick. But never yet has he been filmed playing billiards. And Louis, be it known, is always winning a championship at some club for his proficiency in billiards. Will Rogers gets a chance to throw a lariat on the screen, Geraldine Farrar is shown as a prima donna, receiving the plaudits of the multitude, and Mabel Normand has a chance to show what a good swimmer she is. "But am I allowed to play billiards?" said Louis. "I am not. And it isn't fair, and when I sign a contract again, the first thing I'm going to stipulate is that I be given a chance to show what I can do best of all."

Morning Judge, Says Simpson.

"Hurry, dear," said Mrs. Simpson to her thespian hubby, Russell Simpson, last Sunday evening, while he was wrestling with a collar Lutton. "We are late now, and have promised to call for John and Hazel."

Like all husbands, fearing further vocal onslaught, he hastened him to the garage and made ready the gas buggy. "Do hurry," said Mrs. Simpson again. Russell gave her the gas, and after breaking a couple of speed limits reached the home of his friends and started to the dinner party, now one hour late.

On the road to the party, Mrs. Simpson continued her urging until the car reached a speed of sixty miles an hour. About one block from their destination a motorcycle policeman drove alongside and shouted: "Excuse me for living, will you, but I've been trying to catch you for a mile. I guess you couldn't hear my gentle voice." He took a pad from his pocket and said to Simpson, after eyeing him, "What's your business?"

"Why I—" but he got no further.

"Don't tell me you're a shoe salesman," said friend cop, "they all say that; you're one of them actor guys; I'm wise to you birds."

Monday a.m. Russell said "Good morning, judge."

After the fine was announced, Russell said, "It's no use, I didn't even wear a leather coat and they got me, and because I was an actor I got soaked plenty."

Thus Is It Always.

When Harry Carey, the Universal star, was filming "The Gift of the Desert," he sent word to Universal City that he needed a three weeks' old baby for one scene. In the course of two days a motor car came zigzagging through the sand with a babe. The Universal star looked closely at the infant and turning to Jack Ford, his director, said:

"This kiddie looks to be about six months old."

"Probably three weeks is her stage age," Ford answered.

Purchase Veiller Plays.

Universal has purchased from Bayard Veiller, author of "Within the Law" and "The Thirteenth Chair," the screen rights to "The Primrose Path," a drama which he wrote for his wife, Margaret Wycherly, a few years ago, and in which she appeared with success. A cast and director are now being selected for this photoplay, which will go in production within the next two or three weeks.

It Looked Exciting.

During the session of the American Medical Association in Los Angeles several years ago, Frank Mayo, the popular matinee idol, who comes to the Superba Sunday in "The Brute Breaker," was playing with a traveling attraction at the Mason and was living at the Alexandria Hotel.

One morning at 3 o'clock he was routed out by the persistent ringing of the phone, and a strange voice appealed to him to come to a residence in Garvanza at all speed.

Frank figured it was possibly a plant of highwaymen, and always ready for adventure, he woke his room-mate and sticking automatics in their pockets, they chartered a taxicab and drove to the address.

With hands on their revolvers they rang the bell and were ushered in.

"Come upstairs," a woman whispered.

The two followed the woman up the stairs, expecting to be ambushed any moment.

"Can you operate right away, doctor?" the woman asked as she led them into a room where a man lay in bed.

And then the astonished Frank found that a phone girl had confused him with the noted Mayo from Rochester, and that he had lost his sleep without even the sign of an adventure.

Car Has Hard Record.

If present plans materialize Wallace Reid, in his next picture, will drive the famous Roamer racing car which has had perhaps a more eventful history of disasters and successes than any car that has ever sped over American race courses.

The car, which has been smashed and rebuilt many times, is said to contain one of the best engines ever built.

The machine began its career as a racing car and captured several prizes. Then Wallace Reid drove it for scenes in "The Roaring Road." Then came the Santa Monica road race, and Roscoe Sarles, owner and driver of the car in that event, turned it over on a curve and smashed it all to pieces. He rebuilt the car, however, and won several Coast racing prizes.

The machine was then taken East by LaQue and Robert Vandini for entry in the Indianapolis race. These drivers turned the car over in that race and the machine and both men were burned. Both of the men died from their injuries.

Roscoe Sarles then took the car back to the factory and had it rebuilt after which he entered the race at Elgin, Ill., and finished second.

Who Took that Clock?

Edward Everett Horton loses time very fast at the Majestic Theater, where he is leading man. At 9:20 the other night, there was a clock on the table of his dressing-room when he went on in the first act. When he returned a few minutes later, the clock was gone. Horton has offered to pay $10 more than any pawnbroker if he can recover the lost time.

Butler Visits Home Town.

After working hard in Los Angeles for more than two years, David Butler, the Universal film star, went to his native city, San Francisco, for a brief visit last week. As soon as he was on the train, Fred J. Butler, his father, wired a number of the younger Butler's college friends with the result that David had a surprise reception at the ferry when he arrived.

For Two Generations.

While working on a set at Universal the other day, an electrician who was pulling the lights, tapped Frank Mayo, leading man, on the shoulder.

"You're not a son of Frank Mayo, who played Davy Crockett thirty years ago, are you?" inquired the light puller.

"I certainly am," replied Frank.

"Why I was electrician for your father for several years," the man declared, "and here I am now doing the same for you."

How It Is Now.

Will Rogers, star of "Almost a Husband" just can't let prohibition alone. His latest, is as follows: "Streets that used to be lighted at night and real crowded have been used for robbing purposes only since July 1. They tell me, too, that they are beginning to put foot rails on soda fountains to make some people feel more at home."

Kathleen Studies Dancing.

Ruth St. Denis has reached into the picture studios for her newest protege!

She is Kathleen O'Connor, the Universal star, who is appearing in the ninth episode of her serial, "The Lion Man."

Miss St. Denis "discovered" Miss O'Connor while on a trip through Universal City with her husband-artist, Ted Shawn and induced Miss O'Connor to study terpsichore under her personal tutelage.

Miss O'Connor is taking an intensive course in interpretative dancing.

"I really don't expect to become a professional dancer—that is, unless I fulfill Miss St. Denis's expectations of me," declares Kathleen, "but if I have any talent I consider I am too young to neglect it and believe myself cast in the shadow realm forever."

Following the completion of her serial vehicle, Miss O'Conner is going to New York for a trip.

GOULD DANCERS TO TOUR.

The Norma Gould dancers leave next Sunday for Tucson, Ariz., where they will be presented by L. E. Behymer in the regular philharmonic series, under the auspices of the Saturday Morning Musical Club of Tucson.

Miss Gould will head the company, appearing in some of her best-known compositions such as "The Weaver of Snows," "Egyptian Cymbal Dance," "Sagat," "Arabian Dance of Greeting" and striking Spanish numbers.

The young dancers that will appear in classic, interpretive, character, oriental and national dances are: Dorothy Lyndall, Ruth Wilton, Grace Williams, Josephine Spates Dorothy Harris and Elizabeth Schreiber.

Miss Gould will carry her own stage settings and an orchestra, under direction of Helen Tappe.

BIRDS HIGH AND SCARCE IN EAST.

MR. GRIDER'S MANAGER SAYS PEOPLE HERE CAN GET ALL THEY WANT.

J. C. Edwards, manager of L. M. Grider's Birdland, has just returned from a trip which included Chicago, Detroit, Boston, New York and Philadelphia. The trip was made primarily to obtain birds and other live pets from the first importations which have been received in this country since the beginning of the war.

In this Mr. Edwards was successful; but he was greatly impressed by the changes in business conditions among the leading bird dealers growing out of the war. He had believed that we in California led the bird stores of the country, and this was confirmed by what he saw and heard.

In the eastern bird stores that are still in business—and many had closed their doors—all, with the exception of two or three in New York City, were almost down and out owing to the prevailing scarcity of all kinds of birds. Many were selling poultry and rabbits in order to keep their doors open and make expenses until fresh importations could be secured.

Outside of New York conditions are very unfavorable. All wish to buy and are begging and pleading for stock; and so far have been unable to get it.

"Here in California," said Mr. Edwards, "we have believed that we were getting top prices for the goods we had to sell. Wha- a delusion! We are far behind the East in this respect. From Detroit east the people have gone money-mad. It is 'regardless of cost' when they want anything.

"The bird stores around New York are selling birds at prices from three to five times higher than Los Angeles prices and getting away with it.

"I was glad indeed to come away from such conditions—and such horrible weather as they have experienced throughout the East—and get back to Southern California. We shall have birds and other live pets to sell; not as many as we need, but more than dealers in New York or anywhere else can boast of.

"Birds the world over are high-priced. England, which used to export canaries, is now importing them; and the enormous demand for all kinds of bird store live stock has raised prices all over Europe, and in other countries that send us stock.

"Things will remain in this condition until the German traders again cover the field. They have no peers in handling and trading stock of this kind. None has yet been received in this country from Germany, of course, since the war. A few birds are coming from Holland, but they are in poor shape.

"I found, however, that the business of breeding canaries is doing very well around New York, Philadelphia and Chicago. One breeder had more than 1,000 birds; several had hundreds.

"While this is true, the canary breeders had not fill the local demand for sand canaries many sion when there ten times that

"VISITORS Welcome"—it is only a simple inscription at the entrance to Brock and Company's famous house of jewels. But it means much.

It means that the doors of Brock and Company are always open to the visitors who come to the Southland from the East—the North—the South—or the West. And, that all who have the good fortune to live permanently under these glorious blue skies and among the golden fruits and marvelous floral beauties, also are welcome as visitors.

THE printed word fails to convey adequately the magnitude of Brock and Company's Fall Stocks and the magnificence of the jewelry creations developed for the coming holidays. They should be seen. Therefore our "standing invitation"—

MANHATTAN.

An informal afternoon at cards was enjoyed by a number of guests at the home of Mrs. Fred Young on Manhattan avenue Thursday. A dainty luncheon was served after the card game. Those present were Mrs. J. H. Withers, Mrs. A. C. Conner, Mrs. R. Thompson, Mrs. C. Ashton, Mrs. William Simpkins, Mrs. W. Bourne, Mrs. McCammon, Mrs. W. Nichols and the Misses Dyer and Leffler.

Mrs. Katherine Beyrle has gone to Wagner, Cal., where she will spend some time with her daughter, Mrs. C. H. Kilburn.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Delovan and family are among the winter visitors now arriving and have taken the Green cottage on the Strand for a number of months.

Martin Labalg, who has been residing in Manhattan for seven years, has gone to Hollywood to make his home.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. James of Los Angeles have come to Manhattan Beach to spend the winter.

ALHAMBRA.

The Armistice Day ball held in the High School gymnasium Tuesday night was without doubt one of the largest and most widely attended social functions ever held in Alhambra. The large room was hung with a profusion of flags, and the national colors were everywhere. Coffee and sandwiches and doughnuts were served the dancers by Red Cross workers in costume. The grand march was led by Miss Helen Mitchell and Lieut. Clark, and was participated in by over 400. Some of those noticed in the grand march were Dr. and Mrs. Oliver Sheperd Barnum, City Manager and Mrs. Grant Lorraine, City Commissioner and Mrs. Neiger, Superintendent of Schools Charles Barber and Mrs. Barber, Judge and Mrs. William Northrup, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Woodbury, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Goudge, Mrs. Harry Pose, Robert Devereaux and scores of other well-known and prominent Alhambra people.

Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith presented the first of three programmes to be given at the Wednesday Afternoon Club at the clubhouse this week. Her subject, of interest to women everywhere, was "Woman in Literature." Choosing the modern writers she gave a programme of short readings representative of their work, and speaking of others with a short biographical sketch.

Members of the Round Table Club met at the home of Miss Mabel Rice for an afternoon of Robert Browning. Readings of several of his best-known poems were read by various members of the club after a biographical sketch by Mrs. Zella Dodge. Those who gave readings were Mrs. Livernidge, Miss Woodbury, Miss McMillan, Miss Satira Shaeffer, Dr. Woodhull, Mrs. McKinley, Miss Emma Shaeffer, Mrs. Chase, and Miss Cairns.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Smith was the scene of a gathering to celebrate the homecoming of Brail Smith from service overseas, recently. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McCormack of Arizona, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Weir of Los Angeles.

Sixteen grown-ups were treated to a children's party by Mrs. George Rice and Mrs. Ralph Clapp at the Rice home recently. The young guests came dressed in their juvenile best, and refreshments for tender digestions were served, ice cream and animal crackers and stick candy. Delightful games and dancing were indulged in until an hour scandalously late for such youngsters.

Miss Helen Pratt, a member of the Audubon Society and an officer of the State Federation of Woman's Clubs, addressed the Ramona Parent-Teachers' Association Thursday afternoon. Her talk was on birds, and was illustrated with birds and specimens of interesting significance to her talk.

The Ramona Park Woman's Club met at the home of Mrs. Thomas Bentel as the guests of Mrs. Natcher for their meeting this week. The study of the club for the season has been the British Isles, their history, etc. The discussion for the day was the England of the time of William Norman. Incidental music of early English school was also added to the programme. Following the programme a social hour was enjoyed. Mrs. Thomas Berkible is the president of the club and Mrs. Natcher the vice-president.

Mrs. Herbert J. Goudge presided over a charming luncheon at her home Saturday, complimenting a number of Alhambra friends.

Mrs. Arthur Treulson has been entertaining as a house guest Mrs. B. F. Boothe of Portland, Or.

ANAHEIM.

Quite the most interesting bit of news in society circles this week was the announcement made by Mrs. P. G. Winnett of Santa Monica on Sunday of the engagement of her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Hutton Adams, to D. Arnold Singleton of this city. The bride is a member of the exclusive social circles of Los Angeles and the Bay City and is the daughter of Judge A. W. Hutton. The wedding will be solemnized in St. Michael's Episcopal Church in this city on Wednesday November 19.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Henderson entertained at an elaborate dinner party at their country home, El Retiro, on Tuesday evening for the present grand officers, O.E.S. Yellow formed the dominant color in the appointments and covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Elsensohn, Mr. and Mrs. W. Vaughn Scott, Mr. and Mrs. William Hooper, Mrs. Sarah de Normandie, Mrs. Lena Walker Stannard, Mrs. Mary Sherwood, all of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Meldrin of Long Beach, Mr. and Mrs. J. Lloyd Moore and Mrs. E. H. Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wickett were host and hostess on Tuesday evening to the members of the Women's Bible Class of the Presbyterian Church of which Mr. Wickett is the teacher. Forty-four were present and at the business session held in the early part of the evening, Mrs. H. C. Downs was re-elected president, Mrs. Bruce, secretary-treasurer.

In honor of the birthday anniversary of her son, Frank Cushman, Mrs. Linna Thomas of Janss street entertained at dinner Sunday evening. All of the appointments were carried out in yellow with covers laid for Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carter, Misses Carrie and Tillie Morningstar, Mame Kampling, Mildred Carter, Messrs. Frank and Trav Cushman, Jesse Kirkendall, Ray Gerring.

Chispa Chapter, O.E.S., at the regular election on Monday evening elected the following officers to serve the coming year: Worthy Matron, Miss Elise Jessurun; Worthy Patron, E. H. Metcalf; Associate Matron, Mrs. E. H. Adams; Mrs. J. P. Brastad, Conductress; Mrs. D. Hasson, Associate Conductress; Mrs. Maude McCann, Secretary; Mrs. Margaret Rea, treasurer. The installation will be held on the evening of November 24 and will be public.

PASO ROBLES.

La Verne Newton Payne and Irene Bliss Bunch, two well-known and popular young people, were united in marriage on Wednesday afternoon by Rev. O. M. Butterfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Wright and little son left Wednesday evening for Florida, where they will spend the winter. From Florida they will embark on a pleasure trip through Spain, France, England and Scotland.

Mrs. Sadie Warden and Mrs. Frank Cummings are spending a few days in San Francisco.

Mrs. B. O. Ward is spending a few weeks in San Francisco.

Mrs. E. M. Henry has gone to Stockton to visit relatives.

Natalia Rebekah Lodge entertained a number of guests from San Luis Obispo and San Miguel Monday night. Following the lodge session, a social evening and banquet were enjoyed.

SANTA MONICA.

Announcement was made during the week of the marriage of Harry E. Hudson of Santa Monica, cashier and one of the directors of the Bank of Santa Monica, and Mrs. Maries Steffen Goodan, an attractive widow of this city. The affair, which took place at the Mission Inn, Riverside, was kept secret for a week. They will live at 2612 Highland avenue, Santa Monica. The bride is a graduate of Marlborough. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Steffen of West Adams Heights, of Los Angeles.

An unusually large number of members were present at the Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club on Monday, November 10, when Mrs. Aaron Schloss, State president of Women's Clubs, was the guest of the club and made an address on the club work of the year. Mrs. D. G. Stephens, president emeritus of the Santa Monica Club, and club woman beloved over California, was present and introduced the speaker. A reception to Mrs. Schloss and a tea were held upstairs following the meeting.

The choir guild of St. Augustine's Church by-the-Sea, at the Woman's Club this week produced that dashing little comedy, "The Ladies of Cranford." Ten of Santa Monica's most clever girls there were who portrayed the characters of the little old English women. A good-sized audience attended the little play, after which dancing was enjoyed.

SOCIETY.

California social worker, entertained with a luncheon on Monday in honor of Mrs. Aaron Schloss, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, who addressed the Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club in the afternoon. Covers were also laid for Mrs. J. H. Smith, Mrs. H. H. Kerkoff of Los Angeles, and Mrs. J. B. Lorbeer and Mrs. W. H. Cornett of Santa [illegible].

While those popular newlyweds [illegible] Mrs. George Martin, were spending a quiet evening at their home recently, a merry crowd gathered down on their pretty bungalow, taking them unawares. They were the members of Fremont Circle, Ladies of the G.A.R. They were provided with refreshments and a lovely [illegible] as a gift for Mrs. Martin. Those enjoying the games and music were many delightful [illegible]

FULLERTON.

The large auditorium of the grammar school was almost filled with interested parents and friends Monday at the second meeting of the year and a very happily chosen programme was presented and much enjoyed. The association was honored by having with them Prof. E. Donaldson, whose services in the American Red Cross during the period of the great war, has left him the possessor of rich experiences. Prof. Donaldson's work was with the Red Cross relief in Greece, and during his talk showed on the screen many fine pictures of the ruins of ancient Greece as well as those depicting scenes among the refugees with whom he labored. Following are the names of the ladies having charge of the refreshments for the December meeting: Mmes. Fred Reese, E. A. Ames, J. P. Glenn, A. H. Rothaermal, G. W. Finch, McGimpsey, F. L. Porter, C. R. Allen, E. A. Boyles, A. S. Redfern, N. O. Reid, A. H. Dunlap, William Farrand, W. H. Shepherd.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Vanton, 335 Truslow avenue, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when Earl B. Matthews of East Whittier and Miss Clara Delpy of Los Angeles were united in marriage, Rev. Dowling officiating, the ring ceremony being used. Miss Eleanore Kerr, niece of the groom, acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Nickson of East Whittier as groomsman. The decorations were yellow and white chrysanthemums. Immediately following the ceremony, when the happy couple had been congratulated by all present, refreshments of cake and ice cream were served.

Mrs. E. C. Hiservelt gave a dinner Sunday in honor of her daughter, Mrs. L. C. Vanderburg, the number present being about twenty, including Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Vanderburg, Mr. and Mrs. G. Hiservelt, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Orias, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Vanderburg and the families of each, also Mrs. Sampson of Los Angeles, an old friend, and Esther Rise, sister of Mrs. Elton Vanderburg. The guests included one mother, one grandaughter, four great-sons, three great-granddaughters and two great-grandsons. Although Mrs. Hiservelt is 87 years of age she is remarkably well preserved, she preparing the dinner herself, which would be quite a task for one much younger.

GLENDALE.

Mrs. J. A. McKelvey of 333 West Broadway delightfully entertained on Monday evening with an informal party complimentary to Miss Vera McPherson, who is teaching this winter at Big Bear Lake. An evening of music was followed by a dainty supper, and the table was charmingly decorated with zinnias and autumn leaves. Covers were laid for the Misses Vera McPherson, Alice Gray Beach, Grace Beach, Laura Hibben, Dorothy Hobbs, Dorinda Haviland, Ellen Webber, Essie Hamilton, May Church, Mmes. Charles Wells and Noble Ripley.

Mrs. J. F. Hearnshaw was hostess on Wednesday afternoon at a pretty party given at her home on West Lomita avenue, in honor of her mother, Mrs. M. Viohl, whose birthday it was. The Hearshaw home was gay with autumn flowers, and after a pleasant social afternoon, refreshments were served. The guest list included, besides the guest of honor, Mrs. Charles Glover and her mother, Mrs. Thomas Thorwalt of Chicago, Miss Clara Ringert, Mrs. Kate Clotworthy, Mrs. [illegible]innis Hester, Mrs. Charles H. Sanders, Mrs. S. Collum and Mrs. E. Augustine.

Chapter B-A of the P.E.O. Sisterhood very delightfully entertained Chapters L and A-H on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Claude Case, on Maryland avenue. Mrs. Case welcomed the guests, and responses were made by Mrs. H. E. Bartlett and Mrs. William C. Watties, presidents of the visiting chapters. An interesting talk on Americanization, by Mrs. Charles H. Toll contributed to the programme, as did several beautiful vocal numbers given by Mrs. Frank Arnold. Clever little Joy Willisford read several poems of her own composition. Shirley Preston and Rebecca Brant rendered two piano duets, little Margaret Brown danced beautifully, and Master Glen Cunningham gave a piano solo. The programme was followed by refreshments.

One of the most delightful events of the week in Glendale took place on Monday, when Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Adams of 1255 South Maryland avenue entertained at dinner for their aunt, Miss L. V. Learned, the occasion being her eightieth birthday anniversary. The Adams home was beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums and autumn leaves and covers for the turkey dinner were laid for nineteen, the guest list including six brothers and sisters, nine nieces and nephews, and four great-nieces and nephews. Quite the feature of the occasion was an immense birthday cake, beautifully decorated with golden rod and illuminated by eighty candles. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Learned, W. D. Learned, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Learned, Misses Edith and Ethel Learned, W. F. Learned, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Learned, Harold Laubach, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Adams, Miss Marian Adams and the guest of honor, Miss L. V. Learned.

REDLANDS.

The society event of the week was the flower show which was held yesterday at the Nichawaug Hotel. For several weeks the society people of the city have been grooming their chrysanthemums and roses to the point of perfection to have them ready for the show. The show culminated last night in a brilliant ball in the hotel lobby, one of the cosmopolitan events of the season. Among the women who worked hardest to make the flower show a big success were: Mrs. Frederick Harley, Mrs. John W. Davis and Mrs. John P. Fisk. They had been aides.

Mrs. J. S. Suess of this city, who is president of the Southern District of Women's Clubs, was one of the four honor guests at a luncheon given by members of the Colton Club at the inn in Riverside.

Mrs. F. E. Sanford, well-known artist, has had as her house guest Mrs. R. M. Pogson of Hollywood, who is a painter of flowers. They are exhibiting at the Mission Inn, and the exhibit is attracting a great deal of favorable attention.

The American Legion chapter here gave a ball at the Contemporary Clubhouse on Armistice Day night, and it was one of the brilliant affairs of the season. The patronesses were: Mrs. Thomas Moore Birtha, Mrs. Mary Ferry Allen, Mrs. G. B. Dunham, Mrs. Herbert A. Hargraves, Mrs. Herbert H. Garstin, Mrs. G. M. Burns, Mrs. A. C. Cameron, Mrs. A. H. Hubbard, Mrs. John W. Davis, Mrs. F. P. Morrison, Mrs. M. L. Lombard, Mrs. Sidney Wynne, Mrs. N. D. Hynson, Mrs. A. E. Brock, Mrs. Paul Moore, Mrs. H. A. Cherrier, Mrs. Phillip Harris and the Misses Saunders, Everton, Northrup and Harriman.

The members of the McKinley Parent-Teacher Association had a fine meeting during the week, and the new officers are Mrs. G. C. Bacon, president; Mrs. H. G. Clement and Miss Edith Taylor, vice-presidents, and Mrs. E. N. Nahmens, secretary. Miss Emma Jackson is head of the reception committee; Mrs. W. H. Thorn of the membership; Mrs. E. N. Nahmens of philanthropy, and Mrs. Walter McIntosh of the social and entertainment committee.

CLAREMONT.

Keith Powell Post of the American Legion celebrated Armistice Day with the opening of its new home, 253 West First street, when the members entertained in the evening with a reception and dance for about 300 friends of the organization. The new clubrooms were elaborately decorated with flags, red, white and blue streamers and great quantities of greenery, pepper boughs, asparagus, plumosa and begonias being used in profusion to screen the walls and balcony. The guests were received by Arthur W. Palmer, chairman of the post; Miss Gertrude Palmer, the only woman member of the organization; Rev. and Mrs. C. N. Hand, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Nixon and Prof. Edward P. Bartlett of Pomona College. There was orchestra music throughout the evening and Miss Harriet Pasmore contributed contralto solos to the programme. Mr. Palmer welcomed the guests on behalf of the post and introduced Prof. E. P. Brackett of Pomona College, the principal speaker of the evening. Prof. Brackett paid a tribute to the life and service of Keith Powell, in whose memory the local post is named, and whose photograph occupies a prominent place on the wall of the clubroom. Following the programme the members of the post and their friends enjoyed dancing.

The Eastern Star Social Club entertained at an all-day meeting Wednesday in the lodge rooms at

Maintaining Footwear Ideals

The thought of profit has always been of secondary importance in the operation of this business.

Our fundamental purpose has been to merit the goodwill and friendship of those whom we have been privileged to serve.

In this era of radical trade conditions, footwear merchandising has been fraught with many problems, trials and difficulties—but through it all the patronage of this establishment has continued to show a remarkable growth.

May we be pardoned for a bit of honest pride when we say that we credit our achievements to the unswerving maintenance of definite footwear ideals established over a quarter century ago.

SOCIETY.

Yale and Second. The committee in charge of arrangements was composed of Mrs. E A. Barnett, H. E. Robbins, J. B. Anderson, C. A. McLean, H. E. Peck, E. E. Kriner and E. W. Browning.

Mrs. Raymond Wayman and Master Jim Wayman of Los Angeles were guests over the week-end of Mrs. Wayman's sister, Mrs. Anna Robinson.

John D. Samord had as his guest the first of the week Chaplain Roberts Williams of Los Angeles, who gave the American Legion address on Sunday at the Claremont church. Rev. Mr. Williams was formerly chaplain with Lieut.-Col. Theodore Roosevelt's regiment of the First Division of the A.E.F. and wears the Distinguished Service Cross for bravery in fighting near Soissons.

Miss Hazel Powers is entertaining Miss Hazel Herrick of Minneapolis, who is passing the winter in Southern California.

COACHELLA.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Mallow and two children have arrived in Coachella this week and will make their home on the Dr. Allen ranch where Mr. Hallow will be employed as manager.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Matthews of Highlands have been visiting in the valley for the past week.

Mrs. Clyde Gillispie and little son arrived this week to stay. Mr. Gillispie is the new manager of the Coachella Valley Lumber Yard.

Farm Adviser Wilson and J. E. Wherrill, president of the Riverside County Farm Bureau paid a visit this week to points in the Coachella Valley, arranging for future farm bureau activities.

The masquerade dance at Mecca last Friday evening was a decided success. Mable Irwin as the Domino Girl and Paul Palmer as Charlie Chaplin drew first prize, while Alberta Metxler as the witch and Leland Yost as a bandit fell heir to the second prize. Miss Crystal Sayre as the gypsy was the popular young lady of the evening.

Mrs. A. A. Allen has resigned her position as teacher in the Coachella grammar school and will be succeeded by Miss Rachel B. McNinch.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Tracy of Livingston, Cal., formerly residents of the valley returned here this week. Mr. Tracy has a ranch in the Coral Reed district.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yost were visitors in Redlands this week.

The Coachella Christian Endeavorers gathered at the home of Miss MacDuff Saturday evening where a jolly party was held. The house was decorated with appropriate novelties.

MONROVIA.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Waterman entertained on Saturday evening with a delightfully informal dancing party at their home in Highway Square. The affair was in honor of Miss Mary Waterman of New York City, who is a house guest at the Waterman home, and a number of intimate friends who were assembled by Mr. and Mrs. Waterman to meet their guest.

A new club has been added to Monrovia's list of social groups and has been christened with the quaint name of Ching Cha. The organization boasts of four members, a set of prominent club women, who met on Monday at the home of Mrs A. J. Barnes on Wild Rose avenue for delightful little luncheon.

Miss Mary C. Given is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Given of South Mayflower avenue. Miss Given, who has been an army nurse at the Letterman Hospital at the Presidio, has recently received her discharge. She also spent seven months at Cripple Barracks, Arizona. After a visit here Miss Given expects to return to San Francisco to take up work in one of the large hospitals.

Members of the Auction Dinner Club were charmingly entertained by Mrs. Montague Graham when she presided over a prettily appointed 7 o'clock dinner at her home on East Olive avenue. A pretty centerpiece was made up of French marigolds, carrying out the color scheme of yellow. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. La Verne Watt, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Krutzsch, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Barks, Dr. and Mrs. L. N. Wheeler, and the host and hostess. Auction bridge was the amusement of the evening, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Miller being the lucky couple winning the prize.

A delightful Halloween party was given by Miss Grace Russell and Mrs. Klein at their home on East White Oak avenue. Decorations were of the Halloween motif and were cleverly used. After an enjoyable evening of appropriate games followed by dancing, dainty refreshments were served. About twenty-five guests were present. Mrs. M. L. Hutchinson assisted the two hostesses.

A wedding of general interest to Monrovians took place on Thursday evening at the home of the bride in the marriage of E. E. Rives, well-known real estate dealer, to Mrs. Jennie Nicholson. Rev. Charles Coke Woods, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated. Witnessing the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Rives and Clarence Nicholson. Mr. and Mrs. Rives will make their home on Lemon avenue.

Mrs. Hugo Krutzsch had as luncheon guests on Thursday Mrs. O. F. Harting and Mrs. Penny, both of St. Louis. Mrs. Harting and Mrs Penny are making Los Angeles their headquarters while visiting in Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Bigalow of South Encinitas avenue, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fitschen of Canyon boulevard motored to Wineville on Thursday and spent a few hours as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy V. Nye.

Arthur J. Little left on Thursday on a business trip to Exeter. Mrs. Little accompanied him and will visit with friends near Visalia. The Littles expect to return Sunday.

Mrs. E. L. Francis of South Ivy avenue, who has been enjoying a visit at the home of her son in Mizpah, Minn., is expected home in a few days.

T. T. Tourtillott, for the past year business manager of the Pottenger Sanatorium, has resigned his position to resume the superintendency of his large orchard, the Laurel Crest Rancho, near Morgan Hill, Santa Clara county. During his year in this city, Mr. Tourtillott and his family have made a large circle of friends who will regret their leaving.

SIERRA MADRE.

Under the auspices of the Woman's Guild of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, the annual bazaar will be held in the auditorium of the Woman's Club House, Thursday and Friday, afternoon and evening, November 20-21. Those in charge of the different booths are Miss Daisy Hawks fancy work, Mmes. M. D. Welsher and C. Clemmons, domestic table; Mrs. L. Dietz, cooked foods; Mrs. Stella Dennison, candy, Mrs. Lee Lyon, books, and Mmes. F. J. Hart and F. P. Sperry, white elephant table. The children's corner will be specially arranged and under the charge of Mrs. F. L. C. Roess. The Order of St. Catherine will have a special booth under the supervision of Mrs. Mary Goodfellow. Mrs. Walter Lynch will have charge of the decorations. A musical tea will be under the care of Mrs. T. H. Flather, who has charge of the tea table and music. A two-act skit entitled "Untangling Tony" will be presented during the evenings by local talent, while several other numbers of vaudeville will also be rendered. The bazaar will close Friday night with a dance.

In honor of her sixteenth birthday last week, Miss Marjorie Hieseker was agreeably surprised with a dinner party by her high school companions. Among those

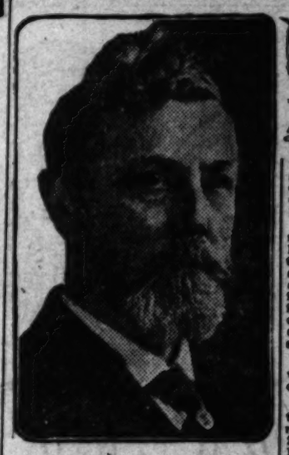
From Knitter to Wearer—Saves You Money



"Distress" writes: "My hair is an oily and straggling I wish you could tell me something to make it soft and fluffy. It makes me positively homely. I also have a great deal of dandruff."

Answer: Many women would be more beautiful if they had soft, fluffy hair. I can tell you a very simple remedy, one that will make your hair soft and fluffy. It will overcome dandruff, itching scalp and lustreless and falling hair. Ask your druggist for a 4 ounce jar of plain yellow Minyol and use according to directions, and you will be surprised to note the difference in your hair.

"Fred W." writes: "I suffer with headache, indigestion, nervous debility and am also thin almost to the danger point. What can be done for me?"

Answer: You can very readily overcome these difficulties by using 3-grain Hypo-Nuclane Tablets. They are put up in sealed cartons with full directions. These are highly recommended, and if used according to directions you will soon be rid of headache, your indigestion will be fine and you will gain from 10 to 30 pounds. These tablets should be taken regularly for several months.

"Lee" writes: I have tried so many remedies for rheumatism that I am almost afraid to try any more, but if you can tell me a sure remedy I will try it."

Answer: Do not be disheartened because you have not been able to find something that would overcome your rheumatism, for you can be relieved if you will take what I tell you. Get from the drug store: Iodide of Potassium, 2 drams; sodium salicylate, 4 drams; wine of colchicum, ½ oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; and syrup sarsaparilla, 6 oz. Mix and take a teaspoonful at mealtime and again before going to bed.

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered here are of general interest. Letters pertaining to diseases are given careful attention and should apply to our medical department.

Those wishing further advice may address Dr. Lewis Baker, Medical Building, Colfax and Woodward, Detroit, Ohio, enclosing a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Write name and address plainly and use only initials or fictitious name if you desire. In my answers. The remedies may be obtained at any reliable drug store. Any druggist can obtain them for you at wholesale.

which I think is due to a severe cough. Can you give me a remedy?

Answer: You can get relief from the coughing. Can you give me a remedy?

relieved by using the following: 2½ oz. package of Cascara Laxene and thirty grains of Bromo-Seltzer. Dissolve the Laxene and Bromo-Seltzer in a pint of water and take a teaspoonful every hour until relieved. Then take a teaspoonful every two hours until the cough is cured. Some of the cough syrups are of the very best and safest.

H. M. B. writes: "Can you prescribe something which will relieve me of such distressing symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble? Pains in small of back, irregular action of bladder, frequent attacks but scanty flow with pain, burning, foul odor, pulling of limbs, etc."

Answer: These symptoms indicate kidney and bladder disorder. You can begin taking Buchwort Tablets, a successful formula and is used with full directions.

"Anna R." writes: "I have taken medicine from several doctors for my kidney trouble and constipation, but does not seem to help me at all. My skin is sallow, I have frequent headaches and dizzy spells. What can I do?"

Answer: The best remedy I know of for your trouble is Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets (not Compound Tablets). They are packed in sealed tubes and full directions. Most of the symptoms you aggravate, but if you take these Tablets regularly for a few months you should be well. This will purify your blood and your skin will have a healthy look.

"Mrs. P. G." writes: "I would like to ask advice as my case is a peculiar one. In a word, I am tired and worn out all the time. Have doctored but have never been benefited. I have been married over a year and a half and did not know what it was to be nervous or nervous. Sometimes I feel as though I fear I will become a nervous wreck. My husband if this continues."

Answer: Your nerves are in a badly run-down condition. You need a good vigorating medicine that will help you by supplying more food-energy to the nerves. Take three grain Buchwort Tablets regularly for several months.

The DOCTOR'S ADVICE
by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character; the symptoms of disease are given and the remedy should apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice may address Dr. Lewis Baker, [illegible] Building, College-Elwood streets, Toledo, Ohio, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The remedies may be obtained at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order them for you.

which I think is due to the [illegible] coughing. Can you give me a remedy?

Answer: Yes, your weakness is due to the coughing, but you should be relieved by using the following: Get 2½ oz. package of common Horehound and make according to directions on the bottle, then take a teaspoonful every hour or two until the cough is cured. This makes a remedy of the very best and safest cough remedies.

• • •

H. M. R. writes: "Can you prescribe medicine which will relieve me of such distressing [illegible] kidney and bladder, as the [illegible] Pains in small of back, soreness in region of bladder, frequent calls at night, scanty flow with pain, burning, foul odor, puffing of limbs, etc."

Answer: Those seeking relief for kidney and bladder disorders should begin taking Dalmwort Tablets, a [illegible] successful formula sold in sealed tubes with full directions.

"Anna R." writes: "I have taken medicine from several doctors for [illegible] kidney trouble and constipation, but does not seem to help me at all. My skin is sallow, I have constant headaches and dizzy spells. What can I do?"

Answer: The best remedy that I know for your trouble is 3-grain [illegible] Tablets (not sulphur tablets). They are packed in sealed tubes with full directions. Most of the remedies only aggravate, but if you take the [illegible] Tablets regularly for a few weeks you should be well. This will purify the blood and your skin will lose that [illegible] look.

"Mrs. P. G." writes: "I [illegible] ask advice as my case is so unusual. As a ward, I am tired and worn out all the time. Rest does not refresh me. I have been married over a year and [illegible] did not know what it was to be irritable or nervous. Sometimes I feel [illegible] I fear I will become a nuisance to my husband if this continues."

Answer: Your nervous system has been depleted. You need a tonic, a vigorating medicine that will aid in supplying more food-energy to the nerves. Take three grain [illegible] Tablets regularly for several weeks.

Trefousse Gloves

Changing fashions in sleeves and outer wraps have created a demand for gloves of an entirely different character from those worn during the past few years.

With loose, flaring sleeves, the forearm should be sheathed in the new Mousquetaire or Slip-on Gloves.

Elbow sleeves call for long gloves of Glace or Suede.

TREFOUSSE GLOVES—the finest product of France—are sold exclusively in Los Angeles by Robinson's.

Their exquisite softness and pliancy, the finesse of their workmanship, the beauty and modishness of their colorings, and the ease with which they accommodate themselves to the season's new gowns make instant appeal to women who discriminate between the finer things of fashion.

Gift thoughts lead to Trefousse Gloves.

Niobe Parfum

Niobe is a creation of the noted French parfumeur, Violet (pronounced Ve-o-lay).

This is an odor dainty enough to please the most fastidious, so exclusive, so little known that it may well be adopted for an Individual Parfum — a refinement that all famous beauties have favored.

Priced, at oz., $8.00.

In its original container—a Lalique Bottle that might have been carved by skilled nymphs from some huge amethyst — Niobe Parfum makes a gift that even the gods might envy.

Bottle, $20.00.

Unusual Things for Unusual People

Common things; common people—that is the way the public is apt to reason.

The clever ideas don't cost any more. It is just a matter of getting acquainted with Robinson's.

Ostrich Fans

One never can tell, as the Ostrich Fan said to the maid when they were dressing for the dance. The Fan was quite right, for prodigious promises were made and fates were decided that night. And the Fan was an accessory both before and after the fact, for it played a large part in the ensemble of beauty, which of course was the cause of it all.

The Fans are $7.50 to $75. The Bags are $8.50.

FIRST FLOOR.

Invalid Baskets

Now that "sitting up with sick friends" has gone out of style with gentlemen, everybody has taken to sending Invalid Baskets to convalescents' rooms.

Jams, jellies and candied fruits, tucked invitingly into a gilded basket and all tenderly tied with a big satin bow.

$3.00 for some; more for others. FIRST FLOOR.

Incense Burners

When the incense burns, then dreams are kindled and started off into space. There winging their way through mazes of beautiful thoughts, they take form and return to us as concrete things and thus to dreams come true.

This burner is $4.50—some are only 75c.

Japanese Miya, Sandalwood, Pine Woods, Campfire, Lavender, Orangewood and Blossoms are odors that one may choose upon which to float one's vagrant fancies while the scented smoke is curling.

From 25c to 65c.

FIRST FLOOR.

Lamp Shades

This fluffy lamp shade just came over from France—Oui, Oui.

It is very lovely, has cascades of lace and rippling silk and sort of suggests lingerie, as so many French things do. It is le dernier murmure for a Boudoir Lamp.

$57.50 for this one; others for less.

FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

BY ADELAIDE BYRD

MRS. PAYNTER'S LIVING ROOM TRANSFORMED

By Ethel Davis Seal

IT WAS a season of chaos at Mrs. Tom Paynter's house; pleasurable chaos, however, for her house was being slipped into a new dress. Nothing except mending and cleaning had been done to the poor old house for years; Mr. and Mrs. Tom had just settled back—and in—contentedly, after the first burst of enthusiasm they had felt toward their home during the very early years of their married life, and, since they had not had the money then to buy the beautiful things they wanted, they had first lost interest, then as time went on they had contentedly shut their eyes to the unattractiveness of their surroundings; since they were physically comfortable, nothing else mattered.

And then had come the visit to Angie Tait—Angie Saunders that was. Poor Mr. Tom! How unwillingly he had been dragged there, but how surprisingly delightful a time he had had! Somehow Barbara Paynter had realised that that visit was predestined to pull them out of the rut they had fallen into even before the train hurriedly dumped them at their proper station. And it had all come about in the most miraculous ways. The beginning of it had happened when they stepped into [illegible] living room, so homelike with its [illegible] and books, its softly attractive color scheme, its effectively modern furniture, its blazing hearth fire. Mrs. Paynter had felt the stir of her soul, and had determined then and there that the very moment she got home she was going to make her living room just as beautiful as Angie's; no matter if she hadn't much money she was going to do it, so, burning her bridges past recrossing, she had invited the Angie of this beautiful house to visit her.

So here Mrs. Tom was, two weeks later, shopping and painting, stitching embellishing and squinting her eyes till they were artistically narrow slits, so intent was she on getting a ravishing color scheme. The whole thing had begun with the papering of the walls; an expensive job these days. But Mrs. Tom, having argued that where there's a will there's a way, primed herself with all the rules for papering a wall and had commandeered the services of the 16-year-old boy next door, who, with the pride of his sex and age, joyously and plenteously sopped water on the ancient paper on the walls and proceeded to scrape off the remains, while Mrs. Tom went shopping for the new wherewithal to cover them. She found it surprisingly easy, considering the limit of her very moderate price and her newly acquired fastidiousness, but a month ago she would have considered her choice impossible, for she bought her rolls of paper with the firm intention of putting them on her walls wrongside out! And went on her way marveling and rejoicing that the back side of paper could be so nearly the color of the expensive vellum Angie had selected for her living room.

Many women paper their own rooms, she thought reflectively, as she looked with pleased admiration at her successful sand-colored walls after she and the 16-year-old had finished with them, so she needn't be too proud; but the nice new background of her room renewed her enthusiasm for finding just the right material for her curtains, which, after much seeking and grave deliberation, assumed the pleasant reality of dark-grounded printed cretonne in deeply warm russet tones, and which cost 60 cents a yard. These curtains Barbara lined with a henna-colored sateen, hanging sand-colored batiste inner curtains to the sills with a wide hemstitching done in Chinese red.

The room was beginning to look pretty! One coat of ivory enamel had freshened the rather dingy woodwork; Mr. Tom had been inveigled into being a handy man, and had laid a new hearth, the tiny dull red tiles costing the small sum of $5; and he himself had suggested running a nice sand-colored cement facing around the fireplace opening. The floor had been stained a dark walnut brown, and some bookshelves matching the woodwork had been built in. Things were taking most exciting shape.

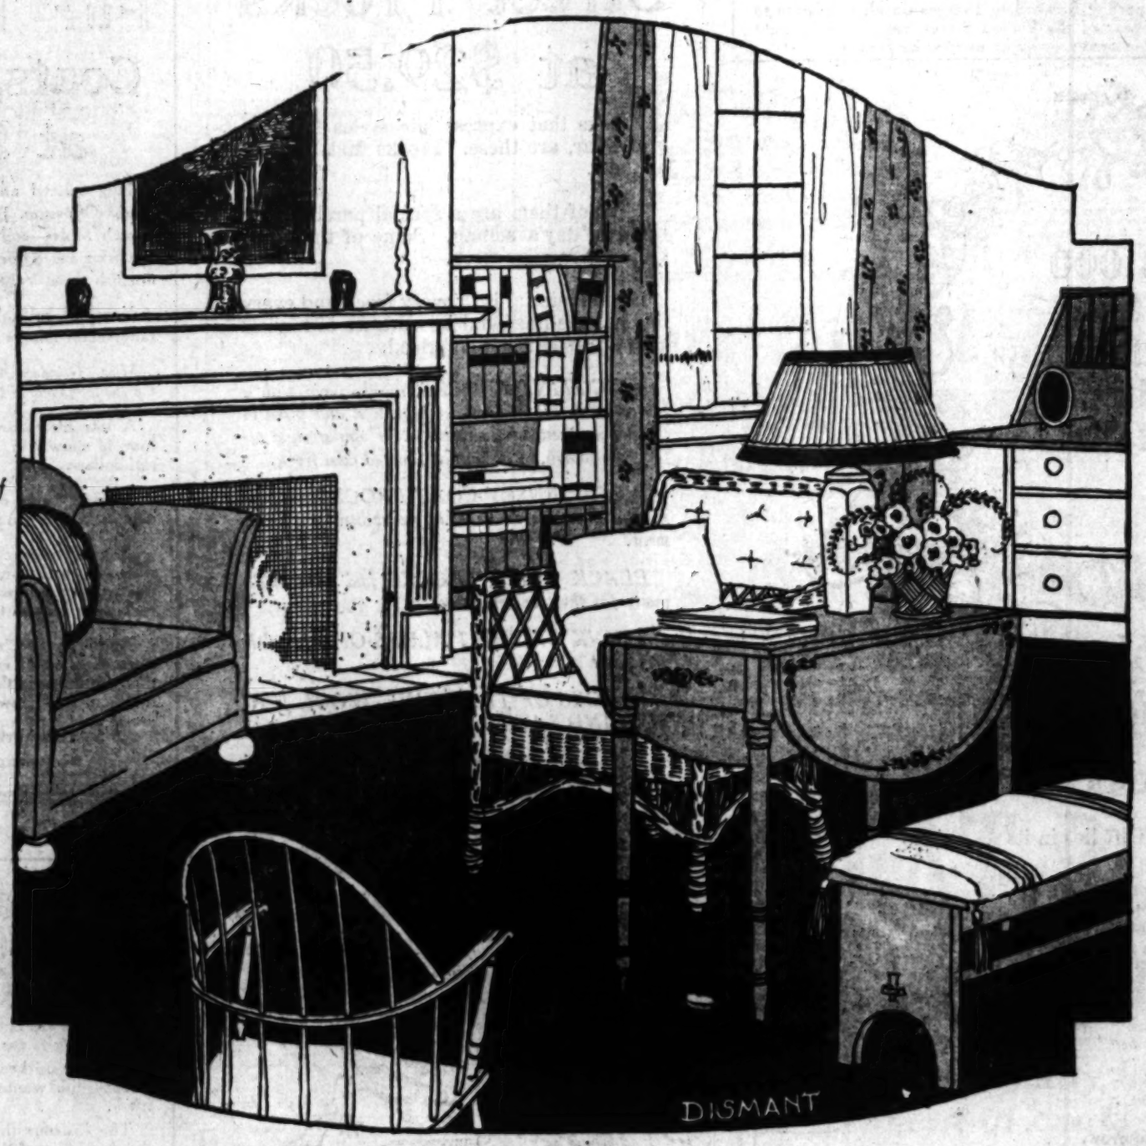
And at this moment the rug came home! Now, anybody will hold their breath in delighted suspense while unrolling a new rug, but imagine the keen thrills while unrolling one that has been made from all your old ones, your stray bits of carpet, plus your guestroom brussels, and you are seeing it for the first time. If you can imagine this you will know Mrs. Tom's feeling exactly. For the very first thing she had done after she had come home was to gather up all the carpet things she could spare, sending them with the instructions for the dimensions for the new rug, and now she was unrolling the best-looking rug in a dull brownish mixture that would be the making of her room—where there's a will there's a way, indeed!

Then in another week the chair was back—did I forget to tell you about the chair? For the second thing Mrs. Tom had done after getting home was to send their shabby old red plush overstuff to be recovered in a simple tapestry denim of a dull deep blue, a material that is effectively used as a preliminary covering for expensive upholstered chairs, many chairs being shown in the shops in this state, while only the initiated know that they are by rights waiting for a new covering of at least $5 a yard, so good-looking they are! Mrs. Tom knew that this covering would look prettier in her room than anything else she could afford to buy. And it did.

The old mission desk was painted a sand color without, and within a rich old gold color, this lining even the drawers, and was further set off by a peacock blue quill pen. A brown wicker chair was recushioned in golden brown; a drop-leaf table was painted black and decorated with old yellow sienna and blue; there was a stool to match with a blue and old gold pillow. And a black Windsor chair.



Mrs. Tom reviewed the work she had done; she felt again that stir in her soul, as she placed orange flowers in a deep blue bowl, and prepared to settle herself happily before her own hearth fire—Angie Saunders just couldn't be too quick with that visit!

A BRIGHT SPOT IN YOUR HOME is a pillow, providing, of course, that there's a bright idea back of it. And you never encountered brighter than the pillow ideas coming on this page next Sunday. One is a striking new art lady all made out of velvet cut-outs, and another is the latest thing in embroidery—a design all worked out in blanket-stitch! Oh, but you will simply have to see them to get any idea of their brightness.

Do You Want a Stunning Table Runner?

IF YOU do, you will do best if you make it yourself, following this plan. Buy some heavy black or dark brown, or dark green charmeuse (you can use chiffon velvet if you prefer) and get enough to make it amply long for your table. Choose whichever shade goes best with the color of the room, but it must be dark in tone.

It really should be lined. A thin, satin will do very nicely. Coat lining would also do very well. Now near either end apply a strip of metallic brocaded satin about six inches wide. Finish with a narrow metallic braid. Use the same about the edges of the scarf. Upon either end use a chenille fringe of the color of the scarf.

Now if you are really up to fashion in housefurnishings, you will not stop there, but you will make a pillow to go nicely with the scarf. Use the strip of brocade across the center of the pillow, which is oblong in shape. Finish the edges with the little metallic braid just as you finished the scarf.

You may think it will cost a great deal to make these, but it will cost ever so much more to buy them all made up!

Since Bowls Are in Vogue, Have a Bowl!

THERE is something fascinating about the right bowl in the right place. It adds a touch of color and life to a room which nothing else will do quite so artistically.

So many other folks are realising this very fact that bowls have been soaring in price for some months past. Now when we have acquired the taste for them, it seems too bad to have to do without them, doesn't it?

Well, you can get round it this way: Use a bit of cleverness and a cheap bowl and you'll be surprised at the result. Buy a cheap glass bowl (some 10-cent stores have them) and transfer a design to it with carbon paper. Conventional flower designs are preferable. Then mix a little white household enamel with each of the colors of oil paint which you will use and paint in the design. A decoration which combines two shades of rose, light blue, pale yellow and green would lend itself to artistic use in most any room. How very well you could decorate a low flower bowl for your dining table in this way!

Of course this idea may be used on all sorts of glassware. A colonial candy jar could be effectively decorated thus. You might give it a design of fruit around the top in orange, purple and green, and dot every other panel of the jar with purple dots separated by an inch or less.

And, of course, vases could be charmingly decorated in this way.

Who will not be pleased with a piece of attractive glass? Why, it gives light and brilliance to the most commonplace of commonplace rooms!

Modish New Scarf

THE great wide scarf which is held in about the waist with a narrow patent leather belt is right up to its neck in style! The hand-knit ones have not been seen very much yet, but they will be ere long.

As they are very long—extending to the hem of the skirt—and very wide, it would be a good plan to start one right now if you intend to have one when you will be wanting it most.

Victory blue, purple, tan and brown are among the most popular shades for this sort of scarf. Grays are good also, of course.

Cast on sixty-five stitches. For about five inches plain knit it. The next row, knit ten stitches plain and then purl forty. Do likewise for about ten rows. Then take your ten stitches as before, but this time purl only enough stitches to equal the width of the purling of the ten rows below.

The idea is to work [illegible] design in the center of the scarf.

Suppose that it takes ten purl stitches to make a border of width equal to the width of the border parallel to the bottom. Then purl your ten, plain knit twenty stitches, purl ten and plain knit ten. That would give you the design in purl on either side of the scarf.

The other end of the scarf would, of course, complete this rectangular design, which is traced out with the purling.

Make it of nice heavy wool and do not skimp it in length, and you will be most proud of the work of your hands and knitting needles!

FROCK-SAVERS TO MAKE FOR "HER"

A Dainty Lawn Grows Dainty Daisies — This Kiddie Print Needs But Simple Lines and No Trimming — Crisscross Stitches Easy and Effective

BESIDES being ever so practical and economical, wee aprons may be delightfully quaint and pretty, as witness this trio. Quite the very nicest thing about these aprons, tho, is the surprising ease with which they can be made at home. For they have no especial "cut" to bother about; it's treatment that makes them so distinctive. Take, for example, that cunning thing with the French knots and the crossing stitches.

Here you have charming chance to use contrasting materials, two chambrays, for instance, brown and green, gray and orange, or red and blue. The lighter color you will put into the undecorated part of the apron, the heavier going into yoke and hem cuff. Then the stitching, which is a matter of taking long stitches crisscross and interspersing them with big French knots, might repeat either one or both the colors of the apron material.

For daintier frocks and more festive occasions, the little lingerie thing is suggested. In matters of line, it is scarcely more than a length of material with an oval hole in the middle, making the neck line, and some curving about the bottom for finish. Then, in the way of decoration, it acquires a bit of gathering at top, and under that some dainty daisies and briar stitching. Which last is to be looked upon as opportunity to introduce some pretty pastel colors. As for the apron itself, that may be either white or an exquisite pastel, too, and lawn or organdie or batiste.

Now that adorable kiddie thing is dependent on neither line nor treatment so much as fabric itself for its effectiveness. You may not be able to procure this particular print, but the upholstery department of your shop can supply you with many a substitute pretty nearly as charming. There are Mother Goose characters to be had and other patterns highly pleasing to the wee'uns. But in the making of an apron of this type, it is suggested that you keep the lines just as inconspicuous as possible, emphasising the dominant color, perhaps, in a plain binding of the edges.

A Bag For an Old Straw Hat

HAVE you a straw hat whose shape lists it among back numbers but whose straw is still perfectly good? If you have, you will be able to make a very fascinating workbag—that is, if your straw hat is the right sort. It must be a soft straw, either a hemp, a leghorn or a lace straw would do very well, indeed.

Dip the hat in warm water and after it is sufficiently soaked to make it pliable, shape it so that the crown will have lost its identity as such and have become the bottom of your straw bag. The bag should be tapering and may be either triangular or rounded in outline. It may have a top which turns back or not, just as you wish. You may shape it just so uniquely, as you wish.

If the hat is a lace straw one, bind the top with whatever color you choose, give it handles, which are really heavy cordings of the same color and decorate the front of it with ribbons of the same color which are laced thru to form a design of some sort.

If the hat is of the solid straw variety, you will do very well to purchase some lovely cretonne with a design not too large to go on the front of the bag. Bind the top of the bag with it, and cover cord with it for the handles, and then cut out the design in the cretonne and applique it to the front. Such a colorful and attractive design will make any bag attractive and tho it gives the impression of intricate and colorful embroidery, it is ever so much simpler. A bag as attractive as this would not only delight the maker, but it would also please a friend at the Christmas season.

Another way would be to paint the bag—lately a hat—preferably black. Give it enough paint to make it a good black. Then give it a vivid and colorful bunch of painted flowers on the front or give it a colorful border, top and bottom. Ribbon velvet would do very well for the handles.

One of Those "Little" Gifts

ONE always has a number of gifts one "has to give" and, oh, how those "little" gifts mount up before one realizes! The only way to spend a little and at the same time give a gift which is worth giving is to make it one's self. Here is a novel idea which can be developed cheaply and satisfactorily:

Get one of those small sweet grass mats and upon the center of it sew a round little stuffed pincushion of orchid (or any other color) china silk. Upon either side of it sew a rosette of orchid baby ribbon and allow three or four long ends to have small ivory rings attached to them in order to hold safety pins. Now attach a small ribbon to the mat by which to hang it up, and you will have a useful and dainty little gift which is a novel way of providing a place for every pin with every pin in its place!

Mrs. Wayne Thornburg, daughter of R. M. Warner, has arrived in Corona to spend the next few weeks visiting here and in Long Beach.

Mrs. Leonard Colburn of Montana is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Lloyd. Mrs. Colburn will remain here until a few days before Christmas.

Miss Dorothy Huff, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Huff of South Main street, celebrated her thirteenth birthday anniversary this week with a dinner party at which she was hostess to several friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Dunlop of New Zealand were guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Andrews today at their home on Vicentia.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Day and family, C. A. Harding and Rev. Cole motored to Los Angeles Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Birdsall received word from their daughter, Miss Joyce Birdsall, informing them that she would arrive in Corona in a few days. Miss Birdsall was in Ogden when she sent the telegram. It will be two years since Miss Birdsall enlisted as a nurse and she has been across the water for the past fourteen months.

BLYTHE.

Fred M. Stewart, who was one of the Palo Verde pioneer settlers, returned this week to look after his interests here.

W. F. Balch, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bircher and G. Bircher, drove in from the coast yesterday. He was met here by his uncle, J. J. Bircher, who drove with his family from Kansas.

Charles Utting, formerly manager of the Blythe Lumber and Freighting Company here, came in this week from his present home in Yuma Valley.

W. S. Wells, formerly a janjero for the water company, has been promoted to the position of water master to succeed Arthur W. Schlob, who recently resigned.

Mrs. Tom Todd was hostess at a dinner party given Sunday in honor of Tom and his sister, Mrs. G. C. Clayton, who is here from Fresno for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nelson, who are well and favorably known in the valley, having lived in Fertilla until last winter, returned to the valley this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston Nash, recent arrivals on the Coast from the East, came in this week from Riverside.

Patrons of the Union High School were at home to the teachers at the school auditorium Friday evening, November 14. A special musical programme for the evening entertainment was provided and refreshments were served.

BAKERSFIELD.

Mrs. J. O. Clutter entertained the members of the Tuesday Afternoon Club. The usual sewing occupied the members, who are Mmes. Harry Hogan, Parker Brown, Jackson W. Mahon, S. N. Sherzer, Clarance Wilson, Lloyd Stroud, J. A. Endert, A. W. Mason, Howard C. Yates, Orville Clark and H. P. Jensen.

Miss Jean Aletha Voorheis and Charles C. Hughes were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Voorheis, of Kentucky street. The Rev. Cowan of Pasadena performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes will make their home in Bakersfield.

Mrs. Milo C Newlon was hostess for the Thursday Bridge Club, which meets fortnightly through the winter. Members of the club are Mmes. Herbert Johnston, C. S. Schofield, G. E. Adams, Otis Hymer, H. M. Hymer, Paul Hopkins and Charles Schulor.

The Women's Club gave their first dance of the season, the affair being of a very informal nature. Hostesses for the evening were: Mmes. Allan B. Campbell, James E. Stone, J. J. Nolan, George Brown, Mary L. Dickinson, C. E. Jameson, R. T. Duncan, J. L. Frost, G. W. Gerrard, James Ogden and J. H. Osgood.

Miss Gertrude Jackson of San Francisco is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ball of G street.

TAFT.

California was the topic of discussion at the meeting of the Women's Club this week. Each member, if she were a native of California, was presented with a yellow chrysanthemum, symbolic of the State's color. Mrs. Walter Cheney told in a most interesting manner the story of the missions. The programme for November 18 is in charge of Mrs. H. H. McClintock, and the subject for the day will be "Childs' Welfare." The hostesses for that day are Mrs. C. Z. Vander Hork, Mrs. R. R. McGuire, Mrs. M. D. Stephens and Mrs. J. W. David.

The ladies of the Eastern Star met and elected officers for the ensuing year, after which a delightful social hour was spent. Officers elected were: Mrs. Mabel Randolph, M.W.; Mrs. Myrtle Waller, A.M.; Mrs. Hilda Echols, Conductress; Mrs. Stella Hatfield, A.C.; Mrs. Della Cameron, Secretary; Edwina Kirk, Treasurer.

Mrs. D. J. Gribbin was hostess to her Sunday-school class at her home on Woodrow street. Those invited were Kenneth Chesley, Norman Plaugher, Harmon Peahl, Eugene Jeru, William Zeller, Franklin David and Hugh Gribben.

Johanna and George Busher entertained very pleasantly at their home, many entertaining games and delightful refreshments helping to while away the evening. Those present were: Beulah Gard, Nellie Flannigan, Frances Hudson, Florence and Lucille Frank, Thelma Ward, Ciola McKenna, Robert and Bruce Squire, John Springer, William Hudson, Charles Frank, Cecil Straighill, Dale Guard and the host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Uffin entertained the following guests at cards: Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard, Mr. and Mrs. O. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. G. Zeller and George Sullivan, the latter being Mrs. Uffin's brother from San Francisco.

Mrs. Frank Krisher of Havre, Mont., with her son and daughter, William and Madeline, are here visiting at the home of Mrs. Elmer Greer.

BEAUMONT.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gantt returned from a visit in North Carolina.

Miss Margaret Faggetter of Beaumont and Mr. Herbert Cleveland of Oak Glen were quietly married in Redlands one day this week by the Rev. Ralph P. Smith. The young couple left the same evening for Indio, where they expect to remain for a few months, but will later make their home in Oak Glen, where Mr. Cleveland owns a ranch.

Mr. William Barrett has returned home after a few weeks' visit here.

Charlie Barrett was home on a brief furlough last week on a visit to his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Barrett.

Dr. Yale and son, Dick, of Los Angeles were guests of the doctor's parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Bourne.

Miss Esther Springin of Glendale is visiting her mother here.

Dr. Horace McCoy has received his discharge from the army and is visiting his parents here.

Mr. and Mrs. Lodi of Los Angeles are here to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gray of San Francisco are in Beaumont, having been called here by the illness of his mother, Mrs. M. M. Gray.

SANTA BARBARA.

Mrs. Edgar W. Stow has returned from a visit in Pittsburgh, Pa., with her uncle, Charles L. Taylor, chairman of the Carnegie Foundation, with whom she went East several weeks ago.

Mrs. Oakleigh Thorne of New York is expected in Montecito next Friday to spend the winter at her home on Hot Springs road.

Mrs. Rosaline C. Baker of Baltimore, Md., has returned to Montecito for another winter's stay. Mrs. Baker will build a residence on her Montecito estate.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Thayer have returned to their home in Montecito from an extended New York visit.

Mrs. Burnett Y Tiffany was hostess on Tuesday at the Del la Guerra tea house, entertaining a group of Red Cross workers, who are directing the present membership drive.

Mr. and Mrs William North Duane and children have returned to Montecito from their summer home in Convent, N. J., and will spend the winter months here.

Mrs. Walter Heffelfinger of Minneapolis has taken a Montecito house for the winter. A number of little society affairs are being arranged in her honor.

Mrs. Daniel Herzog entertained a little group of friends on Tuesday afternoon with an informal tea at the De la Guerra tea rooms.

Mrs. William Miller Graham and her daughter, Miss Geraldine Graham, are expected to return in December from an extended visit in New York and Newport. They spent October at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and were guests at the first large ball of the season in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Daniel Nugent, Jr., of Montecito entertained fifteen friends at a luncheon at La Cumbre Club on Monday afternoon.

EAGLE ROCK CITY.

Quite an event of the season was the reception given Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Sprague at the Congregational Church on Monday evening in honor of their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Vocal solos were given by Mrs. Paul Elderkin, and Mrs. Peter Ducker, one of the latter's selections being "When You and I Were Young Maggie." Mrs. C. W. Young gave a reading, and Mr. Harry Nellsen gave a piano solo. Mrs. Hamar played a wedding march, while the bride and groom were ushered down the aisle, with little Charles Chamberlain acting as ring bearer, and little Mary Ellison as flower girl. A son-in-law of the bride and groom, Mr. Evans of Berkeley, performed the ceremony after which Mrs. Sprague threw her bride's bouquet among her friends, a rose bearing a ring falling in the possession of Miss Constance Braasch. A beautiful bouquet of four dozen golden chrysanthemums was then presented the happy couple, Mr. Godfrey Edwards then presented them with a beautiful bag in which was a lace handkerchief with five-dollar gold pieces embroidered in with gold thread, amounting to $35, and bearing a card, "From your valley friends." The children of the couple also presented them with $100 in gold and the Parent-Teacher Association, aside from having decorated the church most beautifully, also presented them with $2.50, making a total of $187.50 as a remembrance of this occasion. The children from Berkeley also gave them a beautiful Bible in which the guests of the evening, amounting to over 200, left their signatures. A three-layer wedding cake decorated with white flowers and doves, in frosting, was then cut and served with punch and candies. Mr. and Mrs. Sprague have resided in Eagle Rock for many years, and with their sunny dispositions have won for themselves a host of friends. They are each 72 years young.

The Parent-Teacher Association put on a splendid entertainment in their school auditorium on Thursday evening, consisting of a concert by the Normal School Glee Club, and a Japanese sketch in pantomime produced by the members of the Eagle Rock faculty. The lighting effect for this was wonderful, the art having been learned by Miss Ellen Galpin while in London. Miss Galpin is one of our teachers, and a daughter of the originator of the Shakespearean Club of Los Angeles.

The Three Hundred and Thirteenth Order of the Eastern Star held its annual election of officers on last Monday evening. Miss Ada Carr was elected to the office of Worthy Matron, Mrs. Fellows of Glassell Park, Associate Matron; Mrs. Alice Dirks, Conductress; Miss Fannie Bailey, Associate Conductress. The public installation will take place the first Monday evening in December.

The Blue Lodge will entertain the Eastern Star in their hall on Friday evening, the 22nd, with a social.

The Presbyterian Guild have completed work on seventy garments for the community service work, and 115 garments which they sent to their Presbyterian Orphanage at San Anselmo. Mrs. Ong will be glad to receive any garments which people can spare for these purposes.

Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Chandler enjoyed Armistice Day at Redondo Beach.

The Presbyterian Church has secured Mr. Lance E. Estes of Pasadena as conductor of their choir. Mr. Lance was formerly tenor soloist at the First Baptist Church in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Glotzbach have moved into their new home at 142 North Kenilworth avenue, recently purchased from Mr. T. H. Ludlow. Mr. and Mrs. Ludlow will also remain at this address for a time. Mr. Glotzbach has been teller in the Trust and Savings Bank at Sixth and Spring for the past nine years.

SAN LUIS OBISPO.

Miss Alice Kenner, whose engagement to John Bello was recently announced, was complimented with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. A. L. Webster on Wednesday afternoon, the affair being given by the Emanon Club. The Webster home was a profusion of autumn blossoms, the color scheme in the dining-room being pink. Miss Kenner and Mr. Bello are to be married on Saturday, next. Miss Kenner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Kenner. Mr. Bello is a member of a prominent family and a returned service man.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Merrifield have returned from a brief stay in San Francisco.

Mrs. J. B. Weaver has returned from San Francisco, where she has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. F. J Anderson, for the past three weeks.

Mrs. Cora Collins has returned to her home in San Jose after a visit of several weeks here, during which time she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. McCool.

At a quiet ceremony Wednesday evening Miss Ruth Griffin became the bride of Herschel G. Glover, Judge William Mallagh officiating. Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for the south on a honeymoon trip. Mrs. Glover is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Griffin, and is a popular member of the younger set. Upon their return from the south Mr. and Mrs. Glover will make their home here.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. McChesney left Saturday for New York, where they plan to spend several months.

As the culmination of a romance which began during the war, Miss Genevieve Estella Renetzky became the bride of Israel Louis Wender at Santa Barbara last Tuesday. During the war Mr. Wender was stationed here as marine recruiting officer, and became acquainted with Miss Renetzky. On his discharge from the service Mr. Wender went into business at Sisquoc, and lost little time in urging a speedy wedding. The ceremony which took place at the home of friends in Santa Barbara Tuesday, was the result. After a honeymoon spent in the south the young couple will reside at Sisquoc. Mrs. Wender is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Renetzky, prominent residents of this city.

Mrs. W. C. Carpenter was hostess at a luncheon and shower Thursday afternoon at her home in Murray avenue for Mrs. A. D. Church. Cecile Brunner roses and asparagus fern furnished the dainty decorations for the table. Those present were Mmes. H. H. Carpenter, Arthur Marshall, R. W. Shelby, W. V. Fisk, M. R. Van Wormer, A. L. Cunningham, W. D. Reaugh, J. C. Sims and A. D. Church.

The members of the Thais Club enjoyed their monthly dance at Corona Hall on Thursday evening. The next dance of the club will be held on the evening of December 4.

Mrs. John Fisher has returned from a visit to friends in Los Angeles. She was accompanied on her return by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stillwell and Miss Lottie Hamerick, who will be the guests of the Fishers for several weeks.

Novel Gifts for Men in gold and silver

The newest and cleverest ideas of America's most talented gold and silver craftsmen have always been featured in our large and comprehensive stock.

However, in our quest for ultra-smart novelties in gold and silver for men, we have this year eclipsed all of our previous efforts. The result is an assemblage of small, creations that will appeal to the most blase taste. The designs are distinctive—the shapes are odd—they're different, attractive—just the kind you would expect to find only in the most famous jewelry shops of the world.

A wide variety of gold cigarette cases, fountain pens, pencil and knife combinations, Masonic and Elk card cases, cigar and cigarette holders, Gillette razor sets, cigar cutters, pocket combs, latch key holders, knives, etc.—all in 14k gold.

Tardy Christmas shopping means inevitable disappointment this year—more so than in any previous season. In the jewelry line, supply is scarce and the demand will be tremendous. Shop early and have no regrets.

SOCIETY.

ONTARIO.

Sunshine Grove, the attractive ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Hopper in West Fifth street, was the scene of a pretty wedding Friday evening when the latter's sister, Miss Carrie Morrison, became the bride of Edward Hopper of Glendora. The Rev. L. C. Roundtree of Glendora was the officiant. The home was decorated for the occasion in roses and fernery. The bride was attended by Miss Bertha Shuler of Yorba Linda as bridesmaid, while Marvin DeWitt served as best man. The bride was attired in pale blue crepe de chine and carried a shower bouquet of Cecil Brunner buds and maidenhair fern. The bridesmaid wore Georgette crepe in a darker shade of blue and carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses. The wedding was attended by relatives and intimate friends only and the ceremony was followed by a reception, a delightful feature of which was the presentation of a rainbow dance by little Miss Betty Jane Gilmore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gilmore.

Members of the Zoellner quartette, who opened the Chaffey concert course here Friday evening, and their party were dinner guests of Chaffey High School before the concert. The dinner was under the supervision of Miss Lillian Graves, head of the department of home economics, who was assisted by Miss Lena Leahy, Miss Bertha Nabakowski and Miss Edith Moore. Covers were indicated at the dinner table for Joseph Zoellner, Sr., and Mrs. Zoellner, Miss Antionette Zoellner, Joseph Zoellner, Jr., Amandus Zoellner, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Harwood, Mr. and Mrs. John O. Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Raymond Berg, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walker Nisbet, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford C. Graber, Mr. and Mrs. Norton E. Hill and Mr. and Mrs. S. Earle Blakeslee.

Simplicity marked the wedding Wednesday evening of Miss Pearle Rucker and Lester F. Toon, which was celebrated at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rucker, 754 East A street. The Rev. Samuel E. Witty, pastor of the Church of Christ, officiated. Roses and foliage were used in profusion in decoration. With Miss Josephine Rucker at the piano, the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin heralded the approach of the bride and bridegroom, who were unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Toon departed immediately after the ceremony, which was witnessed only by members of the two families, and after a brief wedding trip will be at home at 723 East A street.

Mrs. Anna Youngstrom entertained informally at tea Monday afternoon at her home in North Laurel avenue. The guests were Mrs. John Hall Tracey, Mrs. George Augustus Hanson, Mrs. Robert P. Eubanks, Mrs. W. J. Morrison, Mrs. Charles Smith, Mrs. H. G. Campbell, Mrs. Albert J. Colgan, Mrs. Franklin A. Hess, Mrs. J. A. Erixon, Mrs. Jesse Howard Payne, Mrs. C. B. Mabee and Mrs. George Potter.

Mrs. T. J. Pettit was happily surprised on the occasion of her birthday anniversary when some thirty friends gathered Saturday evening at her home, 321 East F street. The guests went laden with gifts and delicious refreshments and a merry evening was the result.

Mrs. W. D. Gillett and Mrs. Frank Savage were joint hostesses at a delightful tea Wednesday afternoon at the ranch home of the former in Riverside road. Mrs. Hugh Ragland of Whittier was an honored guest and delighted with a number of vocal solos.

YUCAIPA.

Vincent Chambers of New York City, a friend of F. C. Huebner, is visiting in Yucaipa.

F. L. Misner, representative of the Southern California Edison Company, was in Yucaipa Tuesday.

Mrs. F. E. Martin broke her shoulder bone, due to falling from a wagon, on Tuesday, and will be confined to the Redlands Hospital for at least ten days.

Miss Grace G. Mettler of Los Angeles is visiting at the J. C. Fritts home.

C. F. Hildreth, editor of the Corona Courier, was a visitor in Yucaipa on Monday. Mr. Hildreth was accompanied by his wife and daughter, Jane; his mother, Mrs. T. J. Hildreth, and Mrs. Lillie E. Baker, all of Corona.

The Women's Club of Yucaipa gave a literary programme of exceptional merit at the Congregational Church on Friday evening. Miss Emma L. Jackson of Redlands spoke on the "History and Landmarks of California." H. Clinton Smith had on exhibition a remarkable collection of baskets gathered from among the Mission Indians. Among the baskets of unusual value were two, the work of the real Ramona.

HEMET.

C. A. King and daughter, Leona, of Perris; C. E. King, a prominent business man of Santa Paula; Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Walker and daughter, Annie Lou, and grandson, Harley Davidson of Riverside, spent Sunday with Mrs. M. C. Wagner and daughters.

R. B. Williams and family expect to leave the last of this week or the first of next week for their new home in Santa Ana.

The Southern California Camera Club collection was on exhibit at the last regular meeting of the Hemet Women's Club on Thursday, November 13. Mrs. F. M. Carwin was instrumental in bringing this exhibition to Hemet. She was assisted by Mrs. J. B. Weston, Mrs. E. L. Clarke and Mrs. H. B. Dukes. Reviews of the exhibit were given. The exhibition was open to the public free of charge Thursday evening.

Mrs. J. N. Dilworth and Mrs. W. H. Bryant entertained Mrs. Welch, a guest of the Dilworth family, at dinner Tuesday evening. The out-of-town guests were Miss Wanda Turner, Miss Winona Degani and Carrie Palmer of Riverside.

Mr. George Steadman and wife, who were visiting their mother, Mrs. C. E. Steadman, a few weeks ago, from Tonopah, Nev., have located in Riverside.

Miss Lelia Barnhill, a niece of Mrs. John Slaton, is here from Madisonville, Ky., visiting her aunt.

Mrs. Frank Codon and children were passengers Wednesday for Lodi, San Joaquin Valley, where they will reside.

Mrs. Jos Simpson and her friend, Miss Lyndall Andrews, are home from a two weeks' visit with relatives and friends in Los Angeles.

John M. Austin left Wednesday for his home in Carlinsville, Ill., after a month's visit here with his brother, George Austin.

J. C. Vaughn of Rocky Ford, Colo., visited his brother-in-law, E. E. McDowell, several days this week.

THE Paris CLOAK & SUIT HOUSE 609-611 SO. BROADWAY

Besides the Many Other Monday Values, There are 200 Suits Marked Down

WE are making reductions as we go this year. As often as we find a suit which has been here long enough, we are giving it a price that will move it quickly. This keeps stocks fresh and up-to-date.

And it gives Paris Store customers a chance to save at the first of the season when they can get some wear out of their purchase, instead of at the end of the season when most of the wearing time is gone. Get the idea? You save two ways if you buy now—in the price and in the added wear.

Silvertone burella suits in Pekin blue, Reindeer and tan—reduced to $33.75.

Broadcloth suits in navy, brown, plum and olive—reduced to $33.75.

Broadcloth suits in four different colors and five different models—reduced to $38.75.

Navy serge suits in three different models—reduced to $38.75.

Broadcloth suits in five colors and four different styles—reduced to $43.75.

Light weight velour suits in taupe and brown—three different models—reduced to $43.75.

Tricotine suits in navy and brown—reduced to $49.75.

Poiret twill suits in navy and brown, four different styles—reduced to $43.75.

Silvertone suits in blue, brown, tan, Reindeer and taupe—reduced to $49.75.

Tricotine suits of navy, five different styles for misses and women—reduced to $54.75.

Poiret twill suits, blue and brown, plenty of sizes—reduced to $49.75.

Mixture suits in eight different colors and almost a dozen different styles—reduced to $54.75.

These suits are all from regular Paris Store stocks. They are just as good as any of the other suits we are selling today, but they are more or less broken lines.

Remember, the prices refer to stylish merchandise only. Markdowns without style are not good value. It is easy to choose and easy to save in this sale. That is, if you come early Monday.

A Secret That Should Save You Money

And the gist is this—that the wise woman will not wait for Clearance Sales, but will snap up the good values and mark downs of the hour as they come along.

Because there aren't going to be any Clearance Sales this year—not to amount to anything.

Merchants have had to pay such high prices for garments and have sold them at such very narrow profits—that there simply isn't room for any big reduction of prices on goods that are at all worth while.

Prices are much more likely to go up than to come down. By sheer clever merchandising, for example, we are today selling you good polo cloth coats at $29.75.

But the women who wait to buy one of these self-same coats at a Clearance Sale will certainly be disappointed. There won't be any left to sell.

And so it will be with other worthwhile values. The secret of saving money today is to investigate every money saving opportunity as it comes along!

Thirty-five Dollars

The Price at Which Beautiful New

Suits, Coats and Frocks

Are to Reach the Topmost Position in Value Giving —A garment occasion that should centralize attention on the third floor, beginning Monday.

—An event that overshadows that notable offering at $35, which, a few weeks ago, brought garment-selling to the highest position in many months.

—A garment sale, if you will, in which the most desired garments of the season are included at a price that you will readily concede to be a remarkably low one.

—The price would mean nothing, however, unless the garments more than measured up to the importance of the event.

—We will give but brief description of some of the garments included.

—A few of these have been drawn as shown in the sketch herewith.

—However, we are enthusiastic over the offering, we want you to come expecting much—you'll not be disappointed.

—Here are further details which should guide you to the third floor.

The Suits at $35

Many Fur Trimmed

—Suits of wool velour, serge, tricotine, bolivia and silvertone.
—Long and medium coat styles—semi fitted and belted.
—Some styles are shorter, having no belts.
—All are extremely smart, many with the fur trimmings.
—There is a desirable range of colorings—a notable offering indeed.

The Coats at $35

—Bring for your approval a recent purchase of smart coats, every one of which is under the market price.
—Loose, roomy coats, full from the shoulders, belted and smartly pocketed.
—Some are full back styles, with large collars and deep cuffs.
—Coats of polo cloth, plain and heather mixtures, wool velours, silvertones and plush.
—Full and half lined. Good color range—coats for motoring, for all around utility.

The Dresses at $35

—Include tricotine and jersey—as well as wool serges, broadcloths, wool velours.
—Dresses that bring much more in the regular way.
—Smartly tailored and semi-tailored styles, plain or with braid trimming, some with touches of embroidery.
—Choose from navy, mode, beaver, henna, taupe, burgundy and black.

Silk Dresses $35

—Also satins and Georgettes, taffeta silks in afternoon styles.
—Dresses with unusual charm and excellent finish.
—The colorings are varied—dresses that are indeed exceptional at $35. Third Floor.

Ten Dollars

An Extraordinary Repricing of Trimmed Millinery

Some Less Than Half

—Not since the millinery season began have we announced an item of like importance from this section.

—Trimmed hats of various designs some of which have been pictured—every one of which has been lowered in price.

—It is our intention to bring hundreds to the millinery section Monday, and this is our way of accomplishing it.

—Do not mistake the importance of this announcement—these are not hats such as you would expect to purchase at $10—rather think of hats of a higher character.

—Hats of rich velvets, combined with flower and feather fancies.
—Hats broad of brim and high of crown.
—Many black velvet hats with just a touch of contrasting color.
—But who could describe them all—one must see these becoming hats that are to be available Monday at the lowered price of $10. Third Floor.

MUSICAL.

WINIFRED BYRD.

ENERGETIC PIANIST SAID TO PLAY LIKE MAN.

By Jeanne Redman.

Winifred Byrd, the young pianist who is to play today at Trinity Auditorium is not only of the advance guard of Americans who are to make us famous musically, some day, but she was born out here on the Pacific Coast. She had a European education, however, several years with Carreno, in Germany. She is a tiny young woman, with a shock of tawny hair, which she wears bobbed, according to the style now prevailing in fashion, and which has prevailed for many years among the musical whose hair is notoriously unruly.

Miss Byrd has a vivid personality, full of ambition and literally crammed with vigorous ideas for her art. She had the distinction of an immediate success on the occasion of her debut eighteen months ago at New York, when James Huneker, the veteran critic, announced her as one of the four women in the world who can play the piano like a man. When asked what she thought of the moderns, of whom there are none on her programme, she said. "It is no test for a pianist to play the moderns. The real test is in playing those works of the masters which everyone knows and has studied. Then your audience is able to judge what kind of a pianist you are. But when it comes to using my fist or my elbow, how shall the public know if I do that better than another?"

Miss Byrd also has distinctive ideas as to what one owes an audience. "My first obligation is to the public who has come to hear me, and while I do not believe in playing down to them, still I believe they have a right to hear from me those things which they have demonstrated for years they like."

Miss Byrd played on Thursday for the children at the high school. "They made wonderful listeners," she said. "It is never very easy to know whether a grown-up audience likes one, at first, but with children it is different. They express themselves quickly and spontaneously. And they are at the impressionable age when everything has a glamour. They are not stale."

Chopin is a favorite with Miss Byrd, and she has very definite ideas about how he should be played. "He is not always effeminate. I think it a mistake to play him in that manner, especially as some pianists do, all the time. There is the heroic Chopin of the big fantasie and some of the studies. Whether he played heroically himself makes no difference. Certainly there is that side to his music."

Miss Byrd has played with the great orchestras of the country since her debut, and has toured almost constantly since her return from Europe two years ago. This, however, is her first trip to the Pacific Coast, where, she says, she would like to live, if the country were not so enticing. "For it would be hard to work here indoors, when the out doors is so inviting."

Syncopated Farewell.

A fourth and farewell programme will be given by the American Syncopated Orchestra at Trinity Auditorium, next Tuesday evening. These dusky musicians, with their well-blended voices, the variety of songs offered, ranging from the camp-meeting spiritual to the whirl of the plantation dance, folk song and chorus, are unique among modern entertainers.

They were originally announced for three programmes only, but their success here has paralleled that gained in every other city, where they have prolonged their original schedule many days.

MacDowell Club.

The MacDowell Club of Allied Arts will hold the first meeting of the year at the Friday Morning Club House, November 24. A most interesting programme has been prepared. The club has secured Mr. Ilya Bronson, violoncellist, for their first programme. This is the first public appearance of Mr. Bronson in Los Angeles since coming here to take the position of solo 'cellist with the Philharmonic Orchestra.

A Russian by birth, he graduated from the Conservatory at Odessa, and before coming to Los Angeles was with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. Mrs. Blanche Hennion Robinson will be at the piano. Mrs. Elizabeth Eaton Burton of the Drama League will give a talk on "The Appreciation of the Arts." There will also be an exhibition of twenty-five drawings by A. Sheldon Pennoyer, the first California artist to go to France with the Camouflage Corps. Among the many interesting plans for the club this year is the visit of Mrs. MacDowell early in the spring. The programmes are to feature the best artists that can be secured.

Music Teachers' Society.

A concert will be given by the Music Teachers' Association, on Monday, November 17, at Symphony Hall, presenting Miss Ruth Hutchinson, soprano; Arthur Perry, upon the subject of "Student Membership," and Mrs. Ruth Graham Putnam, who will give a resume of her personal reminiscences of Edward MacDowell, and a brief review of the Peterboro Pageant. Mrs. Abbie Norton Jamison is president of the organization, and will preside at the next meeting.

Singer on Tour.

Mrs. Alma K. Moss, who for the past six years has been contralto soloist at Trinity M. E. Church, has gone on concert tour through the northern part of the State. Mrs. Moss will be away for several weeks.

Class in Appreciation.

The date of the next class by Gertrude Ross in appreciation of music is changed from Tuesday to Thursday morning. The programme of the Philharmonic Orchestra will be illustrated and analyzed.

Newcomb-Prindell Students.

The following students of Mme. Newcomb-Prindell have appeared at various clubs and theaters recently: Jessie Ritchie, Byril Bronson, Mary Dean, Dorothy Lapham, Helen Thompson and Josef Johnson.

Dance Programme.

Miss Maude Gesang Fischer, eurythmic teacher, whose "Soiree Intime" were popular last year gave her first programme of the season Sunday afternoon, with Mrs Gwendolen Logan Hubbard, who will be associated with her in her studio.

Many interesting people gathered to hear the programme. Miss Fischer danced to some ancient Greek rythms, and also gave an East Indian votive dance.

Mrs. Gwendolen Logan Hubbard, who was an actress of some standing in London, offered some interesting readings during the afternoon.

Phoebe Ara White.

Who is giving a series of demonstration piano recitals at Symphony Hall.

DUNCAN DANCERS HERE THIS WEEK.

The Duncan Dancers and George Copeland, the pianist, who represent what is entirely unique in aesthetic entertainment, are to make an appearance at Trinity Auditorium next Thursday evening. The programme promises a rare combination of music and the Terpsichorean art. The idea of this new—or rather a new-old art of dancing—had its inception in California. It was here that Isadora Duncan gave her first public performance. It immediately evoked a wave of discussion. Many declared it a new vision of beauty, while others decried her efforts. Not discouraged by the criticism resultant on her appearance, Miss Duncan took her ideas abroad, where they were received with great favor. It was while she was in Europe that she conceived the idea of founding a school for the training of children in her method. Six girls, ranging from 4 to 7, were taught by her in a natural expression—emotions of joy and sorrow. Later she established a school in a seventeenth century chateau in Vellevue, near Paris, which became the rendezvous for the elite in art and letters, like Rodin the sculptor, Sarah Bernhardt, Eleanor Duse, Jacques Thibaud. The girls whom Miss Duncan began training in their childhood are the ones to appear in the approaching programme.

An Irish Programme.

The music of Ireland is to be presented at a concert given under the direction of Kate Beirne-O'Rourke the evening of the 26th inst. at Father Meyer Memorial Hall, 1837 South Grand avenue. The programme will be under the auspices of St. Vincent's Church and School. Among those who will take part are Charles Wakefield Cadman, the composer-pianist; Constance Balfour, soprano; Prof. Lewis A. Kerwin, pianist; Maurice O'Donnell, baritone. St. Vincent's School will present a girls' chorus of 150 voices in a sacred number, "St. Brigid, the Mary of Erin," dedicated to the Right Rev. Bishop J. J. Cantwell. Margaret Spellacy will play selections on the harp and Kate Beirne-O'Rourke will give a talk on Irish music, assisted by Kerwin in selections from their compositions.

Fortnightly Recitals.

A series of fortnightly recitals has been started by Mrs. Phoebe Ara White at Symphony Hall. The recitals are in the nature of a demonstration of the piano method with which Mrs. White has had marked success. A number of her pupils will appear in the events.

Will Make Home Here.

Mabel Haas Speyer is another musician to be attracted by local possibilities. Until recently she has engaged in touring the larger cities, but has recently decided to take up her residence here.

Singer and Pianist.

Myrtle Pryibil Colby, soprano, and Miss Ann Thompson, pianist, are to give a recital Tuesday evening at Gamut Club Auditorium. Mrs. Colby has included in her selections songs by Liszt, Jensen, Grieg, American compositions and an aria from "Aida." Miss Thompson will play Rachmaninoff, Chopin and MacDowell numbers, as well as new works by Lane and Colby. Mme. Anna Ruzena Sprotte will assist the singer at the piano. Mrs. Colby is well known locally through her success as a church soloist.

PHILHARMONIC IN POP AND SYMPHONY.

The Schubert Unfinished Symphony, a favorite with musician and layman alike, has been chosen by Walter Henry Rothwell for the third pair of symphony concerts to be given by the Philharmonic Orchestra, next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, in Trinity Auditorium.

The Prelude and Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde," and the Coronation March, written by Saint-Saens for the coronation of Edward VII of England, complete the orchestral programme.

Rudolph Ganz, the soloist for this pair, has chosen the Tschaikowsky B Flat minor piano concerto, a technically difficult composition, but one which is especially suited to Ganz's style.

Ganz will play over 100 concerts, forty of which are in cities in which he is appearing for the first time, the remaining sixty representing return engagements up to the third and fourth time.

He has been engaged by the leading symphony orchestras of America, including Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, New York and the New York Philharmonic.

He arrives here today for a rehearsal with Conductor Rothwell, or rather a reading of the score, leaving immediately for the north, where he has two recital programmes before returning here for Friday.

The second popular programme by the Philharmonic will be this afternoon, at Trinity.

These concerts are given particularly for the pleasure and edification of that vast army of music lovers whose daylight hours during the week are engaged. The entire personnel of the Philharmonic Orchestra is present at these concerts. The only difference in the two concerts is in the actual nature of the programme presented.

Mr. Rothwell is a firm believer in the innate knowledge of the people and what they want. He contends that they always recognize and advocate the highest types of music, art literature, when these same arts are presented to them in a human, sensible fashion, and not kept as something "ultra," something beyond their ken.

The programme today announces the "Tannhauser" March, the "Carmen" suite, "Tales from the Vienna Woods," Prelude to "Le Deluge," with incidental solo by Sylvain Noack, concertmaster, and the Grieg A minor piano Concerto, with Brahm van den Berg as soloist.

SASLAVSKY TRIO SOON TO PLAY HERE.

The first concert of the series to be given by the Saslavsky Chamber Music Society, Alexander Saslavsky, director, Mav MacDonald Hope, piano, and Axel Simonsen, 'cello, will take place at Blanchard Hall, November 28.

The original dates for the remaining concerts have been changed on account of out-of-town engagements of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, with which Mr. Saslavsky and Mr. Simonsen are associated. The new dates are Friday evenings, December 19, January 16, January 30, February 20, March 5, March 26, April 23.

An interesting feature of the first concert will be the presentation of the sonata for violin and piano by Lazari. This is the first time this composition has been given in Los Angeles. Mr. Saslavsky introduced the work last year in San Francisco, but otherwise it has never been given on the Pacific Coast. The other two numbers of the programme are the trio in E Minor, by Saint-Saens, and the trio of Beethoven No. 1.

It will be difficult to find a trio that represents a higher standard of musicianship than these. Mr. Saslavsky's reputation as director, concert master, and soloist, together with the recognized superiority of Mrs. Hope and Mr. Simonsen in their respective fields, affords an unusual organization.

A number of prominent people are acting as sponsors for these affairs.

FORMER :: CASTLE :: PARTNER.

Dancer Plans to Make Home Here.

Mrs. Ralph Wonders.

DANCER LIKES US.

Former Partner of Vernon Castle May Make Home Here.

The fascinations of Southern California have robbed the East of another celebrity. All this winter Los Angeles is to be the home of the charming, golden-haired Mrs. Ralph Wonders, who, with Mr. Wonders, recently arrived from New York.

Mrs. Wonders, up to four years ago known to Terpsichorean fame as Consuelo Wilson, is one of the best-known and most popular teadansant hostesses and exhibition ballroom dancers in the East. She is just past 20, but has studied for years under the Castles and Mrs. Helen Wells (Cricket Carter,) and it was Mrs. Wonders who was selected to be Mr. Castle's partner on the Keith circuit during Mrs. Castle's illness.

Mrs. Wonders and her husband were the host and hostess of the Walton's Midnight Club in Philadelphia, and at present are occupying the same position at the afternoon tea dances at the Alexandria. Previous to coming to California, Mrs. Wonders was the hostess and dancer at the Ambassador; and before that she radiated her charms at the Imperial in New York and the Blackstone in Chicago. For a year the Wonderses were head-liners in vaudeville.

"When I came to Los Angeles," said Mrs. Wonders, "I intended only to stay for the winter, but I feel that it is going to be hard to keep my resolution to return East next spring. Maybe I won't be resolute enough to keep it at all."

EDUCATIONAL.

The situation in which the colleges of the country find themselves as a result of the war is pointed out in the annual report of President Faunce of Brown. Endowments, he says, have been virtually cut in half. The rising cost of everything that goes to make up higher education has hit all our colleges and they all need money—a fact which is plain to even the casual observer who reads day by day of the inauguration of another campaign for a great new endowment.

Axel B. Gravem of the class of 1918 and William Ray Dennes of the class of 1919, both students of the University of California, have been awarded Rhodes scholarships. They will attend the Oxford University. Gravem was captain of the University of California tennis team for two years, and has played in many national tournaments. During the war he was lieutenant in the field artillery, serving as instructor at Camp Taylor, Ky. On his return to the State university he continued his law studies, at the same time teaching certain sections in economics. His home is in San Francisco.

Dennes was winner of the Bonnheim discussion prize in 1916, and was elected to the Phi Beta Kappa honor society as a junior. He was awarded the university medal in 1919 given to the most distinguished member of the graduating class, and also received highest honors in philosophy. He has been teaching philosophy during the past semester. During the war he enlisted with the naval forces of the United States. Healdsburg is his home.

The University of Cincinnati has opened its doors to the largest body of students that ever applied for admission in its history. All of the colleges report record enrollments; some of them have turned hundreds of students away. In all, it is believed that between 3500 and 4000 students have been registered. Hundreds of students that left the university a few years ago for service in the great war are again to be seen in the corridors.

A most unique addition to the University of Arizona museum will be the tribal ceremonial paintings on sand which the Navajo Indian medicine man, Sam Chief, has consented to make as a permanent exhibit. These sand paintings are used in religious ceremonies and are venerated highly by the Indians. It is the rule to make and destroy the paintings between sunrise and sunset, and it is against the religion of the Indians to make the etchings for permanent keeping, but after much persuasion the chief consented to complete a set for Dean Cummings which will be preserved in the university museum.

One of the outstanding features of Pomona College this year is that the enrollment is the largest in the history of the college. Of this number, which reaches the high mark of 668, there are 413 women and 235 men. A fair comparison, however, with last year's enrollment, which was 649, cannot be made because of the S.A.T.C., which brought many young men to the college.—[Student Life.

"Use and Care of the Gasoline Automobile" is the latest correspondence study course offered by the extension division of the University of California. The course is to be given by H. C. Fore, automobile expert of San Francisco. "By this correspondence course of fifteen lessons, brought to one's door by the postman or rural carrier," states Prof. Richardson, the director, "any family may learn how to groom and feed the modern four-wheeled speedster."

Columbia University has extended its research work in scientific fields by taking over the operation of the fire-testing station at Greenpoint, L. I. Through its department of civil engineering, all tests of materials and fireproof construction in this largest station around New York will be under the direct supervision of members of the engineering faculty and will be in co-operation with officials of New York City.

NAMES PUZZLE EUROPEANS.

Down on the wharves they tell me a story of how two British sailors were rowing a skiff under the stern of the battleship Ohio as she lay in an English port.

"A ho, a haitch, and a 10," said one of the limies, "Wot a 'ell of a name for a ship!"

We made very merry over Russian and Polish names. When it came to the Balkans we were free to confess that we didn't know whether the Dobrudja was a river or a breakfast food. But it is now borne in upon us that our own place names may not mean much more to Europeans than some of theirs mean to us.

Half the names of our states are pure Choctaw to all but educated Europeans, and not much more to many of those. A celebrated violinist said he had long ago given up trying to comprehend American geography or Indian names, and simply bought his railroad ticket to any place his manager designated.

"You ought to translate them," he added plaintively.

His host confessed:

"We can't."—[Boston Globe.

Way to Open a Sewer Pipe.

To open a stopped-up sewer pipe, Frank Ward, of Richmond, Mo., caught a small turtle and cut a small hole in its shell. Then he tied a string in the hole and started the turtle through the sewer pipe. When over the turtle stopped, a pull on the string started it clawing its way forward again until the pipe was clear. —[Indianapolis News.

Christmas 1919

Through four decades we have watched the Christmas season dawn—felt the crisp undercurrent of excitement, enjoyed its sunshine of cheerfulness and had our part in helping affection express itself in tangible form.

Each passing season has given us a keener appreciation of gift giving and gift buying and instilled within us an absorbing desire to make each Christmas buying season easier and more satisfying to our customers than the last.

With this thought in mind, through the months since last Christmas we have been searching the markets for the choicest offerings wrought in craftland.

Our search was fruitful—and we are ready for what we believe will be the greatest Christmas trading we have ever experienced.

We sincerely invite you to examine our display.

—DIAMONDS of the finest quality and rarest color, selected from the greatest diamond marts in the world.

—WATCHES—America's highest quality—Elgin, Waltham, Hamilton and Howard, handsomely cased.

—The most artistic patterns in flat and hollow silverware, the product of the Gorham and other high-grade makers.

—DIAMONDS — Platinum pieces in an endless assortment— Fancy gold articles, cigarette cases, vanity cases, mesh bags, powder boxes, lip stick holders, etc.

—Correct stationery and leather goods.

Each offering was chosen to meet an individual need and all were selected with the idea of quality and lasting service.

AMERICAN, ON FOOT, MAPS VICTORIA LAND.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

SEATTLE, Oct. 18.—An American explorer, Harold Noice, formerly a member of Vilhjalmur Stefansson's party, is working his way eastward on foot along the route of the northwest passage on the northern rim of the continent, according to word received here. He expects to reach the Hudson Bay country and civilization some time next summer.

Storker Storkerson, formerly second in command of the Stefansson party, who arrived here recently from the Far North, said that Noice, accompanied by Eskimos, is preceding slowly and mapping portions of the coast line as he goes. A stretch of the coast line of Victoria Land, heretofore unmapped, is being charted by Noice.

Noice may visit the interior of Victoria Land, which, according to all reports, has never been explored by white men. All explorers, traders and trappers who have touched Victoria Land have only journeyed along its shores. Stefansson found the tribe of "blonde Eskimos" in the Victoria Land country.

Noice has no ship and but few supplies. He depends almost entirely upon his gun for his living. Stefansson, his former chief, who is noted among explorers as being able to live off the barren white lands of the north, probably taught Noice how to get about without carrying many supplies.

Noice's parents live in Seattle. The explorer is young in years, having graduated from a high school here about eight years ago. He went north in 1912 with Capt. Louis Lane on the schooner Polar Bear. When Stefansson purchased the Polar Bear from Lane, Noice shipped as a member of the crew. Later, when Stefansson decided to return to the outside world, Noice left the party and remained in the north. His parents expect him to return to Seattle next year.

ENGLISH BABIES ARE NOW ON THE INCREASE

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Sept. 16.—More babies were born in England during August than in any previous month since the beginning of the war. Official returns show the number to be 6394, equivalent to an annual rate of 18 per 1000, and 461 more babies than over the same month of 1918.

"I believe that during and after wars more boy babies are born than girls," said Dr. Mary Scharlieb, a specialist, discussing the report. "I think official figures will prove that more boys are born during periods of stress, hardship and food shortage and more girls during periods of wealth, ease and luxury."

"A baby these days is a very expensive addition to the average British family," said another doctor. "The cost of everything from blankets to perambulators has practically doubled. Milk is a shilling a quart, and nurses 3 guineas a week. The infant's extensive wardrobe is also a costly affair these days, while his cot costs twice as much as before the war. Only millionaires can afford twins, much as we need them to repair the waste of war."

No Trivial Obstacle.

"Has this town ever boasted of any celebrities?"

"The only Chiggerville citizen who ever got his name in the big city papers won't be home for ten years yet," replied the old resident.

"Indeed! What's detaining him?"

"There a great deal detaining him—the Lord only knows how many tons of steel, stone and mortar. That fellow's in the 'Pen.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

"A Skin Like a Venus? It's Really Easy"

A Simple Formula That Works Wonders on Any Skin. Also a New Way to Remove Wrinkles That Rarely Fails.

By Valeska Suratt.

IT is really immaterial how muddy, or blemished the skin may be, a remarkable transformation can be brought about in only a few weeks' time by a method extraordinarily simple. First of all, abandon the use of any of the complexion creams you may have been using, and make up a cream at home today in a few moments, by adding two tablespoonfuls of glycerine and one ounce of sintone in a pint of water. You can get the sintone at any drug store for about fifty cents. In a few days you will note that the spots, blemishes and muddiness you complain of are fast disappearing.

Answers to Questions

THIN—Here is the most powerful hair forcer you can ever hope to obtain, and it really does the work quickly and splendidly. One ounce of betaquinol is mixed with a half pint of water and a half pint of bay rum, or use a full pint of witch hazel instead of the bay rum and water. For fifty cents at any drug store you can get a package of beta-quinol to make a pint of this splendid hair forcer. This is not an oily preparation, but it is pleasant to use and should be applied every day. Your hair will also grow out most luxuriantly and possess great vigor.

MISS G. P. S.—The formation of fatty accumulations on the scalp which soap does not remove impedes the growth of hair. The only way is to dissolve these accumulations which you can do easily by simply using a teaspoonful of eggol in a half cup of water. This makes a luxurious head-wash, and gives the hair a silky lustre which is beautiful, lets the hair breathe and allows it to grow luxuriantly. A package of eggol for twenty-five cents contains enough for many weeks.

CORA W.—Under no circumstances should you use any of the various pastes and powders sold for superfluous hairs, and which burn and irritate the skin. When the hair is moistened with a little sulfo solution, the hairs at once dissolve away, and the skin is left as smooth and as soft as before. There will be no redness or spottiness to be seen. The sulfo solution can be bought at any drug store for about a dollar. This never fails to do the work thoroughly and delightfully.

OLDER—For the quick removal of wrinkles, I would advise you to try the following, which has demonstrated its great worth in a remarkably large number of cases. Get two ounces of eptol from your druggist for about fifty cents. Mix the eptol with one tablespoonful of glycerine in a half pint of water. This will result in a very fine, rich and satisfactory cream. When faithfully used, the skin will become of a finer texture, it will become more plump and vigorous. Furthermore you will notice that the crow's feet, lines of age and wrinkles have disappeared very largely and you will look years younger.

MISS E. P. R.—There is no more need of fretting for many months, pinching and steaming the face, and a lot of other things in order to get rid of blackheads. Sprinkle a little neroxin on a wet cloth and rub this on the blackheads and you will find that in a few moments most of these pests will have disappeared. Keep this up and you will have no more blackheads. Fifty cents buys the neroxin at any drug store.

MISS T. W. W.—A face powder, exquisitely fine, producing an exceptional lasting bloom on the skin, is "Peau-ta Peauter Powder," sold at drug stores at fifty cents a box in any tint. You will never want to use any other kind.—Advertisement.

Why GRAY HAIR is no longer necessary

New, Clean, Easy, Harmless, Treatment.

First Bottle Gives Satisfaction.

After having been tried and proven successful by hundreds of their customers, leading stores throughout the country are recommending "Canute Water" for Gray Hair to those who wish the color of their hair restored. Sun Drug Co. and Owl Drug Co. sell it in Los Angeles on a positive guarantee of absolute satisfaction or your money back. "Canute Water" restores color to your hair so naturally and evenly that no one can possibly tell you are using anything. All questions one naturally asks are here plainly answered.

IS IT ABSOLUTELY SAFE TO USE? By all means—yes. You may use "Canute Water" for Gray Hair without the slightest fear of injury to the hair, scalp or eyes, as it contains none of the injurious elements of the ordinary hair dye, being entirely FREE from acid, sugar of lead, sulphur or coal-tar products of any kind—making it as harmless to the hair and scalp as ordinary water. It is for external use only.

WILL IT SOIL THE HANDS OR SCALP? No, it will not. Our own patented process prevents it from staining the hands or scalp. "Canute Water" for Gray Hair is an especially clean, convenient treatment—not being sticky or greasy. It restores so naturally and evenly no one will be able to tell you are using anything.

IS IT A CRUDE DYE? Positively not. That is just the thing it isn't. "Canute Water" is a simple method of reviving the youthful color of hair that has turned gray from age, illness or other cause. Proof that "Canute Water" is not a crude dye is that it has no numbered shades—the same bottle is good for all shades of hair. While as the reader knows the crude dyes are put up in packages marked with the different colors of hair or numbered 1, 2 or 3.

HOW IS IT APPLIED? Very easily. Just wet your hair with it and allow to dry in good, fresh air. Nothing hard about that, is there? Apply on hair once daily and day by day observe the hair becoming darker and darker. And by the time you have finished the first bottle the youthful color of your hair will be restored. It will then remain that way and simply require a retouching at the roots once in a while as the new hair grows out.

CAN THE DARKENED COLOR WASH OR RUB OFF? The color will not wash off. Shampoo the hair all you like—you may even use a hot curling iron, as not even that will affect the color. On the contrary, the more you shampoo the hair the softer and fluffier the hair will become.

Believe us, after a week you'll thank yourself for having tried it. Sold at the above-mentioned stores, your own druggist or by mail direct upon receipt of price, $1.10 per bottle. Friedman Canute Co., 18 East 17th Street, New York City, New York.

NOTICE—Beware of sales-people who get commissions to sell worthless imitations. To be SAFE, accept no substitute for "CANUTE WATER".

VENTURA.

Pioneer Day at the E.C.O. Club this week was marked by the reading of a fine paper on early days here by Mrs. C. G. Bartlett, the club president, whose family came here in 1874 and has always been identified with the chief interests of the town. Hostesses of the day were Miss Pearl Foster, Mrs. James Mack, Mrs. J. J. Streets.

Mrs. Emma Istas was hostess to La Loma Club on Tuesday of this week.

"Grandma" Bartlett, who is nearing 97, was hostess to the C.W.B.M. women of the Christian church on Tuesday of this week. "Grandma" always attends the meetings, with her companion, in spite of advanced years, but has not been well recently so it was arranged to have the society meet there.

A reception was given Friday night at the parlors of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, as a welcome to Rev. Thomas Hughes, the new pastor and his family.

Mrs. Charles Borgstrom entertained a group of friends at a five hundred party at her lovely home near town on Monday afternoon.

Mrs. O. P. Cook extended hospitality to the Tuesday Club this week, with Mrs. C. N. Kimball as programme chairman. Indian tribes of California was the study subject.

Mrs. E. R. Finkle entertained the Progressive club women Wednesday afternoon at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. B. Bixler.

A wedding of special interest that took place on Wednesday of this week was that of Myrtle Clay and Harold Dudley, the ceremony being performed by Rev. James B. Stone in the presence of a number of relatives and friends. The young couple, who are very popular, have been tendered many prenuptial affairs, one of the most recent being a party given on Saturday night by Mrs. H. R. Morris and Miss Nina Bennett at the home of the former.

A family reunion was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Mitchell, about a dozen gathering to spend the day there.

Choir boys of St. Paul's had a merry outing at Foster Park Saturday afternoon, Rev. Mr. Swift, Mrs. Howard Truslow and one or two others accompanying the lads on the excursion. The picnic lunch was furnished by the women of the church.

A nice affair given Saturday evening was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Johnson on the Avenue when women of the Avenue Club entertained the husbands.

Mrs. Carra Bookes entertained the executive board of the Athene Club House Association at luncheon Saturday.

A wedding of interest that took place here this week was that of Iris McIntyre, daughter of Mrs. Harriet McIntyre, and Frank Newby, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Newby. Mr. Newby left a few days later for Old Mexico, where business interests made it imperative he should be. Mrs. Newby will remain here and complete her term as a teacher, joining him later in Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Frost entertained at dinner Thursday night honoring Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hartmann, newly weds, and Will Hartman.

BRAWLEY.

Thirty young people of the young married people's class of the Methodist Episcopal Church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Hastain and formed the "Emmaus" class. R. R. Patterson, president; Leslie F. Lyall, vice-president, P. A. Mower, secretary-treasurer and Mrs. Rae P. Cromer, chairman of the Social Committee. Those present were Mmes. Cromer, Smith, Johnson, Coleman, Andrews, Mower, Jones, Ingram, Davis, Hastain Lyall, Staub and Reinius and Messrs. N. B. Hastain, J. W. Hastain, H. A. Hastain, Holst, Staub, Cromer, Smith, Johnson, Mower Jones, Ingram, Davis, Lyall and Reinius and the Misses Campbell, Staub, Dunham, Mrs. M. J. Hastain, Harvey Earl Hastain, Hubert Ingram, Richard Mower and Margaret Jones.

Members of several Brawley churches attended the reception given Rev. and Mrs. McCourtney of the Baptist church this week. Rev. E. L. B. McClellan, Rev. Reinius, A. L. Sebille and Rev. T. F. McCourtney all gave brief talks.

Miss Hilda Englehardt entertained a few friends at her ranch home Tuesday evening. Guests were the Misses Ruth Paige, Cora Sheffield, Irma and Ibel Covington, Clara Pearson, Phronia Anderson, Frances Hubbard, Helen Crail, Winnie Layne, Dot O'Ruke, Messrs. Charles Williams, Fred Crowell, Roy Campbell, Frank Greene, Roy Farr, Frank de Arman, Howard Gipe, Al Cage, Evert Bruntley and Floyd Mallory.

Mrs. Eugene LeBaron entertained at luncheon Wednesday in honor of Mrs. W. H. Best and her guest, Mrs. Otis Snow of Berkeley.

Mrs. George Wade entertained the Bridge Club at luncheon Thursday. Guests were Mmes. Otis Snow of Berkeley, W. H. Best, E. Standlee, A. N. Morgan, R. O. Thompson of Imperial, Kenneth Oliver, Frank Dunlap, C. A. Dawdy, Tom Edgar, W. T. Dunn, Eugene LeBaron and Curtis Muncey.

"A "wienie" roast at teh Mulbery schoolhouse Wednesday evening was well attended.

The Methodist Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. P. A. Mower the next meeting. Mrs. H. A. Hastain entertained the ladies this week.

DELANO.

Miss Ellen McCawley spent the early part of the week visiting friends in Bakersfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Cole and daughter are home from a visit to Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean L. Sears and two little daughters are home from a visit with relatives in Palo Alto and Berkeley.

Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Carpenter have returned to Hanford, after visiting a few days here with Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bridges.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Mauroronel and daughter have returned to San Francisco after a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Girard.

Mrs. William Cravet is visiting relatives in Richmond.

Mrs. J. Kleppe has arrived here from Los Angeles and is visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Roden.

Mr. and Mrs. William Atkinson have moved into their new home on L street and are nicely settled there, ready to receive their friends.

Welcoming several returned soldiers, a fine banquet of roasted turkey and chicken was served at the Jasmine schoolhouse. The soldiers who were honor guests were Capt. John R. Quinn, Sergt. Randolph Finley and Corp. Roswell Carpenter.

The Beautiful Business of Home-Keeping Nowadays Is a Profession for a Princess

Of course Love puts a halo around anything and even the most sordid tasks become sacred if they're performed gladly for the sake of those dear to you. But women don't scrub floors nowadays and call it "noble." They realize that, with all the myriad fascinating interests to be found in life, it would be unfair and foolish to narrow themselves down to the most menial, really slavish and wholly uninspiring occupations—unfair to their families and surely unfair to themselves.

Invention, Science and the Arts have given, in these days, Tools worthy of the beautiful business of Home-Keeping, so that you may have the joy and honor of being your own housekeeper and still retain your youth and enthusiasm for all the things that will make you a wonderful wife and mother, a charming hostess or dinner guest and a person whose interests make life full and fascinating for herself and others.

Barker Bros.' Departments of Housewares and Household Utilities are headquarters for everything that makes it easy to be a smiling, graceful and successful Home-Keeper. And now, with the season of Holiday Hospitalities opening, we are welcoming more visitors than ever to these departments every day.

ADDITIONAL Store News from Barker Bros.' appear in other announcements in the Main News and Editorial Sections of this paper.

ATTRACTIVE Table Settings are among the fascinating things to see in Barker Bros.' three hospitable Model Homes this week.

Some People Sleep Better under Pink Comforts and others find yellow the most soothing shade for a bed. Certainly, there's every reason to believe that colors minister to moods, even in bedding—and besides that, Blankets and Comforts in lovely mauves and blues and tones of green and rose and gold are so pretty they're a joy just to have around!

Barker Bros.' Linen and Bedding Section is simply blooming with beautiful, soft coverings for night-time comfort in the winter—a wealth of nightly luxury both in looks and feeling, at moderate markings here

Simple Family Dinners Have the Charm of Festive Functions

when adorned with dainty dishes from the Home of Dinnerware

The intimacies of human companionship are always beautiful if they are blessed with refinement and good taste. Surely there is nothing sweeter in the scenes of family life than the evening gathering around the table at the dinner hour—it's too precious to be permitted to become commonplace, ever! And the fascination may be made new every day, by having the lights soft and lovely, with at least one flower within the diners' view and all the table's appointments pretty, fresh and tempting.

What a pity to think a cracked cup doesn't matter just because there's no "company!" And how very much is gained in appetite, cheerfulness and digestion when the dinnerware is dainty and artistic, the silver shining, the glasses bright and all the linen spotless!

A very winsome pattern in lustrous china boasts pale pink tiny roses in a border and costs for a complete dinner set only $50 at the Home of Dinnerware. You'll like it when you see it.

A Gas Range with Character, Good Looks and a Wonderful Disposition is the far-famed A-B.

The necessity of a thoroughly first-class Range in every kitchen is a fact nobody ever questions now. But the woman who does the cooking must know her range and be congenial with it—they must "get along."

That's why the A-B is so well-liked; it's an agreeable sort of range, built to stand the strain of an active life without losing its temper or getting "out of fix." Besides that it's the soul of cleanliness, bakes divinely, is economical and wears a long, long time. We can tell you lots more about A-B Gas Ranges if you'll come in and look and listen.

Electricity Rescues "the Flowers of Life" from Drowning in Soapsuds —or being choked with dust.

The thrill of an electric current along a wire is a cheaper force by at least the amount of "a king's ransom" than is the strength of a woman's arm and back rubbing clothes upon a board or pushing a broom across the floor.

And why shouldn't she who is the animating spirit of the home have time to read the magazines of her "profession"—and time to keep up her music and to mingle with her friends and to guard carefully the development of her children?

Servants are a problem and their management a "job" in itself; a general housemaid who will do the family washing is practically a specie extinct; sending fine clothes to the laundry is very expensive and often very wearing.

So a good electric washer seems almost a dispensation of Providence to the home-maker and to the home. And Barker Bros.' Department of Electrical Work-Saving Devices has experts to consult with you and solve accurately the problem of which of the Electric Washers is really best for you. Will you come in tomorrow?

Developing Bust

A few years ago a maid or matron who was flat-chested thought she must remain so, but now all is changed, and newspapers and periodicals are recommending Willard White Co.'s Vaucaire Tablets to build up the bust and fill out what the French describe as salt cellars, those little hollows at the base of the neck near the shoulders. The base of this tonic is imported Galega, an herb that acts immediately on the mammary glands, stimulating and building them up. It is put up in little tablets by the Willard White Co., and certainly in this form it fills a long-felt want. This article has accomplished wonderful results in a number of cases known to the writer.—Ida McGlone Gibson, Editor "The Woman Beautiful."

Not e'en a Butler's Frosty Face, Should Freeze the Joy of Thanksgiving's Feast!

—There is so much, so very much, for which to be thankful! We should bring naught but thankful hearts and happy faces to the festive board 'round which we celebrate the good that has come to us during the year. There should be not only feastly edibles, there should be the grace of fine linen, the glinting of silver and glass, and the jewel-lights spun by the candles' soft glowing should not outshine the light in each guest's face!

Ever a Tender Regard For Fine Napery Has

MADAM HOSTESS who is "learned in gentle household ways!" She glories in the ownership of tiers upon tiers of the satiny table linens, which, in "before-the-war" days, came to us in plenteous installments from the Irish manufacturers.

—And she laments greatly when she hears that, even now, after a full year of peace, but scanty supplies of these lovely linens are crossing the water, so that the "during-the-war" scarcity is by no means alleviated.

—Still, one feels that, if it's any way possible, the Thanksgiving Day table cloth should be of linen; so we want to tell you that, rare though they be, pure linen table cloths—of a kind that is, unhappily becoming rarer!—are to be had at The Broadway.

—Just such cloths as we have illustrated—cloths whose glinting surfaces reveal patterns of incomparable charm.
—This particular cloth has a circular design which introduces a very artistic treatment of maiden hair sprays wending their way among graceful festoons of ribbon.
—It is priced at $12.00. Second Floor.

Hegla Filet Lace in Sets of Doilies

MIGHT well come forth from lavender-sweet chests to grace the Thanksgiving feast, and some hostesses prefer centerpiece and doilies to cloth and napkins.

—We are showing sets of twelve doilies, six in each of two sizes, and centerpiece, in this filet lace—with a name that sounds as though it belonged to sagas of lands of the Uttermost North—"Hegla," forsooth!

—If such a set is not allowed to flaunt itself at the imposing, mid-day feast, perhaps it will come forth, after guests, a merry throng have trooped away—when the house is still and all but dark, and a little table, just right for two, is drawn within the flickering light of the fireplace!

—Oh, many a time and many a dainty table would such a set grace! Price $5.50.

—One would not have to look long to find many exquisite luncheon sets of other sorts in the Art Department, from which the set pictured came.
—It is interesting, too, to note that, should you desire a single centerpiece, a lunch cloth or a set of doilies they may be purchased separately.
—The Art Department is replete with treasure trove for miladi who loves pretty things for the house, as well as for her own personal adorning! Second Floor.

Horrible Thought Though it is— A Carving Set Will Attend!

YET, how, without one, could the feast proceed, a procession epicurean, to the end of its courses many?

—In the silverware department one may choose from carving sets with imitation stag handles; with genuine stag combined with Sterling silver; from those with buffalo born handles of ivoryware and of pearl, prices ranging from $3.00 for the sets of two pieces with imitation stag handles, to $9.00 for the three-piece sets with genuine stag handles.

—Famous when skirts were widest, 1847 Rogers Brothers Silverware is famous still, when, now, they're narrowest! A new pattern, yet one which calls to mind many a dim ancestral hall, armorial bearings, shining with time-chastened brightness, kings, proud and stately dames is the "Heraldic." 'Tis a hammered design, and graces pierced flat ladies for tomatoes; lyre-shaped forks for meat; two-pronged forks for olives, soup ladles, deep, almost, as cauldrons, likewise the regulation service for every-meal using.
—Teaspoons in "Heraldic" pattern are priced at $3.75 a set of six; dessert spoons at $6.75 a set; tablespoons at $7.50 a set; forks at $7.50 a set; hollow handled knives at $11.25 a set; flat handled knives at $4.50. And there are many other separate pieces in this pattern.
Aisle One

From an English House of Service Long Come

ROYAL WORCESTER service plates. Rich are the colors of their decorations as those of sentinel hollyhocks in England's garden hedges; clear-ringing are they as tinkling bells "on some sheep-trimmed down!"

—The small green baskets that form a part of the design that ornaments these plates are tumbled full of posies and vivid turquoise blue is their bordering.

—Other service plates, of simpler design may be had, if such be your pleasure.

—A happy suggestion—why not send a set of service plates home as a surprise for the busy hostess-to-be who is so interestedly planning the Thanksgiving dinner?

China Often Comes From Limoges

—After years-long shortage of it, this lovely this lovely French china is especially welcome. And a good thing to remember is that it may be purchased from open stock—one cup and saucer or a dozen; ten pieces or a hundred, as one will. Fifth Floor.

All a-Sparkle With Glass Shall The Dinner Table Be!

TRULY, this Thanksgiving Day dinner of ours is to be all brightness!

—And rivaling the scintillating conversation that will send its merry darts from side to side, from end to end of the festive board, will be the diamond-bright gleams reflected from the lovely bits of cut glass with which Madam Housewife dearly loves to bedeck her table!
—The Crystal Rooms at The Broadway are a favorite rendesvous with those who wish to purchase glassware of any kind, and since many charming novelties have arrived in time for the Thanksgiving Day demand, there is much activity just now in this section of the fifth floor.
—We have chosen one of these novelties for sketching—a candy jar of up-to-the-minute designing, made of exquisitely clear glass—though not cut—chaste bands of 18-carat gold ornamenting upper and lower edges of the jar and outlining the edge of the cover. The saucy little acorn-shaped knob that tops the cover is also of gold.
—What a pretty gift this candy jar would make for the hostess who is to entertain on Thanksgiving Day!
—It is priced at $3.50. Fifth Floor.

Let the Soft Glow of Candles Grace the Feast!

OUR grandmothers used candles, willy nilly; we use them in lieu of more modern methods of lighting—or in conjunction with them—when we want to look our prettiest—when we want our dining table to appear to the very best advantage.

—Such an occasion is Thanksgiving Day.
—And so we include in this series of suggestions for the setting of the table on this eventful day a few paragraphs relative to the charming candlesticks and shades that are to be found in the Electrical Department.
—Just one of them has been sketched—pretty, is it not? It is made of glass and is priced at 35c. The wee red shade is 25c.
—By the way, we must mention that not all these candlesticks are to have candles as their lighting apparatus—some of them have attachments for electricity.
—A plump brass candlestick has a pretty filigree shade backed with yellow, dangling fringe of gold beads adding an attractive note. This candlestick is $1.25.
—Let us mention the fact that pretty glass candlesticks are to be had in various other styles besides that pictured, and at prices up to $1.50. Fifth Floor

Place Cards Simplify the Seating of Your Guests

EVEN the most accomplished hostess is apt to experience a few moments of embarrassment, if, when the guests come flocking into the dining-room, there is no distinguishing mark at each place, indicative of the person who is to sit there.

—In the excitement of the moment, she may put the wrong people together—a hopeless mistake if the dinner party is to be a success!
—Truly, 'twas an inspiration—the invention of place cards, particularly since they serve their informative purpose in so decorative a way!
—The best makers of such things have sent us very lovely place cards that are delightfully Thanksgivingy in character—you must see them!
—One particularly attractive design shows an unsuspecting turkey gobbling up his last meal of corn. The corn obligingly bends forward to form a rest whereon the card may stand at its place.

—Another depicts a pretty Puritan maid leading a turkey, presumably to his doom!
—These and many other charming place cards may be had in the Stationery Section at a box. Aisle Eight.

When Candy Comes, a Laggard, to the Feast

COFFEE and reminiscence are forgotten and much interest greets the gay troops of pink, violet, green and red candies; the perfumed bits of sweets; the fat Jordan almonds; the tangy horehounds, the jetty flecks of licorice.

—Especially liked are the little, hard, shining candies which we place in squat-shape glass jars and have priced 20c.

—And then there are, oh, so many other sweets that may fitly take their place at the end of the feast, when jaded appetites demand something more than ordinarily appetizing!

—Chocolates there are in many gradations of size, up to those big fellows with their thick, smooth coatings of milk chocolate.

Perfect Miniatures of Sir Gobble

—are the wee candy turkeys, luscious brown, and worthy to be framed with the gay candy we're offering. Priced 25c.
—Candied figs—thick, dark fruity sweet, come in round

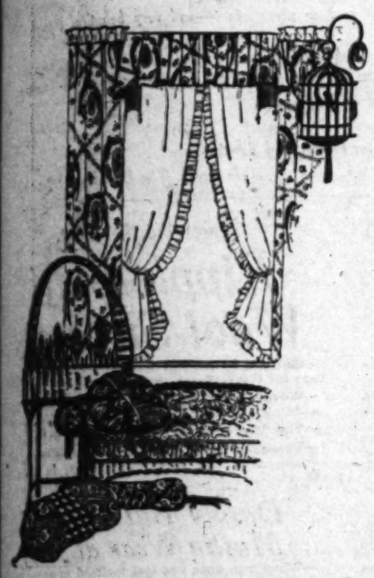
Nearly 10,000 yards of Beautiful

Cretonnes—A November Sale

At Savings Ranging from 20% to Half



—There are many reasons why this November sale of cretonnes will prove attractive to you.

—In the first place, it's an event that we have long planned to present at this time, and comes only as the result of painstaking care in the selection and assembling of such cretonnes as we knew would appeal to the women of Los Angeles.

—Coming now, at a time when cretonnes are being used more in interior home decoration than at any time, just to offer these at full regular prices would be an achievement.

—Think of the many things that can be made from cretonnes—bags, doilies, table covers, couch cushions, window drapes and the covering of useful and decorative furnishings.

—Think of the quantity—10,000 yards—think of the variety, the styles, the colorings.

—Then, knowing the market conditions and the demand for such cretonnes the savings that follow should be the means of bringing you early Monday to the Drapery Section.

—This is like taking a full well-rounded stock of cretonnes, such as would be carried in a representative department like ours, and offering it at these sale prices.

—For three days these prices will prevail.

—Need we urge you, therefore, to come and share in the opportunities?

—We shall endeavor to keep different sale tables well filled from the beginning of this sale to the finish—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Group 1. 2000 yds. of Cretonne at Half Price

—36 to 50-inch widths, floral, tapestries, stripe and chintz designs in domestic fabrics. Also some 50-inch imported cretonnes. Materials that sell at from 50c to $2.50 yard. Out at half these marked prices.

Group 3. Imported Cretonnes 95c

—1000 yards of 36-inch cretonnes, fortunate indeed are we to present them at such a price—bird, forest, tapestry and chintz patterns. A wondrous grouping at 95c yard.

Group 4. Cretonnes 59c yd.

—2000 yards of it—a very broad range of designs and color combinations. You'll find here cretonnes desirable for nearly every purpose to which cretonnes are put. Sale price—59c yard.

Group 7. Cretonne Remnants 65c yard

Group 2. 500 yds. 36 in. Terry Cloth $1.29 yd.

—Among the most desired drapery hangings we find terry cloth—the colorings are so soft, both sides being alike, texture and weave making it an ideal hanging. In this event the price is very much less—$1.29 yard.

Group 5. Cretonnes at 47c yd.

—34 to 36 inches wide and 2000 yards of it to offer. Really surprising colorings and patterns. One of the most attractive offerings in the event.

Group 6. Cretonnes at 39c yd.

—1000 yards, 27 to 34-inch widths. The market today for cretonnes of this character is so much higher that we anticipate a quick disposal of the assortment at 39c.

Group 8. Cretonnes and Art Tickings 24c yard —These, too, are in mill lengths and include rich patterns such as can be used in the making of Christmas gifts. Desirable for pillow tops, bags, doilies, etc. 24c yard.

Oh! Children

Tuesday is the Day of the Annual Dolls'

Tea Party

—And all the doll family is in ecstacies over the coming of this event of events, and how the little girls of Los Angeles are looking forward to the day.

—It's going to be the nicest little affair in which 2000 children will be accommodated.

—Of course, there is going to be the usual delightful music, the opportunity to see the dolls, the dainty luncheon with a wee bit of candy, and then to top it all, the cunning little cup and saucer that came all the way across the ocean—from Japan—just to grace the occasion.

—But it's important—you must have a ticket and there are only 2000 tickets—perhaps we'll have a few remaining Monday for those who come early.

—Ask about it on the Sixth Floor in the wonderfully enlarged Toy Department.

—The first service starts at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and then every half hour until 5 o'clock, so that you will be able to come after school.

Ho! Ho! Ho! Says Santa Claus, Isn't It Wonderful to See the American Made Toys

In Such Vast Assortments

—I've long looked forward to the time when I could have such beautiful toys for American Boys and Girls. And, now to think of it, I've come all the way from Christmasland to the land of flowers and sunshine.

—And I'm located in a charming little bungalow, so typical of this country, where from my porch I can view this great stock of American-made Toys.

—And every day I talk with the little boys and girls about the coming of Christmas, and what it means to the happy children of America.

—You know I just delight in talking to the little folks and I also like to receive letters from you boys and girls—I have a letter box right at my bungalow door and I shall do my best to answer every letter.

—Do you know I am surprised at the number of persons who have started their Christmas shopping? Isn't that fine? There really is no reason why one should wait with all these toys spread out for your inspection and everyone ready to wait on you.

—Isn't it so much more satisfactory than to wait until the last crowded moments?

—Tell the little folks to come and see me. Monday, maybe I'll have a nice little souvenir for them, who knows?

Surprising Indeed Are These Women's

Bath Robes at $5.95

—We have reason to be proud of this feature of Bath Robes at $5.95—and you'll be glad to possess them for they are certainly moderate in price.

Foreign Fingers Have Fashioned

New Philippine Gowns

Adorned with Hand Embroidery

—Women who are familiar with the way in which Philippine underwear is fashioned are most enthusiastic about this beautiful underwear on which so much handwork is produced at such moderate prices.

—Philippine underwear has now become well established—how could it help but be universally recognized.

—Note the careful way in which the stitching is made—the hours of hand work that have been put into them.

—The beautiful sprays of embroidery, even the neck and edge of sleeves finished with tiny scallops.

—These will be most acceptable as gifts.

Have You Considered The Many Advantages of Early Shopping for Your Christmas Gifts

—"I've learned my lesson," said one person in recording his experiences of last year.

—"I waited until the last moment to purchase something that was essential for Christmas Day, and it was only by the barest chance that I succeeded in getting it."

—But outside of the disappointments that occur from merchandise having sold out, consider how much easier shopping can be done.

—Why not plan to do a little of your Christmas shopping every day from now on.

—You'll find morning hours most convenient.

—Stocks have the advantage of being more attractively arranged so that you can make your selections to better advantage. Clerks are not fatigued and are eager to serve you.

—In the crowded afternoons it may be difficult to give you the attention that would be possible in the morning hours.

—This year we can boast of very complete holiday assortments.

—In many respects these assortments are at flood tide now—this is particularly true of toys, books and chinaware.

—By making your selections now and paying a portion of the purchase price, toys will be reserved for you until such a time as you desire.

—All things considered, you'll find it profitable.

ARTHUR LETTS
The Broadway Department Store
BROADWAY, FOURTH AND HILL

The Broadway Department Store Closes Every Saturday Throughout the Year at 1 o'Clock

THE BROADWAY BASEMENT

The Most Important Offering This Year, From the Lace Department, is This, of Imported Silk and Cotton

Black Chantilly Lace

(Machine Made)

39c, 49c, 59c, 69c Yd.

—We wish you could see, as we have, the wondrous designs in this assortment of imported Chantilly lace, in silk-and-cotton weave! Its exquisitely soft texture! You would need no urging to be here with the opening of the doors, Monday.

—Only good fortune in making this purchase, enables us to offer these laces at prices that in some instances are but a fourth to a half of their real worth.

—As you doubtless know, black Chantilly lace is one of the favorites of Fashion for this winter's wearing, entire frocks being made of it.

—In this lot are flouncings from 11 to 40 inches in width; in some instances patterns may be matched in two or three widths.

—The picturization of some of the designs cannot begin to convey an idea of their rich beauty. Some of the patterns are not only woven in silk and cotton, but are outlined in silk as well.

—We have grouped this lace in four lots, as follows:

11 to 18-inch Flouncing, 412 yards, 39c yd.

11 to 27-inch Flouncing, 252 yards, 49c yd.

18 to 27-inch Flouncing, 375 yards, 59c yd.

27 to 40-inch Flouncing, 161 yards, 69c yd.

—An offering that should appeal to every woman who loves beautiful lace, for even if it is not required for immediate use, fine lace such as this is an investment, when purchased for future use.

The Value of Pure, Fresh Air Cannot Be Overestimated

—'Tis a comfort, then, to know when you are shopping in the "Store Within a Store," that 98,000 cubic feet of fresh, washed air, enter The Broadway Basement each minute.

—Electrically propelled fans bring in and distribute this air, after it passes through a water curtain to purify it.

—Merchandise of down-to-the-minute design, good quality and moderate pricings make it to your interest to do your shopping at the "Store Within a Store."

Favored Fabrics in

Wool and Silk Weaves

—are here in exquisite color nuances, portraying ideas that are favored this winter.

—When planning your new suit, coat or frock, be sure to see the diverse assemblage of wool and silk weaves on display in the "Store Within a Store," only three of which we've chosen to mention here.

40-in. Wool French Serge $2.25 Yard —Of fine quality is this wool French serge, and 'tis a weight that is likeably warm for winter, yet not too heavy for indoor wearing.

—In demanded shades of African brown, myrtle green, navy and Copenhagen blue, plum, wine, also black.

35-in. Silk Messaline $2.10 yd

—Heavy, soft satin, whose rich gleaming will impart its own regal beauty to the frocks and blouses it fashions.

—You will find it in the demanded street and evening shades—exquisitely soft colorings as well as brighter tones, and some sedately subdued.

18-in. Trimming Velvet $1.75 Yd.

—Now on display, you will find newcomers in panne and silk-faced velvets.

—Exquisite fabrics that will add richness to the costume, coat or hat they adorn.

—In delicate pastel shades for evening wear; in quiet street colorings; in gorgeous hues that call to mind the gay dress that Nature dons, with the coming of autumn.

—Colorings with which you can hardly help being fascinated.

—And from which you may choose, at $1.75 a yard.

Aisle Four, The Broadway Basement.

Crepe de Chine Blouses $4.89

—It's none too easy to secure blouses like these to sell at so low a price, but our blouse buyer is always on the lookout for opportunities to buy advantageously and these blouses are proof of her ability along these lines.

You May Choose from Flesh and White

—the crepe de chine in both cases being of surprisingly good quality. The blouses have square neck and roll collar, and two wide tucks ornament either side of the front. Sizes 36 to 44 underpriced for Monday at $4.89.

Navy Flannel Middies Are Smart

—and ever so comfy, too. They are made in slip-over style, the sailor collar trimmed with three rows of braid. These attractive middies have front lacing and they are to be had in sizes 16 to 44. Prices $2.95 to $6.95.

Beacon Bathrobes, $4.95

—Invaluable possessions they prove themselves to be—these soft, warm Beacon bathrobes and very moderate indeed is their $4.95 pricing.

—There are various colors in the assortment, some of the robes having small collars, others shawl collars. Cord trimming gives a pretty finish. Sizes 36 to 44.

Aisle Eight, The Broadway Basement.

To Accompany Winter's Festivities, Come

Hats of Metal Lace and Velvet These are Priced $7.45 —and surely you'll agree with us that this is a modest marking!

—The brims, of course, are of the metal lace—gold or silver effect—and very beautiful frames they make, for feminine faces.

—The crowns of some are in taupe, brown or black velvet; others are in dashing shades of rose and blue velvet that make perfectly "gorgeous" hats for youthful wearers, be their tresses fair or brunette.

—Modish shapes, including poke and drooping brim effects.

—Adorned with ostrich novelties and flowers.

—The hats approved by Madame La Mode for theater and dancing wear.

—Be sure to see them, Monday. Priced $7.45. Aisle Seven, The Broadway Basement.

Women's Very Finely Woven

Thread Silk Stockings $1.75

—When you draw them over your hand, and note the fineness of the silk threads, yet their strength, and the closeness with which they are woven, you will doubtless realize how unusual is their quality at the pricing.

—The double garter tops, and reinforcements at heels and toes, give promise of substantial service.

—Made with mock seam, and come in black, white and brown; sizes 8½ to 10.

Stockings of Shimmering Fiber

Warm Blankets a Necessity

—If your own household needs in this respect are not well cared for, we direct your attention to the very large assortment of blankets and comforters to be found in this section of the "Store Within a Store."

—Table upon table is piled high with soft, warm "comfortables" for winter use and new lots are constantly arriving, so fast do our stocks diminish.

Wool-Finish Blankets $6.00 Pr.

—Beautiful, soft blankets, in gray and tan, the ends ribbon-bound. Double blankets, in 70x80-inch size for double beds.

White Cotton Blankets $3.25 Pr.

—Fluffy warm blankets, 54x74-inch size for single bed use.

Large Cotton Blankets $4.50 Pr.

—Choose from gray, tan or white; all with dainty colored borders in blue and pink, 70x80-inch size.

Comforters $3.39 Ea.

—Truly a small price, for these 65x65-inch (average-size) comforters, well filled with cottton; covered with silkoline, figured on top, plain on the bottom. Scroll stitched.

Beautiful Filet Weave Nets 85c to $1.15 Yard

—There are designs of wee little squares; one that might have been inspired by a Colonial candelabra; some in fanciful conventional effects; others conventionalized flowers. But all are distinctive, lovely designs.

—In white, cream and ecru; 40 to 72 in. wide. Priced 85c, 95c and $1.15 yd.

Curtain Scrim and Nets, 25c Yard

—In white, cream and ecru. Widths 33 to 36 in.

—While some of the scrim is plain, some pieces have open-work edge.

—The nets are in dainty patternings.

Good Cretonne 45c Yard

—Wrought in ever so many bright as well as more sedate color combinations, in designs from wee posies to big, splashy roses and the like, that help to brighten north rooms.

—Width 30 in. Aisles Two to Four, The Broadway Basement.

Soft-Finished 72x90 Inch

Sheets $1.69

—Even at their regular marking (which is considerably more than that for Monday,) these sheets possess exceptional worth.

—Of unusually heavy sheeting, with a soft finish, made seamless and hemmed, the 72x90-in. size being before hemming.

—Good sheets at a moderate price are rarely offered now-a-days, therefore we anticipate an unusual demand in response to this offering and are constrained to limit purchase, four to a customer.

36-in. Long Cloth 28c

—Has that soft finish that is so well liked in dainty underthings. Is fully bleached, too.

Heavy Twilled Outing Flannel 33c Yd.

—It, too, offers a goodly saving. All white; a weight that makes very comfy sleeping garments.

3-lb. Cotton Batts $1.35

—Unusually fine white cotton batts, that open to 72x90 in. size and lie flat and even. With them you can make warm, yet fluffy, light-weight comforters.

"Blue Bird" Nainsook 32c Yd.

A less-than-usual marking on this very sheer, fine, silky-finish nainsook that launders so exquisitely.

—At the lowered price 'tis worth-purchasing what one will need for making Christmas gifts.

—In white only; width 36 inches.

Aisles 2 to 4, The Broadway Basement.

Inlaid Linoleums $2.25 Sq. Yd.

—Heavily it is made — with the pattern right through to the burlap backing.

—The small extra cost is more than justified in the end, by the unusual service that this fine inlaid linoleum gives.

—Many artistically wrought designs from which you can choose, too, in blue and brown.

—Width 3 yards. Priced $2.25 sq. yd.

Better Grade

Coats, Suits Repriced to $21.95

—It's a rule of this house, as you may know, that no garment should remain long in stock. This assures you that, even though apparel may be repriced for quick clearaway, it is reasonable in fabric, modish in design!

—This applies to the aggregation of suits and coats we present for Monday's selling.

—It includes practically 100 garments, smartly-styled, of a better grade, yet which date from lines that have been purchased so quickly that size ranges are considerably broken.

—In some instances there is only one of a model; sometimes two or three; but all sizes 14 to 44 are in the lot.

The Suits:

—The majority of the suits are of fine serge, that gives such excellent service.

—Included are suits of Burella cloth.

—In the assemblage are shades of navy blue and Burgundy as well as black.

—Trigly styled, well finished, some tailored, some semi-tailored models.

The Coats:

—are of Silvertone, Melton cloth, Velveteen and "Salts' Baby Lamb"—as well as other approved fabrics.

—Included are full-length styles, as well as the popular Johnny coat model.

—Some belted, some flaring smartly.

—In navy blue, brown, Burgundy, taupe, also black.

Every Garment

—an unusual value at its Monday pricing, $21.95.

WARNING

TO ALL

MOTORISTS,

TRUCK MEN AND

PUMP OWNERS.

You perhaps do not know that you can get any and everything for your machine right here in town and from a reliable firm who guarantees its goods and returns your money if you are not satisfied. It's one thing to guarantee your goods, and another thing to do it. Investigate our reputation.

Don't pay high prices when you can obtain it cheaper.

Second-hand goods do not necessarily mean worn-out goods. We have parts of cars that are practically new and retail them at almost junk prices. Volume of business is the answer.

WANT CITY MILK PLANT.

Percy H. Clark, a member of the committee appointed by Mayor Snyder to investigate the local milk situation, today begins a tour of California cities to gather first-hand information on the cost of producing and distributing milk. On his return he will report to the committee the result of his investigations. If Mr. Clark's investigations show that the milk producers or the distributors are profiteering at the expense of the public, the committee may make his report public at once.

Some of the members of the committee, it was stated yesterday, as a result of evidence obtained thus far, are convinced that milk can be profitably sold to the public for at least 4 cents less than it is being sold now, and these members believe that a fund of $500,000 should be raised at once to establish a municipal dairy and distributing system. Mr. Clark and Dr. John R. Haynes of the Mayor's committee have already offered to subscribe $50,000 each to the fund.

James P. Britt, superintendent of municipal markets and chairman of the milk investigating committee, has submitted figures to the committee showing that the cost of marketing milk is greatly in excess of the cost of producing it. The committee is therefore centering its investigation for the moment on learning the actual cost of distributing milk to the people of Los Angeles. The committee feels at present that relief should take the form of a municipal distributing system through a station to be built in the San Fernando Valley where the milk could be easily collected from the producers.

HOLD-UPS IN TWO STORES.

Two young bandits, traveling in a small automobile, entered two grocery stores in different parts of Los Angeles yesterday evening, held up four men in one store and two in the other, collected a total toll of $603, two gold watches and $150 in checks and then escaped.

The bandits, unmasked, first entered the Rock Bottom Company's grocery at Avenue 28 and Dayton avenue, about 8:30 p.m., and with guns held up B. Johnson, the grocery clerk, 153 Roselawn Drive, and James DeLacy, the butcher, 938 West Third street. They took from Mr. Johnson $250 of the firm's money, and from Mr. DeLacy they collected $40 of the meat sales money and $25 of his own. Then they locked the two clerks in a rear room and left.

Proceeding to the opposite end of the city, the bandits entered the grocery store of William Nelson, Pico and Hoover streets, shortly before 10 o'clock. Flashing their revolvers, they forced Mr. Nelson, who lives at 2330 West Eleventh street, to give them $250 in cash, $150 in checks and his watch. Then they turned to W. H. Owen, the butcher, 1548 West Twelfth street, and took from him a $20 bill and a brown wallet containing his registration card and Army discharge papers. Morris Gordon, clerk, 1215 South Westlake street, was then compelled to hand over $8 in cash and his chauffeur's card.

C. D. Goldthwaite, 1010 Park View street, a customer, was robbed of $10 in cash and his watch. Using the same tactics as in the earlier robbery, the bandits then forced all four men to enter a large icebox in the rear of the store and locked them in. The lock of the icebox was broken by the men shortly after and the police notified.

Police detectives and deputy sheriffs scoured the city in high-powered automobiles all night in a hunt for the robbers.

LEGION'S CALL TO MEN.

Urging ex-service men to enroll as members of the American Legion, Los Angeles Post, No. 8, last night issued the following call:

Headquarters, Los Angeles Post.
The American Legion.
November 15, 1919.

Veterans of the Great War:

Now is the time to come under the banner of Americanism.

If "the issue," as the radicals call it, is to come within the next ninety days—as they declare—you cannot hesitate.

The banner of 100 per cent Americanism, the maintaining of law and order, the combating of both the classes and the masses—all are found in the American Legion. This great body of sturdy, unwavering Americans, who saved the day for our country so recently and who again stand ready now to repeat it against the enemies within our gates, calls you.

Your comrades were shot down in cold blood on Armistice Day because they were ex-soldiers. The gauntlet was then thrown down before you—viciously and most insultingly. What is your answer?

Enroll at once in one of the more than 5000 posts of the American Legion. There are four posts in Los Angeles with over 6000 fighters now. Hundreds are coming in daily. Join in Hollywood or in San Pedro. Join in the center of Los Angeles by going to Victory Post headquarters in the Bumiller Building, or Los Angeles Post headquarters at 508 South Spring street. Join any one of the scores of Legion posts in Southern California cities. They are all a part of the American Legion. They all have the same purpose — 100 per cent Americanism and elimination of radicalism. Join a post.

SAYS TAILORS STAND FIRM FOR OPEN SHOP.

ASSOCIATION HEAD ASSERTS EMPLOYERS WILL FIGHT ANY SOVIET MOVE.

With the arrival in Los Angeles yesterday of Samuel G. Levy, president of the Pacific Coast Merchant Tailors' Association, came the announcement that Southern California tailors will fight to a finish the efforts of the striking journeymen to "sovietise" the tailoring business on the Coast.

As the result of an investigation conducted in San Francisco by a Chamber of Commerce committee, it was revealed that the strike of the tailors on the Pacific Coast was only a cloak to hide the revolutionary purpose of the radicals to bring control of the tailoring industry under the soviet system. Following the investigation the Chamber of Commerce decided to give moral and financial support to the Pacific Coast Merchant Tailors' Association in the fight to conduct business on the open-shop basis.

In part the statement issued by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce says:

"Whenever it shall appear that any movement by any body of men is aimed at the overthrow of our government and the destruction of our established institutions, the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce will resist such movement to the utmost and will rely upon public opinion for justification of its action.

"Proof of the fact that revolution and soviet control is the end and aim of radical leaders of the tailors' unions is contained in the text of some of the demands made upon merchant tailors."

Los Angeles merchants are solidly behind their organization in the fight with the radicals. President Levy of the Coast organization is a local merchant.

CHURCH LEADER HERE TO ORGANIZE DRIVE.

NEW YORK PASTER TO EXPLAIN NATION-WIDE CAMPAIGN OF EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Rev. Fred S. Eastman of New York, who is touring the United States in the interest of the Nation-wide campaign of the Episcopal church, arrived here yesterday to spend a week in Southern California, addressing the communicants of this section and giving the local clergy, who will conduct the Los Angeles campaign, their final instructions.

Mr. Eastman will preach at St. John's Episcopal Church this morning, and at St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral tonight. At both of these meetings he will preach on "World Vision." He will tell of the great work that the Episcopal church has before it. He will show what the church has done in Shanghai, China, where a college has been erected from which 1000 Chinese clergymen have been graduated.

Monday, Mr. Eastman will address the Episcopal clergy of this diocese at a luncheon at the Clark Hotel, and a conference of the clergy will be held with the bishop and Mr. Eastman at the St. Paul's parish house at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Mr. Eastman will go to Redlands, Tuesday; San Diego, Wednesday, and Santa Barbara, Friday. He will preach at each of these places and other engagements will probably be made for him during the week.

REOPENS LAW OFFICE.

George C. Watson, former Assemblyman from the Seventy-second District, has returned to Los Angeles after an absence of nearly two years, most of which time he was in the service. He has resumed his law practice in association with C. B. Sturtenacker and Houghton and Robertson in the H. W. Hellman Building.

ADMIRES OUR WOMEN.

New York Buyer Says City is Gaining Fashion Fame.

Los Angeles is gaining a new reputation, which rivals its fame for climate and flowers.

It is becoming known everywhere as a city of beautiful, fashionably-dressed women, says Mlle. Jean, resident buyer for Swelldom in New York, who has just arrived in Los Angeles, to remain a few days.

She came to Los Angeles to survey local conditions and to gather first-hand information which would be helpful to her in the selection of apparel for the coming season. She was greatly surprised to note the thriving business conditions of the city and the apparent growth since she was last in Los Angeles.

"Even in New York, the stores and streets do not seem so filled with prosperous, buying crowds as here," she said.

ON LARCENY CHARGES.

Two Men Wanted at the Bay City Are Arrested Here.

Arrested in a downtown hotel late yesterday afternoon by Police Detectives Rich and Wood on grand larceny warrants from San Francisco, Peter Griffin and John Custias were lodged in the City Jail and will be returned to San Francisco. According to the prisoners, they are wanted in the north on charges of having stolen railroad tickets. The local police have no information about the two except that they are charged with grand larceny.

BURNS MAY BE FATAL.

Woman's Clothing Is Ignited by Gas Heater's Flame.

Mrs. Bertha M. Guinney, 60 years of age, 1574 East Forty-eighth street, was probably fatally burned yesterday afternoon when her clothing caught fire from a small gas heater in the home of Robert A. Howland, 206 North Vendome street. Mrs. Guinney was attending to several children at the time.

Rushing from the house with her clothing ablaze Mrs. Guinney screamed for help and her cries attracted the attention of neighbors, who smothered the fire with rugs and sent the suffering woman to the Receiving Hospital for treatment. Police surgeons stated late yesterday afternoon that she has small chance for recovery.

HIT BY AUTO; MAY DIE.

Struck down by an automobile driven by J. B. Oberley of Arcadia, Fred Drake, 42 years of age, 3464 Peagle street, was perhaps fatally injured late yesterday afternoon near Turquoise street and Huntington drive. At the Receiving Hospital the injured man was treated for a crushed chest and other injuries. Police who investigated stated the accident was unavoidable.

To Have Curly Wavy Hair Like 'Nature's Own'

Women who have trouble keeping their hair in curl, or of securing the desired wavy effect—and especially those who realize the harm that the hot iron does to the hair—will do well to try plain liquid Silmerine. In no other way can they acquire such pretty waves and curls, having all the appearance of "Nature's own." And the hair, instead of being singed, ragged or dead looking, has such a lively lustre and wholesome beauty.

If one will get a bottle of liquid Silmerine at any drug store and follow the accompanying directions, she will be simply delighted with the result. This product is, of course, perfectly harmless and there is nothing sticky, greasy or unpleasant about it. The hair will be quite manageable, no matter in what fashion it is done up.—[Advertisement.

Finds Unexpected Sometimes Happens

"I suffered for 10 years with stomach trouble and doctored away a lot of money before I found a medicine that was a real benefit to me. Since taking one dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy 14 weeks ago, I have had more real joy of living than I had in ten years before." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—[Advertisement.

FLAMES DESTROY CAR.

Doctor Singed, Auto Demolished When Gasoline Explodes.

Dr. M. A. Heffelfinger, 39 years of age, 511 South Westlake avenue, was painfully injured and his automobile was destroyed late yesterday afternoon when the machine caught fire from gasoline with which the doctor was cleaning the engine. He was treated at the Receiving Hospital for burns of the right arm and hand.

According to Dr. Heffelfinger, the gasoline exploded and the blazing fluid covered the machine and his clothing. Before he could rip off his coat, his right arm was severely burned.

CYCLIST IS FOUND DEAD IN THE ROAD.

The body of H. R. Boyd, a returned soldier, 21 years old, of 815 North Grifford avenue, Bell Station, was late last night found lying on the road beside his motorcycle at Baker and Cudahy avenues. It is believed that he may have fallen from his motorcycle and killed, or he may have been knocked from his cycle by an automobile, which then ran over him. The body was discovered by R. R. Raymer of 274 Coronado street, Long Beach, who notified the Sheriff's office. Deputies are investigating the case. The body is at the Huntington Park mortuary.

TAMPERING WITH A MOTTO.

That fine old motto, "Live and Let Live," has been changed to "Liver 30 Cents."—[Toledo Blade.

FOR WAR UPON WHITE PLAGUE.

Christmas Seal Sale by Red Cross First of Month.

Committee Already Planning Details of Big Drive.

Expect All Letters, Parcels to Bear Mercy Emblem.

With an appeal to all those who honor the "Greatest Mother in the World" and who, because of her marvelous war work, desire to help her in peace work, announcement was made yesterday that the annual Red Cross Christmas seal sale will be conducted in Los Angeles December 1 to 10. This is part of a national campaign to raise working funds for the Red Cross antituberculosis activities, as all America will be called on for financial co-operation.

The campaign will be devoted to selling Red Cross Christmas seals, and the public will be asked to use these seals on all letters and parcels sent through the mail.

Headed by Mrs. J. J. A. Van Kathoven, prominent here during the war because of her Red Cross work, a general committee has already organized to make this Christmas seal sale a success. Other members of the committee are: Mrs. Benjamin Goldman, John P. Burke, Louis M. Cole, Mrs. J. M. Danziger, Miss Alice E. Elliott, Miss Winnifred Kingston, Oscar Lawler, Miss Sidney McGuire, Malcolm McNaughton, J. M. Schneider and Sylvester Weaver.

PUBLIC KNOWS NOW.

For the first time practically in the entire history of the Red Cross, members of this committee stated yesterday, the people at large will have an intelligent knowledge of the objects of the annual Christmas seal sale. Before the war, they say, the great activity of the Red Cross was its fight against the spread of tuberculosis, except at times of emergencies. The public, however, at that time considered the Red Cross only as a name, but now, the committee men declare, the public regards it as a great, powerful, achieving spirit, and if proper response is made to the call of the Christmas seal sale, the Red Cross can treble its work in wiping out the white plague and bringing health to the race.

A definite campaign has been laid down. Among its features will be a downtown drive, conducted under direction of Mrs. Danziger, who, aided by a large staff of society women, will have booths in banks and stores, where Christmas seal sales can be made.

STORES AND BANKS.

Mr. Burke will solicit the banks and Mr. Schneider the stores, and a maximum of $100 in seal purchases has been made for both kinds of business houses.

Headquarters will be opened at 503 South Spring street, December 1, and from there the campaign will be waged vigorously.

"All those who, for themselves or for their sons or dear ones who were in the war, have some debt of gratitude to the Red Cross can take this opportunity to lighten it," said Mrs. Van Kasthoven yesterday. "Because the Red Cross has come to be a living thing to the American public, it can now treble its peace work if the public will supply the funds. We expect an unprecedented success this year."

LETTER WRITER HELD.

Author of Obscene Missives Blames It On New Religion.

United States Commissioner Long yesterday held Sidney M. Collins of Sunland to the Federal Grand Jury in a bond of $500, on a charge of sending an obscene letters to Mrs. Fannie Park of Glendale, connected with the Christian Science organization in that city.

Collins claimed that he was under the influence of Christian Science when he wrote the incriminating letter to the woman that he had never seen but once in his life.

It developed that Collins was under observation at the psychopathic ward at the County Hospital last spring, but testified that he had been found sane by a jury. His mental condition will be inquired into.

"Gee-Whiz! How it Hurts—The Pain in My Foot!"

"Sometimes it is in my arm. Merciful Heaven, how my back hurts in the morning!" It's all due to an over-abundance of that poison called uric acid. The kidneys are not able to get rid of it. Such conditions you can readily overcome, and prolong life by taking the advice of Dr. Pierce, which is "keep the kidneys in good order." Avoid too much meat, alcohol or tea. Drink plenty of pure water, preferably hot water, before meals, and drive the uric acid out of the system by taking Anuric." This can be obtained at almost any drug store.

Send a bottle of water to the chemist at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., and you will receive free medical advice as to whether the kidneys are affected. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headache, dizzy spells, or twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism or gout; or sleep is disturbed two or three times a night, take heed, before too late. Get Anuric (anti-uric-acid), for it will put new life into your kidneys and your entire system. Ask your nearest druggist for it or send Dr. Pierce ten cents for trial package.

FORD FRIEND OF ALASKA RADICAL

Henry's Paper Prints Tales of "Tyranny" in North.

"Dearborn Independent" is a Propaganda Medium.

Publication is for Breaking "Shackles of Bureaucracy."

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. — Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent, in the issue of November 15, publishes an article called "Alaska's Cry for Freedom," by Thomas B. Drayton, in which the writer says the "radicals" of Uncle Sam's northernmost territory are demanding the establishment of a "free and sovereign State;" that they have been and still are "suffering tyranny, oppression and injustice" under bureaucratic favorites of the successive political administrations of the United States government and that they intend resisting "with honorable strife the authority of the American government."

The text of the article, which appears under a Seward (Alaska) date line, follows:

"It is high time that some one were drawing aside the curtain to permit a glimpse into the heart of Alaska; that Alaska which . . . proved the sterling quality of its citizenship . . . by giving a higher percentage of its man power to military service, and a higher percentage of its wealth to the government and its allied agencies, than any other geographical unit of the American Union.

"All of this was given freely to the government that during the passing century has pressed upon its people a species of oppression, tyranny and injustice compared to which the wrongs of the thirteen colonies were trivial and unconsequential.

"The mother country, to which we Alaskans paid this tribute of our devotion, permits a 'bureaucratic autocracy' intrenched at Washington City to brand and herd us as so many cattle, for no other reason than to provide permanent official employment for bureaucratic favorites of the successive political administrations of the United States government.

"This intolerable condition creates two distinct, but closely sympathetic concepts of political policy in the minds of those remaining in the Territory.

"The first concept, in the order of notice in this article, is exemplified by spasmodic expressions of an aspiration for membership as a State in the American Union. The adherents of this concept are few.

"The adherents of the second, or more radical, concept are convinced beyond the power of mere argument to alter their conviction that Statehood now or later is an idle dream. These latter are our radicals in embryo. As an independent sovereign State the future would hold something for the Alaskans and their children; as a political dependency of the United States, the future of Alaska is hopeless.

"Not only they, but all other bona fide Alaskans of intelligence meet upon one common ground of conviction; that ultimate ruin is our inevitable portion unless we break the shackles of bureaucratic Washington government by one means or another.

"As a direct result of American bureaucratic government, illimitable stores of coal are denied to us and may not be taken even to warm our bodies.

"We cannot draw the oil from the natural storehouses within our plains and valleys.

"We cannot use the timbers decaying in the wilds about us to build structures for our comfort and convenience.

"We cannot harness the power of mountain torrents to facilitate our enterprises or bring relief to our wearied muscles.

"We cannot employ the immeasurable wastes of land on every side to fill the needs and further the advantage of our people.

"We cannot dig the metals needful to our wants lying useless and valueless in untrod mountain fastnesses.

"We can, in fact, do no worthwhile thing, unless hedged about by reservations and restrictions and usurpations of power designed to paralyze initiative, discourage effort, nullify enterprise, blast hopes, and further tighten the strangling grip of bureaucratic fingers upon our throats.

"We Alaskans are under no delusions as to the difficulties confronting us if bad comes to worse. Men now here are more cognizant of the illimitable physical power of But with all its greatness it has no power of might alone to stay the the United States or of its capacity to crush our weakness at a blow. germination in the inmost part of Alaska of the fateful question.

"Would it not be more desirable to be crushed in honorable strife for right, for justice and for liberty than to continue in virtual slavery and be slowly done to death by the bureaucratic stranglers who have ruined our past, who render the present fruitless and make our future hopeless?"

Commissioned Officers' Association Urges Recruiting Drive.

Resolutions denouncing the I.W.W., indorsing the vigorous and loyal policy of the American Legion in support of law and order, urging that all loyal citizens encourage the recruiting of the National Guard and offering personal service to the civil authorities were unanimously adopted by the Commissioned Officers' Association of Los Angeles last Friday at the Angelus Hotel and were made public yesterday by the secretary, Frank M. Bering.

"A strong and efficient National Guard is a powerful means of restraining lawless organizations," say the resolutions, "and of preserving order. We recommend enlistments in the National Guard be encouraged by loyal employers and all good citizens, and that the advantages of the National Guard as a physical and moral force in the upbuilding of Americanism be constantly published to the men eligible to the Guard, especially to the ex-service men."

NURSE IS VICTIM OF BLOOD POISON.

LOUISIANA OIL LEASES

The Boom in North Louisiana Is on—the Rush of Operators and Promoters—the New Golconda Continues Unabated—No Oil Excitement Anywhere Equals That in North Louisiana Today.

Values are climbing with every big well brought in, and this is of frequent occurrence because of the shallow drilling relatively and the inexpensiveness of the wells.

Two Great Fields—BULL BAYOU and HOMER—Are Opening Up and Blooming Like the Rose

The big operators are there; the little ones are coming. Louisiana is the charmed word in oil today. If you missed it in Texas, if you waited too long and permitted the early prices to get by you, if you are waiting your lost opportunity—here it is again. Fortunes are being made daily—big fortunes in buying and selling leases. You have the same opportunity as the other fellow. We were here before the boom began and acquired large tracts; also closed up leases, which, by reason of our early purchases, we are enabled to offer to our clients and others at price below the market. Write us today for full information on the fields. Our statistical department will be glad to inform you without cost on the operations, values, market and otherwise of every company, stock or lease in the field. The big money in the oil game is made from speculation in leases, leases costing a few dollars per acre have sold at many thousands per acre. The early bird in the oil boom, as elsewhere, catches the worm. Buy a lease. Wild cat land today may be a Homer or Bull Bayou tomorrow. Our leases prices range from $2 per acre to $20,000. Buy a lease. We can deliver them from $100 for 50 acres to one acre for $20,000. List your purchase right back with us. We will attempt to resell it for you on order advancing prices, deduct our brokerage of 5 per cent and remit the difference. Buy a lease—buy TODAY.

It is now an old story that had as much keenness of vision and money-spending enterprise been shown by property owners nearer the north end of the business district, several years ago, the building decline, both in appearance and value, would not have been known. The error, however, has by no means been fatal and not a few observers of the development of Sixth street believe that the lesson suggested by the improvements there will sink deep enough in the north end to bear fruit.

New Industry.

Boyle Heights is likely to come into a considerable share of the new industrial development if dependence is to be placed in the reports now current that negotiations are being conducted by the owners of the Hostetter tract, extending beyond East Ninth street, and the heads of a large eastern rubber tire factory, a branch of which may be located in Los Angeles. No statement as to the progress of the deal, beyond an admission that representatives of the factory have recently inspected the property, has been forthcoming, but it is said that the action of the Goodyear company in locating here will probably serve to bring its competitor to Southern California.

The tract in question, consisting of several hundred acres, will undoubtedly lend itself admirably to industrial development, both transportation facilities and opportunity for the construction of homes for workmen being particularly right It is known, too, that the owners of the property would give every encouragement to a development of this sort, as it is unlikely that the same measure of progress would come to that district if left only to subdivision unbacked by substantial industry.

PLAN BERKELEY OF SOUTH.

Project Includes University, Industrial Center, Homes, Hotel, Country Club.

Foreshadowing a new era of development for that section of the fertile and picturesque San Fernando Valley are the plans soon to be launched by the Southern California Company, an organization of Los Angeles capitalists, who propose to take over the famous Oliver J. Stough ranch of 5000 acres adjoining Burbank and transform that property into a model community which will include the establishment of a great nonsectarian university, an ideal industrial city, a suburban home colony, the erection of a tourist hotel and country club, with golf course and recreation field, and buildings in which music, art and drama will be fostered and developed. This great plan, the promotion of which was begun nearly three years ago by B. W. Marks and associates, promises to rank as one of the big educational, industrial and subdivision developments of Southern California, providing it can be carried out on the great scale proposed and, according to its backers, entirely warranted by the tremendous progress of this section of California in the last few years.

OF GREAT SCOPE.

The organization of the new company is practically complete, and the great tract of land, which it is proposed to develop will be transferred this week and the deeds placed in escrow. Identified actively with the company will be a group of widely known bankers, professional men and capitalists, according to Mr. Marks, while the president will be a prominent attorney. The company will be capitalized for $1,500,000, although the ultimate aims of the great enterprise contemplate an investment of approximately $20,000,000.

While the "key" of the enterprise will be the great proposed university settlement modeled along the lines of Berkeley, with courses in engineering, agriculture, the fine arts, science, etc., the initial step in launching the plan will probably be the opening of a new suburban residential subdivision adjoining Burbank to be known as Woodland Park.

Approximately 2000 acres of the tract have ben set aside from this subdivision, which besides its allotment for homes, will also include a civic center, public library, city hall, parks, postoffice and auditorium for public gatherings. Comprehensive surveys of the entire tract have been made, and sites selected for all the proposed buildings, parkways, boulevards, etc. This was done under the direction of Aurele Vermeulen, a noted Belgian landscape architect, now a resident of Los Angeles. The work has required nearly two years, and more than $30,000 has been spent on the preliminary plans. Architectural drawings are now being made of the proposed tourist hotel, auditorium, Greek theater, University group and incidental buildings associated with the plan.

SUBURBAN HOMES.

The promoters of the plan have conducted negotiations for the Stough ranch, purchased in 1893 by Oliver J. Stough, millionaire centenarian of San Diego, and for many years held by him as a prize possession, with Arthur J. Casebeer, a prominent local attorney, who became its owner in 1915. The original plan was merely to subdivide the land into suburban home sites and develop its promising industrial side, but when its possibilities for the establishment of a great university and collateral educational center were better understood, the promoters immediately began negotiations with a group of eastern educators and through them has come the probability of completing the university establishment on a scale of commanding importance to Southern California and the West.

Incident to the plan, aside from the building of the proposed university group, hotel, country club, theater, athletic field and chautauqua will be a speedway course with a track of two-and-one-half miles. It is also proposed to set aside and develop a large area as a hunting preserve for use in connection with the tourist hotel. The whole plan is proposed to harmonize with a system of parkways, avenues and boulevards of connecting with the foothill boulevard extending into the interior of Southern California on the south and east and the ocean on the west. The central boulevard, running from the proposed civic center, will extend to the foot of the projected university, the campus of which, according to present plans, will cover eighty-five acres.

FOR INDUSTRIES.

The allotment for industries, covering approximately 2000 acres for building sites and workingmen's homes, has been placed at the south side of the tract extending east and west. It will be practically one and a half miles from the proposed university group and tourist hotel, its location having been determined with a view to completely separating the industries from the residential, educational and recreational phases of the plan. The industrial part of the plan, according to Mr. Marks, has been largely promoted through the interest of several eastern manufacturers desirous of locating plants in Southern California. Negotiations are now going forward with three local manufacturing enterprises which contemplate their removal to this model industrial center at Burbank, one being a large automobile concern which recently announced proposed extensions to its present plant. The tract has aqueduct water mains, the electrical power lines of the Pacific Light & Power Company running along its full length, together with transportation facilities by Southern Pacific and Pacific Electric railways. In laying out their industrial allotment, the heads of the enterprise followed largely the lines of Pullman, Ill.

Aside from the great residential, industrial and educational promise afforded by the proposed development of this section of Southern California, the importance also of the San Fernando Valley as an agricultural field is referred to by the company heads. It is pointed out that approximately 75,000 fertile acres form the agricultural background of the proposed ideal community, the developers of which propose to transform into a suburban city of 75,000 people, wherein will be offered the advantages of superior home locations, opportunities for cultural development and recreation and for a larger number of wage earners employment under ideal conditions. This, according to Mr. Marks, summarizes the company's plan.

COUNTRY CLUB.

Sites for the proposed country club, plans for which are being developed aside from the subdivision and university plans, and mountain hotel have been selected in the higher ground overlooking the floor of the valley and amid surroundings not excelled in natural beauty in the State. It is proposed to construct this projected hotel on the lines of the Lake Tahoe Tavern and conduct it as an all-year resort. The outline of the Country Club calls for an organization of 2000 members, and it is proposed to spend $500,000 in buildings, equipment, golf course, tennis courts, bowling alleys, swimming pool, etc.

Few great ranch properties in Southern California have had a more interesting history than the one adjoining Burbank, which, according to these plans, is now in the path of the stupendous development that has come to this section of the State. It was purchased in parcels by Oliver J. Stough when he was well beyond ninety years of age, and grew into a princely domain of approximately 8000 acres. Although an extensive property owner in other parts of the State, he held this property as his prize and spent money lavishly in developing its agricultural side, besides constructing a system of foothill roads at a cost of many thousands of dollars. It was his intention to create a beautiful park of 100 acres near the center of the estate, but at the death of his wife, who had been keenly interested in the development of the property, abandoned this plan.

FINE ROADS.

Prior to this Mr. Stough developed a driveway which extends to a 2000-foot elevation in the hills, from the top of which is visible the entire reach of the San Fernando Valley and the city of Los Angeles. This remarkable roadway, which, with others, formed a beltline of the estate, cost more than $35,000. Mr. Stough was one of those valley residents who were keenly interested in the building of the Pacific Electric line through Burbank, and he personally gave $10,000 cash toward its erection, his statement being that the country, unless made accessible by transportation, was of little value to the public.

When he decided to transfer the title to the immensely valuable estate to Arthur J. Casebeer in 1915, Mr. Stough had reached his ninety-seventh year and was still active in business and social affairs. The consideration is understood to have been $1,000,000, although the value of the property has since greatly enhanced.

SUES DAUGHTER WHO MADE HER WEALTHY.

STORY OF MINING CLAIM TOLD WHEN AGED WOMAN SEEKS TO RECOVER GIFT.

How her daughter obtained for her mother an income approximating $12,000 a year appeared incidentally during the trial of the suit of Mrs August Carter Hill Spencer, eighty years old, against Mrs. Martha May McKay, the daughter, to set aside a deed to a house and lot at 1300 Forty-first Drive. Mrs. Spencer alleged that she was unduly influenced by Mrs. McKay.

The evidence showed that Mrs. Spencer made a voluntary gift of it to Mrs. McKay. The court found there was no undue influence and gave judgment in favor of the daughter.

The testimony showed also that Mrs. Spencer years ago owned an interest in a mining claim in Michigan. She received an offer of $5 for a deed to the claim. No attention was paid to the offer. Another offer of $760 was received; then an offer of $7000. By this time Mrs. McKay became interested, and believing the claim very valuable she went to Michigan and adjusted her mother's right to the property. As a result, Mrs. Spencer became wealthy.

CHICAGOAN BUYS.

O. R. Dye, realty broker, reports the sale of the residence at 939 South Westmoreland place to Mrs. Belle Woodward of Chicago for $30,000. The house has sixteen rooms. The sale was made for Dr. Joseph Jarvis of Riverside.

PLANS RESORT.

REDLANDS, Nov. 15.—Ben Johnson has just sold to E. C. Jessurn of Los Angeles forty acres at the northwest corner of Baldwin lake. It is understood that the purchase price was $16,000. Mr. Jessurn later expects to erect a hotel, the first to be built at Baldwin Lake. He has announced that the hotel will be along the lines of the Mission Inn at Riverside.

NOVIN H. STEER, Photographer, formerly of Chicago, specializes in children in children's pictures, now located in Majestic Theater Building.

COURT FIGHT ENDS; BUILDING GOES ON.

CHESTER APARTMENTS, LONG DELAYED, TO BE SOON COMPLETED.

After nearly three years of delay due to war conditions and to subsequent litigation, the Chester apartment building at the northeast corner of Hollywood boulevard and Hudson street, is soon to be completed, according to plans given out yesterday by a syndicate of Hollywood business men. It is understood that a satisfactory agreement has been reached between the bondholders and the new syndicate, and that the completion of the structure will commence within thirty days.

The building is a four-story brick structure with a frontage of 70 feet by a depth of 205 feet. It contains fifty-five apartments. It is said that the intention is to spend $70,000 in installing elevators, finishing the interior and remodeling the front.

When the building construction halted in 1917 and the affairs of the hotel company got into court the Hollywood public took a lively interest in the structure and several plans were suggested to complete the operation, but none met success until the present syndicate was organized.

NEW THEATER.

Hollywood to Have Another Playhouse on Boulevard.

Announcement was made yesterday of the proposed erection of a new theater building on the south side of Hollywood boulevard just east of Wilton place by John Young, proprietor of the Apollo Theater at 5552 Hollywood boulevard. The new building, according to Mr. Young's estimate, will cost $30,000, with an additional $20,000 for equipment, decorations, etc. It will be two stories, with two stores and the theater auditorium on the first floor and offices on the second. The site is 60x166 feet. C. R. Albright is the architect. Construction will be of brick with terra cotta trim. Arrangements will be made to seat about 900.

Report is made of the sale through R. O. Stearns, realty broker, to L. J. Henry, postmaster of Texarkana, Tex., of the Hollywood Theater building at 6764 Hollywood boulevard. The building was erected four years ago by Mrs. Margaret J. Lewis and cost $27,000.

NEW BUNGALOWS.

Architect J. M. Cooper is preparing plans for nineteen bungalows which he will erect for himself and associates on Seventeenth and Rimpau avenues between Sixteenth and Washington streets. They will contain five rooms each and will cost about $2000 each.

AID INDUSTRIES.

Architects A. F. Rosenheim and Myron Hunt have been appointed by the Southern California Chapter of the American Institute of Architects to co-operate with the Industrial Committee of the Chamber of Commerce in its work of assisting new industries to locate in Southern California.

BRICK GARAGE.

Contract for the erection of a brick garage building on Figueroa street near Seventeenth street, for Ben Kingsbaker has been awarded to Fred R. Johnson at $13,800. The work will be supervised by Architect A. M. Edelman.

NEW SCHEME AS AID TO HOMES.

Pomona has Plan to Solve House Shortage.

Public to Chip in for New Structures.

Idea is Fostered by Chamber of Commerce.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Nov. 15.—As a means of solving the local house shortage problem, the local Chamber of Commerce has launched a plan to raise a building fund by public subscription, invest the money so raised in lots and erect houses as rapidly as possible. The scheme is the outgrowth of the commerce chamber's decision to take care of the unprecedented demand for homes, and follows Secretary Bayer's statement that within the past few weeks not less than 1500 persons have been turned away from Pomona because unable to find suitable quarters.

The plan was drafted by B. L. Cooper, local attorney. It proposes that a fund be created by individual subscriptions of $100 and that as many houses be constructed as the fund will permit. As soon as a house is finished it will be sold and the money realized will be invested in another lot and a house immediately erected. The building association's affairs are to be handled by three committees operating under the control of the Chamber of Commerce; an appraisal committee of five members, a building committee of five members and an executive committee, consisting of the building committee, president of the association and its secretary-treasurer.

Inasmuch as the association will operate without idea of individual profit, the officers and committees, with the exception of the secretary-treasurer, will serve without compensation. That officer will receive only a nominal compensation. Any profits which may accrue will be distributed pro rata among the fund subscribers. It is also provided that funds subscribed shall not be withdrawn for three years, or during such time as may be required to dispose of property. All property controlled by the association will be vested in two trustees appointed by the executive committee.

It is proposed to sell the houses through building and loan associations, and in the same way re-finance the building operations. When the plan was first proposed to the local Chamber of Commerce it was received with enthusiasm, and the members of that organization have pledged themselves to work for its success.

BUILDING FAST.

Orange County Cities Show Big Total in Operations.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Nov. 15. — Santa Ana's building total for this year yesterday reached $608,739, with forty-two permits issued the past nine days, aggregating $72,826. Yesterday was the biggest day of the week, with six permits aggregating $16,371. Among residence permits issued were the following: Fred Schroeder, $6921; P. M. Gates, $3500; Mrs. Etta Preble, $3000; A. O. Hulberg, $2500; Solomon Rogers, $4000; M. F. Doig, $3000; Mrs. Clara E. Prange, $2000. Other permits were for additions and improvements, private garages, new store fronts, etc.

Anaheim starts November with twelve permits issued the first week, totaling $20,950. Among them are three residences, W. H. Kidd, $4500; W. E. Johnson, $5000, and G. E. Jordan, $1000. Fullerton is carrying on a great amount of home building and Orange is just starting her boom, with a $200,000 corporation formed to build houses. Among realty deals of the past week in Orange county are the following: F. D. Piavan to Robert Gisler, ninety-nine acres near Greenville, $50,000; Charles and Frank Lipscombe to Guy Wilmont, forty acres near Greenville, $20,000; Elmer Arnold to T. R. LePage, lot and three double apartments at First and Bush streets, Santa Ana, $12,000; Mabury Rancho Company to Erin and Dora Engle, fifty-four acres on West Seventeenth street, $35,100.

HOME IN HILLS.

Retired Merchant Builds Attractive Place at Flintridge.

George H. Stoll, retired Los Angeles merchant, has just completed a handsome hollow tile home on a commanding site overlooking the city at Flintridge. Plans were prepared by John C. Austin, local architect. The house is a rambling structure with two wings, the material used being patent hollow tile manufactured by the Los Angeles Pressed Brick Company. The roof is of Spanish tile. There is a living-room, dining-room, kitchen, three bedrooms with baths, breakfast-room, servants' quarters and a combination amusement and billiard room, which is entered directly from the garden. The garage also is of hollow tile.

Mr. Stoll has more than twenty acres extending into the foothills, and he intends to landscape and beautify the property.

HOUSES AND LOTS.

O. E. Farish, through H. C. Green, reports the following property sales: To C. Schubert for R. M. Hartwell, lot on Western avenue near First street, $7500; to F. W. Siegel for M. DISCUSS ORANGE SHOW.

Chamber of Commerce Officials to be Guests at Duck Dinner.

Invitations have been received by several officials of the Chamber of Commerce to attend the annual Bear Valley duck dinner to be tendered by the National Orange Show management next Friday night at the Elks' Club, San Bernardino. This is in the form of an informal gathering at which suggestions will be received regarding the forthcoming tenth annual exhibit, scheduled for February 13 to 23.

The list of awards will be decided upon and any additional features of the show will be considered.

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce lends its support each year to this institution, in memory of the days when the annual citrus fair was held in Hazard Pavilion.

AT SIERRA MADRE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SIERRA MADRE, Nov. 15.—The realty market here has been unusually active during the past month. Many properties have changed hands and there is an increasing demand for vacant houses. Suitable residences are limited in number and those vacant are readily snapped up. Owing to the increase in the daily average school attendance an addition is being added to one of the school buildings. Before the next school term more school-room space will be required for the accommodation of the classes.

WILSHIRE HOME.

E. A. Dickson has commissioned Architect G. W. Eldredge to prepare plans for the erection of a residence on Lucerne boulevard near Wilshire boulevard.

NEW FLATS.

Two new frame and plaster flat buildings will be built for Fred Siegel at the corner of Eighth street and St. Andrews place from plans prepared by H. J. Kauear. Each building will contain sixteen rooms.

REPORTS FLAT SALE.

The R. M. Gale Company reports the sale of two four-flat buildings at 302 and 308 South Rampart boulevard for Simpson and Childs, to George M. and DeWitt Lewis for $75,000.

expected that through it will be greatly stimulated the work of the organization.

IN WINDSOR SQUARE.

Goodyear Executive Buys Fine Home in West End.

F. A. Osterloh, vice-president and general manager of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company of California, has just purchased the attractive residence at 333 South Windsor boulevard, Windsor Square, from Miss Anna E. Leary for a consideration reported as $50,000. The sale was made by R. A. Rowan & Co. Mr. Osterloh has disposed of his Akron residence, and plans to make the Windsor boulevard place his permanent home. This house, one of the most attractive in the West End section, was built by Mary Crimmins. It contains twelve rooms, has a white plaster exterior and is surrounded by terraced grounds.

Other sales of Windsor Square property reported by Rowan & Company include the following: To C. H. Bohnhoff, the corner of Fourth street and Windsor boulevard; to F. Van Mourick, formerly of Arizona, a lot on Windsor boulevard near Wilshire boulevard; G. B. Dowell, a corner lot at Fourth street and Lorraine boulevard; to Milo D. Eames, a lot on Lorraine boulevard; to Leroy Newbert, a lot on Irving boulevard near Wilshire boulevard; to A. C. Tyler, a local architect, a lot on Plymouth boulevard, upon which he proposes to erect a home; to J. L. Hirsch, a lot on Plymouth boulevard.

IN FREMONT PLACE.

Local Manufacturer to Have Fine Spanish Residence.

Plans have been prepared for the erection of a costly home for E. C. Wilson, president of the Wilson & Willard Manufacturing Company, at the northeast corner of Fremont place and West Ninth street. The design is in the Spanish style of architecture, the aim of the designers having been to combine the best features of this style with the requirements of domestic comfort. Meyer & Holler (Milwaukee Building Company) prepared the plans and will do the building.

The house will have fourteen rooms, five bathrooms and sleeping porch. The basement will be arranged for a laundry, furnace room and storerooms. A feature of the dwelling will be a spacious reception hall, the floors of which will be black and white marble and the ceilings of heavy wood beams. There will be a patio inclosed by a wall and landscaped as a garden. Construction will be of white plaster with a Spanish tile roof. The building site, with a frontage of 205 feet and a depth of 228 feet, will be beautified with ornamental trees and shrubbery.

Hollywood Sales.

Property sales reported by E. Clarke Comer include the following: To J. O. Hodgen for A. B. Ward, lot at corner of Fountan avenue and Wilcox street, $5000; to A. Applegate for A. Bennett, two bungalows at 1744 and 1746 North Mariposa avenue, $4500; to A. Applegate, double bungalow at 2009 North Bronson avenue, $5000; for Mrs. A. Sturgis, bungalow at 554 El Centro street, $2700; to Mrs. A. Darling, the Highland Avenue Court, $65,000; to Mrs. B. C. Henderson, double dwelling at 1927 Carmen avenue, $6800; to Mrs. A. C. Renhold, house at 8407 De Longpre avenue, $7500; to Lulu Warrington, bungalow at 1529 North Bronson avenue, $4500; for Mrs. E. I. Morse to N. J. Coolihan, bungalow at 1726 North Normandie avenue, $6250; for Lillian Kuthower to A. Butler, bungalow at 1319 Ardath street, $4200; to Mrs. K. E. P. Taggert, bungalow at 554 El Centro street, $4200.

INCOME — SAFETY — STABILITY

If You Are Looking For

INCOME INVE$TMENT

We Know You Will Not Miss Buying This One

WE believe that Los Angeles income property offers unequalled opportunities to the investor who is not satisfied with the income from stocks, bonds and mortgages, and wants the highest returns consistent with absolute safety. Our city has risen to tenth place in population, and is still growing. Values are keeping pace with this growth, and it is not unusual for property to double in value in three to five years.

WE specialize on investment properties. An experience of ten years enables us to know locations and values and give unequalled service to investors. We handle only properties of merit that we have personally investigated and can conscientiously recommend as combining a maximum amount of dependable income with absolute safety and stability.

SALES

We have some of the Best Buys in the city. Located in Wilshire, Hollywood and West Adams Districts, ranging in price from $15,000 to $100,000. We will gladly show you these properties without any obligation on your part THORNBERG & RENO, McFarland, California.

FOR SALE—SEVERAL THOUSAND ACRES IN A well-developed but not widely advertised citrus, walnut and deciduous fruit district in southern California within a few hours' ride of Los Angeles, which land has been divided into tracts for 20 years, has now been purchased, water developed and irrigation system installed, by a group of Los Angeles capitalists and successful men. These men have been influential in the development of one of our greatest agricultural valleys adjacent to Los Angeles and a few years ago looked like a sandy waste. To the men with any vision I can show that the same substantial development and growth will take place in this other district now to be settled up.

The very choicest tracts in 10s, 20s and 40s can now be bought at prices very low in comparison with prices asked for land in districts more thoroughly developed. If you are earnestly looking for a piece of land where soil, climate and living conditions are of the best and where there is a prerisk of water, write me at once and I will show you cost and show you this district thoroughly.

ORANGE, LEMON AND WALNUT GROVES—For Sale and Exchange.

For Sale.

FOR SALE—
A BIG BARGAIN.
Six years ago I sold 20 acres of land for $1000 that is $50 per acre, the only week I leased the buyer $1400 on this land—$400 more than I sold for 6 months back for same, having to pay all the taxes mentioned in 20 acres, planted to 8-year-old lemons, and for $12 600, or $1260 per acre—price to you now—Not a bit. It was a big bargain, the trees are bearing nicely, and it was bought by a local orchardist who knows what good soil, good trees, and good location are worth.

Under I have an unusual offer of 140 acres, splendidly located, all high above the frost danger, well adapted for lemons, every foot of this can be planted.

Price only $72 per acre.

Better phone appointment, the early bird gets the worm.

For this and other bargains see

ORANGE GROVES THAT PAY.

FOR SALE—
READ THIS CAREFULLY.
Bargain No. 1—20-acre, full-bearing orange grove located on boulevard, close to Covina, good improvements, fine soil, best and cheapest water right in this valley. Open estimated fruit crop for $12 000 thousand dollars. Owner will give you $16,000 for crop which would make the price very good bargain. Price with crop $40,000. Only $20,000 cash. Prices will not be raised on this place in 1919 when I had the selection of the entire Tapo ranch. Since then everything has advanced 50 per cent and many pieces sold at great increase in price. Ideal water supply at low cost. Place is in best of condition and will not be for sale long. Can double money in value to be sold on account of business taking owner away from State. See G. R. SAUNDERS on property (Hibert 60) or write him, P.O. BOX NO. 7, Santa Susana.

Bargain No. 2—Fine full bearing orange grove of 10 acres, close to Corona, good soil, good water, a gem of this kind for $12,500. $1500 cash, balance terms.

GO SLOW IN OIL STOCKS.
Money can be made on small investments in oil stocks. However, many of these stocks are highly speculative. Post yourself before you invest by reading the OIL PRESS. It has helped thousands to profit—as well as protected them from bad investments. Each issue is brimful of valuable information and analytical reports concerning oil stocks—some good, bad and indifferent in grades of investment. Interested in the wonderful oil commodity should read the OIL PRESS. The last issue together with a late copy of the "Standard" containing important data of the unlisted active and inactive oil stock will be sent free on request; also while the last few issues last a subscription to the OIL PRESS of Oklahoma and Texas just out featuring the oil fields in red. Address OIL PRESS, 653 Republic Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

WILL GIVE

Checkerboard" Tracts

VER-SUBSCRIBED

ecks and Money Orders have en returned to the "Tardy" ones weeks ago today, I made the first offer of "CHECKERBOARD" ts, being my subdivision of Section 75, Block 13, H. & T. C. Ry. Kane, King County, Texas. Every Tract which I offered for sale has been sold, 123 Tracts in all comprising 320 acres. The remaining 20 acres are owned by me and recorded in my name. I expect to realize an average price of one thousand dollars per acre on what I sold. Many purchasers seemed to think that the Eastern and Southern parts of the Section were more desirable. Personally, I believe that if the district proves up that a tract in the one corner will bring about the same price per acre as the tract in any other corner or part of the Section. To accommodate some purchasers, who had to spoil my perfect checkerboard effect. That is, upon request, I have given up locations in the North and East part of the Section to buyers and substituted others farther away from existing wells and drilling wells for myself.

"Mother Earth" is Stakeholder every purchaser of a "CHECKERBOARD" Tract has received a properly executed legal Assignment. Every purchaser was advised to have his Assignment recorded at once, not because of its value today, but because some day it might become worth. Some of the Assignments have already been "duly recorded" and returned to the owners. The County Clerk advises me that he is swamped with work but that all Assignments will be recorded in the order received and promptly returned. Some may delay for a week or a month, but the fact that the Assignments are "filed for record" gives ample protection. Every purchaser of a Tract has been furnished, free of charge, with a copy of the original lease containing all the usual provisions, a copy of the Assignment to me and a copy of my Official Plat as recorded. This gives him an "Oil and Gas Abstract" of his property. His position is enviable. No human agency can rob him of it. "Mother Earth" is the stakeholder. I have a "hunch" that over that every purchaser of a Tract who uses his own judgment and does not sell at the first offer is going to realize a very little fortune on his "gamble."

Another "Best Bet"

I have purchased, subject to approval of the Title by Earl L. Wise, Attorney at Law, 404 and 405 Chamber of Commerce Building, Los Angeles, which I have engaged to examine the Abstract, the Oil and Gas Lease on 40 acres situated in the almost geographical center of Knox County, Texas. This land is from four to four and one-half miles southwest of Benjamin and is offered with drilling rigs. Any one of these "bringing in" strong is going to shoot the price of these leases sky high. It is another case of ACT QUICKLY. Texas buyers right on the ground have paid as high as $65 per acre for leases within four miles of this property.

$500 Per Acre Possible in 60 Days

I offer, subject to withdrawal without notice, until the well reaching," I offer, subject to withdrawal without notice, Oil and Gas Leases on Tracts of 2½, 5, 10 and 20 acres at $15 per acre, cash, as explained above, to approval of the Title by Mr. Wise, which, if the Title is not perfect, I will not handle it at any price. Please send in your orders for what you can afford to buy and allotment will be made in the order received. The most desirable Tracts are obviously those nearest to the De Leon well and the Dr. Beavers Ranch. A copy of Mr. Wisdom's opinion, if favorable, will be given to each purchaser. If I do not accept the property, all moneys sent in will be refunded. Tracts may be paid for on terms, if desired. Purchaser must close the balance on or before Dec. 27th. As the De Leon well is expected "in" about Jan. 15th, payments, for obvious reasons, positively cannot be extended beyond Dec. 27th.

Watch the "Swimmin' Hole" Crowd

You all remember the old "swimmin hole" of boyhood days. Don't you? How the weak-kneed gang used to hang around, dipping their toes in, waiting for the leaders to plunge in ahead of them? Do you remember the "Aspire Builders" in the making, took the lead, had their way and the mud was all stirred up from the bottom, dressed, tied their soiled clothes and then hollered "chow raw bait" at the rest of the crowd. The "turvy poke" pay [illegible] the latter were many times [illegible] Texas, they are buying leases [illegible] Monday's mail [illegible] Texas, they are buying leases [illegible] of the drill." The "turvy poke" pay [illegible] first lot" boys will reach for their check books first and "chase" afterwards. The best locations in Section 238, Block 44, Knox County, Texas, are still open to buyers. For once in your life, be an early bird. The writer has leased the King County "CHECKERBOARD" tracts for himself and friends. I intend to use the same care in safeguarding my interests on the new leases.

The geological report on this land, Section 238, is as good as the best in the state. It looks like Gushers or nothing, with four chances out of five to get one. Better write or call for geologists' report and full information.

BUY LEASES THAT ARE BEING DEVELOPED

Drilling operations have started on the property now being developed by us in Borden County, Texas.

This property is near the headwaters of the Colorado River and geologically is on the contact of the Permian and Permian ages. The streams and water wells in this vicinity show seepages of oil and gas. We have reports from two of the best geologists in Texas, and both of these reports are more than favorable. We did not get this acreage until after we had the geologists reports. We have decided to develop oil property instead of wild-catting and selling stock and acreage without development, but feel that we have an even chance to get oil in this vicinity. A well drilling east of us is not a result, both report an oil showing. This, together with favorable fossils and strata, near, on the contact is most encouraging.

We ask you if you have an ounce of speculative blood in your veins, to get down on some of this property.

We are selling you this acreage within a quarter of a mile to three miles of a drilling well as some are selling wild-cat acreage without development.

Every dollar or three hundred you are trying to save, that is not working and will not work until [illegible] a dozen, has one great opportunity NOW. Let it do its duty.

This drilling message, at the price we ask, will give you a thrill that no one but the rich has [illegible] If we only get a 25-bbl. well. Neither we nor you need a gusher to get rich on this cheap [illegible] We do not expect a gusher, but we do expect oil in good commercial quantities.

[illegible] you to buy some of this cheap acreage now; in a few weeks it will double, as every [illegible] of more development. GET IN ON THE GROUND FLOOR.

[illegible] or call for geologists' report and full information.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

In spite of the sensational break in the stock market; an intervening holiday; price investigations, and the necessity of applying the official squelcher to the I.W.W.'s, business and financial Los Angeles pursued the even tenor of its way without serious annoyance; certainly without the semblance of anything to upset our cumulative development or established equanimity.

The local stock market was affected by the ruction in New York, but far less extensively than many thought likely, and it quickly regained its balance without any panicky indications. Necessarily the sudden call for margins resulted in considerable liquidation, but this was absorbed readily, the excellent character of the securities, a large percentage of which were in the form of Liberty Bonds, giving the banks no uneasiness.

Partly because of this liquidation and partly because of constantly expanding business, the bank clearings are far in excess of any other week in the history of the Los Angeles Clearinghouse aggregating nearly $59,000,000. Although the month is only half gone, it is almost sure to show an increase over the record-breaking October clearings of at least $50,000,000.

The wholesale trade which originates and radiates from Los Angeles is growing proportionately, and as more and more ships add this city to their ports of call the export and import business shows gratifying increase.

The labor situation is excellent; the shipyards are fully engaged; the tailors have capitulated, and all of the recent local strikes have resulted in complete failures. It is intimated that no new ones will be called "before spring."

In retail circles the Christmas trade has commenced and is growing daily. Heavy receipts during the week have just about completed the local stocks, and by the end of this week the holiday shopping will be in full swing.

The bond and investment market generally is strong. Deposits still show heavy increases, and every bank reports many new customers. The few flies which have tainted our ointment are still present. Chief of these are housing shortage and living costs; unfortunately, there appears to be little relief in sight from either. Every train from the East is laden to capacity, and the task of distributing these newcomers is Herculean. So far, everyone has been accommodated, but there is a limit to the visible supply, and that limit will be reached in a few weeks. Hotels and apartments are already well filled. A large amount of building is under way, both business and homes, but most of this new construction will not be available for the present season.

Work at the new Goodyear plant is progressing rapidly, and there are frequent rumors of other large manufacturing industries soon to be established in Los Angeles or vicinity. Food prices remain high, and several investigations have been instigated which may or may not have good results. Money continues plentiful and interest rates steady. The general local business undertone is excellent.

Big Steamship Expansion.

A meeting of the holding corporation of the Pacific Steamship Company is to be held in Portland, Me., November 29 to authorize the extensive plans for expansion which have been made and to provide for the immediate issue of $1,500,000 of a proposed $25,000,000 stock issue. This first allotment will probably be taken up by stockholders of the corporation. The heavy increase in capitalization is made necessary as a result of conditions ensuing from the war. The issue will be in the form of 7 per cent. preferred stock. Stanley Dollar of the Dollar Steamship Company, is to be elected to the directorate of the Pacific Company, but it is denied that the Dollar company will amalgamate the Pacific, although H. F. Alexander, president of the latter is know to be in close touch with the Dollars, who have recently taken up stock in the Pacific.

The Pacific Steamship Company at present owns twenty-two vessels, and operates, as operators and managers, about seventy additional vessels belonging to the United States Shipping Board.

The company has developed and is continuing further to develop with these additional vessels an extensive business with the Orient; and from being originally and exclusively a coastwise company, has recently opened offices in Yokohama, Shanghai, Manila, and other ports to handle its business there, and contemplates opening other offices in other ports of the Orient.

Such development, in the opinion of the officials of the Pacific Steamship Company and of the Pacific-Alaska Navigation Company, makes expedient an expansion of capital in conformity with the requirements of such a sudden and extensive expansion of business as the Pacific Steamship Company now has to handle.

In the face of existing labor conditions it is not probable that any part of the $25,000,000 additional capital to be authorized on November 29 will immediately be devoted to building new, larger and swifter steamships.

That such steamships will be required for the trade is a recognized fact, and one of the purposes of authorizing the issue is to provide that the company may be in a position to build such vessels when emergency or opportunity occurs.

H. F. Alexander is now in New York, where he has been for some time arranging the details of the plan of expansion that is to be submitted to the general meeting of the stockholders.

October Financing.

October financing was unausually large. Corporation issues, including industrial and public utilities aggregated $336,766,800 as against $234,340,000 in September, and this without any railroad issues. Large sales of industrials reflected the country's general prosperity. The oil companies led the financing, with motor, tire and rubber companies also active. Sinclair Oil sold $50,000,000 common stock, and the next largest item was the $40,000,000 Goodyear issue at 7 per cent. Public utilities did little financing in October, the aggregate being $34,474,000.

The Stock Market.

The market yesterday was in good shape, and showed a further recovery from the sharp declines which marked the earlier days of the week. There was an excellent buying demand throughout the half-day session. The leaders opened up from Friday's close and while there was a slight softening later, the condition, on the whole, was very satisfactory.

There was an overestimation of the strength of General Petroleum which was unable to maintain the opening price of $195 and sagged gradually to sales at $190 and a closing bid of $187.50. Associated Oil opened at $123, moved up to $123.50 and closed in fairly active demand at the opening price. Mascot came to life, and was an active trader on a rising market, advancing during the day from an opening of $2.50 to closing sales at $2.80 and was in strong demand at $2.85. The two stocks most vitally affected by the failure of the leasing bill are Midway Northern and National Pacific, and even these failed to show any sensational reaction. National Pacific, in fact, rallied somewhat from the Friday close and held steady at 13 cents. Midway Northern was inactive to a close of 45 cents. Republic Petroleum was unusually strong and was heavily traded in throughout the session. The highest price paid for this stock was 31¼ cents, but it was wanted at the close at 31 cents. Some of this outside demand may be due to the news that its No. 75 well in the Midway field is being cemented off preparatory to being placed on a production basis. Union Oil was comparatively quiet with sales at $189, but very little activity either way. United was steady at 87 cents.

Activity in Los Angeles Investment featured the industrial market. This stock moved up from an opening of 89 to a close of 90 cents and seemed in unlimited demand at that price. Delta Farms recovered slightly from its recent slump. On Friday sales were recorded at $65. Yesterday $67 transactions were registered. Edison common was steady around $89.50.

Mines were very quiet, transactions being confined to a few scattered sales at prices showing little change from the Friday market. Tom Reed was slightly weaker, selling down to $1.64. Bonds were steady with little change and small volume.

The week's business totalled about $750,000.

Liberty Bond Conversion.

Yesterday was conversion day for holders of outstanding $750,000,000 4 per cent. bonds of the second Liberty Loan and the first Liberty Loan converted. Unless this privilege is exercised before November 15 or December 15, respectively, the holders will lose one-quarter of one per cent. interest for the succeeding six months, and will be unable to secure 4 1-4 per cent. bonds until the definitive bonds are ready for distribution some time after March 15 next.

Holders of the Second Liberty Loan 4s and First Liberty Loan converted 4s who present their bonds before November 15 and December 15, respectively, will receive 4 1-4 per cent. bonds with the May 15, 1920, or June 15, 1920, coupon attached, which will be exchangeable on those respective dates

HEAVY SELLING CUTS PRICES FOR COTTON.

BUYING SUPPORT POOR AND THE MARKET CLOSES NEAR THE LOWEST EBB.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Buying support was poor in cotton today. Heavy selling by one of the largest houses that recently bought on a large scale lowered prices. The market closed near the lowest with near futures off 50 points and distant ones off 75 to 130 more. Wall street and western longs have been liquidating heavily and there is considerable short selling. Spot cotton in the south does not respond to the break in futures.

CASH CORN WEAKNESS BRINGS LIQUIDATION.

SWITCHING FROM DECEMBER TO MAY ERRATIC FEATURE ON GRAIN EXCHANGE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Weakness in cash corn here and in outside markets, with expectations of increased receipts, furnished the basis for a great deal of liquidation and a switching from December to May, with the principal weakness in the near delivery and a close at almost the lowest, with losses of 2¾.

Distant futures were off 1⅛@1¼, the latter on January. In oats there was some pressure from sellers, with losses of ½@¾ December leading. Shorts were the buyers of rye, and gains were ⅛@¾, while barley, after being strong early, slumped at the last, and futures lost 2¼@3¼, while cash prices were higher. Southwestern corn markets were ⅛@2¾ lower. Closing trades compared with a week ago reported losses on corn of 2¼@3, the latter on December. Oats, however, gained ⅛@1¼, and rye was 1¼ lower to 1⅛ higher, while barley futures were up 3@4. Lower prices were made for all provisions.

A bad break in foreign exchange with sterling and marks at new low figures, combined with increased receipts, lower cash prices and prospects of 300 to 400 cars being received Monday resulted in corn futures weakening materially. Continued bearish talk, and there was a scattered liquidation by commission houses at times.

At the low point prices were off 1⅝@3, with December leading. Week end evening up on the part of shorts and buying against bids checked the decline, and the finish was with December at 1.27⅛, May 1.23⅝, July 1.22⅝.

The oats close was fractionally lower with December at 71⅛ and May at 74⅝.

A Legal Investment for Savings Banks in California

From the standpoint of security an obligation of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland is unquestioned. A yield of 6% to 6¼% on such security is most satisfactory.

The probability of an increase in the value of the bond through a conversion privilege which would net the holder from $50 to $182.20 on each $1000 bond inside of ten years makes the bond of interest to every man and every banker with money to invest.

United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland

5½% Convertible Notes, due November 1, 1922. 5½% Convertible Bonds due August 1, 1929.

Interest February 1st and August 1st—payable in United States Gold Coin in New York without deduction for any British taxes, present or future.

These bonds are a direct obligation of the government. They will be convertible at any time, par for par, at the rate of $4.30 per pound sterling into 5 per cent. British War Loan Bonds payable February 1st, 1929, in London at 105.

The National War 5 per cent. Bonds are now actively traded in on the London Stock Exchange and are quoted currently at 98⅛ bid; offered at 98⅛.

The possible profits on these bonds, if exchanged for the National War Bonds, is shown in the following table:

Rate of Exchange	Based on Sale of National War Bonds at 100	Par Value at Maturity 105
4.30	100	105
4.40	102.34	107.46
4.50	104.67	109.90
4.60	106.99	112.34
4.70	109.32	114.79
4.80	111.64	117.22
4.8665 (Parity of Exchange)	113.19	118.85

It is inconceivable that exchange should remain at present low prices for from three to ten years, but should that happen, the holder would still receive from 6 per cent. to 6¼ per cent. on his money, and par at maturity.

These bonds enjoy a world-wide market and we strongly recommend them to our conservative investors.

First Mortgage Investors

THERE is no question about the advisability of saving money. National Banks and Savings Banks are the logical institutions with which to carry on this idea.

After one has accumulated a few hundred dollars, however, it is right to invest it wisely in some safe security at a higher rate of interest than is, of course, possible for banks to pay.

The highest rate of interest, consistent with absolute safety, is that for which every conservative investor seeks.

Our Guaranteed First Mortgage Certificates pay such a return. They are issued by a corporation which operates under a State law which is even more carefully safeguarded than is the Bank Act.

Its capitalization, its directors and officers, and the nature of its business, are as strong, as well known and as conservative as is that of any bank.

We are always pleased to explain in detail the advantages these certificates offer, and how they differ from other forms of investment.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—The final session of the stock market was characterized by dullness and general price irregularity. Adverse labor developments early in the day, as indicated by the course of the coal conference and another break in foreign exchange, prompted further selling.

Extreme reactions of two to six points were made by steels, motors, equipments, oils and tobacco, with a sprinkling of miscellaneous specialties, but these were partially recovered on the moderate rally at the close.

Rails sustained the market so far as it showed any recuperative power, but even those issues dropped when the demand ceased. The few noteworthy rallies included General Motors, which made up almost all its six-point decline, and Mexican Petroleum, which reversed its five-point loss with a fractional net gain. Sales amounted to 500,000 shares.

The bank statement was disappointing in the sense that the actual loan contraction of about $66,000,000 was accompanied by a decrease of almost $50,000,000 in actual reserves.

At the same time clearinghouse banks decreased their reserves in the local Federal reserve bank by slightly over $50,000,000.

Bonds were firm, further gains being made by issues of the secondary railroads and international flotations, but the Liberty group was again inclined to ease. Total sales (par value) aggregated $7,550,000.

The actual condition of clearinghouse banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $47,110,050 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is a decrease of $49,182,200 from last week.

CITRUS REVIEW FOR WEEK.

The Valencia market has been decidedly easier the past week in both the auction and private-sale markets. Prices in auction centers were fully $1 per box lower, while private-sale markets showed a decline of 50 cents per box. The drop in prices is attributed to the general lowering of the quality of the fruit owing to the lateness of the season and to the waiting attitude of the trade because of the opening of the navel crop. This has caused a general falling off in the demand, but with Thanksgiving near at hand, it is anticipated that renewed activity will be shown next week in Valencias as there will be practically no new-crop navels arriving in eastern markets in time for Thanksgiving.

Latest estimates show in the neighborhood of 1200 cars of Valencias remaining for shipment after this week.

F.o.b. California quotations are on a basis of $4 to $4.50 on Valencias.

New crop navels are moving from north of the Tehachapi at the rate of four or five cars daily. The fruit is coloring up well and gives every promise of filling all of the requirements of the trade with the possible exception of sizes which run large. The shortage of refrigerator cars, however, is such that nothing definite can be determined as to the possible volume of shipments for any given period.

The trade back East is slow in taking hold notwithstanding the urgent pleas of shippers and brokers to get orders in early owing to the unreliability of the situation on both sheds and cars. There are practically only twenty-one shipping days remaining on which deliveries can be secured for Christmas trade in eastern markets and it begins to look as if there will be a shortage of navels for the holidays.

F.o.b. California clementines are generally on a basis of $4 per box. A few sales of first cars for on coast shipments have been reported sold on a basis of $3 f.o.b.

Latest estimates on the size of the navel crop in both Central and Northern California show quite a falling off over early estimates. The total navel crop is now placed at not over 2000 cars.

Southern California districts also promise to run shorter than early estimates indicated, but no definite figures have been compiled on the southern crop since the fruit has attained sufficient size to base a reliable count.

Drouth in Florida is reported to be cutting down citrus crop prospects in that State. Latest estimates places the crop at not over 11,000,000 boxes. Sales of oranges on the trees are reported at $1.25 to $2.25 per box, and of grapefruit at $1.25 to $1.50 per box.

There is a fair movement of California lemons on a basis of $5 to $6 f.o.b. California with the exception of 2000 cars on which the market is very quiet.

There are approximately 40,000 boxes of foreign lemons on hand and available for sale within the next thirty days.

New W.S.S. Ruling.

Fraternal organizations, counties, subdivisions are classed as individuals in a telegram from the Treasury Department to Gov. John D. Calkins of the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank ruling that such societies and corporations cannot invest more than the limit of $1000 in War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates. The ruling was asked by Robert E. Smith, director of the war loan organization for the Twelfth Federal Reserve District, in response to a general demand on the part of fraternal organizations especially for the privilege of investing beyond the thousand dollar mark in the government War Savings securities. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Leffingwell, who sent the telegram, called attention, however, to the fact that the individuals of a fraternal organization can each invest the limit or have $1000 invested in his name. Secretary Leffingwell also pointed out that many fraternal organizations are buying Liberty Bonds and Victory Notes with excess funds.

New Ford Car.

News of the successful trial of the new Ford street car is of especial interest in Los Angeles in view of the suggestion made the other day that 400 one-man cars be purchased for use in this city. The new gasoline engine developed by Ford for use in this car is said to weigh but half as much as an electric motor of equal power. It combines engine, air compressor, generator, heating and lighting equipment, and compressed air for the brakes, while the car is heated by air drawn through the engine housing. The car is designed for use on standard-gauge tracks, but could doubtless be adapted to the special Los Angeles gauge. It does away with overhead wires and central power plant, and is especially feasible for one man operation, according to those who have seen the models.

Plenty of R. R. Stock.

After the first of the year there is likely to be plenty of railroad issues for the consideration of the public. Samuel O. Dunn, editor of the Railway Age, estimates that at least $6,000,000,000 in new capital must be invested within the next three years, if the roads are to be made able to satisfactorily handle the country's commerce after they are turned back to private ownership.

They Don't Get Us.

Complaint comes from South America that the Wild West, domestic triangle and films depicting scenes of violence are being misunderstood in South America and have a tendency to injure our expanding business relations with the people of the southern republics, many of whom form their opinions of our customs and methods of living from these films.

Movie Oil Company.

A new oil company, known as the Black Wolf Canyon Oil Company, capitalized at $75,000, has been formed in Los Angeles for the purpose of drilling on Dr. Cole's lease, comprising 200 acres, one and a half miles north of Hollywood. The stockholders of the new company are all moving picture people. Vesta Degg is president of the new company, J. H. MacCloskey is secretary and treasurer, and Harry Gant vice-president and manager. A standard rig has been erected on the lease, and the first well is now down to a depth of 125 feet. Oil was produced on this property twenty-five years ago at a depth of 400 feet, but the new company plans to drill to a much greater depth. Authorization has been granted to the company by the commissioner of corporations to sell stock, which has a par value of $1 per share. Only a very small amount of stock will be sold, said Mr. Gant; just enough to take care of the present needs of the company.

Money in Circulation.

Money in circulation in the United States in November, $5,916,925,779, against $5,948,801,171 in November, 1918. Per capita circulation November 1, 1919, $54.63; November 1, 1918, $55.84, and October 1, 1919, $54.58.

Visible Wheat Supply.

Wheat east of the Rockies, 104,508,000 bushels, increased 899,000 bushels west of Rockies, 3,275,000 bushels, increased 182,000 bushels; Canada, 32,791,000, increased 489,000 bushels; United States and Canada, 32,791,000 bushels, increased 1,570,000 bushels. Corn, 2,564,000 bushels, increased 554,000 bushels. Oats, 26,460,000 bushels, increased 1,563,000 bushels.

The City of Long Beach, incorporated in 1897, lies about twenty miles southeast of the City of Los Angeles, and is the second largest city in Los Angeles County. Its growth has been very rapid as evidenced by the fact that in 1910 the population was less than eighteen thousand, while at the present time, it is estimated to be in excess of sixty-one thousand. There are seven banks with total resources of over $21,000,000. Long Beach is served by the Southern Pacific, Salt Lake and Pacific Electric Railroads.

The above figures are not theoretical. On the contrary, they represent actual results covering a period of sixteen consecutive months.

Sixteen months ago, the security producing the above dividends was available, and was sold at par. The business proposed was a branch of one of the largest industries in America, and the prospects for success rosy, but not being actually proven, capital, then as now, hesitated.

Those who had the foresight and courage to back up their judgment with their money, today—sixteen months later—look proudly, and justly so, to their accomplishment as shown in the above dividend table.

We are offering a limited amount of this same security, which at the price offered will, basing future earnings on the average of those in the past, net investors nearly four per cent. monthly.

When you consider the stability and magnitude of the business in question, the actual dividends it has paid to date as shown in the above table, its future prospects for greater profits and greater market value—this offering will at once appeal to the most exacting and critical as one well worthy of thorough investigation.

Full data and information concerning this remarkable security will be furnished promptly upon request.

BARLEY UNCHANGED; MILO IS WEAKER.

The sharp slump yesterday on the Chicago market for both corn and barley was reflected locally by further sagging of the market for milo maize, while barley remained unchanged for the futures, with December delivery 25 cents per ton lower. Milo maize has been the slow feature of the trading for the past week, and some dealers claim that this commodity is about due for a turn to higher prices in the near future. The volume of sales completed on the local exchange yesterday was comparatively light.

Milo maize for immediate shipment was 50 cents lower, with future showing a decline of from 50 to 75 cents per ton. All November milo brought $2.88½, while all December shipments sold for $2.87½. During the call, 400 tons of milo were sold.

Immediate shipment barley was unchanged. Future were mostly unchanged, to 25 cents lower for December delivery. All December shipment brought $3.31¼. Sales for the day amounted to 800 tons.

A car of No. 2 western kafir corn, sacked, for 30 days' delivery, was sold at 3.12½.

WEEKLY STOCK MARKET REVIEW.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. — Recent unheeded warnings of the Federal Reserve Bank and other financial interests against unrestrained operations in the stock market culminated this week in one of the most drastic reversals and liquidating movements since the close of the war.

Speculative shares broke ten to fifty points, losses in several conspicuous cases being far in excess of that range.

CALL MONEY AT THIRTY.

Call money rose to 30 per cent., a rate unprecedented since the panic of 1907, and the money market was swept literally bare of time funds.

Taking the market's lowest quotations as a basis of reckoning, much if not all of the substantial advance recorded in the bull markets of September and October was swept away and millions of dollars in "paper profits" evaporated into thin air.

The decline was assisted by a confident and aggressive short interest which sought out the more vulnerable spots in the list, with disastrous results to numerous pools and other professional interests.

The net result left the technical situation much improved, however, standard stocks passing from weak to strong hands, while excessive brokers' loans suffered material curtailment. Partial readjustment of the market occurred later on buying of rails, especially seasoned shares, in the belief that events at Washington are assuming a form favorable to that branch of the list.

HISTORY AND BUSINESS—The McGraw Tire and Rubber Company plant is located at East Palestine, Ohio, with general offices in Cleveland, Ohio. The Company has been in successful operation for ten years, and manufactures cord and fabric automobile tires, truck tires and inner tubes of the highest quality. The growth of the Company is evidenced by the increase in net sales from $746,000 in 1913, to over $7,000,000 (8 months estimated) in 1919.

ASSETS—After giving effect to the present financing, the Company's statement shows net quick assets of $128 per share and net tangible assets of $152 per share of preferred stock. Quick assets amount to four times current liabilities. The net tangible asset value of the common stock is $23.25 per share. A recent appraisal made by the American Appraisal Company shows the present value of the comany's plant to be approximately $455,000 in excess of the valuation carried in the balance sheet.

EARNINGS—The average net earnings, certified by Ernst & Ernst, for five years and nine months ending August 31, 1919, after Federal taxes, and allowing for interest, have been $393,360, or approximately three times the annual dividend requirements on this preferred stock issue.

SINKING FUND—During each year ending June 30, 1921, 1922 and 1923, 2% of th largest amount of preferred stock outstanding and annually thereafter, an amount equal to 10% of net earnings shall be redeemed at 110 and accrued dividend, by lot or by purchase in the open market.

The company shall not mortgage any of its property other than by purchase-money mortgage, without the consent of 75 per cent of the outstanding preferred stock.

The company shall maintain net quick assets of 100 per cent and net tangible assets of 180 per cent of the largest amount of preferred stock at any time outstanding.

Adequate restrictions regarding issuance of additional authorized preferred stock.

All legal matter pertaining to this issue have been passed upon by Messrs Squire, Sanders and Dempsey, Cleveland, Ohio, for the bankers, and L. M. Keys, East Palestine, Ohio, for the Company. The accounts have been audited by Messrs. Ernst & Ernst, Certified Public Accountants. The property has been appraised by the American Appraisal Comany.

Pending the issue of definitive stock certificates, there will be issued interim receipts exchangeable for definitive stock certificates when issued.

We offer this stock for subscription, subject to allotment, and for delivery when, if and as issued and deliverable.

THREE CARS.

Klein brought with him from Detroit three cars of the Frank P. Book "string." His first choice is the Peugeot and that is the car he is now working on for Ascot. He took this prize pet—the last to be sent to this country from France—to Ascot Park last week for an initial work-out and nearly ended in a wreck when he went into a series of wild circles on the grandstand turn.

But as thrilling as it was for the moment, Klein learned a lot right there. He took his car back to his Long Beach avenue speed camp and began rebuilding it to meet the Ascot

BODY BUILDERS ON TOP.

Launch Greatest Campaign for Expansion in History of Industry.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT (Mich.) Nov. 13.—Ample evidence that the automobile and truck-body plants intend to keep pace with the automobile industry when the latter speeds up again, after the labor troubles are adjusted, has been forthcoming the past few weeks. Body manufacturers have been greatly encouraged over the attitude of the financial world and have launched the greatest campaign for expansion in the history of the industry.

A number of years ago it was a difficult matter to interest the average banker in the body-building game. Body manufacturing is now coming into its own. Even the general public is beginning to manifest an interest in some of the companies and their products. A striking example of the importance with which the financial world regards the body business was furnished in Cleveland recently where the Fisher Body (Ohio) Company was organized. The new company's stock issue of $10,000,000 was underwritten by a group of bankers and taken up by the public so quickly that there was a heavy oversubscription within a few hours. This remarkable showing was made despite the fact that there is no plant in sight as yet and consequently no production.

GREATLY ENLARGED.

The plants of the Fisher and Wilson companies in Detroit are being considerably enlarged. Within a short time the Ford Motor Company's plant on River Rouge, which will be the largest of such establishments owned by automobile companies, will be turning out bodies by the thousands every working day. In Pontiac, the plant of the Pontiac Body Company will be practically doubled, while it is understood the O. J. Beudett Company of that city is planning on additons to its plant. Other concerns in the State are making ready for expansion, while the body departments of the car makers are in most cases being enlarged.

The Lang company of Cleveland is trebling its capacity. Another Cleveland concern, the Rubely company, which now occupies three acres, will be greatly enlarged. Unfilled orders to the amount of $4,500,000 are on its books. The Brown Body Corporation, also of Cleveland, is to be enlarged with the proceeds of the sale of the unsold portion of $1,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative convertible preferred stock, which is now being offered at $100 par and dividend.

The Superior Body Company of Rahway, N. J., is said to have orders for bodies amounting to $5,000,000 on file, and is contemplating big additions to its factory.

ENCOURAGING.

The activity in the body-building branch is one of the most encouraging features affecting the future of the automotive industry. Inadequate body supplies would hold up production of the motor car factories as completely as government curtailment and insufficient steel supplies have done in the past. In some quarters there was uneasiness lest the body makers would not be able to keep up with the procession. Now this fear is removed and unless some unforeseen obstacle arises, the automotive industry will shortly reach the long-deferred flood tide of prosperity.

Authority was given to the directors of the Olympian Motors Company if Pontiac by the stockholders this past week to make arrangements for refinancing the company, which recently suspended operations because of lack of funds. There was a large attendance at the meeting, called by a committee of directors because of the serious condition of the concern. Recently a loan of $150,000 was negotiated of bonds to satisfy pressing claims and stave off receivership. Three courses are open to the directors.

INTERESTED.

A group of capitalists headed by Otis Friend, former president of the Mitchell Motor Company, and former vice-president of the General Motors Corporation, has been considering taking over the plant, and is now making a final survey to that end.

Another group also is interested. If neither of these steps is taken the stockholders are determined to refinance the company to the extent of $1,000,000 themselves. This would take care of outstanding indebtedness and make possible continuing the firm as a going concern. St. Clair Cousens, vice-president of the company, has been active in negotiations.

The new $1,000,000 factory of the Unico Motor Truck Company of Bay City is being rushed to completion. It will be made up of a series of units. The main building

ARIZONA GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION TO MEET.

PLANS STARTED FOR DIVISION OF FEDERAL HIGHWAY COUNCIL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Nov. 14.—In Phoenix on Monday will be held a meeting of the Arizona Good Roads Association, to aid in the organization of an Arizona division of the Federal Highway Council. This division is to be instituted under plans brought by S. M. Williams, chairman of the Federal Highway Council, who is coming from similar conferences at San Antonio and New Orleans and who will leave Monday evening for a conference in Denver on the same subject. The Good Roads Association is headed by Dwight B. Heard of Phoenix. Gustave Becker of Springerville and Norman Cermichael of Clifton are vice-presidents and Harry Welsh of Phoenix, secretary-treasurer. Each of the fourteen counties has a director.

Owing to the labor shortage, the State has returned to the utilization of convict labor on road making. It had been determined that convict labor was not profitable on the open roads, but a different condition has been developed at Superior, where ninety-two men from the penitentiary are starting heavy rock work through the canyon of Queen Creek on the new Miami road that is to furnish a direct route between Phoenix and Globe. The men can be handled as a gang, can be housed in a semi-permanent stockade camp and are only thirty miles from Florence, location of the State prison. The job is expected to take eighteen months and will be the most costly, per mile, ever undertaken in Arizona.

The State engineering department has about completed the highway between Mesa and Superior, on high ground where the roadway is expected to be permanent. This road is to be extended from Superior, to the eastward, to Ray, at a cost of $160,000, and, from Queen Creek, to Florence. The latter road will be longer than the present way over the plain, but much better.

To the northward, Yavapai county has organized her highway commission with Winchester Dickerson of Ash Fork as president. As chief engineer was selected H. L. Fishel, once division engineer of the Santa Fe at Prescott, now a railroad appraiser at Amarillo, Tex. General Manager W. A. Drake of the Santa Fe, Prescott and Phoenix Railway system will be consulting engineer. In conjunction with the State, good highways are to be built along the Santa Fe, from Ash Fork to the southern line of the county, north of Phoenix, to points near Canyon and Wickenburg. It is proposed also to build from the Verde Valley over the Fossil Creek grade into Tonto Basin, thus gaining a direct route to Globe, by way of the Natural Bridge and Roosevelt Dam, over one of the most scenic sections of the State.

WARD CANADY ON FLYING TRIP.

Ward N. Canady, advertising manager for the Willys-Overland Company, dropped into Los Angeles Thursday on a hasty inspection of the Pacific Coast. Mr. Canady has been forced to rush his trip due to important meetings at the Willys-Overland factory, but promises that he will soon be here again to really get a chance at Southern California.

Mr. Canady was the guest of E. B. Wilson, Los Angeles manager of the Willys-Overland Pacific company, while in the city. At an informal banquet Thursday evening Canady expressed strong enthusiasm for the Pacific Coast territory and announced that factories in the East were coming, more and more, to realize that cars must measure up to standards set here. If they suit motorists in Southern California they are O.K. anywhere.

AUTO CLUB SUGGESTS TRAFFIC ORDINANCE.

ROUTES TRAFFIC ONE WAY ON BUSY STREETS DURING RUSH HOURS.

After a careful study of traffic conditions in all the large cities of the United States and Europe, the Automobile Club of Southern California has drafted a new city traffic ordinance and submitted it to the City Council.

This new ordinance is the result of several months' work of officials at the auto club. Letters were written to all the large cities in the world and data collected as to the manner in which they regulated congested traffic. After answers were all in a careful digest of the whole matter was made. From this the officials of the club drafted the new law.

In many respects the new ordinance is the same as the present one. There are several points of radical difference. The most important of them are as follows:

Congested districts will remain about the same as before under the provisions of the proposed ordinance. However, certain other districts can be made congested areas. Hollywood and University districts, under this clause, would be the same as downtown congested areas as regards speed, parking, etc.

Vehicles parking in the congested districts must have their wheels within eighteen inches of the curb instead of two feet as under the present law.

Section 25b—It shall be unlawful during the hours of 9 o'clock a.m. to 6 o'clock p.m. of any day except Sunday, for any person to ride, drive or propel any vehicle in any other than a southerly direction upon Hill or Spring streets, between Third and Seventh streets inclusively.

Likewise vehicles must take a northerly direction on Broadway and Main streets during the same hours. This is one of the most drastic provisions of the proposed ordinance.

No vehicles can operate in the congested district for the delivery of freight or merchandise during the hours of 11 a.m. and 6 p.m.

RIDGE ROUTE NOW OPEN.

The famous Ridge Route, paved from end to end with solid concrete, is now open to traffic. Nothing has been spared to make this highway one of the finest mountain roads in the world. The paving itself is twenty feet wide. On all turns a curb of concrete protects motorists from possible danger. The Automobile Club of Southern California has posted the road in a most thorough way. Every sharp curve is marked and wherever a warning is needed an Auto Club sign gives it.

The usual danger of collision on curves has been greatly decreased by cutting the banks on the inside of the turn. It is now possible for driver to get a clear view of the road ahead before they go into a turn.

Seven years ago the Ridge Route was first conceived by the State Highway Commission. A great deal of opposition immediately came up against the project and the longer route was advocated. But the Ridge faction won out and the correctness of their plans has been proved. As the completed Ridge Route now

CARBURETOR EXCHANGE IS NOW OPEN HERE.

C. H. Donnellon, formerly Pacific Coast representative and road engineer for the Rayfield carburetor factory, has opened a carburetor exchange located at 315 West Twelfth stret.

The carburetor exchange is something new for Los Angeles, but has been needed here for a long time. Mr. Donnellon has made a study of carburetors for the past eight years and is considered an expert in his line. Mr. Donnellon's carburetor exchange takes care of sales and service on the following makes of carburetors: Rayfield, Stromberg, Master, Miller, Zenith and Schebler.

Quality Goes Clear Through

Were the Dort not built with a view of its rendering long service of clean cut satisfaction there would not have been the pains taken to make every bearing easily adjustable.

$1155 in Cal.

The Dort is a slow-wearing car. Its bearings are overly big—they stay right beyond the point that is usually expected.

But when the time comes that an adjustment is necessary; the means are there and the method is such that it is a simple and far from delicate operation.

Engine bearings, transmission and axle bearings, and valves have a ready take-up.

There are adjustments at points where many cars have solid bearings only adjustable by replacement.

WHITES BOOST ENJOYMENT.

Two finely-equipped White busses of the White Bus Line were an important factor in furnishing enjoyment to the secretaries of the Chambers of Commerce of Southern California last Wednesday on the occasion of their entertainment by the Puente Chamber of Commerce.

The secretaries, with their ladies, were met at Baldwin Park, with the Whites and W. H. Powell, manager of the line, and then conveyed to Puente via the famous walnut groves. At the summit of Turnbull Canyon a barbecued luncheon was served at noon. In the afternoon, the visitors were driven to various points of interest and at 6 o'clock an elaborate dinner was served at the Baldwin Park roof garden. Dancing concluded an eventful day.

The following secretaries composed the party: J. H. Whittaker, Anaheim; John Dilion, Pasadena; F. M. Renfre, San Bernardino; James C. Metzmar, Santa Ana; M. L. Haig, Whittier; C. F. Newton, Orange; J. H. Knox, Los Angeles; H. S. Wright, Hollywood; J. A. Phelps, Pasadena; Glenn W. Smith, Baldwin Park; R. L. Sheahan, Venice; Ben T. Thorpe, San Diego; Louis Didier, Puente, and D. J. Shultis, Baldwin Park. All united in thanking the White Bus Line management for its courtesy and co-operation.

His View Point.

"You made me pay considerably more for this article than it is worth."

"Do you really think so?"

"I do. Don't you call that profiteering?"

"Not when I manage it. When I do anything like that I refer to it as 'salesmanship'"—(Washington Star.

READY FOR NEXT SUMMER?

Summer touring, as far as the long mountain trips are concerned, can now be said to be over. California's winter, or probably Indian summer would be a better term, will restrict travel to the main highways for a few short months and then once again the merry motorist will gather his camping outfit and be off to the hills.

"Now is the time to begin planning your next summer's trip," said F. W. Pabst, advertising manager for Don Lee, Cadillac distributor. "It is really no easy matter to decide where you are going. So many wonderful places await the tourist in California and such enthusiastic tales can be heard of so many different parts of the Sierras that the motorist will change his mind many times during the winter. Talk to any lover of the outdoors who has travelled extensively in the wonderful mountains of California and in a short time he will have you so enthused over the beautiful scenery or the wonderful fishing of some particular spot that you will want to start at once. The next man you meet will assure you that the place he was last summer is far ahead of any other spot in the world. And so it will go, every section of the State having its friends and boosters. Many pleasant evenings can be spent studying maps, planning when you will start, what you will take and how long you will stay at each place. Of course, all your plans may be changed a week before you start, but the anticipation is great fun just the same.

"There are a great many maps and books that will be of interest. Read John Muir's books on the "Yosemite" and the "Mountains of California" and if you do not want to pack up and start at once there is something wrong with you. Government maps can be purchased at any of the large book stores and the government also issues numerous interesting booklets. The forest service of the Department of Agriculture issues an interesting booklet, entitled 'Little Journeys.' Its purpose is to stimulate interest in and recreational use of the National Forests in California. These forests contain 18,000,000 acres of government land, occupying the greater part of both slopes of the Sierras from the Oregon line to the Techachapi, the Klamath River Mountains, the entire ridges of the Coast range as far south as Lake County and the Coast ranges from near Monterey to the Mexican border. Within these boundries are the most impressive scenery and finest hunting, camping and fishing grounds in the State. The people of California are urged to use this wounderful playground. Restrictions are few and in addition to the camping places prepared with fireplaces, water and other requirements camping parties are permitted to pick their own sites.

"To a majority of motorists the virgin forests of the northern part of California is the land of the unexplored. The roads are being improved, but the motorist who wants the real life of the woods, hunting and fishing such as is to be found no other place in the State, will get off the paved roads and off into the land of the big timber.

"For the motorists of the southern end of the State who do not want to make too long a drive before reaching their camping ground, the Sierras offer many delightful spots. A day from Los Angeles will bring you to a wild, rugged, beautiful country. The road up the east side of the Sierras opens up unlimited possibilities or you can stick to the valley highway and turn into the hills from the west side. Any number of wonderful places can be reached out of Bakersfield or Visalia."

TOURING ALONG BATTLE FRONTS.

Car Stands up Well Under Severe Strain of Trip.

Shell Holes and Poor Roads Add to Difficulties.

Visit All Points of Interest on Six-Day Jaunt.

Blazing a trail which will be followed in years to come by untold thousands of American tourists, a Hudson super-six completed a ten-day trip over the battlefields of Northern France and Belgium, according to word received today by Harold L. Arnold, distributor of Hudson cars in Southern California and Arizona.

"The journey was remarkable mainly by the excellent service rendered by the car which was over three years old and had been run 29,000 miles," said Lieut. J. H. Morrisey, who piloted the Hudson.

"Despite the unusually severe strains and tests that naturally ensue on touring through European battlefields," continued Lieut. Morrisey, "the car was in as good condition and running as smoothly at the end of the journey as it did three years ago."

"In the ten-day leave period allotted to members of the United States cruiser and transport force at the completion of its work in returning troops, I felt that I could make much better use of my time if I took my Hudson across.

"With another car, I might have feared to do this because of the difficulty of obtaining replacements in case of breakage. However, I had implicit confidence in my Hudson.

"We started from Brest with six passengers and an extra heavy load of baggage. In addition, it was necessary to carry a reserve supply of gasoline, sixty gallons in all, owing to the scarcity of French gas.

"The run to Paris, 185 miles, was made without the slightest difficulty. The following day we went to Amiens, through the Somme battlefields to Lille, and in the six days following, visited Ypres, Ostend, Zeebrugge, Ghent, Brussels, Liege, Louvain, Cologne, Coblenz, Luxemborg, Treves, Verdun, Rheims.

"Then we returned to Paris after covering a total of more than 1100 miles. Our only difficulty on the trip, despite the face that that roads through Flanders and Northern France have not been repaired yet and numerous shell holes make it hard going for the car, was due to the water in the gasoline, a common trouble over there, and an unusual number of punctures due to shrapnel splinters.

When the age of the car and the exacting demands made on it not only during this trip, but for the past three years are considered, its present performance appears to be marvelous. To my mind it is a wonderful tribute to the inherent quality of the Hudson."

SAFETY SIGNAL TO LESSEN ACCIDENTS.

CLEAR INDICATION GIVEN OF WHAT DRIVER AHEAD IS GOING TO DO.

A majority of the minor motor car accidents are rear-end collisions, caused in the main by lack of understanding of what the driver ahead is going to do. A great many serious accidents have the same fundamental cause. And under it all, as a basic cause, lies the fact that signaling by hand and arm, as it is usually carried out, is indefinite, lacks any informative quality and is sometimes misleading, for the hand and arm signals vary in different parts of the country, and then, too, are only visible during the day.

The average driver is warned that the man ahead intends to make some move out of the direct flow of traffic, but he is not definitely enough informed to take the special measures that may be needed to meet the exact move of his leader.

Mr. J. H. Smith, 926 S. Grand avenue says he has overcome the hand signaling on his car by installing the famous Roedding traffic signal, which can be seen nearly a block away day or night and is understood by everyone in all parts of the country. From a small disk on the steering wheel he can signal the following words in large, clear, white letters to the car following, left, right, stop and back.

HOT SPOT ADDS MILES TO FUEL.

MOTORS START EASILY AND SPARK PLUGS ARE KEPT FROM FOULING.

There is a steadily growing demand in Arizona for trucks that will stand the gaff, according to D. F. Poyer of D. F. Poyer & Son, distributors of Transport trucks, who has just returned from Phoenix, where he attended the State fair and made arrangements for Transport representation there.

"Irrigation has worked wonders in Arizona and each year sees more land under cultivation. Industry of almost every kind there is booming. There as elsewhere dealers are severely hampered by the shortage of cars and trucks. In this respect we are fortunate, for we have Transports in all models for immediate delivery. Our arrangements with the factory are such that Southern California, Arizona and Southern Nevada are well provided for," he said.

"There are many new features in truck construction incorporated in the Transport, that are attracting purchasers but perhaps that which appeals as much as anything else is the hot spot which adds miles to low-grade fuel. Spark plugs are kept from fouling and the refuse is prevented from working into the motor oil and destroying its ability to lubricate. Drivers remark how easy it is to start the motor these chilly mornings."

TRANSPORTATION IN ECONOMIC EXISTENCE.

With transportation becoming more and more a factor in economic existence, the value of highway transportation is increasing constantly and now is receiving more general and serious consideration than ever before. Man was the first burden bearer, but he did not like the job, and it was not long until it was passed along to animals. Mechanical methods were a subsequent development, but today they are relied upon chiefly. Roads were built in the early ages to provide a means for military success, and there was no thought of their possible use for peace-time pursuits. Now, however, it is recognized that roads are equally as valuable as a means to trade exchange as military conquest, and the motor truck and better roads are advancing simultaneously and along parallel lines.

One of the factors in the high cost of living, according to W. O. Gates of the Gates-Kelley Automotive Company, distributors for Jumbo two and one-half-ton trucks, is that products of factories, mills and farms are so far removed from consumers, transportation has to be solved. As it is impractical to bring consumers to the products, the products are taken to the consumers.

Shipping by rail, while generally accepted for long distances, involves too much time for short hauls when time is at a premium; labor for handling, when labor is scarce, and damage in transit, when all products are difficult to replace.

"Motor trucks," says Mr. Gates, "must take care of the short hauls. Eventually, the local freight train will become obsolete, having given way to the motor truck or motor-truck train."

MILLER CARBURETORS ON FLEET OF TRUCKS.

THE GOVERNMENT-OWNED MACHINES RENDER EFFICIENT SERVICE YEAR ROUND.

A fleet of government-owned trucks operated on a postoffice star route out of Helper, Utah, have in a large measure solved the problem of heavy parcel post hauling, is the statement received from the superintendent of the route in a letter to the Harry A. Miller Manufacturing Company, makers of Miller carburetors, and according to the mail superintendent's statement they are rendering the most efficient service within his expesence. All of the drivers who served in such capacity in the army and who were experienced before entering the service are unanimous, he states, in their commendation of the Miller. As the roads in that section are said to be in very poor condition, the trucks are put to very hard tests.

MOTOR CARS SINK TO COMMERCIAL LEVEL.

HANDSOME "OLD TIMERS" ARE DOING HEAVY DUTY NOW AS TRUCKS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Nov. 15.—Every automobile has its day and this is shown on the streets of Redlands every day when some of the machines that were eight or ten years ago the "classiest models" of the town roll through with truck bodies on the chassis that formerly bore beatifully-upholstered seats. There are two or three dozen of these big cars that were in their day the pride of their owners now being used as trucks in the care of orange groves of the owners.

One of them is a big Pope that was one of the finest cars that A. G. Hubbard ever brought to Redlands and he has had some beauties. Another is a big Mercedes, the first big car that George W. Wilder, the millionaire New York publisher brought to Redlands. There are two or three big Peerless cars being used in this work and some of the old Rees and even one or two old Tourists are yet ploughing around the streets, having sunk to the level of vile commercialism. And they are still good cars, at least they work every day in the year and give the very minimum of trouble.

CUTS RECORD IN MOTORCYCLE RUN.

One of the favorite motorcycle runs of the Pacific Coast is the 132-mile stretch between Los Angeles and San Diego. Any rider who becomes prominent on the Coast takes a crack at the latest mark set up on this boulevard run. A new record has just been set up by Roy Artley, on an Indian, mounted on Goodyear cord tires, the 132-mile distance having been covered in 127 minutes, an average speed of 62.15 miles per hour. Artley clipped three and a half minutes from his former record.

Under this hood

—is the most wonderful motor ever built into a light six

AT last the problem of low grade fuel is really solved by the motor of the new Velie. Here is a motor that burns low grade fuel perfectly—and gives greater power—greater speed—more miles per gallon—with lessened vibration.

A motor running smoothly and solidly at all speeds; its unusually large crankshaft held firmly by four bearings. A motor with rods and pistons accurately balanced, and enduring bronze-backed bearings everywhere.

A more powerful motor—power gained by larger valves, thorough combustion and a better co-ordination of working parts. And with it all, a velvety quietness that comes from capable design and superior workmanship.

A motor worthy of this beautiful car—the first authoritative example of the new style tendency—with more room—the deepest, most restful upholstery—more comfort and convenience than you ever dreamed of.

Come and see the new Velie—today's perfection of automobile science and art. Ride in it as hundreds have done—and let us have your judgment.

MORELAND TRUCKS

"BEST FOR THE WEST"

THERE are certain trucks made for certain kinds of work, but Moreland distillate motor trucks are used for all sorts of hauling.

MORELAND heavy duty trucks have been successfully operated under the most adverse conditions, while the lighter models have been most satisfactory for speed work, regardless of distance or roads. This is due to Moreland engineering and construction.

THE Schumacher Wall Board Company finds the Moreland 2½ ton model economical, speedy and serviceable for the delivery of their product, which is distributed throughout Southern California.

THERE are thousands of Moreland owners receiving the same degree of satisfaction from their equipment as the Schumacher Company.

GOOD ROAD PHRASE HAS LITTLE MEANING.

LONE STAR STATE MOTORING IS DECIDEDLY DIFFERENT FROM CALIFORNIA.

Writing from Fort Worth, Tex., George V. Steep of Los Angeles, who has completed a tour of the producing oil fields of the Lone Star State, says that automobiling there is even more exciting than playing for the oil.

"Driving an automobile in Texas is more work than sport. The people of the Lone Star State are only just beginning to understand that there is such a phrase as 'good roads.' It will be some time before they can properly adopt it as a slogan. The roads here are hilly and rough. In dry weather they are heavily rutted and filled with sand or dust. In wet weather they are actually bottomless—and it has been wet in Texas practically all summer," he states in a communication to the Greer-Robbins Company, distributor of Hupmobiles.

"I have been called upon to do a great deal of driving and in choosing a car I made my choice in light of conditions that must be met. I settled upon the Hupmobile and the service it has given me has fully justified my choice. I have never been stalled and I have passed almost every car that has been built stalled somewhere in Texas. Some of my associates bought bigger and more expensive cars, but every one of them has had to take off his hat to my Hup.'

A Gentle Hint.

BUY MORE THAN A MOTOR TRUCK

When you pay down your cold cash for a motor truck be sure you are going to get something beside the chassis.

Be sure you are going to get something more than a mere promise, also, as it may be convenient for the dealer to forget a promise.

If you were buying a house you would investigate the seller's title to the property; you would make inquiry as to the neighborhood; you would learn about the provision for gas, light, telephone, etc.

Exercise that same discretion when buying a motor truck. You are making an investment, then, in the future the same as when buying a house.

Investigate the reliability of the truck dealer. Find out from users of trucks he has sold what you may expect in the way of service. Make sure he has an ample supply of spare parts always in stock. Learn if he charges a fair price for parts. Go into his shop and see for yourself if he is equipped to do all work promptly and properly.

It is as important for you to ascertain these things as it is to ask questions about the truck itself.

We invite an investigation of our reputation for fair dealing, our entire organization and the MACK truck.

Mr. and Mrs. Beatty started from New York in a Ford, equipped with Firestone tires, and drove to Los Angeles in thirty days. All four tires reached the Coast with New York air in them and Mr. Beatty asserts that he didn't pump air into a single one of them on the entire trip. Beatty is an everlasting booster for Firestones and ought to be with a trip like that—minus all tire trouble.

BEST IN HEAVY TRAFFIC.

Not even the finest gasoline car in the world is the equal of the electric vehicle for use in the congested traffic of modern cities, according to G. R. Beach, of the Gaffney Electric Company, Los Angeles distributors for the Milburn and the Raulang electrics, and the Owen Magnetic car. His opinion in this regard is backed by no less an authority than the New York representative of the Rolls-Royce Company, who was a recent visitor at the Toledo plant of the Milburn Wagon Company.

"The Rolls-Royce car is rightly regarded as one of the finest automobiles made in the world," said Mr. Beach last week. "Unquestionably it should be one of the easiest cars to control in traffic. Yet R. C. Schuette, president of the New York Company which handles the American distribution of the Rolls-Royce, informed the officials of the Milburn factory recently that he never thought of using any other car for his trips to and from his office, or around New York City than his Milburn light electric, and he further characterized it as the most useful and satisfactory car that a city man could own.

For one thing, the average fine car, in order to obtain easy-riding qualities at high speeds, is usually of extremely long wheel base. This makes it difficult to handle in traffic in the matter of turning in narrow streets, or in parking. The electric, in addition to its greater ease of control, is of such short wheel base that it is an easy matter to find parking space for it.

"As for the comparative simplicity of control, it is a fact that it requires thirteen operations in the gas car to reach the same state of progress that two operations reach in the electric. It is little wonder, therefore, that as the congestion of our cities grows year by year, that the electric car should increase steadily in popular favor."

DETROIT IS INTERESTED.

Is Los Angeles getting Detroit's goat?

It would seem so, judged by letters from the Michigan metropolis which declare that auto manufacturers there who have long been favored with a large share of the motor trade here are casting envious eyes in this direction.

A letter from C. N. Graves, eastern purchasing agent of the Leach-Biltwell Motor Company, last week, to M. A. Leach stated that Detroit auto manufacturers are looking forward with more than ordinary interest to the opportunity they will have at the National Auto Show to get a "close-up" of the Leach Power-Plus Six.

"When I first undertook the purchase of standard parts here for the Leach car, some months ago, I found any number of trade experts who openly expressed a doubt that a quality car could be successfully manufactured on the Pacific Coast," Graves wrote in his letter.

"The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce owes me a life membership for the way I went after the skeptics. Not only did I convince them that Los Angeles could produce a 'better car,' but I assured them that Los Angeles would, and that all that was required to demonstrate the truth of my statement was a little patience on the part of the eastern motor car manufacturers.

"After our purchases mounted into really sizable proportions I noticed a corresponding interest among those prominently identified with the industry in Detroit. Now they can hardly wait to get a good look at the Leach Power-Plus Six. They have been frank to say that the car looks good to them after having been shown photographs of it. The specifications could not be improved upon, they tell me.

DEEP SNOW BLOCKS MOTOR TRAVELERS.

SOUTHERN DETOURS NECESSARY TO GET ACROSS MOUNTAIN DIVIDES.

Motor travel over the Lincoln Highway has been completely stopped for the winter by heavy snow in Wyoming, according to Dr. Burt A. Camfield, until recently a lieutenant in the Medical Corps of the army, who reached Los Angeles last week after a 10,000-mile motor tour. Together with Maj. Dr. McCaskey Dr. Camfield left New York last July on an inspection tour of the hospitals of all the army posts in eleven different States, and their long journey ended here last week when they drove their mud-covered Marmon touring car into the local headquarters of the Al. G. Faulkner Company.

"We had intended to follow the Lincoln Highway west as far as Salt Lake City and expected to turn south to Los Angeles from that point over the Arrowhead Trail," Dr. Camfield told Al. G. Faulkner last week. "Just beyond Cheyenne, however, we encountered snow deep enough to obliterate all traces of the road and were forced to turn south to Colorado Springs, where we hoped to be able to turn west again over Marshall Pass. This was likewise blocked by snow, and we were forced to go still farther south and follow the Raton Pass over the new road that has recently been completed over that summit. From that point we followed the Santa Fe Trail to Los Angeles, and found another touch of winter at Flagstaff, where three inches of snow fell the night we stayed there.

"There were scores of cars still on the road, bound for Southern California. West of Flagstaff we found no less than twenty-seven cars stuck in a bad mud-hole, and I was compelled to pull out two or three with the Marmon before we could get through.

"We took our time on the trip, which commenced in July, and stopped to hunt and fish in many places. The Marmon is a wonderful car for a trip of that sort, and we were very much pleased with its performance all the way through."

AUXILIARY OIL TANK BIG HELP.

ELIMINATES ANY POSSIBLE INJURY TO MOTOR WHILE ON ROAD.

"An auxiliary oil reservoir, consisting of a small aluminum container firmly bolted to the top of the motor, is one of the many unusual features of the Nelson car," says Frank Nelson, Southern California distributor for the Nelson. "The Nelson motor is phenomenally economical of oil, yet E. A. Nelson realized the importance of keeping a sufficient supply in the crank case at all times. To make it handy for the motorist to carry an extra supply of oil for any emergency, he designed this aluminum container that fits on the top of the motor. If the oil gauge should at any time indicate that the oil supply is running low, it is only necessary for the Nelson user to open a valve to replenish the amount in the crank case.

"This reserve tank holds two quarts, and is sufficient to supply the motor for hundreds of miles, completely eliminating any possible chance of injury to the motor through an unexpected shortage of oil. For the motorist who is in the habit of taking long trips to the mountains or desert, this feature will appeal as particularly valuable."

COMPRESSED AIR FILLS MANY GAPS.

Compressed air furnishes the most widely used method of starting the marine motors of the larger types of motor boats, according to Walter H. Fisher of the Pacific Air Compressor Company.

"Because of the nature of the service, demanded, the air starter has always proved more popular than electric starters for motor boat engines," said Fisher last week. "Though the compressor which we manufacture is primarily designed for the use of garages, service stations, etc., yet we last week sold two compressor outfits to equip motor boats with. The city of Los Angeles bought one for one of their harbor boats, and Hancock Banning purchased one to equip a motor boat belonging to him. The large compressed air reservoir, which one of these outfits affords contains a sufficient reserve of air to crank the most stubborn motor."

NOW CROSSES COUNTRY IN SEDAN MOTOR CAR.

MADE EIGHTEEN TRIPS BEFORE THE DAYS OF RAILROADS OR AUTOS.

To cross the plains of the western section of the United States once in the days of Indians and buffaloes was regarded as enough of an experience to satisfy the average pioneer for his lifetime, but Charles F. Wildasinn, a resident of Bishop, Cal., made the trip eighteen times before the days of railroads. Now that there are railroads though, Mr. Wildasinn does not rely upon them, as last summer, when he had occasion to cross the plains again, he traveled by motor car, his equipage being a Franklin sedan, which he had purchased in Chicago.

Mr. Wildasinn is 78 years old. Forty-eight years ago he came to the Owens River Valley in search of precious metals, and settled at Bishop. He went to Mammoth Camp at just about the time the gold strike was exhausted and took up a land holding and began the operation of a sawmill. To him there is no place in the world like Mammoth, and when seen there recently by a representative of Ralph Hamlin, Inc., the distributor of Franklin cars, Mr. Wildasinn was making his last visit to the camp before the winter season set in.

So enthused is he over that country that he has a cabin at the camp the use of which he has reserved for the period of his lifetime. One may stand in front of his wickiup-cabin and look out over the valley a distance of fifty miles to a range of mountains. During the summer months he does all his traveling back and forth between Bishop and Mammoth in his Franklin sedan. He is such an enjhusiastic admirer of his car that he says he never will have any other kind as long as he can get a Franklin. From crossing the plains by prairie schooner to a transcontinental trip by motor is a sufficient range in experience to convince Mr. Wildasinn that he is qualified to make his decision on touring methods.

The transcontinental tour was made last summer. From Chicago to Denver the Franklin averaged twenty-two miles to the gallon of gasoline. From Denver west through the mountains the average was eighteen miles to the gallon.

MOTORISTS COMING TO PACIFIC COAST.

ONE THOUSAND CARS PASS THROUGH BARSTOW A DAY HEADED SOUTH.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BARSTOW, Nov. 15.—Never in the memory of the old resident of this locality have the roads between here and Needles been so crowded with automobiles hurrying to the coast as they are this winter. It is estimated by those who have been over the route that there are 1500 automobiles always on the road heading west between here and Needles. At times looking from the top of the hill across the desert, so thick are the cars that they give the appearance of old time caravans. On an average it is estimated that about 1000 motor cars a day pass through here, and of these only about one-fifth bear California license plates. By actual count, cars representing twenty-six States exclusive of California were counted between here and Needles.

In many cases a group of machines from the same State travel togeiher. The Lincoln Highway and the southern routes are reported to be equally crowded. Garages along the route have been forced to put on extra men and practically all of them are working a night and a day shift. Yesterday one automobilist coming from the coast stated that he had counted in the 160 miles west of here, 109 out-of-State cars and twenty-two California machines. It is the greatest westward trek known in the history of California.

GETTING GREASE TO UNIVERSAL JOINTS.

SOLID PACKING NECESSARY FOR LUBRICATION AT ALL TIMES.

Lubrication of the universal joints on the drive shaft has long proved one of the most difficult problems that motor car designers have had to contend with. The centrifugal force of the whirling shaft tends to throw the lubricant out of the joint, and unless the entire joint is solidly packed with heavy grease, the inner portions of the joint are very apt to get insufficient lubrication. There is such heavy wear upon the universal joints of the drive shaft that lubrication is imperative if they are to give satisfactory service for the life of the car. Oils are useless for a lubricant for the universal joint for they are quickly thrown out, and the question of packing the joint with heavy grease has not been an easy one to solve.

"Perhaps in no other one part of the car is the Alemite system of lubrication more valuable than in the case of the universal joints on the drive shaft," declares C. A. Roesch of the Alemite Lubricator Company of California. "The heavy pressure that the Alemite compressor exerts in forcing grease wherever it is needed makes it possible to completely fill the universal joint with heavy grease. When the joint is completely full, it is, of course, adequately lubricated, regardless of the tendency of the whirling shaft to throw out the grease from the center."

REAL ESTATE MAN PRAISES NON-SKID.

Sol Getz is an enthusiastic motorist and operates for his personal use two high grade cars. In a conversation with Mr. Alan Tarbell of the Keaton Tire and Rubber Company, Mr. Getz states that he believes in always getting the best.

"You see, Mr. Tarbell, quality and service will be a pleasure long after price is forgotten. Now, that is the way I feel about Keaton tires. I used Keaton non-skids on my Packard and Haynes cars all of last winter and I know them to be absolutely non-skid. As I value my life I consider Keaton non-skids to be the cheapest tires at any price."

IDEAL TRACK FOR TESTING

Los Angeles Speedway Exhibits Possibilities.

Resembles Famous Brooklands Course in England.

Work Progresses Rapidly on Whole Project.

American motor-car manufacturers would find the new Los Angeles Speedway an ideal testing ground for their new models, in the opinion of A. H. Wilson, sales manager for J. W. Leavitt & Co., who last week inspected the new track that is in process of construction at Beverly Hills. Wilson was for years a prominent figure in the motor trade in Scotland, and was a frequent visitor at Brooklands track, the great English motordrome, where British motor manufacturers constanty test out their new models and where some of the world's fastest motor races have been run.

CLOSE RESEMBLANCE.

"Except for the straightaways, which are not as long on the Los Angeles track as at Brooklands, the new speedway greatly resembles the English track," Wilson told Manager A. M. Young. "The curve on the turns and the banking of the track on the turns are almost identical with the Brooklands track. The English track is built of concrete, and the surface is by no means as fast as the wood surface of this track will be. I have seen 127 miles an hour turned in a single lap at Brooklands, and it would not surprise me in the least to see speed almost, if not quite, equal to this, attained here.

"With the ideal weather conditions which maintain here all year round, I should think the Los Angeles track would prove ideal as a testing ground for American motor manufacturers. The Brooklands track is in constant use for this purpose by British motor builders. Quite a number of them maintain testing laboratories at the track for the use of their engineering departments."

On the west turn of the speedway the supports for the entire width of the track are now in place. The 35 per cent. bank of the track at this point lifts the upper edge of the track high in air, and gives a good idea of the speed at which the cars must take the curve in order to cling to the track. For the benefit of cars that, in the progress of the race may become disabled, and are unable to ride the steep track on the turns, a safety zone thirty feet in width is provided at the inner edge of the track where the steep bank begins.

FOUNDATIONS.

Work on the foundations of the grand stand and bleachers is almost completed, and erection of the structure of the stands themselves will begin this week. Though three months still remain before the date set before the first race, work is being pushed on the track with the greatest rapidity, and fast progress is being made in every department of the big job.

THROUGH EAST FOR USED MOTOR CARS.

SCARCITY OF USED MODELS IS ABOUT EQUAL TO THAT OF NEW ONES.

While the Pacific Coast is trying to ease its motor-car shortage with used autos picked up in the East, the motor merchants beyond the Rockies are trying to do the same thing by scouring this section. The result is that good used cars are about as difficult to obtain as new cars.

Two months ago Paul G. Hoffman, of Maxwell & Hoffman, the Studebaker distributors, went through the East on a quest for used Studebakers. He returned with just one. He was accompanied by a very shrewd used-car dealer of Los Angeles who, too, was looking for the used Studebaker of the '19 series. He also found one.

Last week a Kansas dealer in used cars entered the Maxwell & Hoffman salesroom and sought prices on Studebakers of the new series which had seen service. He was informed that there "was no such animal" for sale, being almost unobtainable. Since the Maxwell & Hoffman firm has been in business, less than a half-dozen used Studebakers of the new series have been obtained although there has been a constant hunt for them.

"If there is anything harder to obtain than a new Studebaker it is one that has seen service and been offered for sale," said Paul G. Hoffman. "It is a very striking proof of the popularity of the new series that none of the owners want to turn loose of their cars.

"The used Studebaker today is bringing a very high price on the used-car market. The reason may be found in the fact that used Studebakers are very scarce. But I believe that the public generally has come to be pretty well acquainted with the values of the motor market."

Several of the Studebakers of the new series which went into stage service the first of the year are still in daily work. One operator of a line into the Imperial Valley over the mountains from San Diego has not missed a trip with his Studebakers in six months despite the severity of the climbs.

"The stage operator is a pretty wise sort of a buyer," said Hoffman. "He does not buy to satisfy pride. With him it is business. That is the reason we feel gratified at the number of Studebakers in stage service. There is one Studebaker in stage service on the San Fernando road that has traveled 316,000 miles."

"Fifty-one and two-tenths miles on a gallon is cutting operating costs down to where it is no longer an expense."

Designed after the motors of Europe, where fuel is really expensive, the Briscoe Motor is as shy of gasoline consumption as a cat is of water. Think of it—stretching a gallon of gasoline 51 2-10 miles—into a stream so fine you'd need a microscope to see it. Figure it out. How many yards to a drop?

The course covered included both up and down grades, paved roads and dirt roads, turns, curves and traffic—just such conditions as would make an ordinary ride for the average owner.

If it is economy that interests you, then you will select the Briscoe—at its price, $1175.00, it has all competition cheated—its depreciation is very low, it uses small tires and one set runs for 15,000 miles and over—top this off with a lack of appetite for gasoline and oil and you have real ECONOMY—The Briscoe.

TIRE SERVICE DAY AND NIGHT.

Includes Commercial as Well as Pleasure Cars.

Annoyance Incident to Tire Changing is Eliminated.

Expert Repair Men Held in Readiness at All Hours

"Ships that pass in the night," which in Los Angeles and throughout California might as well be understood to apply to the thousands of motor trucks utilized to transport perishables and other freight, have reached an importance in commercial affairs here that has been productive of one of the most advanced applications of the term "Service" yet devised for the convenience of the public.

Thousands of motorists are familiar enough with the service department maintained by Nelson & Price Inc., distributors of Hartford cord and fabric tires, whose determination to leave nothing undone to insure complete satisfaction has made a permanent impression on the motoring fraternity here.

Few, however, realize that the service provided to save owners of motor cars the annoyance incident to changing tires and effecting repairs has been extended to include a similar service for commercial motor vehicles, and that in the case of the latter that the service is an unbroken one of twenty-four hours a day, the year around.

"You have solved our help problem for us," head of a large Los Angeles mercantile establishment said to Frank Price, president of Nelson & Price, Inc., last week. "Until we availed ourselves of your all night and day service for trucks we had no end of trouble keeping truck drivers on the job, probably because we made it a rule that drivers had to take care of their own repairs. Several quit us cold in one week because we insisted that they take care of tire trouble for themselves. It was a truck driver, in fact, who suggested to me that we could eliminate practically all dissatisfaction on the part of these employees by availing ourselves of your continuous truck tire service. He spoke the truth, for we have never lost a driver since on account of tires and the troubles to which they are heir."

It is no uncommon sight to see a line of trucks a block long drawn up at the curb at Nelson & Price, Inc., after the usual business hours, awaiting a turn to have all needed tire repairs attended to before these "ships that pass in the night" start on their routes. Solid rubber tires and pneumatics are all one with the service men of Nelson & Price, Inc., and the small amount of time it takes to effect tire changes and repairs invariably occasions wondering comment on the part of the truck drivers who find it necessary to visit the tire company's headquarters. Expert tire men are held in readiness at all hours to make quick trips anywhere within a wide radius of the city to provide service for commercial vehicles stranded on account of breakdowns on the road.

"EXIDE TOWN" IS LATEST NICKNAME.

MOTORISTS OF THAT TOWN SEEM TO PREFER SPECIAL TYPE OF BATTERY.

Chicago, ever since the day when Mrs. O'Leary's cow started that metropolis on the road to fame, has been known by any number of nicknames. To Windy City, Porkville, Chi and such pet names has been added a new one — "Exide Town."

The new designation for the hustling Illinois city on the Lake Michigan shore was coined by C. H. Kay, of the Kay & Burbank Company, in a letter written to the firm here by him from Chicago, last week.

"I was always given to understand," he wrote, "that Chicagoans were quick to recognize a good thing when they saw it. I was not quite prepared, however, for what I learned here from the managers of storage battery service stations, who tell me that there are more Exides in use by motorists of Chicago than all other makes combined. Of course, I have no way of verifying this, but it is certain that there are thousands upon thousands of Exides in use in Chicago, and I am prepared to believe what the dealers tell me about Exide performance.

"I have yet to find a service man here who does not hold the Exide in the highest esteem. Without exception those to whom I have talked tell me that Exides have given the least trouble of any storage batteries they have ever handled. This checks up, of course, with our own experience with them in Los Angeles."

ELEVENTH ANNIVERSARY.

The eleventh birthday anniversary of the Velie passenger car—which will be celebrated on Thanksgiving Day—means far more than a total of anniversaries or a succession of years. It has something to justify a celebration, for on Thanksgiving Day, 1908, when the first Velie car, equipped with improvements which at that time were conceded to be innovations, but which have since been generally adopted and standardized on the best cars, development in the automobile industry reached a new high water mark.

It was truly a day for rejoicing and thanksgiving when the men whose indomitable perseverance helped the improved Velie to see the light of day, piloted their creation up the steepest incline Moline had to offer. The population of Moline set back its ears and "rubbered."

The car was acclaimed a success, and from that memorable day in 1908, the tiny factory in which the first Velie was assembled after months of arduous toil, has expanded until it now has a capacity of hundreds of cars daily. Each year the design and mechanism has been improved so that now the Velie for 1920 has reason to claim the distinction for grace of body design, plus power and stamina, unexcelled even in cars of higher price.

"Steady conservative growth, based on the appreciation of auto users for a car combining style with power and endurance has been responsible for the expansion of the tiny factory of 1908 to the great plant which now covers several acres of ground at Moline," said Harry Lord of the Lord Motor Car Company, Southern California distributors of Velie cars. "The birthplace of the Velie has had to be so greatly enlarged from time to time that its capacity has increased from the single car of 1908 vintage until it is now capable of turning out hundreds daily to meet the ever-increasing demand.

"It was not until the past few years that a national selling campaign was inaugurated," continued Mr. Lord. "For many years fully 90 per cent. of the cars the factory could produce were taken as fast as they could be turned out by purchasers within a thousand miles of the factory. Many extensions were built to the plant from time to time, but there was always difficulty in keeping pace with the demand until it was decided to anticipate the future by many years with a factory equipment which could not be easily outgrown."

NOT A SCRATCH ON TIRES.

Superlatives have been liberally employed by tire dealers of Los Angeles in heralding the claims of the superior qualities of any number of makes in tires and tubes, but it remained for R. O. Jackson to spring a story last week that made competitors sit up and take notice.

Talking with a group of tire dealers Jackson quite casually remarked, "Four tires that the Rubber City Clearing House Company sold traveled all the way from Los Angeles to Ely, Nev., without receiving a scratch and with the surface just as clean and fresh looking as when the paper wrappings were removed."

"Say," one of his hearers protested, "what are you trying to hand us?"

"Fact is," Jackson replied, "the tires arrived there just like I said, but they went by mail and in the last two weeks we have shipped several thousand the same way to our dealer representatives and patrons who trade with us through the mails.

"When we inaugurated our 'Dollar Sale,' whereby we offered to sell an extra tire or tube at $1 to match a tire or tube sold at the regular price it looked like our Los Angeles trade was going to clean us out in a hurry. Then along came two carloads of tires and tubes from the East and this made it possible for us to continue the sale. Just about this time mail orders began to pour in on us and we were obliged to put on extra help to take care of that phase of the sale."

NEW FIRM FOR ELGIN SIX.

The Occidental Motors Company has now been appointed sole representative of the Elgin light six by the large organization of Pacific Motors Companies, Inc., taking the entire area of Los Angeles county.

A lease for a number of years has been taken on the premises formerly occupied by the Apperson company, located at 1355 South Flower street.

J. A. Anderson, H. M. Logan and J. A. Wright, forming the Occidental Motors Company, have now arrived from San Francisco, and have selected Los Angeles in which to distribute this incomparable car.

The partners of this company are renowned automobile men of San Francisco, and feel that the Elgin automobile will introduce them more satisfactorily in this vicinity than any other possible procedure. There is no task too great, no detail too small, for the Occidental Motors Company which may add to the further satisfaction of the Elgin owners. This machine is one and one-half years ahead of all others in the automobile industry. Cars of the latest design are now on display in the office salesrooms, No. 1355 South Flower street.

There is But One Super-Six—Hudson Controls It

Without Increase of Size or Weight, 72% was Added to Power and Countless Records Proved its Greater Endurance—That is Why it is Called the Super-Six

Don't forget this.

Endurance must always be the most important automobile quality.

It is not appearance, speed, hill-climbing or acceleration, though the Super-Six leads in all these.

Look at the records. Hudson holds all that are worth while. What car offers more proof?

But speed records are not nearly as important as are those which prove endurance. Many tests are required to be considered final proof.

Look at these. A Hudson stock chassis was driven 1819 miles in 24 hours. The best previous record fell 347 miles short of that.

The greatest endurance test ever made was that of the Hudson double transcontinental run. The 7000 miles was covered in 10 days and 21 hours. It was the only round-trip test ever completed and the distance each way between San Francisco and New York was made in less time than any other car has ever done.

No Car Ever Offered Such Proof

The reason these records, made years ago, still stand unequalled is simple. The Super-Six is a patented motor developed and controlled by Hudson. The principle which gives it power and endurance over others, would, if incorporated in any other six, make it equal to Hudson in that respect.

But you must choose a Hudson to get those qualities. There is no other way.

Hudson also leads in style. It has introduced models that are today standards with all fine cars.

The new lines of body design and finish are usually first seen in the Hudson models. The streamline body, the beveled-edge tonneau and now the square lines that give to Hudson such distinction and simplicity, first appeared on the Super-Six.

Don't Forget that Hudson's Endurance is Exclusive

These things enhance the Hudson. But the one important quality is that of endurance. Nothing else is so important.

More than 70,000 Super-Sixes are now in use. Before the present model was offered 60,000 earlier types had shown the way to its development. The things men had said would make the Super-Six the best car that is built are incorporated in this new model.

Others cannot build a car like it, for Hudson alone controls the patents that make it the greatest speed and endurance stock car.

Also it is the Most Wanted Fine Car

That is proved by its sales record as the largest selling fine car. It is proved by the thousands who have waited their turn to get delivery. The demand during the active buying seasons has always been in excess of supply. For some models men have been waiting months.

You will certainly want a Hudson, if not this year then next. Now is not too early to speak for it.

FLARING FRONT ON MOTOR CARS.

New Feature Adopted in Apperson Sedan.

Form - Fitting Upholstery Adds to Comfort.

Floor Heater Promises Well for Cool Evenings.

Much has been written and more said about New York's water front. There has not been a society story written that did not have some reference to another type of the metropolis's front. The Great White Way is said to be the city's nighttime front, but never until this season has there been any application of a New York front to motor cars. It has remained for Apperson Brothers' Automobile Company to complete the bill. The new models of inclosed cars have what is termed the New York flaring front.

The first of these cars to come to Los Angeles was received a few days ago. It was of the Berlin-sedan type with the New York flaring front, and Mrs. Lucy M. Gilbert immediately became its possessor. Mrs. Gilbert placed her order for the sedan several months ago, but with the proviso that it must be up to her expectations. When she had looked the car over, sat on its luxurious upholstery and examined its equipment she made the remark to a salesman that it was the first time in her life she ever had the realization exceed her expectations. She then and there asked for delivery of the car without so much as taking a ride in it.

The Apperson Berlin sedan represents the highest type of the coach builder's art. The application of the "New York flaring front" comes in the lack of obstructing corners. In the rear of the front seat for the entire width is an adjustable glass, so that the rear compartment may be separated entirely when the glass is in place, or when lowered all occupants of the car are in proximity. It is a seven-passenger model with the auxiliary seats folding into the back of the front seat, which is not divided. The upholstery is form-fitting and tufted and of mohair velvet. The hardware is all oxidized silver. The equipment includes a floor heater and there are vents in the roof that are adjustable and provide perfect ventilation. The car is finished exteriorly in a very beautiful shade known as Apperson ..ue. The standard eight-cylinder motor with eighty less parts is the power plant.

First Inclosed Offering for 1920

In the Apperson line is the new convertible Sedan. A glass partition between the front and rear seats makes it possible to change the car from a sedan to a limousine at a moment's notice. New York flaring front and form-fitting upholstery are features of the new Apperson.

MANIFOLD BUILT IN CYLINDER BLOCK.

MANY TROUBLES DUE TO POOR GASOLINE ARE DONE AWAY WITH.

The problems attendant upon the carburetion of modern low-grade fuels have given motor-car designers much cause for study in the past year or so. Many solutions have been offered for the question, most of which involved the pre-heating of the fuels through "hot spots" in the manifold or various types of manifold design.

According to Walter H. Fisher, Haynes distributor for Southern California, the Haynes engineers found a highly efficient solution of the question by incorporation of the manifold into the cylinder block itself. Instead of being bolted on to the exterior of the Haynes motor, as is the common practice, the Haynes manifold consists of passages cast in the solid motor block itself.

"The carburetor is bolted directly to the side of the Haynes motor," said Fisher last week. "As a result of the manifold being incorporated in the motor casting, the shortest possible distance is achieved between the carburetor and the cylinders. Most important, however, is the fact that the entire length of the passage between carburetor and cylinder is subjected constantly to heat through this practice."

SHARP TURNING RADIUS.

In view of the necessity of using every possible means for relieving traffic congestion various tests are being made to determine means of expediting this work.

One of the hardest problems to master is how to cause traffic to flow more quickly at the crossings and turns. Nothing slows up traffic more than a large truck or touring car that is compelled to make wide swings to execute the turn.

To prove that even a five-ton truck can be constructed so that it will turn at very short angle H. T. Bull, branch manager of the Garford Truck Company, made a test on Los Angeles street between Pico and Fourteenth with a five-ton Garford truck, and the truck made two complete circles on Los Angeles street with about ten feet of space to spare. To be able to turn in a circle forty-two feet in diameter is almost an impossible feat for a touring car and for large touring cars it is an impossibility. But imagine a five-ton truck being able to turn in a space of that size.

The Garford truck is built so as to be able to execute sharp turns which makes it an ideal truck for getting in and around traffic.

The traffic in Los Angeles is rapidly reaching a point where it is getting beyond control and with this state of affairs existing it is quite necessary that vehicles should be of a type that will execute traffic with a maximum of ease.

Not only will it relieve the traffic situation to so no extent by using a vehicle that can make faster time in traffic, it naturally means more efficiency and larger profits to the owner.

IN ENVIABLE POSITION.

Foresight in securing supplies of raw materials has placed the Haynes factory in an enviable position during the present period when the steel strike threatens to stop production or greatly curtail it in many other automobile factories. According to advices recently received by Walter H. Fisher, Haynes distributor for Southern California, the Haynes factory has on hand at the present time sufficient steel for their needs until next June, though they should not receive another pound of metal until that time.

"This, together with the fact that Haynes is not an assembled car, places the factory in a peculiarly fortunate position this year," said Mr. Fisher last week. "Production in many automobile plants during the last summer has been delayed because they depended upon some parts manufacturer for a vital part of their car and were unable to secure shipments of it.

"Virtually the entire Haynes car is manufactured in the Haynes plant at Kokomo. The fact that the Haynes was America's first car undoubtedly has much to do with this circumstance. When the Haynes was first placed on the market there were no parts factories to secure automobile material from. The builders of the Haynes had to depend upon their own efforts to make every part of their car. In this way they built up an efficient manufacturing organization to care for the production of practically every part of their car. The independence which this system afforded and the perfect check which it gave upon the quality of every portion of the car proved such a valuable asset that Haynes has never thought of abandoning it.

"This year, with ample material supplies, and the ability to manufacture for themselves practically every part of the car, the Haynes factory is in an unusually fortunate position."

ACCESSORY SHORTAGE.

Returning last week from an extended trip of nearly four months and covering practically all the West and Middle West, Mr. George Pepperdine, head of the Western Auto Supply Agency's chain of accessory stores, is again at his desk in the local house, after visiting nearly all of his stores and spending considerable time among the factories buying goods.

Leaving here in July, Mr. Pepperdine motored with his family through Yosemite and the National Park, then up to Seattle, from where his family returned home and he started by train for the East.

Mr. Pepperdine states that the shortage of material and supplies in this line will reach a more critical stage than many of us imagine, if conditions do not change within the next few months. "Even before the steel strike numerous accessory manufacturers were unable to get enough raw material, because the demand for finished metal products of every nature requires more metal than the mills can turn out and now," says Mr. Pepperdine, "and with production hampered by the strike, automobile manufacturers and accessory manufacturers must expect their output to be reduced accordingly because they cannot get enough raw material to keep their plants going at full capacity. In the meantime orders from every direction are pouring in heavier than ever before and many factories are getting so far behind that they cannot make definite promises as to when deliveries may be expected. I found the eastern centers of activity very much unsettled and while many are hopeful that conditions will become better, yet we are face to face with the fact that next year will find the motoring public on 'half rations' as far as accessories and supplies are concerned, unless a very decided change is enacted and production doubled up."

FEW SUBSTITUTES FOR REAL CASINGS.

"There is no substitute for established reputation," is the title of an article recently from the pen of one of America's foremost editors, which every automobilist and every man, for that matter, should read, according to Mr. F. H. Osler of the Osler-Racine Rubber Company.

Likening the cheap, worthless automobile tire to the notorious and irresponsible gypsy horse dealer, this editor warns the public against the "gyp" tire which has nothing to recommend it but the loud praise of the man selling it, who has not the faintest glimmer of what word "service" means.

And the worst part of the fraudulent "gyp" tire is that it is bought by the man who can least afford the cost of being cheated, for the rich man has learned by experience that tires made by established firms with reputations are cheapest, because best.

PAYS TO KEEP BODY IN GOOD CONDITION.

"In the days of horse-drawn vehicles, the owner of a fine carriage never would think of taking it out unless it was polished and spotlessly clean. Just why owners of fine automobiles should be less particular is something rather hard to figure," declares Frank Webster of the International Sales Company.

"The investment in a fine motor car is far more than the investment in a fine carriage. A dusty, tarnished car looks worse than a dusty carriage ever did, and it pays just as well to keep it looking in good condition. And, incidentally, it is far easier to keep a car looking good with a good polish, such as Duro-Lac, than it was in the old days to keep the family surrey looking fine with carriage soap and water."

KISSEL

As Good As It Looks

You have admired the new "Kissel" as you have have seen it on the streets. Like most other people, you have perhaps said to yourself—"Some Car." And it is some car.

In the judgment of many, there is not a smarter car built in America today at any price.

The highways are literally crowded with cars that look almost as alike as peas in a pod—but when a "Kissel" comes along, you turn and look and no matter what you say, you think a lot of nice things.

And the "Kissel" is just as good as it looks. It isn't a stunt car but it will get out and perform alongside anything on wheels. And it will keep on performing the same way. You can look forward to years of real service from it.

The motor is "Kissel" built. It has worlds of power and wonderful flexibility. You don't need to play second fiddle to any car on any hill and the chances are, your motor will be cooler than the other fellow's when you get to the top.

We have a special demonstration circuit we can cover in about 30 minutes. Would you like to take the ride?

CLEAR INDICATION OF GROWING MARKET.

PACKARD PRODUCTION TO BE DOUBLED DURING CALENDAR YEAR.

A clear indication of the constantly expanding market for automobiles of the better class in America is seen in the announcement of the Packard Motor Car Company that their production for the calendar year 1920 will be more than double that for the year 1919.

While there may be some minor changes in seating arrangements, there will be no so-called 1920 models.

This is in line with the Packard policy of adhering to certain fundamental principles of engine and body design.

The engine of the present Packard twin six is practically identical with the first one which was produced, in April, 1916.

This twin-six motor is the one which people have come to know as the forerunner of the famous Liberty engine in that it first vindicated the twelve-cylinder "V" type of construction.

Parallel with the five years' success of the Packard twin-six engine run the extraordinary record-breaking feats of Ralph de Palma, who has broken most of the world's important speed records with a Packard twelve-cylinder motor (aviation type.) The fastest car on earth, Packard "903," is the holder of many of these records on straightaway courses.

SPEED NECESSARY FOR INTERCITY DELIVERY.

ALL "SHORT HAUL" TRAFFIC RAPIDLY COMING THE WAY OF MOTOR TRUCKS.

"Rapid intercity delivery of freight and express merchandise by motor truck is gaining favor throughout the country," according to H. J. Coger of the Troy Motor Sales Company. "The motor truck long since has demonstrated its dependability in the hauling of merchandise and its adaptability to what is known as 'short haul' traffic is now recognized by merchants and others who require quick intercity freight and express delivery."

The Western Michigan Motor Transit Company, recently formed to furnish motor truck delivery to ninety towns and cities in the vicinity of Grand Rapids, Mich., has purchased a fleet of ten Nash two-ton trucks. The one prime requirement for the success of an enterprise of this kind is uninterrupted service.

Merchants depending on such a service for delivery of their goods and farmers, for the delivery of their produce cannot afford to take chances on unreliable transportation. For this reason motor express companies consider very carefully the equipment they purchase.

The Western Michigan Motor Transit Company is operated by men who have had long experience in the transportation field. Before selecting Nash trucks careful scrutiny was given the entire motor truck field. One of the features of the Nash truck that proved a factor in guiding the decision of the officers of the Motor Transit Company was the locking differential with which all Nash trucks are equipped.

The locking differential supplies power to the wheel that needs it most. For instance, when one driving wheel strikes a muddy surface or loose sand and thus loses traction, this type of differential automatically locks and practically makes the rear axle a solid piece, thereby transmitting power to the wheel still having traction and enables the truck to pull through.

The ordinary differential, of course, delivers power to the point of least resistance and frequently when one driving wheel loses traction the truck is stalled.

FOREIGN SPACE FOR AMERICAN CARS.

Mr. E. Leidich, foreign sales manager for the Columbia Motors Company, manufacturers of the Columbia six, has just received a cablegram from Stanley Watson, Inc., English distributors for the Columbia six, advising that he has secured one of the choicest spaces at the Olympian motor exhibition to be held in London during the week of November 7, which he will devote to the display of the full line of Columbia six models, including both the open and closed jobs.

SUPER TESTS FOR MACHINE.

The testing of motor cars, like the building of motor cars, has undergone marked advancement during the last few years. New standards have been created and new mechanical testing devices have been perfected to keep pace with the development of the automobile itself.

It remained for the Willys Overland Company, however, to supply the supreme test to its latest model, Overland 4, which has just been announced. This test, it is believed, has established new standards of testing and refinement of details to make a car practically perfect mechanically before it goes to an owner.

The history of the development, building and testing of Overland 4, which introduces the new three-point spring suspension, covers a period of years. The car is the product of a decade of progressive engineering achievement toward the ideal light-weight car; of a year's intensive engineering experiment and two year's actual demonstration and test in all kinds of weather and all sorts of roads.

During the two years of test, Overland 4 was given 250,000 miles of actual road demonstration. That's ten times around the world before a single car went on the market.

These tests were of great value to the engineering and the production departments of the Willys-Overland Company, and, finally, to the man who buys the car. A staff of engineers studied the car during these 250,000 miles of test to determine every refinement and and improvement that might be necessary to make the car when it went on the market free from service troubles and of assured economy in operation and perfect ease of riding because of the new three-point springs.

The value of 250,000 miles of exhaustive testing may further be judged from the comparison with the usual custom of sending a new car into the market after it has been pounded on roads in some 25,000 to 75,000 miles of demonstration. Overland 4, it is said, is the first car that has gone on the market with a pedigree of perfect production after two years of constant testing.

The section of the country picked for these tests was in nature's laboratory of the Southwest—Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona. There nature seems unfinished, a rough, rock-strewn, country. It was there that the engineers decided that the new three-point suspension springs could be given a supreme test of the unexcelled ease of riding which they have now introduced.

Accordingly, a fleet of Overland 4s were sent into this section. A staff of engineers accompanied the cars to watch every hour of performance. In Colorado the cars were set to work scaling mountain sides, twisting and turning around the hairpin turns of the percipitous cliff and mountain sides and rolling over the boulder-strewn roads. There was plenty of mud-seas of it, thick and sticky as glue, hub and running-board deep. In New Mexico, there were great stretches of deep shifting sand, which threaten to rack and twist the frames of ordinary motor cars. In Arizona, there were great stretches of plain, innumerable river streams to ford, worse mud than ever before and stretches of road that were so rough and tortuous that they resembled saw-tooth blades of scraggy, sharp rocks. No better testing ground can be found than in the Rocky Mountains. While these tests were going on, other tests were being made in the country within a radius of 300 miles of the factory.

The new three-point springs had done everything the engineers had hoped for in saving the car and introducing an almost uncanny ease of driving; the all-steel construction of the car gave it a ruggedness unusual in any light car. It was in these tests that the Willys Overland Company developed the phrase which describes Overland 4 because of its three-point springs, as the most important improvement in motor-car construction since pneumatic tires.

SPIRIT OF CO-OPERATION.

"The attitude between the railroads and the motor truck is gradually turning from a spirit of competition to a spirit of co-operation," says R. E. Fulton, vice-president of the International Motor Company, manufacturers of Mack trucks.

"The present serious financial condition of the railroads and the increased freight rates that will inevitably follow, together with the economic advantages of the motor truck, point to a very favorable effect on the prices of foodstuffs as a result of that co-operation.

"The use of trucks as feeders to the railroads up to a distance of a hundred miles will release their facilities for the increasing tonnage that requires long-distance haulage. It has been specifically proven that because of the duplication of handling in railroad transportation, goods can be shipped on short hauls more economically by motor truck. In a few years the truck will be the standard method of short-distance hauling. By acting as a feeder within a radius of terminals, it will provide the railroads with an increased tonnage and assist in making complete delivery, since it will penetrate areas that are now without transportation facilities.

"The Big Four freight houses in Cincinnati have set the example. Two motor truck chassis and about ten bodies were used with tremendous success in relieving the railroads of a large tonnage of short-haul traffic. Branch stations received the bodies which were filled and loaded on the chassis. On a fixed schedule, they were brought to the terminals and their contents transferred to through cars. Under the old system, cars had to be sent to each of the branch stations and brought to the terminal by the engine, seldom more than a quarter filled.

"The advantages of this plan over the old extravagant methods are so vivid that other large cities throughout the United States are realizing the tremendous potentialities of the truck as a feeder to the railroads, and are establishing similar systems.

"The time will come when each and every motor truck that operates within a fifty-mile radius of large cities will be in effect a branch line of that railroad. The reason for this is that a railroad requires an immense initial investment for right of way, grading, bridges and rails, and is limited in the amount of traffic it will hold. If such a branch line does not pay for itself, it cannot be diverted. On the other hand, a motor truck route has no limitations and can easily be transferred to a more profitable route if one does not prove successful.

"There is but one resistance of this transportation millenium and that is the lack of appreciation of the necessity for good roads. The sooner solid-built national highways are supported by legislation, the sooner a great factor in the high cost of living will be reduced."

NO LONGER SCORN ASSEMBLED CARS.

"The scorn of the automobile business a few years ago was the so-called "assembled" car. Salesmen bragged about the fact that their company made all of its own parts, and that its car was built complete in its own plant," said Stewart McDonald, president and general manager of the Moon Motor Car Company of St. Louis. "Of course, this was never technically true, and one of the ill effects was that when a large part of the car was built in a factory, if that factory went out of business, owners were never able to get parts.

"Now the car which uses standard equipment throughout is the envy of the makers of the other kind, and it is the joy of the owner. No matter what happens to an agency in any town, the owner of such a car knows that he can get parts of a Continental engine, or Timken bearings, or Brown-Lipe transmissions, or Wagner electrical parts, or Rayfield carburetor parts, or Borg & Beck clutch parts, with very little trouble or delay."

FRANKLIN CAR Reliability and Air Cooling Superiority Again Demonstrated by a 98.2 Mile Non-Stop Low Gear Run Ending at Top of Famous Mt. Washington

ON August 17th, a Franklin stock model touring car ran all the way from Portland, Maine, to the top of Mt. Washington in New Hampshire on low gear without a stop. This remarkable feat is the latest public proof of the superiority of Franklin Direct Air Cooling (no water to boil or freeze).

Direct Air Cooling, eliminating Radiator, Water, and 176 other Delicate Parts, means less Weight, less Trouble, greater Simplicity, and better Results, as this test shows.

This car, just such a one as thousands of Franklin owners are driving all over the country, carried three official observers besides its driver and averaged 11.1 miles per hour—on low gear.

The Franklin had already run ninety miles on low gear without a stop before reaching the base of Mt. Washington—in itself a test never duplicated by other cars.

Then, without halt, came the real test the Franklin had set out to perform—a climb to the top of Mt. Washington, an elevation of 6290 feet.

Rain soaked, slippery roads; no chains; no stops permitted—these were the added difficulties to a performance generally considered impossible even under the best conditions. But the Franklin reached the summit overcame the final obstacle of a 27% grade in perfect running shape and returned to Portland the same day.

By official observation, the Franklin did not show the slightest trace of wear and tear or overheating, its engine performing with absolute regularity on all grades as well as on level going.

Ability for eighteen years to demonstrate consistently this kind of performance is what has made the Franklin known as the most practical fine car.

The JORDAN Silhouette Five

TIME was when we bought motor cars like graphophones—large enough to entertain the neighbors. Our friends now have motor cars of their own. Watch the endless line of motor cars moving down the boulevard. Count the average number of persons carried—it is really less than five.

Occasionally you see seven people in a car, but they all look strangely uncomfortable. The passenger capacity of the New Jordan Silhouette Five is in accord with the size of the average family, which is five persons. It weighs only 2800 pounds.

The chassis of finished mechanical excellence is the lightest on the road for its wheel base. In balance this car is supreme. It holds the road, speeding forward without a tremor, bouncing and swaying never.

Women with a natural appreciation for comfort, atmosphere and poise, will find this car irresistible in its compelling colors and fashion, comfortable to a delightful degree.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

There are more than 3,000,000 Ford Cars in daily service throughout the world, and fully 80% of these are Ford Touring Cars. There are many reasons for this, not the least of which is the simplicity and design of the car, so easy to understand; likewise it is easy to operate, and mighty inexpensive compared to other motor cars. The maintenance expense is low, and it has won an unparalleled reputation for satisfactory service during the past sixteen years. On the farm, in the city, for business and for family pleasure, it is the car of the people, and the demand is increasing every day. Let us have your order promptly if you want one. We can supply you with most everything in motor car accessories, and we assure you genuine Ford parts and skilled workmen in our repair service. SCHOOL GARAGES ARE COMMON NOW.

"Not only in the East, but in different sections of the West, and even on the Pacific Coast it is no longer a common sight to see garages being built at the rear of high schools, as well as private schools for accommodating the motor cars of those scholars who drive to school," says Gilbert Woodill, manager of the Western Motors Company, local Kissel distributor.

"Of course, such school garages are more common in those communities that are tributory to large agricultural sections, where the farmers' sons and daughters come a great distance to attend their classes.

"Such adaptability of the motor car has brought the city's educational facilities to the farm, enabling our agricultural populace to secure the same education as their city brothers and sisters.

ROADS AFFECT MOTOR HAULING

Special Highways Reduce Cost of Transportation.

Poor Roads Add Greatly to the Final Expense.

Importance of Speed in Road Building Emphasized.

"The day is not far distant when motor trucks will operate over highways built solely with that purpose in view.

"When that day comes motor truck transportation will have reached its height."

These prophetic statements were made a few days ago by E. A. Williams, Jr., president of the Garford Motor Truck Company. They came as the climax of an interview, or as Mr. Williams would have it, a discussion, of the future of the motor truck and its relationship to the improvement of the nation's highways. They followed a resume of what the motor truck has accomplished and what it is accomplishing in industrial, commercial and agricultural fields, the influence it has upon economic conditions and its present status in world affairs.

Early in the discussion naturally something was said about the part motor trucks played in the recent world conflict. Mr. Williams dismissed it with a word.

"The one big thing the war did for the motor truck was to provide it with an opportunity to prove its universal worth as a transportation factor," he said. "In other words the war accelerated its general adoption in the commercial field. It is commerce and industry, not war that concerns us today."

"If we are to discuss the motor truck let's get down to present facts and future possibilities," he continued.

"All about us are evidences of its utility. Each day sees the motor truck entering a new field of endeavor. I saw a moving picture a few days ago of a motor truck hauling cane in the Philippines. Oxen have been used there since the beginning of the industry. Down in India motor trucks are replacing elephants, oxen and men.

"In South America they are supplanting the burro. In various sections of the world, hitherto unexplored and undeveloped, they blaze the trail for enterprise.

"The remarkable thing about it all is that transportation by truck has not only proved itself more practical, but more economical than the older means.

"The Department of Agriculture estimates that for the year 1918 motor truck hauls from farm to shipping points averaged 11.3 miles while wagon hauls averaged 9 miles. The motor trucks made 2.4 round trips per day over the 11.3 miles while wagons made but 1.2 trips per day over the 9-mile route.

"The average cost per ton by the horse-drawn vehicles was 30 cents per mile for wheat, 23 cents for corn and 48 cents for cotton. The truck haulage per ton mile averaged 15 cents for wheat and corn and 18 cents for cotton. In several States the cost of transporting wheat was as low as 9 cents per ton mile while the lowest cost by wagon is estimated at 22 cents per ton mile. Quite a saving there, without taking into consideration the value of time saved and the economy in labor.

"The figures compiled by the government show definitely the importance good roads play in the reduction of costs. For instance, in the East North Central States, which boast miles of improved highway, the cost of haulage by truck was but 9 cents per mile in 1918. In the New England States, the Middle Atlantic States and the North Central States the cost was 14 cents. The cost increased to 18 cents in the South Atlantic States, where there are a limited number of improved roads, and to 29 cents in the Rocky Mountain district, where, of course, the grades affect all means of transportation.

"Contrasted with these figures are those showing the cost of hauling by horse-drawn vehicles. In the East South Central section the cost is 36 cents per ton mile, more than three times the cost by truck. In the South Atlantic States it is 39 cents, more than twice as much as by motor. In the Rocky Mountain district the cost reaches 42 cents, 13 cents more than the truck costs.

"After considering those figures one stops to wonder what the present cost of foodstuffs would be if it were not for the motor truck. Here is New York with more than 55,000 motor trucks registered. The average cost of hauling by truck in New York is 14 cents per ton mile, according to last year's figures. The cost by wagon is estimated at about 30 cents. There is a difference of 16 cents on each ton per mile. In a year the saving would run into an enormous amount."

Much More.

"Don't blame him too much. He is only a man."

"Only a man? Why, you gump, he's a tenor!"—[Baltimore American.

HIGH GASOLINE MILEAGE.

Beating its own record in the Yosemite economy run, some months ago, a stock model Briscoe touring car has just set up a gasoline mileage mark regarded as little short of phenomenal by those who witnessed the car's performance.

The Briscoe averaged twenty-eight and eight-tenths miles on gas in the Yosemite economy run, and this mark was over-topped by twenty-two and four-tenths miles in a test last week at Pomona, with the automobile department representatives of four Los Angeles newspapers as witnesses.

GOING SOME.

The Briscoe traveled fifty-one and two-tenths miles on a single gallon of gasoline, a performance such as has never been approached anywhere in the world before, according to all available records concerning stock model four-cylinder cars.

The Briscoe's mileage test was arranged by the Frank O. Renstrom Company, distributors of the Briscoe, and on the day of the attempt to establish a new record Manager Earl V. Abbott and Charles Rider, salesman, accompanied by the four Los Angeles newspaper men, made the trip from this city to Pomona to act as witnesses and to check against the Briscoe's performance. A.A.A. rules were observed throughout.

M. W. Zander, who piloted the Briscoe to victory in the Yosemite economy run, was at the wheel again on this occasion. All adjustments made on the Briscoe by him were such as might easily be made by any Briscoe owner familiar with his car. No special appliances of any description were employed, nothing being added to or taken away from the regular equipment of the car except that a can holding exactly one gallon of gasoline was mounted under the hood.

The newspaper representatives who watched the Briscoe in its remarkable record of 51.2 miles on one gallon of gasoline were [illegible] Times, W. B. SUNDAY MORNING.

A FEW HELPS IN STARTING.

Cold Weather and Poor Gasoline Cause Troubles.

Many Devices on Market Which Prove Helpful.

Electrically-Operated Primer is a Success.

In cold weather gasoline does not vaporize as it does in higher temperatures, resulting in all sorts of starting troubles from hard starting to lack of power. As gasoline gets older it becomes, we might say, thicker or heavier, and then instead of flowing freely through the nozzle of the carbureter it has difficulty in coming through at all, especially on starting up. In order to make the matter clear, imagine the gasoline to be as thick as mucilage. The latter cannot be forced through a very small opening such as a carbureter nozzle and formed into a fine spray. It might be forced through, but it would run down the sides of the nozzle or be pushed into the manifold in the form of drops. Cold weather does just that.

ON STARTING.

In starting a cold engine on these days of poor (heavy) gasoline even on a moderately warm day it is necessary to apply the choke. This is done in order that a large amount of gasoline will be drawn through the nozzle in the hope that in that way enough there is enough of a volatile nature to get into the combustion chamber and explode. It is for the same reason that you prime the engine through the pet cocks or special primer. You introduce into the combustion chamber a comparatively large amount of fuel the latter part of which is so heavy that it will not vaporize even with the necessary heat applied. The result, though a small portion of the whole, forms a sufficiently large mixture volume to start an explosion, which is all that is necessary. The trouble with priming and with keeping the choke applied is that it wastes fuel and also lets into the engine a quantity of gasoline which is not to work, in fact it is harmful, for it may say the production of carbon and oil contamination are very harmful. The gasoline that does not vaporize does not all go out through the exhaust. Some of it does, but much burns with a flame and deposits carbon. Some also works down the sides of the pistons and gets into the crank case, where it mixes with the oil. Both conditions are not the best for the engine, as part of the two the oil dilution is the worst. The oil is thinned and does not feed, hence lubrication of the working engine is impaired.

REMEDIES.

The owner can overcome some of these difficulties by making a few changes and observing certain facts. He can install a primer, but instead of using ordinary gasoline use a mixture of gasoline and kerosene or commercial benzol. This gives firing immediately, providing the spark is good, and avoids using a large quantity of gasoline to get initial firing. Secondly, instead of keeping the choke applied longer than necessary. So much for getting started. After the engine is started, it should run at such a constant temperature that the fuel will be in the

NEW HELPS IN STARTING.

Cold Weather and Poor Gasoline Cause Troubles.

Various Devices on Market Which Prove Helpful.

Electrically-Operated Primer Is a Success.

Cold weather gasoline does not ignite as it does in higher temperatures resulting in all sorts of starting troubles from hard starting to lack of power. As gasoline gets colder, we might say, or heavier, and then instead of flowing freely through the nozzle of the carburetor it has difficulty in passing through at all, especially on cold days. In order to make the gasoline, imagine the gasoline as thick as mucilage. The latter must be forced through a very fine opening such as a carburetor nozzle and formed into a fine spray.
It must be forced through, but it will run down the sides of the pipe to be sucked into the manifold in the form of drops. Cold does just that.

ON STARTING.

In starting a cold engine on these days of poor (heavy) gasoline even the most enthusiastic warm day it is necessary to apply the choke. This is in order that a large amount of gasoline will be drawn through the jets in the hope that in that manner there is enough of a vapor mixture to get into the combustion chamber and explode. It is for the same reason that you prime by squirting through the pet cocks or priming primer. You introduce into the combustion chamber a comparatively large amount of fuel the greater part of which is so heavy that it will not vaporize even with the heat applied. The result, though a small portion of the gasoline forms a sufficiently large gaseous volume to start an explosion, that is all that is necessary. The trouble with priming and with keeping the choke applied is that it floods the fuel and also lets into the cylinders a quantity of gasoline which is not only of no work, in fact it is harmful, as it may cause the production of carbon and oil contamination are very harmful. The gasoline that passes the exhaust does not all go out through the exhaust. Some of it burns and much burns with a flame that deposits carbon. Some also passes down the sides of the pistons and goes into the crank case, where it mixes with the oil. Both conditions are not the best for the engine, the latter the two the oil dilution is the worst. The oil is thinned and the proper lubrication of the engine is impaired.

REMEDIES.

The owner can overcome some of these difficulties by making a few trials and observing certain facts.
Instead of priming, put instead of using ordinary gasoline use a mixture of gasoline and commercial alcohol. This gives firing immediately, starting the spark is good, and avoids using a large quantity of gas for initial firing. Secondly, instead of keeping the choke applied longer than necessary. So much for starting. After the engine is started, it should run at such a speed that the fuel will be vaporized before it gets into the combustion chamber. This does three things: It saves fuel, gives more power, and keeps the engine clean.
The same results practically are had if the fuel is preheated enough and kept so until it reaches the cylinders.

There are various ways in which the engine temperature can be kept up. One is to use a radiator shutter or a radiator cover. When the engine is cold these can be made to keep out the cold or they will so reduce the effective fan draft as to reduce the cooling effect on the water in the radiator. Thermostatic control of the water is another method, but it is not considered to have all the advantages of air control. The thermostat blocking the water passage when the engine is cold is likely to cause freezing of the water at the bottom of the radiator while the rest of the water is warming.
By all means it is necessary for the owner to alter the carburetor hot air opening. While for part of the running it will be advisable to close the air control altogether, it also will be found that doing this reduces the power perceptibly. If a means of attaching a hand control is provided, it should be done. If there is no such means it is obviously impractical to lift the hood and change the size of the air opening.
If there is a fuel preheater, or a shutter, I believe it best to keep the hot air control open only half way.
If you find you can get results with it open full, do so, because then you take in cold air which permits of higher volumetric efficiency.

VARIOUS DEVICES.

The market now affords various devices for heating the gasoline either for priming or for normal running or both. The electricallyoperated primers will be found to be especially desirable, as they heat the gasoline by causing it to pass over a red hot coil made so by battery current. Fuel preheaters in constant operation may be of the electrical or exhaust type. The latter are more economical and if properly regulated are perfectly satisfactory. Hot spot manifolds tend to produce the same effect, but the manifold must have a reasonably large size heated area before it will show good results.

For general all-round results, giving the easiest starting normal power, good flexibility and fuel economy,
I believe the following will be found just about right: A primer using a highly volatile mixture, with initial mixture preferably heated, hot air control open half way and a heated intake.

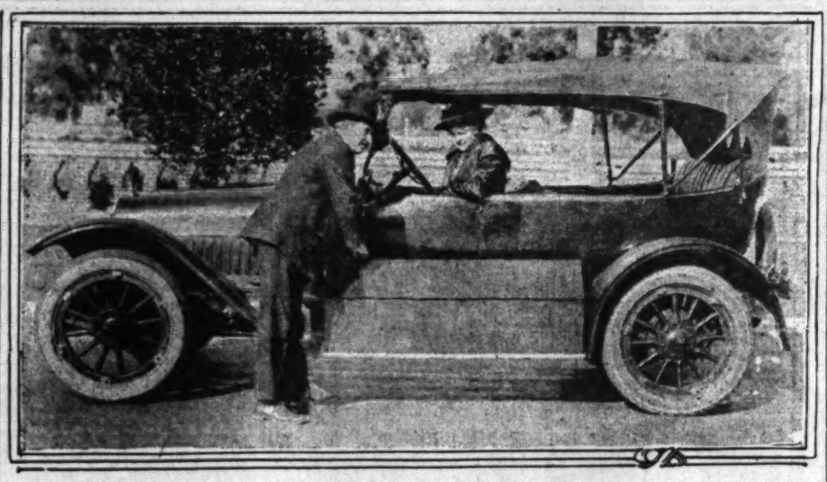
CANAVAN EAST TO FIGHT FOR MACHINES.

J. C. Canavan, salesmanager of the White Auto Company, distributor of White trucks and Stephens automobiles, left last Sunday morning on a pilgrimage to the White and the Stephens factories. O. R. Fuller, head of the company, recently returned from a business trip to both plants. Canavan will supplement his chief's efforts to secure more deliveries as there is a very pressing demand for both White trucks and Stephens cars.

ROY MEADS ON TRIP TO BAY CITY.

Roy R. Meads, president and general manager of the Pacific Rubber Company, distributor of Horseshoe tires, has been in San Francisco the past week, attending to business connected with the company's branch in that city.



A Fully-equipped Camping Mitchell.

Which was driven on a long tour by Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Bemus. They started from Connaught, O., and covered 3600 miles between there and Los Angeles. The Mitchell came through with flying colors and the repair bill for the trip amounted to 30 cents.

UPKEEP EXPENSE IS REASONABLE.

THIRTY-SIX-HUNDRED-MILE TRIP WITH 30 CENTS FOR REPAIRS.

With Ohio air in three tires, Mr. and Mrs. M. Jay Bemus arrived in Los Angeles last week from Connaught, O., after having spent but 30 cents for the upkeep of their machine, a Mitchell touring car, model D-540, aside from gasoline and oil consumed in the 3600-mile trip.

Mr. Bemus, who is the representative of a Chicago packing concern in Connaught and surrounding territory, was given a year's vacation, beginning October 1, last. He and his wife decided that his vacation would not be complete without a motor trip to California and a sojourn here for the winter months. Accordingly they set out early in October, with the home of Mrs. Bemus's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Weston, 2030 West Thirtieth street, Los Angeles, as their destination.

They spent twenty-six driving days in their Mitchell, which Mr. Bemus declares is ideal for such a trip. They had many interesting experiences along the way, but encountered nothing in the way of roads and grades that the Mitchell did not surmount with ease. They found that part of their trip from Denver west the most interesting.

At Oatman, Ariz., Mr. Bemus piloted the Mitchell up Stockton Hill, which is known in Arizona as one of the toughest grades in the State. The road, if such it can be termed, rises 1600 feet in one mile, and is literally strewn with boulders which the axles of a car barely clear. "We carried a 1200-pound load up Stockton Hill without the slightest difficulty," Mr. Bemus stated. "In fact, we found like the boys who always scale the highest branches, that it was harder to get down than to get up. We succeeded, however, in making the descent without mishap.

Another place in Arizona where we had to proceed very cautiously was in Nelson Canyon, a twelve-mile trip which often took us down precipitous grades into washes where the bridges had been carried away, but we came through this, too. We simply took our time all along the way, observing no schedule as to our departure from any particular place or as to our arrival. It took us twenty-six driving days to reach Los Angeles, though a part of this time was spent in making side trips, such as around Denver and from Denver on."

MIRAGES AT NIGHT IS TRAVELING SOME.

"Automobile mirages" at night are the latest discovery of science.

The next time you think you see two cars coming along the highway, and discover later that there is only one, don't call up a brain specialist or sign the moonshine pledge. It's just another of those "auto mirages" and you aren't to blame.

Two Reed College professors, Dr. A. A. Knowlton of the physics department and Dr. William Conger Morgan, who teaches chemistry, are responsible for the discovery of the "auto mirage," an account of which is given in an October issue of Science Magazine.

The "auto mirage" was seen when the scientists were motoring from Reed College in Portland, Or., to the University of California in Berkeley. While passing over the Pacific highway in the Sacramento Valley, "just after dusk," writes Dr. Knowlton, "a car with powerful lights came over the rise a mile or so ahead. A minute later the lights of a second car appeared some distance in front of the first, as if the driver had just turned them on. These lights were about half as brilliant as those of the first car and the impression was that two cars were approaching—a small one followed by a larger one. The large car was seen to gradually overtake the small one until finally the two sets of lights coalesced and a minute later we met and passed—a single car. 'I thought there were two of them,' said Dr. Morgan. So did I. We had seen a mirage at night."

The article in Science explains that the Pacific highway in the Sacramento Valley, being paved and under a hot sun, is an ideal place for mirages, because they require a layer of warm air immediately over the ground in order to be seen. Mirages in the afternoon are common occurrences, but the mirage at night is a new discovery.

NEW FACTORIES TO BOOST PRODUCTION.

Increased demand for Service trucks has necessitated still further additions to the large factories of the Service Motor Truck Company, Wabash, Ind., and work has recently been started on what will be known as the E unit, 75x775 feet.

The other units of the factories are the same size and this building, together with the new administration building which has just been completed, the factory's garage and cafeteria will give the Service Truck Company a total floor space of about eight acres.

ABOUT BATTERY ABILITY.

How many owners of a battery, know that its ability to give, depends largely upon the number, size and thickness of the plates which it contains.

It is that very lack of knowledge which the general run of motorists are shy of, which makes a battery guarantee necessary. In California, as in most States, a weight and measure law compels the manufacturer of an article, to indicate on the sealed parcel, the quantity of its contents. That law applies to medicine, groceries, candies and most everything else except storage batteries. The purchaser of a pound of candy can weigh it and open the container and can be certain that his candy is not soap, or something else, but with a battery it is different, and when it is realized that the life and service of the battery depends on the size, thickness and number of plates, sealed tight within the black cover, it at once becomes apparent that a definite contract guarantee of the contents of the black box is of value to the purchaser of the battery.

"Take the Columbia Storage Battery as an allustration," said Harold L. Arnold, the man who sells that make of batteries, "and the definite contract guarantee which goes with every Columbia battery, assures the purchaser that it contains a definite number of units of energy, which will positively start and light the auto over a definite period of time. Back of the Columbia batteries is the National Carbon Company, who agree to make good to the purchaser any deficiency which may occur during the guaranteed life of the battery.

"It is this assurance of definite service and definite life of a battery," says Mr. Arnold, "which has made the Columbia battery so popular throughout the United States. When I determined to go into the battery business, I made a thorough investigation and learned that the National Carbon Company, with their millions of dollars back of the production of the Columbia battery, would assure the motive of maximum service and minimum cost. That is why I decided to merchandise Columbia batteries in Los Angeles."

HEWETT TIRE STARS WIN CHAMPIONSHIP.

OUT-OF-WORK-HOUR SPORTS ARE ENCOURAGED BY BIG CONCERN.

When J. B. Wood was at the factory of the Hewitt Rubber Company recently the Buffalo city baseball championship was being decided and the team representing the Hewitt tire makers won the honor. More than 20,000 persons attended some of the games in the final series and Mr. Wood became such an enthusiastic baseball fan that he delayed his return home until the results had been decided. Baseball is not the only athletic sport in which the tire makers engage, as participation by employees in all branches is encouraged by the factory officials. There is a championship basketball team, and Mr. Wood says he will try to arrange with the Los Angeles Athletic Club's team to meet the Hewitts, if they make a contemplated trip to this Coast. The question of the factory team's rating, whether amateur or professional, would enter into the matter.

"The Hewitt Rubber Company, makers of Hewitt tires and tubes, encourages its employees along any line of out-of-work-hours enterprise that may appeal to them," said Mr. Wood. "The biggest feature in this connection is the results that are accomplished. The output of the factory is kept up to the top notch and there are no such thing as labor troubles. The majority of the men at the Hewitt factory have been there several years and have formed a loyalty for the organization that cannot be shaken."

The Car That Made Good in a Day and Has Been Making Good EVERY DAY Ever Since

THE CAR THAT MADE STUTZ GOOD IN A DAY

How the Stutz "made good in a day" when it made its debut to the motor world in 1911 on the Indianapolis Speedway is merely an interesting episode in motor car history. But the fact that the sturdy Stutz has been making good every day ever since in the hands of thousands of owners is more than mere history—it is the foundation of Stutz success.

Correctness of design and unusual ruggedness of construction insure the Stutz making good every day under the most severe service. Stutz cars from the beginning were built to make good—if they didn't make good, we couldn't have made good in distributing nothing but Stutz cars for 9 years.

The Road—In New Overland 4 on Three-Point Cantilever Springs

YOU expect a bad road to ride as it looks. It did, until the introduction of the Overland 4 Springbase.

Overland 4 does not change the road, but it does change the manner in which you can ride on it. It gives you comfort instead of dis-comfort. It gives you a smooth, sailing sensation instead of bouncing and swaying.

The Diagonal attachment of Three-Point Cantilever Springs at the ends of a 130-inch Springbase gives long wheelbase road steadiness. Yet Overland 4 retains all the advantages—lightness, economy, and ease of handling, of 100-inch wheelbase.

This means an altogether new standard of riding comfort, a noteworthy reduction in the wear and tear which lessens the efficiency of a car. The new springs give longer life to every part and thus minimize upkeep and replacement costs.

Tires wear longer because cushioned against hammering blows. Light weight means marked economy in gas, oil and running expense.

Overland 4's equipment is complete from Auto-Lite Starting and Lighting to Demountable Rims.

Can't Be Beat in a Sport Roadster.

Miss Suzanne Avery, dainty film star, at the wheel of one of the new series Stutz speedsters.

STUTZ SPEEDSTER IS POPULAR WITH MOVIES.

MANY NOTED FILM FOLKS SELECT CLASSY SIXTEEN-VALVE CREATION.

The Stutz car has always been a prime favorite with the local film folk. At the studios or on the boulevards many of our favorite stars may be seen behind the wheel of their Stutz. With the arrival of the new series Stutz at the Walter M. Brown Company, exclusive distributors, the continued popularity of the car with the screen players is a foregone conclusion.

Especially does the two-passenger speedster seem to hold a warm spot in the hearts of the members of the local film colony and the new series sport car has received much attention from that quarter. Suzanne Avery, dainty star of the Henry Lehrman studios, has always been an ardent Stutz booster and was one of the first persons to give the new car a try-out.

Although the new car reveals no radical change over the previous model a number of refinements are very apparent. Chief among the changes has been the addition of a door on the left side of the car. This adds greatly to the convenience of getting in and out of the racy model and of course is a feature that appeals to milady. Although originally designed as a gentleman's sport roadster the two-passenger speedster made an instant hit with the feminine motor enthusiasts all over the country and the slight change in the body design was made with the view of making it a practical car for the gentler sex as well.

The new series Stutz is equipped with a new design wire wheel which is said to be 75 per cent. more efficient than other types. Although the motor remains the same famous sixteen-valve Stutz design, a new synchronized feature has been added which reduces vibration to the vanishing point.

DO YOU UNDERSTAND YOUR SKID CHAINS?

TIRE MILEAGE CUT THROUGH IMPROPER ADJUSTMENT OF CHAINS.

The use of skid chains during each wet and rainy spell demonstrates that a large number of motorists do not know how to properly put chains on with a result that their tire mileage is cut way down from what they would ordinarily get.

Many motorists, afraid that the chains may loosen and that they will loose them, have a habit of tying the chains to the spokes of the wheel, but the damage this will do the tire is greater than the loss of the chain would be, according to Mr. N. M. Robertson of the C. Fred Thompson Tire Company, distributors here in the south for Mason cord and fabric tires.

"If the cross pieces of the chain are kept in one place," says Mr. Robertson, "they will cut into the tread and tear off pieces of the rubber for the chains are constructed so as to slip around and not remain at one point.

"Chains should not be used unnecessarily on paved streets as they can not help but wear on the tires and while it only takes a few minutes to remove them one can see many machines running around all day on dry pavements expecting it to rain, and then some people wonder why they do not get higher tire mileage."

MOTOR VANS PROVE MOST PROFITABLE.

BUSINESS EXPANSION FOLLOWS USE OF PIERCE-ARROW EQUIPMENT IN MOVING.

Motor trucks are yielding such surprising profits in the business of moving household furniture that the day is not far distant when a horse-drawn furniture van will be a rarity, according to Robert O. Patten, truck sales manager of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company.

"In the earlier days of the motor truck industry, many movers believed that trucks could not be used profitably in their business because of long loading and unloading periods," says Mr. Patten. "Those who pioneered in the use of trucks, however, found that they were far more profitable than horses."

Proof of this is found in the experience of the W. C. Reekie & Bro. Co. of Chicago, Ill. This firm in 1912 purchased a five-ton Pierce-Arrow truck. Its operation was so successful that it added two two-ton units to its equipment. Later two lighter trucks were bought. Of the forty-five horses maintained originally by the firm, twenty-five of them have been retired, and yet the business has expanded. The five-ton unit now has traveled nearly 40,000 miles, and its profits long since have more than warranted its use.

"Movers now are able to compete with railroads on distance haulage between neighboring cities and towns," says Mr. Patten. "Loads can be moved with two handlings instead of four, and the time saved is a valuable factor. Customers are eager to utilize such service."

WOMEN TAKE HAND IN CAR PURCHASING.

LOOK FOR SOMETHING BESIDES COMFORTABLE UPHOLSTERY AND FEATURES.

"Woman is rapidly coming to the front in the purchasing of motor cars, and it is literally true that comparatively few motor-car sales are now made in which a woman does not have a considerable amount of influence," says Hal Tuttle, manager of the Howard Auto Company.

This fact was recognized some years ago, as veteran motor-car dealers know, but at that time woman's interests in cars seemed to be centered chiefly in the closed models.

And when she did express her opinion concerning one of the open models, it was usually along the lines of appearance, finish and refinements.

For this reason, there was a general impression in the industry, that women were inclined to take the mechanical features of a motor car for granted, and the first move of the salesman was to land the woman buyer into the tonneau, invite her to be seated and call her attention to the comfort, roominess and luxury there.

But since that time, women have learned to drive—not merely a few here and there, but in great numbers. A great many women have Buick cars for their own exclusive use. Others share a car with one or more other members of the family. And as a result of their driving, women have been drawn more intimately in touch with the mysterious forces and mechanism that give life and action to the motor car, and today their interest in the mechanical side of the automobile is great.

ROAD BONDS VOTED BY YUMA COUNTY.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.)

YUMA (Ariz.) Nov. 15.—Yuma county has authorized the issuance of $1,600,000 road bonds, though by a light vote. The money is to be used principally in providing pavement for the main highways of the Yuma Valley, but also there is to be built a good roadway eastward, paralleling the Gila River at least to Mohawk, where it is expected the State will take up the task of pushing through the Borderland Highway to a junction with the Maricopa county road system at Agua Caliente or at the Hassayampa. The location survey on this through road already has been started by the State Engineer's office. At present, between Mohawk and Agua Caliente, about forty miles, the way is almost impassable, both for sand and brush. In Maricopa county, from Agua Caliente to Arlington, at the mouth of the Hassayampa, the road is desert, rough, though negotiable. Beyond Arlington to Phoenix the roads are dirt, but good. It is planned also to reach out for the Ajo trade with a possible through road connection to the southeast, and also to build a dirt highway northward to Quartzsite and towns along the Arizona and California Railroad.

GLOOMS KICKED OUT AND JOYS RETURN.

CARLOAD OF MACHINES EN ROUTE GIVES DEALER A NEW LEASE ON LIFE.

The "glooms" have all been kicked out and the "joys" are back again down at the Standard Steel Automotive Corporation and all because a carload of new Standard eights is now on the way and expected any day.

"I guess Keith must have done some real talking or some nifty work of some kind," says Mr. C. P. Vauclain, "for he got the cars and they are now on the way, which is the principal thing, and how he did it or the methods used really doesn't matter.

"When he left he said he would get them if he had to call the strike off and build them himself and it only goes to show that if you really want something and want it bad the best way to get it is to go after it.

"These cars coming now are the new series Standard eights and in them some real innovations have been introduced which will be a surprise, but rather than tell it all we will wait and show them on our display floor as soon as they arrive."

PECULIAR USE FOR MORELAND

[A big Moreland truck, manufactured in this city, is to be put to an unusual test in Sydney, Australia. The article is taken from the Sunday News of Sydney.]

A petrol-driven motor carriage, about which much should be heard in the future, will be introduced to the State railways this week. At present it is largely experimental, and has to adjust itself to the running cost of the department, and prove its convenience and practicability. If it does this, there is little doubt that New South Wales railway travelers will soon be speeding over short-distance lines in comfortable, easy-running motor carriages.

The commissioners are so satisfied with a trial run between Sydney and Waterfall, a few days ago, that they have issued instructions for the service to commence on the Lismore line on Tuesday of this week.

BUILT FROM MOTOR LORRY.

The rail motor is a distinct departure from railway transport in Australia. Nothing exactly like it has been attempted before, and "Rail Motor No. 1," as it is classified, carries with it a big responsibility. Originally "Rail Motor No. 1," was a five-ton Moreland motor lorry, fulfilling a widely different task for the Railway Department. To convert it into a motor carriage, the chassis was lengthened by eight feet six inches, and the front wheels replaced by a four-wheeled bogie, identical to that attached to the forepart of the ordinary locomotive. Similarly, the back wheels were replaced by those in use on a carriage. The specially constructed body is similar to the railway carriage. It will accommodate thirty-three passengers. Only in minor detail does the interior differ from that of the ordinary first-class carriage in use on all surburban lines. It has six doorways—two at each end, like the street cars, and two in the center. The motor—forty horsepower—has not been altered, and in the trial run responded satisfactorily to the maximum pressure it will be asked to bear in ordinary working use.

TWENTY-FIVE MILES AN HOUR

The time-table on the Lismore line, to which this motor carriage will be confined for the time being, provides for a speed up to twenty-five miles per hour, and the commissioners are satisfied that the car can meet this demand with ease. In fact, in the trial run it negotiated a one-in-forty grade at a speed of eighteen miles per hour without any tax on the engine. It rides smoothly and comfortably. There is no jolting, and the soft purr of the high-power engine is barely detectable above the "click-click" of the wheels. Those who have tested it declare it to be an improvement on ordinary train traveling. It responds to the increased power of the engine without jerk, and so perfectly have the springs been adjusted that a slight, and certainly not an unpleasant, swaying motion is its only noticeable feature when at top speed.

TO TRAIL SMALL GOODS VAN.

The motor man—or is he engine-driver or chauffeur?—is accommodated in a small inclosure, just as are the drivers on the street trams. His work is that of the ordinary motor driver. The life of the engine should be far greater than that on the street lorry, as it will not be subject to the vibration of bad roads. Apart from carrying passengers, provision has been made to attach a small van to load cream cans when necessary. This has already been constructed, and will be in use on the Lismore line also.

The rail motor is to be given three months' trial under every-day conditions. If it proves equal to the work, the commissioners will introduce similar types—or improved if necessary—on a good many of the branch lines. The cost of petrol, staff, and general running expenses will be carefully recorded during that period, and compared with the ordinary outlay. The commissioners are unable to give an accurate forecast of these details, but they are, at least, most optimistic. They see no reason to doubt their practicability. Should they be suitable, it [illegible] constructional [illegible] Leigh workshops [illegible] is established [illegible] sibly the engines [illegible] factured here. [illegible] though, it was [illegible] experiment with [illegible] mediate commencement [illegible] that of the Commissioners, and it was considered [illegible] riage and wages [illegible]

TIRE DIFFICULTIES BELOW SEA LEVEL

Motorists who [illegible] in California, which is [illegible] Centro and the [illegible] rial Valley country, have like motorists elsewhere some of the trials of experience are even more in low-lying districts where.

The fact that tires deteriorate faster below sea level than elsewhere was considered [illegible] week to El Centro by [illegible] secretary-treasurer of the Rubber Company, manufacturer of Planet sub-tires. A visit to the same locality [illegible] ago, served to convince [illegible] Company official that the level country offers a lucrative market for tires.

"I found that three principal conditions [illegible] shorten the life of tires in Imperial Valley," [illegible] told W. A. Jackson, [illegible] back from his first trip to [illegible]tro. "One of these conditions is the climatic [illegible] there, while the other is [illegible] torists who want to get [illegible] like the real value from [illegible] are forced to give them [illegible] tention. Faulty brakes cause damage and loss of life

OFFICIAL statistics show that 10 per cent. of all cars meet with accidents every year.

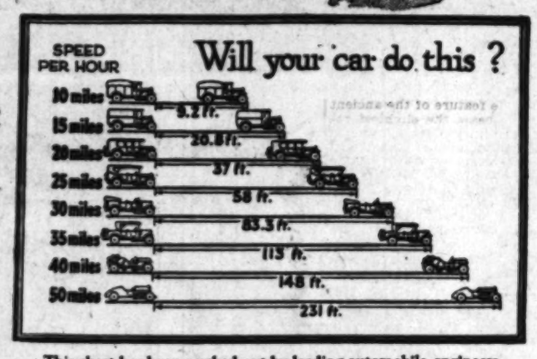
Some person is killed or injured in four out of five of these accidents.

Records kept by state officials further show that 10 per cent. of all automobile accidents could be absolutely prevented if the brakes had been efficient and properly handled.

Make sure of the brakes on YOUR car

It is easy to assume that your brakes are efficient. They are out of sight, and you seldom think of them until you really need them.

Make sure that your automobile is safe for riding. Have your garage man inspect the brakes. When the big emergency comes, you can feel certain that they will not fail. Brake inspection does not necessarily mean new brake lining.



This chart has been worked out by leading automobile engineers. It shows how quickly an automobile going at various speeds should be able to stop, providing the brakes are efficient.

Why Thermoid Brake Lining is safest and wears longest

In each square inch of Thermoid Brake Lining there is 40% more material than in ordinary woven lining. TIRE DIFFICULTIES BELOW SEA LEVEL

Motorists who live below sea level in California, which is to say, in the Imperial Valley country, have their troubles like motorists elsewhere. In addition some of the trials all motorists experience are even more aggravating in low-lying districts than elsewhere.

The fact that fires cause tires to deteriorate faster below sea level than elsewhere occasioned a visit last week to El Centro by J. C. Hall, secretary-treasurer of the Fisk Rubber Company, manufacturers of Planet sub-tires. A previous visit to the same locality, a few years ago, served to convince the Fisk Company official that the below-sea-level country offered a very attractive market for Planet sub-tires.

"I found that there were two principal conditions that seemed to shorten the life of pneumatic tires in Imperial Valley," Secretary Hall told W. A. Jackson, when he came back from his first trip to the valley. "One of these destroying factors is the climatic condition that is there, while the other is said by motorists who want to get somewhat like the real value from their tires are forced to give them considerable attention. The rubber in tires loses life rapidly.

The limousette certainly fills a long-felt want, inasmuch as it gives all the comfort of a closed car and still can be made into an open car at a touch and without stopping the car or leaving the seat. In rainy weather the clear full vision will be appreciated by those who heretofore have had to be content with dirty and cumbersome side curtains, with only half vision. It is in reality an all-season attachment, as it will keep out wind and dust as well as the rain, and will surely be popular with campers and picknickers in this land where everyone wants to live out of doors as much as possible.

The appearance of the car is much improved and the top is made much stronger by installing the limousette. The installation can be done in a few minutes, and in case one wants the top down it can be taken off in an instant.

Just What a HOT SPOT Chalmers Saves on a Cold Day

MOST cars are hard to start on a cold day. There is a notable exception in the Hot Spot Chalmers.

It responds to the pressure of the starter button, "warms up" quickly and runs at a high point of efficiency in a few moments.

It saves many things on a cold day:

1. Your battery
2. Your gas
3. Your time
4. Your temper

Hot Spot and Ram's-horn provide cold weather efficiency. They "crack up" the gas, rush it to the cylinders before it can condense, and "warm up" the engine in quick time.

Let us explain to you just how these two magnificent devices do the work. Once you understand them your admiration will grow stronger for a Hot Spot Chalmers.

NOTICE

Hot Spot Chalmers are being received in increasing quantities as factory production is rapidly climbing back to normal in spite of steel strikes and other discouraging conditions. Place your order with nearest agency immediately. Can promise early delivery.

FARM-TO-TABLE WEEK IS HERE.

Motorists Take Swat at High Cost of Living.

Getting Thanksgiving Supplies Along Highway.

Bulletin Boards Erected to Give Drivers a Hint.

"Farm-to-table Week," which had its official inauguration throughout the nation yesterday gives every promise of being successful in its mission to demonstrate to city people the advisability of country shopping as a means of reducing the high cost of living.

The period set aside for this movement is very opportune, in view of the fact that Thanksgiving is so near at hand. The purchase of such farm and dairy products as butter, eggs, chickens, turkeys, potatoes, celery, squash, pumpkins, etc., from the producer will result in the saving of many dollars to thrifty housewives.

The farmers are advertising their products on bulletin boards erected by the roadside. The success of "Farm-to-table Week," it is believed, will encourage the maintenance of such bulletin boards throughout the year. The farmers are not only posting the variety of products they have for sale, but also are listing prices. People who motor into the country will find that the saving effected will more than repay them for their time and trouble.

The possibilities of bringing down soaring food prices by the truck-patch-to-consumer route are enormous. Bigger demands of the farmer are certain to result in greater production, and ample supply will mean a drop in prices. Hundreds of automobile owners will take advantage of this opportunity and shop direct with the producer.

ASPHALT BASE OILS UP IN LOCAL FAVOR.

INQUIRIES ALSO RECEIVED FROM SOUTH AMERICA AND ORIENT.

The demand for California asphalt base lubricating oils is becoming greater every day, not only in California and the eastern part of the United States, but also from all over the world, according to M. B. Sheafor of the Turner Oil Company. Inquiries are being received daily from Europe, South America and the Orient. It is a regrettable fact that a few years ago the California motorist would not use the home product on account of theories not based on actual facts, that it would not lubricate; but those theories have been entirely overcome, and today California lubricants are quoted on the market at practically the same price as Penn products at their respective refineries.

California lubricants possess qualities which are not found in other oils and when properly blended with Penn selected stock make an ideal lubricant for motor cars. Lubro motor oil, manufactured by the Turner Oil Company, is such an oil, being blended by a new process which insures uniformity and perfect lubrication at moderate cost.

FACTORY HAS HANDS IN AIR

Demands for Cars Far Ahead of Production.

Construction of New Units will Relieve Congestion.

Local Dealer Expects to Have More Cars Soon.

Encouraging reports have been received by Don Smith, general manager for the W. P. Herbert Company, distributor of the Cleveland six, from W. P. Herbert, who now is at the factory. Mr. Herbert went to the seat of production in the effort to stimulate shipments to Southern California, and upon arrival there found that the makers of the car that was ready for production three years before it was placed upon the market have their hands in the air in token of surrender. Their attitude is due to the fact they cannot provide enough cars to meet the demand, Mr. Herbert writes. A new building is in course of construction, and it is expected to provide some relief.

The new addition to the plant, according to Mr. Herbert, is 200x80 feet in dimension, of brick, steel and concrete construction, four stories high, and will cost $200,000. It is expected to increase production facilities for the Cleveland lightweight six motor car by one-third. With the completion of the addition, the Cleveland factory will be 800x80 feet, four stories high, and contain 256,000 square feet of floor space.

"When the men behind the Cleveland six planned a factory," writes Mr. Herbert, "they purchased sufficient land for future extensions, but contemplated no additions in the near future, believing the original plant would be large enough to meet the demand for the new car. However, even before there was created a dealer organization of 1000 there came a demand for the Cleveland car that swamped the factory. In order to help out in such a crisis the new addition has become necessary, and it will be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

"The schedule of the Cleveland factory calls for a daily output of 150 cars. This number has not been reached up to this date, but it soon will be, and then we can expect to begin to supply the demand that exists in Southern California."

NEWEST CAR SHOWS DECIDED CHANGES.

The complete revolution in automobile construction that has taken place in the past two decades is interestingly shown by a comparison afforded during the past week at the salesrooms of J. W. Leavitt and Company, Oldsmobile distributors. Side by side on the floor are shown a modern Oldsmobile eight and a "curved dash" Olds of the vintage of 1902. According to L. V. Starr, manager of J. W. Leavitt and Company, it is hard to find a single feature of the ancient model which bears the slightest resemblance to the practice followed in motor-car construction of today.

"In the steering apparatus of the old car, for example," said Starr last week, "the front spring actually turns with the wheels. There is a full elliptic spring, set transversely on the axle, and this spring turns with the wheels. This was by no means the only spring system on the old car, however, for the two semi-elliptic springs extended from front to rear axle on either side of the body, a practice that would hardly arouse much enthusiasm among modern engineers.

The radiator, of curved gas-pipe with metal fins, was hung beneath the car. A chain drive transmitted the power of the single-cylinder motor to the rear axle. There is virtually nothing about the car that gives the slightest hint of the progress that as to come in to designing of motor cars. The ideals of the men who built buggies still held control over the designers of motor cars in 1902.

Yet, crude as it appears to us today, the old cars ran, and ran successfully enough to make enthusiasts of the men who drove them. Moreover, this particular car that we have on hand today makes as good time as it did seventeen years ago, which is perhaps not saying much, but still is quite an achievement for such a veteran machine."

SPECIFY THE BRAND WHEN GETTING OIL.

When ordering lubricating oil do not simply order "some oil," but rather specify the brand of oil you want and you will be much more likely to get what you want.

This is the opinion of Oscar Fox, salesman for the Panama Lubricants Company, distributors for the Pennsoil line of oils and greases, who believes that many motor troubles could be avoided if the motorists made sure each time he was getting a good quality of Pennsylvania paraffin base oils.

If you simply order oil, it leaves it up to the station attendant to put in any kind of oil he might happen to have around and it will generally be one that is long on margin of profit and short on lubricating qualities, so it behooves every one to specify what he or she wants.

WINSHIELD WINGS GETTING POPULAR.

Mr. Miller of the M. & M. Manufacturing Company at 2207 S. Main street has just returned from the East and Northwest, with orders and contracts, amounting to $120,000 for his famous windshield wings, which are all to be manufactured in a short time, as there is a great demand for wings right now.

Mr. Miller stated that this is only the beginning of the wing business, as there are only about 5 per cent. of the cars equipped at present, so you can imagine what demand there will be if all the wings manufacturers equip 30 or 40 per cent. of the automobiles now in use.

But Mr. Miller says that he is ready and prepared to meet any demand which may arise, as he has now under construction a new factory which will be completed and ready to move into in about two weeks.

The Necessary Elgin Six

Don't be disappointed again this year—

DURING the season of 1918 thousands of people who wanted to buy new cars were disappointed because of the general car shortage. Automobile factories were engaged in war work; passenger car production was greatly reduced; and dealers were unable to get deliveries to take care of their sales.

The result was, hundreds of buyers had to wait for weeks and months for delivery of cars ordered, while thousands were unable to secure new cars at all. 743,000 fewer passenger cars were built in 1918 than the year previous. The shortage still exists, and manufacturers say normal production will not be reached this year.

If you wait until the buying season opens up, you are again likely to face disappointment.

Don't delay. Your Ideal Peace-Time Car is ready for you now—improved and perfected during the war period by Elgin engineers and designers.

Come in and let us show you the 36 Improvements and Refinements that place the New Elgin Six a year and a half ahead.

Prefers the Chandler Coupe.

Miss Ephigene Schwesr, one of the noted stars in the local film colony, who purchased a Chandler coupe from Earl V. Armstrong, Inc., and is more enthusiastic over the machine every time she takes it out of the garage.

FOREIGN LICENSE PLATES.

That the annual migration of motorists and their automobiles to Los Angeles already has begun is evidenced by the large number of cars that may be seen on the streets daily, which display license plates indicating they came from another State. One of the most interesting features in this connection is that the majority of the cars are from points farther away than Arizona and Nevada. Also, if the California motor authorities are seeking some form of license plate for next year's use in this State they now have the opportunity to study a variety of designs from which they may make their pick.

"It is not an unusual thing," according to J. B. Alexander of the service department of Earl V. Armstrong, Inc., the Chandler distributors, "for half a dozen Chandler cars to come to our establishment from as many different States the same day. As an example there were cars here one day last week from Washington, Nevada, Illinois, Minnesota, Ohio and New York. It happened that every one of these cars had been driven to Los Angeles. They represent about the last that may be expected from points east of the Rocky Mountains this year as weather conditions are getting too severe.

"A large number of cars are being shipped into the city and there undoubtedly will be more come this winter than ever before. We have had a number of inquiries from the East asking when we will have shipments from the Chandler factory and if an owner's car could not be put with these sipments. Earl V. Armstrong, Inc., is so far behind deliveries of new Chandler cars that there is no room for owners' cars to come this way, but the point shows the anxiety of eastern residents to bring their cars out here for the winter. They know they cannot enjoy Southern California without their automobile."

stands, it is a saving of many miles over any of the other proposed highways, and is also one of the finest drives in Southern California.

It is expected that thousands of motorists will make the trip over the Ridge today. Special preparations have been made for a record-breaking crowd of automobiles, and special motorcycle officers will be on duty throughout the day to see that speed regulations and danger warnings are observed.

The best route to the Ridge as given out by the Auto Club is through Hollywood, over the Cahuenga boulevard past Universal City to Lankershim, the Van Nuys, to San Fernando. From there follow the San Fernando boulevard, through the Newhall tunnel to Saugus.

The road through Glendale, Burbank to San Fernardino is being repaired in spots. Many of the bridges are being replanked and the club advises the other route.

MORE SPEED IS NOW DEMANDED

conditions. That means that he is shortening up the tail to take out some of the terrific whip on the turns. The springs, too, are being shortened.

When Joseph Boyer, the Detroit millionaire, arrived with three Frontenacs and established headquarters with Teddy Tetziaff at the White Garage, activity began immediately. With the help of Roscoe Sarles, who will drive one of the cars, a crew immediately began tearing down the motors. The cars are being given a thorough overhauling—more speed preparations.

SPEEDY TRIO.

This trio is as fast a combination as ever traveled a speedway. They were designed by the old master, Louis Chevrolet, and represent the greatest speed of any cars ever turned out by him. His brother, Gaston Chevrolet, drove one of the cars 100 miles at Sheepshead at an average speed of 115 miles per hour. This is the car that Sarles will drive.

Owing to the illness of Toland Nicholson, the son of a wealthy Pittsburgh steel official, it is possible that Eddie Hefternan will be at the wheel of the Hudson they brought here after a busy campaign in the East. Hefternan is a skilled driver, as is Nicholson, and the Hudson has shown a speed of 113 miles per hour on eastern speedways.

A car in which the speed fans will take great interest is the Philbrin Special of Ira Vail. This is an eight-cylinder Duesenberg, the "go-ingest" Duesenberg motor that ever was turned out. Vail wired his entry from New York and is now on the way.

Another fast car from the East is the Frontenac which Joe Thomas will drive. This Frontenac was driven in the East by Ralph Mulford and is a true Frontenac in speed.

LIKELY CANDIDATE.

Eddie Hearne is being picked as the most likely candidate for the honors of victor because of his wonderful work this year. He has been consistently in the money, including second place at Indianapolis. That he is going just as good now as ever is indicated by his record-breaking 100 miles at Phoenix. He is overhauling his Chevrolet Special so that it will have even faster pick-up out of the turns.

The Chevrolet Special of Cliff Durant is just as fast as that driven by Hearne. Durant has been doing the most sensational driving this year of his entire career. He started out by winning the Santa Monica race, and since then has been going great guns.

Although they do not have their inning until Sunday, the closing day of the four-day speed tournament, which includes autos, motorcycles, horses and airplanes, the motorcycle stars already are receiving a liberal share of attention form the speed fans. Like the autos, the motorcycles will go fifty miles—fifty burning miles.

MOTORCYCLES.

Some of the greatest in the country have been entered here. The following is the list to date:

Rider	Motorcycle
Otto Walker	Harley-Davidson
Albert Burns	Harley-Davidson
Hapkers	Harley-Davidson
Gene Walker	Indian
Bill Church	Indian
Bob Iverman	Indian
Ray Artley	Indian
Wally Bennett	Excelsior
Bob Perry	Excelsior

The air thrill will come Saturday, November 30, the third day of the speedfest. Sergt. Jack de Villers will leap from an airplane at an elevation of 3000 feet by turning a back handspring off the tail of the craft—that is, if he lasts that long. The leap will come after the aviator has tried to dislodge De Villers in a series of loops and twists.

The demand for the Union truck caused the company to quickly outgrow its original quarters. The overflow business took it into the market place and there, entirely in the open, except for the shelter roofs, workmen have been busy all summer constructing the truck.

HARROUN MOTORS.

Harroun Motors Corporation has secured a settlement with the United States government of a very considerable portion of its claim for shell making and final settlement is about to be made, when the company will enter into large car production to meet demands.

The Ohio Motor Vehicle Company, with offices at 6102 Euclid avenue, Cleveland, according to information from that city, has just started manufacturing operations on Cleveland's newest automobile project—the Ferris six.

At the end of October the Ford Motor Company had nearly 220,000 orders on its books. This is said to be the highest number the company ever had booked at any time.

Earnings of the Chandler Motor Car Company of Cleveland are said to be increasing at a wonderful rate. While the exact figures have not been made public, it is said on reliable authority that September profits alone are fully 50 per cent. of the earnings of the previous eight months, which were nearly $3,200,000.

NO EXPLANATION.

No explanation for the recent resignation of Walter P. Chrysler, vice-president and general manager of the General Motors Corporation, has been made known. Those who have followed the development of the General Motors Corporation have often referred to him as being responsible to as great an extent as any other official for the growth of the corporation. The news of his resignation was one of the biggest surprises of the year to the automobile world.

The Hackett Motor Car Company of Grand Rapids has been reorganized and will be incorporated under the laws of Delaware as a new corporation, with a name to be selected later.

According to officials of the company there are contracts enough on hand to keep the plant busy for a year and more ontracts would be easily secured if the capacity could be enlarged. The new 1920 model electric is being produced.

WHO CAN PICK A COACH?

Best Football Players Often Fall Down When They Start Instructing.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Football history is replete with examples of brilliant players who have failed as coaches, and of men who were mediocre players later succeeding in molding great teams while coaching.

And baseball is not unlike football in this respect. Pat Moran, baseball's latest "miracle man," was passed from club to club as a second-rate catcher, and George Stallings, the originator of modern miracles on the diamond, was by no means a star of the first magnitude in the baseball firmament.

NOT ESSENTIAL.

Even actual participation in a sport is not absolutely essential to success in certain departments of it. Charley Eyton, one of the best ring referees in the country, was a wrestler in his athletic days, and Red Held, of the Coast League umpiring staff, was not selected from the ranks of the players. Per contra there have been cases of boxers who held championships who were completely at sea when they became a third man in the ring, while cases of brilliant baseball players failing utterly as umpires are by no means uncommon.

These things, like coaching and managing teams, call for special qualities which frequently are not to be found in those who as athletes wrote brilliant history on the gridiron, on the diamond or in the ring.

SIXTH SENSE ONLY.

Some of the best athletes are not highly developed mentally. They may have a sort of sixth sense, or hair-trigger intelligence that is tantamount to instinct—a sort of chain-lightning co-ordination between mind and muscle—but with little capacity for analysis or observation or reasoning along lines of cause and effect.

A man may be a redoubtable fighter in the trenches, with the courage of a lion, but he might wholly lack the mental poise required of an officer. True, the ranks have produced some real military leaders and yet experience in the ranks is not necessary. The biographers do tell us that Oliver Cromwell and Julius Caesar had no previous training for their jobs. And yet the records show that Ollie and J. C. were some generals in their day and generation.

When the American game was at its height at California and Stanford in the days before football revision, a number of gridiron stars were employed with only moderate success. California brought Butterworth, of Yale, who in his day was king of the kickers, out to whip the Bears into shape. He proved almost helpless when it came to coaching anything except the backfield men, and even there his value was limited largely to tutoring the full-back. True, he developed Ransom, who has never been excelled in the West as a punter, and this influence reached on down into the days of Overall, but there Butterworth's value practically ceased. Later, "King" Kelly, the great Princeton line plunger was called in, but as a coach he failed to even approximate his ability as a player.

HINKEY.

Hinkey, who when he tackled his man usually finished him, and who was one of the real "iron men" of football, failed miserably as a coach. Ted Coy, Yale's 90-horse power line plunger, hit on three cylinders only when he tried to whip the Blue eleven into shape.

Andy Smith, the present California coach, is one of the most recent examples of a former gridiron luminary failing to deliver the goods as a coach. Smith played at full for Pennsylvania, and because of his record was considerably sought after as a coach. It is true that Smith took over a very difficult situation at Berkeley. He had only men who had been schooled in Rugby. Still it is felt that he has failed to get results equal to some other coaches laboring under similar difficulties, and the belief seems quite general that his days are numbered by the length of the present season.

Eddie Mahan, the wonderful Harvard fullback, in tackling whom opposing players knocked themselves out cold, failed to work anything approximating a miracle when he assisted in coaching California, although it is said conditions were such that he hardly was given a fair chance. I saw Mahan in France, and he was showing all his old-time form as a player. His eleven, when I left there, had cleaned up about everything in the A.E.F., and had, as I remember, only one more game to play to cinch the championship.

However, not all crack players fail as coaches. Percy Haughton was a thoroughbred on the gridiron, and when summoned to coach the Crimson later proved highly successful. Then there is Alonzo Stagg. He was quite a performer at Yale, and has managed for a good many years now to hold his job as football mentor at the University of Chi.

FROM OBSCURITY.

Some of the best molders of football teams have sprung from comparative obscurity. In fact, one of them, "Speedy" Rush, who on more than one occasion pounded Princeton into shape, never laced a shin guard to his leg or sniffed the smoke of football battle. Track was his forte. Still the fact that he had never engaged in a tussle on the tanbark, did not prevent him from drilling teamwork into the Tigers. Observation had given him a wider grasp of football than most of those who had played it.

"I am not sure that Ernest Lannigan, rated by many as the best coach in the history of Stanford, ever played a varsity football game.

Fielding H. Yost, also a wonder worker at Stanford, and later at Michigan, as a player attracted only passing attention, and that hardly out of his own township.

Walter Hempel, the man who drilled so much football into the 140-pound Pomona eleven, that it held the heavy California team to a 5 to 0 score, and later swept through the Sherman Indians, did not owe his success to personal experience on the gridiron. He was a baseball player of ability, but learned his football from observation and study.

In baseball we have McGraw, Jennings and Clarke, great as players and equally great as managers. However, Connie Mack, who was only passing, fair as a catcher, transcends at least two of these as a leader.

On the other side are Hal Chase and Napoleon Lajoie, each in a class by himself as a player, failing utterly when placed in positions of leadership and responsibility.

STANDARD OVERSIZE TIRES.

As a bearer of good tidings A. T. Smith is right now engaged in establishing a record that his colleagues declare has it "forty ways" on any similar previous performance witnessed up to date by the motor trade of California. Smith, Pacific Coast representative of the Globe Rubber Tire Manufacturing Company, set out last week to get in personal touch with all dealers outside of Los Angeles and the Southern California territory to apprise them of the Globe factory's recent announcement affecting the production of standard over-size Globe cords in small sizes which are guaranteed for 8000 miles.

"The Globe factory's announcement on standard over-size cords in small sizes is one of the most important made to the tire trade in several years," stated H. H. Anderson, manager of the tire department of Hawley, King & Co., Globe distributors. "The Globe factory has brought out two standard oversize cord tires in small sizes, 30x3½, a clincher cord, and 32x3½, a straight side cord. The former known as the Ford size is equivalent in every dimension to a 31x4 fabric tire, while the straight side 32x3½ cord, known as the Dodge size, is equivalent in every dimension to a 33x4 fabric tire.

"The Ford size, of course, will answer as well for Overland, Chevrolet, Maxwell, Briscoe and Dort cars, and this is the only standard over-size 30x3½ cord tire made on 31x4 equipment. It enables the owners of small cars to enjoy the maximum of dependable service, riding comfort and mileage economy that heretofore has been available only in larger sizes for higher-price cars.

"The Dodge size answers as well for Crow-Elkhart, Studebaker, Saxon, Elgin, Moon, Nash and some others. Made on 33x4 equipment, this new tire is of the same high quality as all other handmade, wrapped-tread, single-cure Globe cords. These new standard over-size cords are the result of months of exhaustive test and experiment. The tires are made of the best materials by skilled labor working carefully by hand."

EXPECT HOLMES CARS SOON

Although shipments of the new Holmes improved air-cooled car have not yet been received, Frank Rea and Henry G. Krohn of the United Corporation, distributors for the Holmes car in Southern California, are hoping to have models on display within the week.

Inquiries have been pouring in concerning the new air-cooled machine and it is expected that crowds of enthusiasts will be on hand when the Holmes cars arrive.

Many improvements have been incorporated in the Holmes and early tests have proved the construction and general correctness of the job. The car has never failed to show more power than was required for any test.

Some of the features of the Holmes were given out by Mr. Krohn as follows:

The most generous amount of room and of size that the purchaser of a car of quality expects to get.

Gasoline economy is the result of improved air-cooled motor with airplane type dual exhaust valves. All valves are in the head of the motor. The easy riding is the result of a flexible chassis construction in a car of 126-inch wheel base. All road shocks are absorbed in the spring action. Seven bearing crankshaft and four-bearing crankshaft. Forced-feed lubrication, oil leads to each main bearing. Crankshaft drilled carrying oil to connecting-rod bearings.

New type Eisenmann magneto-built-in governor, automatic advance and retard Dyneto, single-ignition starting and lighting system. Non-stallable starter. Multiple dry plate clutch. Brown-Lipe tranmission. Timken bearings on main shaft, ball bearings on counter shaft.

Very deep section steel frame, tapered to give short turning radius. Axles, front and rear, Timken-Detroit. Spicer universal joints, springs, full eliptic front and rear, aluminum body and hood. Ten thousand miles from a set of tires is a low average.

Light weight. Gasoline consumption, averages eighteen-twenty miles to the gallon, even in city driving.

Models, seven-passenger touring; four-passenger roadster; two-door sedan; four-door sedan, and sport coupe.

The price of economy is no longer restricted performance and cramped discomfort. High operating cost is no longer necessary in a properly-sized car of ability and quality.

Author of Daylight Saving.

It is claimed that the first person to suggest the idea of daylight saving was Benjamin Franklin when he was Minister to France. In 1784 Franklin, in a letter published in a Paris paper, outlined a plan by which the city of Paris might save fully $2,000,000 a year in actual cost of candles for light by putting the clocks ahead one hour, so as to get an hour more of daylight and an hour less of artificial light. At that time the people of Paris kept late hours and also arose late in the morning. His letter, entitled "An Economical Project," was in a humorous vein and excited considerable comment but nothing apparently came of it.—[Indianapolis News.

EUROPEAN MARKET INVADED BY FORD.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Nov. 13.—The Ford company, which did not participate in the recent highly successful automobile show in Paris, invaded the European market November 11 with a fully equipped touring car at 9500 francs, or approximately $1120 at the prevailing rates of exchange.

This undersells anything the French market can produce. It includes the 70 per cent. import tax and all extras. Other types will sell at relative prices. It is understood in Europe that Ford has set aside a certain percentage of his annual output for foreign trade and will fix prices underselling any competition, foreign or local.

The General Motors Company has announced a similar policy of foreign infiltration.

NEW WAY TO SAVE STORAGE BATTERY.

PUSHING OUT THE CLUTCH BEFORE ENAGING STARTER IS GREAT HELP.

"If you want to get long life out of your motor car, your tires or your battery, it will pay you well to take good care of them and give them at least the ordinary care that they require," said Mr. A. J. Tobey of the Western Auto Electric Corporation, distributors of the Willard battery.

INSURANCE.

"While we give eighteen months' insurance of service with every Willard thread rubber battery we sell, still that is not a measure at all of the service you should get from it, as thousands of motorists are getting three and four years, but you will generally find the fellow who looks out for his battery and his tires is the one who gets the extra-long service.

"There are so many little things a person can do to lengthen the life of his battery; just take, for instance, the matter of pushing out his clutch when starting. A good many people ask this question: 'What's the use of pushing out the clutch when starting as long as the shift lever is in neutral and there is practically no load on the engine?' The question sounds like a logical one, but it is based on a wrong supposition. There is really a considerable load on the engine, just on account of the shaft and gears that must be turned

TRY THIS TEST.

"Just try this test if you want to see how much this load amounts to. Turn your engine over by hand some morning with the clutch in and then have someone hold the clutch pedal down or fasten it down with blocks and try again. If you turn the engine over rapidly you'll see that there is quite a difference and the load is much greater when the engine spins at the rate the starting motor turns it.

"It pays to keep in mind the fact that thickened oil has a very definite braking action," says Mr. Tobey, "and this action is very greatly lessened when you push down your clutch pedal."

SPECIAL SALE GETS CROWD OF MOTORISTS.

A special sale on small-size tires is creating quite a crowd at Pico and Olive streets.

"We ran a sale on 30x3 and 30x3½ tires last Sunday, and the demand was so great that we decided to extend the same another week," says Bob Brunner, manager of the Tire Construction Company, Pico at Olive street.

"No wonder the people are buying and buying big, as we are selling a first-class guaranteed tire with serial number and name on every tire at the price of a second. A complete set of nonskid tires and brand new tubes for $58.80 and a liberal allowance for the old ones, also mounted on the cars with no extra charge, is sure a big inducement," says Bob, "and at this time of the year, when the rainy season is on us, the public want to get rid of their old tread-worn tires and put on good nonskid tires."

The few cents extra a quart that Pennzoil costs is mighty good insurance against motor repair bills.

ANCIENT PRICES STILL RETAINED.

H. C. OF L. FAILS TO HAND BODY PUNCH IN THIS PARTICULAR LINE.

With the tremendous increase in prices of nearly all commodities during the past few years and the old H. C. of L. giving us all a solid body punch, it is interesting to note that the auto industry offers many instances of where prices still remain where they were a few years ago.

This is true of nearly all the Stewart products, according to Harry Ungar, manager of the Stewart Products Service Station on Pico street, who says that with the exception of a slight increase the first of the year on certain items, the prices are just where they were five years ago.

"Take one thing for instance," says Mr. Ungar, "such as the greasing of the shaft. To keep a speedometer in proper, accurate working condition the shaft should be greased every month and the price set for this work is one that was made over five years ago and has been maintained at the same figure all this time in spite of the increased cost of labor, etc.

"Because so many cars come equipped with Stewart products, our place, as the only authorized Stewart products service station in the city, is naturally the Mecca for thousands of motorists and our business has grown so that we are now forced to seek larger and better quarters which we have found over on Figueroa street, where a building is to be constructed for us."

Motoring This Week?

If you are you'll be chilly unless well supplied with these snug, soft robes to keep you warm.

Week-end trips, little jaunts into the mountains or down to the beach are incomplete—even impossible without a supply of good robes.

To wrap about you when driving at night; to spread on the ground for luncheon in the mountains, or on the sand at the beaches; to spread on the rocks of some vantage point high in the hills from which you never tire of the view—Good Robes have a thousand uses and Hamburger's robes never wear out.

A Christmas Suggestion.

Quality robes, both domestic and imported in beautiful plaids and colorings—to match any car. Robes with fringed edges, bound edges, taped edges, robes of plush, which make beautiful Christmas gifts for any autoist—In weights for both closed and open cars. They are priced from 8.00 to 85.00. See our Broadway window display Monday.

Appetites Follow The Trail of the Motorist—

And motorists who get most out of their trip, take along a hamper filled with the "picnic" eats mother makes, in one of Hamburger's lunch kits strapped to the running board.

—The freshness and appeal of picnic food depends entirely on the way it has been transported and served. If carried in one of these kits it will be as fresh and appetizing as when you packed it.

—Kits are fitted for two to six persons and are priced from 10.00 to 80.00.

Greyhound Tires
Less Than Factory Prices

Hamburger's is able to hold this remarkable event by special arrangement with the manufacturers. The factory has changed the design of the non-skid tread on tires of this standard make.

The whole present stock of these tires is to be sold at prices less than factory cost to make room for the coming shipments of the new treads.

The savings are obvious after a glance at the following table, showing the prices at which these tires may now be bought in comparison with the regular cost.

STANDARD TIRES PROVE BEST.

There is probably no form of automobile extravagance greater than that practiced in buying tires, and a great deal of this extravagance lies in the purchase of "cheap tires" that the dealer is sure are "just as good" as the well-made standard tires made by great factories with big organizations behind them.

But car owners who study tire matters for themselves, are rapidly coming to realize that the purchase of these cheap tires is a waste of money—that in the end the well made standard tire, whose initial cost is a little more, shows the lowest cost per mile and provides the most satisfactory riding. These motorists are fast coming to see the difference between mileage as adjusted over the counter, and mileage delivered on the road.

A case in point that has just come to the attention of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, O., is contained in a letter from S. F. Webster, a motorist of Fort Collins, Colo.

Mr. Webster writes:

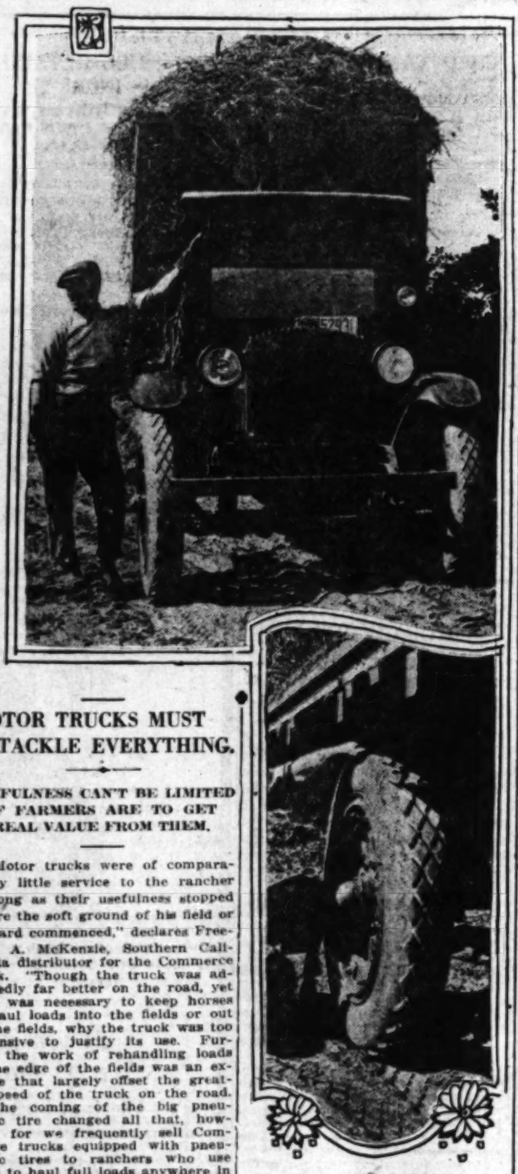
"As you no doubt like to hear from time to time of the good service rendered by your tires, I believe you will be interested in learning of my experience with four of your cord tires.

"These tires, size 34x4½, ribbed front, and all-weather tread rear, were original equipment on a Franklin roadster which I purchased in 1915. I have used the car four years, and at the time of removing the two rear tires, I received 50,000 miles from all four tires. The front tires are still on the car and have run 52,000 miles.

"I am glad that I can pass along a good word for Goodyear cord tires."

Surprised Groom.

"Some men rush into the divorce court on very slight provocation," complains Jack Harrison in the Beloit Gazette. "The case of a Wichita man is a sample. He married a gay and dashing young widow. His age was 19 and she admitted 22. When she subsequently introduced her 17-year-old son by a former marriage, the groom had his father apply for a divorce."



A Commerce Truck,
Which has been doing heavy duty in the delivery line. The truck has been hauling loads far above capacity and delivering satisfaction all the time. The Commerce is equipped with giant pneumatic Goodyear tires.

MOTOR TRUCKS MUST TACKLE EVERYTHING.

USEFULNESS CAN'T BE LIMITED IF FARMERS ARE TO GET REAL VALUE FROM THEM.

"Motor trucks were of comparatively little service to the rancher as long as their usefulness stopped where the soft ground of his field or orchard commenced," declares Freeman A. McKenzie, Southern California distributor for the Commerce truck. "Though the truck was admittedly far better on the road, yet if it was necessary to keep horses to haul loads into the fields or out of the fields, why the truck was too expensive to justify its use. Further the work of rehandling loads at the edge of the fields was an expense that largely offset the greater speed of the truck on the road.

"The coming of the big pneumatic tire changed all that, however, for we frequently sell Commerce trucks equipped with pneumatic tires to ranchers who use them to haul full loads anywhere in the plowed ground of their orchards or fields. They report that the big pneumatics make it possible for them to go anywhere with their trucks that they can go with a team, and to haul even heavier loads.

"A Glendora ranch, Lloyd R. Coffin, has for some time been using a Commerce truck with pneumatic equipment to do all sorts of hauling from his grove. He reports that he can haul a decidedly heavier load of oranges from the grove with the truck than a team can handle, and make eight trips per day to the packing-house with the truck where three trips is the limit of the ability of the team."

Expected a High Dive.

"Then you don't want her advertised as a diva?"

"Make it a coloraturo-soprano, and let it go at that. The last time I advertised a diva I had to refund considerable money to people who were expecting an aquatic exhibition."—[Louisville Courier-Journal

GIANT SOLID TIRES MEET REQUIREMENTS.

DUAL EQUIPMENT GIVES WAY TO LATEST DEVELOPMENT OF ENGINEERS.

The rear wheels of heavy duty trucks for a long time gave tire manufacturers one of the greatest problems with which they have had to contend.

They thought they had the problem solved when they hit upon the plan of doubling up; that is putting two tires instead of one on each wheel. But it was found that under certain conditions—riding on a road with a high crown, for instance—the weight was not equally distributed on both tires. In fact, one sometimes took the wheel's entire weight of truck and load. And when this was so, the single bearer of the burden was subject to injury, the same as is any tire that carries an overload. Also it was found that the dual equipment did not give absolute traction at all times.

"As a result, tire building engineers, after much experimenting, brought out giant solid tires a few years ago, declaring that the broad surface of rubber on this type offered a solution of all the troubles. Now, after operators have had the opportunity to give the newer type of tire a thorough practical test, they are backing up the declaration of the engineers, and the popularity of the tire is increasing rapidly, according to dealers. Firestone engineers, who first built the giant solid, assert that it has proven itself the most efficient solid tire on the market.

In addition to those qualities for which it was developing, the claim is made that it lives longer, is more resilient, lessens vibration, does not chip, is higher in construction, carries bigger loads, contains more rubber, always runs true and uses less gasoline.

OPTIMISM SHOWN IN LATE COMMUNICATION

PEERLESS DISTRIBUTOR FINDS FACTORY WORKING OVERTIME TO INCREASE SHIPMENTS

Recent communications from Stanley W. Smith of Smith Bros., Peerless distributors, who has been in the East for several weeks, contain considerable optimism concerning the car outlook, according to Salesmanager S. Gordon Buckner.

"While Mr. Smith and his wife have been engaged in touring through the East, he has made it a point to keep in close touch with the Peerless factory. His last communication tells of increased production and more Peerless cars for Southern California. This is backed up by more shipments and in consequence it is now possible for us to make earlier deliveries than has been the case for a long time," he said. He added that earlier deliveries can be made on touring cars than on closed jobs.

Although there is considerable labor unrest in all parts of the country, it seems that the automobile factories are perhaps the least affected of any industry. "It is a case of everyone who can afford a car is buying. As fast as Peerless cars are turned out at the factory there is a buyer waiting for it," declared Buckner.

PLAN MOST COMPLETE AIRDROME ON COAST.

MERCURY AVIATION COMPANY DEMONSTRATES PRACTICABILITY OF FLYING

What is said to be the most complete commercial aviation field in America is being constructed by the Mercury Aviation Company, at what is known as De Mille Field No. 2, at corner of Wilshire boulevard and Crescent avenue. Every feature that will provide for safety, convenience and comfort of those interested is included in the plans. Not only will it have the most complete field of its own, but will cooperate with leading country clubs throughout Southern California for establishment of landings.

"Transportation by air," say Mercury officials, "is here to stay." The Mercury company is the pioneer in commercial aviation, and has demonstrated the practicability of the airplane for commercial purposes, for not only have we transported passengers, but we brought a calf from the country to the Live-stock Show, and moved all our office equipment from our former location to our new home by airplane.

The time element is the keynote of the airplane success. The busy man of today can travel in minutes, where it formerly took hours. One of the best demonstrations of time saving occurred a few days ago when an army flyer landed at our field after he had hopped off at Bakersfield. This was an actual saving in time, over our usual transportation methods of four hours or more, and when you think that a man can have breakfast in the morning in Los Angeles, fly to San Francisco, attend to his business there, return to his home in Los Angeles for dinner you have some conception of what the future holds in form of time saving.

FORD HELPS OUT DURING THE WAR.

MAKES MANY TRIPS WITH OFFICIALS FROM BEERSHEBA TO JERUSALEM.

W. T. Massey, noted British journalist, now recording the Prince of Wales's tour through Canada and the United States for the London Daily Telegraph of London, England, was official war correspondent with the English army—under Gen. Allenby—which wrested the Holy Land and Syria from the Turks.

When telling of his experiences, according to B. L. Graves, manager of the local branch of the Ford Motor Company, he says that he "used a Ford in many a journey from Beersheba to Jerusalem and to Nazareth, Damascus and Alepp," and that "in Allenby's final push this trusty old car took me over 4000 miles in six weeks, and I believe within one year it traveled over 30,000 miles in a country where roads are few, and these the worst in the world.

"In the Sinai country it is very sandy, and it is quite a common sight to see a Ford running along with two rolls of wire netting secured to the footboards. When the car gets to a place where the sand is impassable the driver uncoils the netting over the road and thus an easily passable wire road is constructed; in fact, in some parts of the country permanent wire roads have been made, and over these the car runs along easily and smoothly at thirty miles an hour."

BONDS TO COMPLETE ROAD CONSTRUCTION.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FLAGSTAFF (Ariz.) Nov. 15.—Road Londs to the amount of $150,000 have been voted by the taxpayers for the improvement of the highways of Coconino county. The State already has put in excellent shape the main highway west from this point to Williams, but much remains to be done on the highway to the eastward and on the roads to the Grand Canyon and on the through road from Flagstaff to Clarkdale, a highway that will have much State assistance in building and that will furnish the direct route to the canyon from Phoenix and other Southern Arizona points.

NEW SCHEME TO EXCHANGE IDEAS.

To promote free exchange of ideas and standardization in office management the National Office Managers' Association was formed in Akron, O., recently. J. W. Rowland, Fisk Rubber Company, was elected president; A. D. Housley, the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, vice-president, and H. N. Basely, Norton Company, Worcester, Mass., secretary-treasurer; W. D. Fuller, secretary of Curtis Publishing Company, chairman of the membership committee. The next annual meeting will be held at National Cash Register Company offices, Dayton, June 12-13, 1920.

OUTGROWS FACILITIES

The announcement coming out of Kenosha that the Nash Motors Company which has been in business only three years has outgrown the facilities of its present large factory and has been forced to build another factory in Milwaukee for the manufacture of a new Nash four-cylinder car is one of the most interesting since the early days of the industry when phenomenal growth was the rule rather than the exception.

The Nash growth is all the more remarkable when it is remembered that during practically two of these years the country was at war and business conditions abnormal.

The present Kenosha factory, one of the largest and best equipped in the industry, in the second year under the Nash regime did a volume of upwards of $47,000,000 worth of business. Its output for the current fiscal year is [illegible] cars and 5000 trucks. The manufacturing capacity is inadequate to keep pace with increasing demand for products.

Speculation as to details of the new four-cylinder car is widespread, judging from the number of inquiries from all parts of the country now being received at the Kenosha factory. Information concerning the new car is apparently lacking, as was that preceding the announcement on the market of the Nash six.

From the tenor of the inquiries coming into the factory it is evident that the success of the Nash six and of the public during the past two years has caused it to be granted that the new Nash will be a real leader in its class and it will be in every way worthy of the Nash standard.

—that's what the Green Seal means on every Prest-O-Lite Battery. Just this—that the chemical action of the acid in ANY battery causes wear and natural deterioration the minute it comes in contact with the plates. Prest-O-Lite GREEN SEAL batteries are carried in stock without acid. When you buy a Prest-O-Lite and place it in your car it is filled for the FIRST time—it is not two to six months "worn out" when you get it.

The NEWEST Battery With The OLDEST Name

NORTH AMERICA IS MOTORIZED.

Growing Demand for Tourist Cars and Trucks.

Good Transportation Necessary for Development.

Nash Six the Way for Many Reasons of Exchange.

America is rapidly motorizing its business. Never before has there been such a demand for American products in the republics. Impetus has been given this work by the current visits of representatives of American factories. The results of their work augurs well for future business, despite well-founded fears of French and other competition.

The country of both Central and South America is being or already has been visited by the traveling representatives of the numerous manufacturers of the United States with the result that export orders are being showered upon the sales departments.

"On the west coast of the Latin-American countries there has been a steadily-increasing demand for motor trucks, tractors and passenger cars. The people of these sections are looking with longing eyes for the day when they will have the modern type roads that this country possesses. There has been much activity along the road-building line, while there is in New York City at the present time, a commission of Latin-American business men who are negotiating for a huge loan to be dispensed for the above purpose," said Watt L. Moreland, general manager of the Moreland Motor Truck Company.

Mr. Moreland continued: "Automobile men of the Pacific Coast may look for a lasting and healthy business from the South and Central Americas, for these countries are just in the stage of development and modernization, and to expedite this work, motor transportation is an indispensable factor

INDIRECT MEDIUMS.

"The Moreland Motor Truck Company, for instance, up to five months ago, had never really solicited export business, and the hundreds of Morelands that are operating in more than seventeen foreign countries were sold through indirect mediums. Since our Mr. 'Ted' Hobgood started his tour of Latin America, our export business has increased with leaps and bounds.

"Realizing the importance of foreign trade and because of the volume of business that has been transacted with foreign purchasers in recent months, we have found it necessary to increase our export department, adding facilities which make it possible for Will R. Forker, assistant general manager, who is in charge of our exports, to render the very best possible service to our foreign buyers. Especial attention is being given to crating and shipping, which are two of the major points of successful exporting.

"Not only is the export department of the Moreland company carefully watching and grooming the foreign territories from a point of sales promotion, but every effort is being made to educate the Latin business man to the necessity of building of first-class roads and in the care of same, and many other points which are essential to the development of motor transportation and other industries.

EXCHANGE.

"Increasing the transportation facilities of our southerly neighbors means paving the way for other forms of exchange. Nearly every country of the west coast group is eagerly grasping the opportunity to build roads, for those at the head of the various governments realize that in order to increase production, to ship products, etc., adequate transportation facilities must be available. Thus, it is that America is making a 'grand-stand play' by having her automobile factories strongly represented there. The results of this work are already well known to the majority of the automobile manufacturers who have been active in this respect.

"As an example of the export business being transacted by the Moreland company, recently fifteen trucks of various sizes were shipped to devious foreign points, Lima, Peru, getting two; two trucks and two trailers for San Salvador; one dump truck for Managua, Nicaragua; two for Honolulu, one of which was equipped with pneumatics; two were shipped to Honduras, while four went to Australia.

"The American automobile industry is making a strong bid for the volume of business in Latin America, and the Moreland company has now complete plans for handling the tremendous amount of foreign orders that are beginning to flock into our export department."

GUARANTEE TIRES FROM PUNCTURES.

ELIMINATION OF ORDINARY TROUBLES IS APPRECIATED BY MOTORISTS.

The demand for the Gates half-sole tires has within a few years built the Gates Rubber Company from a one-room factory into a great industry and the other half of the story is not yet told. So far the demand has far exceeded the supply and new factory units have been added from time to time in order to increase production to where it can be ahead of the demand, according to Mr. H. B. Warfield of the Warfield Tire Service Company, the only Gates half-sole tire dealer and service station in the city.

As a conservation measure, a saving to the motorist, the elimination of puncture troubles, for they are now guaranteed 5000 miles against puncture, and improvement in appearance and comfort of his car, the Gates half-sole tire is without an equal. It is applied over the tread worn tires, thereby giving the worn tire double life; it costs only half as much; increases the riding qualities of a car, gives more mileage on gasoline and makes the car look better.

GASOLINE AND OIL SERVICE STATION OWNERS

Do not limit the capacity of your service station by using the old hand operated pump—the type of pump that compels you to stand at the crank handle while serving—no matter how many may be waiting for service. Service station operators recognize the tremendous importance of being able to leave the pump while it automatically serves the motorist, and to use this extra time in delivering to another motorist oil, or attending to other details of serving his trade.

The Boyle-Dayton Air Operated Five Gallon Service Station Pump is the only one that can possibly give you this service advantage. Why spend money and time on an attractive location, and then neglect the most vital part—the gasoline pump equipment, that will permit you to quickly serve and get your trade on their way? No matter what type of equipment you are now using, do not lose any time in bringing your volume of business up to its maximum capacity.

THE HISTORIC SPANISH TRAIL.

BY J. H. McCLINTOCK.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Nov. 14.—The Spanish Trail Association that proposes to reestablish through the Southland, from Florida to the western sea, the main highway over which came the earliest of the white men, will find especially interesting the route through Arizona.

Within the land now known as Arizona most of the travel of early days, dating back to 1538, was from New Spain northward, though Cabeza de Vaca, in 1536, managed, on a more southerly line, to encompass the distance that lies between the Gulf of Mexico and the Gulf of Cortez, to us known as the Gulf of California.

The first known European to travel along the Gila River route from the friendly Papago settlements, near the present site of Tucson, was a Jesuit priest, Eusebio Kino, not a Spaniard, but a German by birth, of the family name of Kuhn. He established a chain of missions or visitas down the Santa Cruz River and then down the Gila, among the Papago, Pima, Coco-Maricopa and Yuma tribes. This was between 1692 and 1710, and though it is recorded that during his life he baptized more than 48,000 Indians, none of his religious establishments along the Gila endured.

SECOND TRAVELER.

The next traveler reported was Francisco Garces, a Franciscan missionary, industrious and devout, who had his headquarters with the Papagos at the famous mission of San Xavier, which still stands, in good condition, a few miles south of the modern city of Tucson. He traveled the Gila trail from 1768 until 1781 in the summer of the latter year suffering martyrdom near the present site of the town of Yuma. With three other Franciscans, he was murdered at the time of the morning mass, slain by the Cuchan (Yuma) people whom he had labored among for years and whom he had tried to serve.

A fact little known is that the city of San Francisco was founded by a Spanish officer from the Arizona presidio of Tubac, in the Santa Cruz Valley, south of Tucson. He was Captain Juan Bautista de Anza. In January, 1774, he had pioneered across the desert, from Coborca to the Colorado River, by way of the Camino del Diablo (Road of the Devil,) then visiting Monterey. In October, 1775, by a direct command of the Spanish Viceroy, he started again for Tubac, with 240 people and much livestock, destined for the foundation of a presidio and mission on the great bay that had been found by Portola in 1769. Anza took the Gila route as the safer, forded the Colorado near the Gila's mouth a month later and, with an advance party, on March 28, 1776, established the Presidio of San Francisco on the Golden Gate.

LONG LAPSE.

There was a long lapse of years in which the Gila route was traveled only by trappers, or by occasional parties from Mexico which preferred this longer and better-watered way to the dangerous Camino del Diablo. With the finding of gold in California, came the real making of the road, approximately on the line on which it now is proposed to create a national highway that shall furnish all-year connection for automobile travel between the eastern and western seas. In a few years following 1848 as many as 60,000 people traveled westward on this route, braving the Apaches who menaced it at every point. Thousands were slain by these Ishmaelites of the desert and the stories of bloodshed along the Western Gila would furnish material for a volume. John C. Fremont passed in 1849 and Kit Carson made the same journey years before.

In October, 1846, Gen. Stephen Kearny led a column of dragoons down the Gila River and helped add California to the union. Following Kearny's expedition was the march of the famous Mormon Battalion from Missouri to San Diego. This remarkable column entered Arizona not far from the present site of Douglas, and passed westward through Tucson and the Pima villages and down the Gila River. Tucson was captured peacefully, though not held.

The peace treaty with Mexico set the Gila on the southern boundary of the United States, and there was a survey upon that line in 1849. Maj. William H. Emory later established the present boundary under the terms of the Gadsden Purchase.

FIRST SURVEY.

About 1854 the first of several railroad surveys was made along this southern route.

A stage line was operated through Arizona from El Paso to San Diego as early as 1857. A little later, the San Antonio and San Diego State Company was succeeded by the famous Butterfield mail route from Tipton, Mo., to San Francisco, with daily service and a mail subsidy of $1,800,000 a year, with 100 Concord coaches, 1000 horses, 500 mules and 750 men. The first mail from San Francisco was delivered to St. Louis in "the short time of twenty-four days, twenty hours and thirty minutes." This line was abandoned at the outbreak of the Civil War, and travel was not resumed until after the end of that struggle. Stage service was continued until the Southern Pacific finally appropriated all travel, when the railroad was built through to El Paso, in May, 1881.

The route of the border highway enters Arizona east of Douglas. At Douglas the traveler may visit the great copper smelters, or from that point pass southward into Mexico. At Bisbee lie the greatest copper mines of the Southwest, almost within a hillside city of notable interest. Tombstone is the remnant of the wild western camp that is celebrated in border stories. Tucson, the oldest city in the State, dating back to 1775, still has much of the Spanish charm. Florence, at the Gila crossing, is set in the midst of an immense agricultural domain, and is the site of the State prison. Passing over a great concrete bridge, a few hours' journey brings the traveler to Mesa and Tempe, in the suburbs of Phoenix, the State's metropolis and capital, all surrounded by 300,000 acres of cultivated lands, irrigated from the celebrated Roosevelt Dam. Westward again, the way at present usually is through Needles, Ehrenberg or Parker, but the main highway of the future will be by the way of Yuma, down the historic Gila, and to a connection, at the Colorado River bridge, with California highways that are now under construction.

HISTORIC INTEREST.

This southern highway through Arizona is full of historic, as well as scenic interest, and travelers over it who prepare themselves with some knowledge of what has been done along the way, as well as what is to be seen, thereby will give themselves much added pleasure.

"MOSE" ON MOTOR CARS.

A recent visit to Los Angeles of a factory representative of the Cole Motor Car Company of Indianapolis disclosed a hitherto unsuspected reason contributing to the difficulty of obtaining all of the automobiles required to supply the demand in California and other Pacific Coast sections.

"Why do you know," the Cole representative remarked to H. L. Perkins, sales manager of Davidson, House & Meyers, distributors of the Cole, "the South has bought motor cars this year in greater numbers than ever before in the history of the industry. The cotton yield has provided everyone with money it seems, and a good part of this money is going into automobiles."

"The Cole factory man told me what I think is one of the best automobile stories ever told," Sales Manager Perkins said. "The story goes that a colored cotton planter, dressed to kill, chased into a Birmingham auto salesroom.

"'What can I do for you, Mose?' the dealer asked the visitor.

"'I dunno, boss, but I specs you-all might sell me a car.' 'Well, we haven't any used cars on hand now,' the dealer replied, to which the darky responded, 'I doan' want no second-hand car.'

"Asked whether he had any preference of makes the colored patron is quoted as having replied, 'I sure has, I want to look at one of them there six-cylinder Cole aero eights,' and before the dealer could recover himself his visitor continued, 'They tell me that when one or two cylinders go flooey, it don't make no difference, all you have to do is just to keep on feeding the juice to those that's left.'"

FIRMOLA

FIRMOLA stimulates and revitalizes the relaxed tissues of the THROAT, NECK and BUST. It rejuvenates the skin of the neck, which usually becomes wrinkled, brown and leathery-looking early in life.

As soon as FIRMOLA is applied it begins to act. It revitalizes and builds up the atrophied muscles and tissues, thus restoring the youthful contour. The wrinkles vanish under and back of the ears, while the skin becomes soft, white and velvety.

NO MASSAGE.

FIRMOLA works while you sleep. Prices $1.50 per jar.

WITH a satisfying sense of security one snaps SO-E-Z fasteners, for once they are snapped shut they assume the entire responsibility for neatly closed, smooth-lying seams and closures.

SO-E-Z fasteners were designed after a careful study of fashion needs. They are cleverly made to lie flat and invisible against the garment. The patented "coin-edge" permits the thread to pass over an absolutely smooth surface both inside and outside the oval holes thus insuring you against the annoyance of cut threads.

SO-E-Z snaps on your gown are your style protection.

Obtainable in all sizes, black or white, guaranteed rust-proof.

Made in America! SO-E-Z snaps are 100 per cent. perfect and 100 per cent. American. Every card of SO-E-Z snap fasteners bears a garment protection guarantee.

NUCOA

A Protest to the people of California

WE ARE paying big money for this page in order to acquaint the people of California with the unfairness, and probable unconstitutionality, of some of its food laws—plus the harsh interpretation of administrative officials.

The Dairy interests, a trust—pure and simple, whether the people know it or not—have succeeded in passing laws that work a great hardship upon our product.

For instance, Nucoa is churned, and "churned" is a dictionary word, yet we are denied its use in trying to tell the truth about our product for the reason that the word "churned" is an exclusive dairy term. How is that for class legislation?

Nucoa is made of Nuts and Milk, yet we cannot say so, because the word "milk" is owned by the Dairy Interests. Wonder if they object to milk chocolate.

Our slogan "BUTTERS BREAD," is objected to, yet what else does Nucoa do but butter bread? Wonder why peanut butter, apple butter, peach butter and the like, are not objected to?

This is a great game, this is! All you have to do in order to satisfy the Dairy Interests is to get into a business that doesn't save the people any money.

The price of butter is beyond the reach of many people—and we think we are engaged in the highest class of conservation work. Nucoa saves big money, yet it doesn't cheapen the table in the least, and it is positively more nutritious, pound for pound, than cow butter. This is said on the authority of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The people of California are going to have Nucoa—they want it, because it is rich, pure, sweet and clean, and is made within the borders of this State.

Patents, Trade Marks and Coined words properly belong to individuals—but we thought dictionary words—like salvation—were free!

Plant Gladiolus Now

For early Spring flowers now is the time to make a first planting. Our strains of these are without a peer. They represent the highest development to which Gladiolus have been brought at the present time. They are characterized by enormous flowers and giant spikes. The bulbs we offer are our own excellent strain grown at our Rivera bulb farm, and the bulbs this season are superior in quality to anything we have ever offered. Plant them now and plant plenty for early Spring cutting.

GLADIOLUS H. & S. PRIZE MIXED

Under this head we are offering you a strain of mixed hybrids of superlative quality. Contained in the mixture this season are many new colors with flowers of enormous size. We do not believe there is anything in the Gladiolus line to equal or surpass them. The strain is ne plus ultra in quality. If you want something good try them.

Extra selected mammoth bulbs ..... per dozen $1.50
Second size bulbs ..... per dozen $1.25

GLADIOLUS AMERICA

Our bulbs of this season's crop are especially fine. If planted now they will give you during early Spring an abundance of tall strong spikes, splendid for cut flower purposes. The flowers of this Gladiolus are large, well expanded, eight to ten open on the spike at a single time, and possess an exquisite shade of soft pink which makes them particularly adaptable as cut flowers. This is an American Gladiolus for American gardens. Make a first planting now.

Extra large bulbs—per doz. $1.00
Per 100 ..... $7.50

CINERARIAS

Now is a splendid time to make a planting of these superb early Spring flowering plants. Our strain is the result of several years of careful selection. The blooms in the individual trusses attain a diameter of four inches and over. The trusses are of phenomenal size, and the plants of beautiful compact habit. Just the thing for that North shady bed. Contains all colors from pure white to pale blue, scarlet, crimson, purple, etc. Extra fine plants.

THE TIMES ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 16.

Gray Mercuries.

WHEN we come down from the green hills to Los Angeles to market our wares, one of the sights that fascinates us most is the procession of messenger "boys" that fetch and carry telegrams and other important things to editors, stock brokers, merchants, and even to private homes.

We counted forty-two of these modern Mercuries in one day, and thirty-seven of them were gray-haired men. We stood in a telegraph office for an hour, like a man in a mind-maze, and every time the manager or one of the clerks shouted "boy!" it was a man old enough to be your grandfather that appeared and took the telegram and sped out with it to deliver it to whoever it was that it belonged to.

The thing got so strong a hold on our curiosity that we waylaid one of these old men and asked him how it came to be that he was engaged in an occupation so at variance with its traditions. And he replied that he is a messenger boy now because he had always been a messenger boy. He started that way and was staying with it.

And, don't you know, when we heard that, it all seemed to be all right. It is, in deed, the best way for it to be. The man who stays with the thing in life that he started out to do, is a man to trust. In many ways he is a great man, whether he be a messenger for a telegraph office, a shoemaker or a banker.

Consider, now, if one of these gray-haired messengers were to sit down and write a book; don't you think it would prove to be exceedingly interesting? Think of the experiences a man must have had who spent a long life carrying telegrams to all the different kinds of people there are in the world—to honest men and thieves, to candlestick makers and the minters of money, to lovers both true and false. Think of the tears they have seen wept and the laughter of joy they must have heard.

There was a man who had been through seven wars, who was shipwrecked on a desert island and who was hanged three times, that wrote a book of his life. But, we don't think it is half so interesting as the book a gray-haired messenger boy could write.

Twenty Hours.

THE prediction is being freely made that travel by air is nearing a state of efficiency that will enable a man in New York to reach Los Angeles in twenty hours. This means that a New Yorker will be enabled to leave his office Saturday noon, at the close of business, attend church here Sunday morning, go down to the beach in the afternoon, eat dinner in one of our cafes, board his airship about dark and be back in his office Monday ready for business again, after having had a week-end of delight that he could not dream of now.

There is no use to laugh or to pooh-pooh at all this. It isn't so long ago that we deuled crazy the man who said we would have electric lights and telephones. And it isn't much longer ago than that when it was said that ships would voyage under water.

As far as we are concerned, personally, we are ready to believe anything. If you were to tell us that shoes will sell at $4 a pair again, we wouldn't have the nerve to contradict you. There may yet come a time when people will love bill collectors.

When a Man's Sick.

IT IS when we are sick that we make the hardest call on our philosophy of life. It is the most difficult of mental feats to be resigned to physical suffering and incapacity. There have been cheerful sick men in history, like Alexander Pope, it is true, but they were and are few and far between. Julius Caesar, or instance, proved to be a very querulous man when he was sick.

An old school friend of ours who is now eminent among the physicians of the world, says that the question with him usually is not what disease a patient has, but rather what patient the disease has. And there is a lot in that when one comes to think it over.

It is all very well for Dr. Harry Brook to say that if you are sick it is your own fault and you can be well if you will stop eating or eat the right kind of food, but the fact remains that men become afflicted with sickness, just the same, whether it be their own fault or no. And when they are sick they are mighty hard to get along with.

And so, this brings us face to face with the nurse. We contend that every sick man should have a nurse. Not his wife or his mother-in-law or any one of his family, but a strange man or woman whose business it is to be a nurse. And this nurse should be a person who is as cheerful as the dawn of a sunny morning.

For, when a man is sick if he shall find in the house or the hospital a solemn nurse addicted to reading Gibbon and John Bunyan instead of Joe Miller's Joke Book and Mr. Dooley, he will grow steadily worse and the chances are that he will almost die before he gets well.

A cheerful nurse with a laugh like running water, and eyes that dance, and a turn-up nose, is the greatest invention of the age in which we live.

The Misanthrope.

THERE is just one stripe of man in this world that really gets on our nerves, and he is the man known as a misanthrope. The dictionary defines him to be "a man who has an aversion to his fellow men." He is the man who is fond of saying "The more I know about men, the more respect I have for my dog."

Now, folks, whatever else you may decide to be, for heaven's sake do not be misanthropes. It is the worst thing you could be. It were better to be a Bolshevik, a beachcomber or a Turk.

When a man turns into a misanthrope, it means that his liver has hardened into a hickory nut and that he has ceased to be grateful for the warmth of the sun on the small of his back. He gets to be so that he isn't fit to fraternize with fleas.

Whenever you hear a man say that he has more respect for his dog than he has for his fellow men, put him down as a dog. His place is among dogs. He should live in a kennel and spend his time barking at the moon.

Don't think from this that we don't like dogs. But, dogs are dogs, and men are men. And, no matter how much a man may like a dog, he is put up wrong if he likes a dog better than he likes a man.

We grant that one often sees a woman with a dog in her lap and that one would suppose by her action that she prefers a poodle to a man animal. But, if you gumshoe after her and run her down, you will find that there is a man somewhere that she will shake the dog for, every time. It is very seldom that you will find a woman misanthrope.

They are mostly men, so called, and there are more of them than one would think, and they are a beastly nuisance always.

The Weather Man.

FAR be it from us to assail any man who is doing his best. Indeed, even if a man is not doing his best, or the half of his best, we have not the slightest desire to assail him. Life is too brief for that. And who are we, anyway, that we should cast a stone?

The weather man is no doubt a nice man. Doubtless he has a family to support, and the high cost of living must affect him the same as it affects the rest of us. The mistakes he makes are surely errors of the head and not of the heart. The weather man is human, and we are to remember that St. Paul said, "Even the just man falls seven times a day."

But, with all that, the weather man has one very bad fault that we think should be pointed out and that he should remedy. He has a habit of prognosticating the weather, and it is only about one time in ten times that his prognostication proves to be correct. Of course, he hits it safely here in summer, but that is a feat that anyone can perform perfectly without laying any pretensions to being a weather man at all. All that anyone need do here in summer is to say that "Tomorrow will be a fine, clear day," and he can make bets on it and win every time.

It is in what we call "winter" that this esteemed representative of the government falls down. He looks at his barometer when he is going to bed and sends word to the paper that we are to have rain, but when he wakes up in the morning the sky is as blue as an old sweetheart's eyes, the sun is shining like the glory of God, and the birds are singing. Or, if he says it will be a fine day tomorrow, it is almost certain to rain.

You see, what the weather will be is known only to the Power that holds the earth in the hollow of His hand. So, why doesn't the weather man learn that and quit trying to guess at it? We hope he will do so, because we don't like to hear people laughing at him.

The Tenement Mother.

Worn by long hours of toil and child-care,
She lay asleep. Her trouble-furrowed brow
At last was calm. No trace of woe was there;
From restlessness she'd freed herself, somehow.
The intonation made by shunted cars
As elevated switches shook the walls.
The ribald songs of men at rowdy bars
Were echoed and re-echoed through the halls.
The noisy clang of the police patrol,
The hoarse horn hoots of spectral harbor boats,
Did not disturb the peace that held her soul.
Deaf-eared was she to all discordant notes.
The shrill voice of the midnight paper boy,
The church clock, striking twelve, in vibrant dome,
Met failure if their wish was to annoy
The strength-spent sleeper in her humble home.
Quite undisturbed she slumbered on and on;
The night grew old, the noises did not die;
Amid the clangor of approaching dawn
An infant breathed a faint, but troubled sigh.
Whereat the woman rose and softly crept
Across the room. There, in the gloom, unseen,
She lingered where her dimpled baby slept,
To know just what that little sigh could mean?

We Falter.

WE ARE in receipt of a book that we have not yet found the courage to read. And that's a strange thing, because a book arouses a tremendous curiosity in us. Never, until now, have we seen a new book that we wouldn't burn a candle to read though weary with the day's work and dead on our feet for the want of sleep.

But, here is a book now that daunts us by the mere name on its cover. In vain have we tried to open it. It is like trying to face a ghost.

The name of the book is this: "Twelve Lessons from the Seven Purposes." By the beard of Mahomet, that's its name. Take a good look at it yourself, and tell us if you, either, would have the courage to read it. It has a shiver in it. It seems to hold up its finger at us. It sounds like we think Gabriel's trumpet will sound.

Maybe if the old times were back and a man could open a black bottle and take seven swallows of what used to be commonly and usually in a black bottle, he could throw fear to the winds and open this book as a man would open a can of tomatoes, with not a tremor in his soul. But those times are no more. And to go right up to the "Twelve Lessons from the Seven Purposes" on water or tea or coffee—why, there is no man that can do it.

God save us, why must authors write such books? What good is there in them? Is not life hard enough and gray enough and sad enough as it is, without having to have it seared into us with print?

If it were not that we would think ourself a coward we wouldn't read a book with a name like that if we lived a thousand years.

And there are so many books to read, anyway, that have no scare in them, no gloom or sorrow. Books that lift up the heart and put a song in it; blithe books with sun and laughter in them and the sweetness and happiness of the world in them.

We are friends to all poor scribblers, but we do not care to even shake hands with this Seven Purposes person.

Homer's Friend.

THREE thousand years ago or more, Homer, whom the encyclopedias designate as "the great epic poet of Greece," but who was the greatest of all poets from first to last—or, until now at least—greater even than the poet who wrote the Book of Job, was a wandering beggar in his native land. He was a beggar and he was blind.

But, who would not be glad to be a beggar, and to be sightless of eye in the bargain, to be Homer—deep-voiced Homer whom the gods on high Olympus must have envied?

And, somewhere in the songs that Homer sang there is a stave about a man of whom Homer says: "He was a friend to me; and he lived in a house by the side of the road."

Who was this man? By the side of which road was his house? We would rather have an answer to these two questions than to have you tell us how to make a million dollars. Honest, we would.

It wouldn't do us any good to know, of course; only the satisfaction it would be. To sit in the dust of the place where the house was, to close our eyes and make a vision of old Homer coming down the road, weary and hungry, and the man flinging open the door and taking the beggar in—that beggar who made the world so rich—it would be very wonderful, would it not?

Often, when thinking of this man, we have thought that it was quite unnecessary for Homer to have said that his house was by the side of the road. Of course it was. He was a man who would be sure to have his house by the side of the road, and not in a hidden place. His house must be where the beggars and the feet of the weary men could find it.

Where is your house? Is it by the side of the road? If not, better move it; and [illegible] might send some blind Homer to you then.

It was almost 6 o'clock before there was a moment's leisure for Helen to look over the mail. Warren had gone out for a walk, and Carrie was busy in the kitchen.

For Helen, the rest of the call was exhilarating. She knew that Carrie knew—and that she was gloating over her discomfiture.

"I'll be stunning with my black lace gown, Warren, I must give you a hug for that."

"I say, you people have been too good," protested Lawrence. "We certainly didn't expect anything like this."

"Well, we don't do over often—and these are things you can't get here."

complete inside story of the infamous fraud perpetrated on me, the same constituting a clear case of obtaining money under false pretenses, I call on you to make complete restitution or suffer the consequences! His eyes were severe through the big glasses. Impressively he tapped the leather-covered arm of the divan. "The car is worthless. Junk, indeed, and nothing else. I was obliged to sell her for such. I received but $45 for her. Your story, sir, has been heard by witness. Do you wish to settle with me privately, or would you rather have me take the matter into court?"

"I—I guess I'd rather settle, but—"

"Very well, sir. The sum of $120 will liquidate your indebtedness."

"But I—I ain't got that much on me?"

"How much have you, sir?"

"Ninety-two sixty!"

"Very well. I will be reasonable. I will accept $90 in complete settlement of all claims. Otherwise—well, matters must take their course."

Jimmy Dill passed a hand up over his pompadour, then, resigning himself to the inevitable, pulled out his bill of gold and paid up. Horn Spectacles very gravely pocketed the money. Then, as the brakes began to grit, he reached for his suit case, stood up and, putting on his hat, left the car.

Dill, in a collapse against the cushions, feebly shook his head.

"Can you beat it?" he whispered huskily. "Good night! Can—you—beat—it?"

IV

As the train pulled out of the little way station Horn Spectacles stood gazing after it with a smile.

"Not too bad for a casual bit of business," said he contemplatively. "Ninety beans don't grow on every bush, but a little 'bush' seems to have produced ninety. Some cinch, eh?

"Good idea to carry a full assortment of cards, comprising all the more common names. A man in my line of high-grade confidence specialties never knows when one or the other will come in handy. Now, for instance, if I hadn't just happened to have a card with the name 'Robinson' on it this flier in junk couldn't have been pulled across and I'd have been out ninety.

"I wonder who Robinson really was, though, and what happened to Liz?

the cheapest, tawdriest things! Why should we make her expensive gifts?"

"What's that got to do with it? We bought her that scarf—and you tried to palm off a dinky pocketbook.

"It was worth a dozen of those hat pins," flamingly. "And you needn't have humiliated me before her! You could have sent the scarf afterwards."

"I could—but I didn't. You're always doing things on the cheap—and this is a mighty good lesson. You're out the scarf and the pocketbook, too. That's rich!" with a chuckle. "You've got a box full of tricks, Kitten, and some of 'em are darn clever—but that one didn't work!"

Build Nests Like an Oven.

Do you know how the oven bird got its name? Well, it was because its nest built among the leaves or pine needles on the ground is arched and of an oven-like appearance. You do not see the oven bird sitting on the topmost twig of a tree like some other members of the feathery tribe, but he sticks close to the ground, mounting to the lower branches of a tree only to sing or to scold an intruder. The song of the oven bird somewhat resembles the word "teacher."

From Now.

I opened my soul like the morning rose
And shook from it the dew,
And oh what a wondrous sight arose,
And limitless the view.

I wakened my soul from the sleeping earth
To bathe in crystal streams,
To cleanse it for celestial births
In worlds of our dreams.

I wakened my soul to joy and content
Found in the greater I
For the Pleiades tell in gentle tones
The I may never die.

Hush Mush

by The Old Captain

With sketches by the Author

[In this issue of The Times Illustrated Magazine we take pleasure in introducing to our readers "The Old Captain" who will from time to time entertain you with stories of the quaint and curious characters who haunt the water front of Los Angeles Harbor.

These characters are not fictitious, but real fisher folk and sailormen and their women; men who know the sea and its ways, whose days of usefulness before the mast, on the quarterdeck or the bridge is past, but who still live in terms of ships and shipping. Their sayings and doings, as they sit in the sun and watch other "men go down to the sea in ships," are faithfully recorded by one who knows them and their ways and who being one of them appreciates their point of view.—Ed.]

JUST a few years ago East San Pedro was a little pocket of picturesque dilapidation, that could hardly be equaled in California, or perhaps elsewhere; a subject for painters, who would sit the whole day long and paint the canvas before them until darkness would shut them off, and then come again the next day and paint from a different angle. Then others would come, and still others—skinny, frowsled-headed women with hats on crooked, and smudgy hands would sit the whole day on their little three-legged camp chair, lost to the world in study and work, measuring with the brush handle at arms length.

The reason, in my opinion, was the picturesqueness of the cabins of old derelicts—old worn out seamen of the old school; deep sea water dogs, mostly A.B.'s before the mast; round the Horner's in ships that sailed with sails before the steamer's time—square riggers—fore and afters, two-three-four and five masted schooners with carved figure heads of beautiful maidens, hair streaming and hands outreaching or pointing the way into space for the ship, that would occasionally duck her under in a head sea, and in imagination the ship would chuckle as the beautiful maiden would rise dripping as the vessel mounted the next great swell, lifting high to do it over again and let the rude sea slap her in the face.

These "old-timers," when laid up as derelicts, would invariably build a shack on the piling of abandoned docks over the water, from drift lumber that floated about the harbor, fish a little, but would mostly sit in the warm sun, smoke their pipes and watch the shipping and criticise the handling of the vessels as they maneuvered in the narrow waters of the harbor. And no matter how skillfully the boats were handled, would suggest many different ways it could be done better, and refer to some old-time captain who could have done it so and so and a hellov a lot easier, instead of killing the men with useless work.

Those shacks of the old-timers that attracted the painter's eye, were added to—as when a new piece of lumber was picked up they would think: "Now where can I use that," and it was nailed on somewhere, the consequence was a dilapidated picturesqueness of architecture that in designs and ways of construction, no architect could duplicate. But these shacks now are about gone. The Japs came in, multiplied, fished some, and multiplied again, inched in smiling all the time, but still creeping in with their quiet smiling ways, crowding, spreading from the center from where the first Jap settled down, outward and outward, still smiling and multiplying and crowding out, until these "old-timers" were pushed off the map. It is now a Jap settlement, with the picturesqueness about wiped out, a regular little Tokio of fairly decent habitations.

I knew all of these "old-timers." There was Alf, the fox-faced man with the big hands; a Dane; Otto, the asthmatic Swede, with his many gold rings on the knobby fingers; Danny the Irish wine drinker of "Dago Red" who married "Little Lady," the little Mexican women, tough as whalebone and fine as silk; and "Whitey," the Norwegian fisherman, who now owned his own little craft that would put to sea only when it was rough outside; and "dirty Larson," the foulest, lousiest, drunkenest sot of a thief, that if you combed the earth with a fine-tooth comb you could not find his equal, and "Hush-Mush," it is he that I now tell of.

He was an Englishman, from his talk and accent, "Hush-Mush" in "Longshore" parlance meant quiet mouth. I was a long time getting acquainted with him and never did to any extent. He was not so old, 60 or thereabouts, very decent, wore a white shirt, shiny shoes and fairly good clothes, smoked his straight-stemmed pipe and walked the dock during the most of the day, and came back from over the bay drunk every Saturday evening about dark.

I had often spoken to him and received a polite answer in return, but could never catch his eye. He never looked at you, but seemed to look through you and far beyond as if you did not exist at all or were a foggy sort of person. I have seen the same animals in cages at the menagerie who would look at you and never see you. Hush-Mush seemed to gauge his drinks to a nicety, just take enough so he would be able to navigate with difficulty, and climb the outside stairway leading to the second story on his hands and knees to the room in the shack that he occupied. But this evening that I am reminded of, I saw that he was overloaded, and watched him closely as he came up from the Ferry dock. He had taken one too many this time, and as he arrived at the top of the gangway the railing was not there any more for him to hold on to steady himself. It was the end of the rail, he hesitated and then tried to navigate the wide docks with nothing to steady him but air.

I watched him as he started forward and was not surprised to see him fall after he had worked his limber legs as far as he could. He had a terrible bump right on his face. I ran and helped him up, the blood was running from his nose and mouth down his white shirt front. He looked up stupidly at me as I steadied him, and mumbled: "One too many this time, one too many, mister. Will you kindly help me to my shack?"

I was disgusted, but felt sorry for him too, and was ashamed to be seen leading a man as drunk as he was and in his bloody condition, but I couldn't refuse. I tried to life, but his legs were too limber and his feet wouldn't track, so in desperation I picked him up bodily as I would a sack of potatoes, slung him across my back, carried him up the dock, up the rickety stairs to his room and rolled him off me onto the bed.

"You're a strong man to do that, mister," he said wit a little laugh. "I know, many a on I have lugged up out of the hold the Anna May and chucked them into th sea; many a one, many a one, soft and lim ones that would fold down about you and l close and seem to hug and cling to yo and hard and stiff ones, some straight ou that I could carry like a plank and when heaved them out they would dive dow straight for the bottom with hardly splash; and some that had dried crooke and stiff as iron. But the soft ones, the were the hard ones to get on my shoulder I know, mister. I know that it takes strong man to shoulder one of the soft ones God, I can never forget, in my sleep I am carrying them up and heaving overboar carrying and heaving always the whol night long.

"She was a Blackbirder, the old Ann May. I was on her because I was shan haied; I was a fairly good lad and ha never seen much death before, and to se and hear those poor niggers suffering an dying like flies when the calm held the sh in the heat of the South Seas along th line, and rolled and rolled in the troug snapping the loose sails for a week mayb with the pitch boiling in the deck seam My God, man, I can never forget it! That why I tank up, I want one night's soun sleep in the week, but I took one too man tonight. Now kindly go away like the goo fellow that you are and let me sleep. O aye, sleep while the drunk is on."

"Poor old 'Hush-Mush,' ma God in His pity send you s o u n d sleep tonight." thought as I climbed dow the rickety stair.

MARRIED LIFE OF HELEN AND WARREN

BY MABEL HERBERT URNER.

Helen Rebels at Giving Penniless Sister-in-Law an Expensive Present.

"DEAR, you'll have to come help me," called Helen from the hall closet. "I want these things to go on the top shelf."

"Nice Sunday job," Warren appeared at the door with his cigar and paper.

"Oh I know—but I must get things straight. Those four boxes—and your hat box. Be careful! That step-ladder's rickety."

Just three days since they landed, and with no maid, Helen was still in the throes of getting things "straight." Thinking this dark and dismal Sunday would be free from interruptions, she was putting away the summer clothes.

"Oh!" in sharp dismay as the house phone rang. "Not some one to call? You answer it."

With provoking deliberation, Warren awaited until he shoved up the last box, before he climbed down to the clamoring phone

"Hello? . . . Who? . . . Mr. and Mrs. Edwards? . . . Send them right up."

"Carrie!" gasped Helen. "You receive them—I'll have to dress."

Thrusting back boxes and clothes, she slammed the door on the disordered closet and darted into her own room as the bell rang.

It was just like Carrie to come without phoning! She should have known they would still be upset.

In her haste Helen overturned a bottle of toilet water, brought from London, which increased her resentment.

"You needn't have dressed for us," was her sister-in-law's irritating greeting when Helen entered the library. "We just drove by for a few moments."

"Mighty glad to see you back." Lawrence gripped her hand warmly. "You both look fine. Enjoyed the trip, of course?"

"Oh, yes, it was wonderful."

"Found London pretty crowded? Hotels full?"

"Yes, but we were fortunate. Had a very comfortable room at the Regent Palace—Lyon's new Piccadilly house."

"Well, we had a glorious summer at Clifton Lake," interrupted Carrie. "It's very exclusive—and very difficult for hotel guests to get in right. We joined the golf club and met all the cottagers. What is the matter with this chair? One of your decrepit antiques?"

"That arm's loose," flushed Helen. You'll find this more comfortable."

"The McHenry's have the most wonderful place—right on the lake," as she took the other chair. "Twenty servants—and they call it a camp!"

"Camp?" snorted Warren. "Fine camp if you can't wear a flannel shirt, cook flapjacks, and spit in the fire."

"They gave a lawn fete in their Italian garden," ignored Carrie. "I wish you could have seen the decorations. Over four hundred guests—the most prominent people from all the summer colonies."

"Yes, Carrie was flying high this summer," deprecated Lawrence. "But I'd like to hear about London. Conditions getting better? How about prices?"

"Well, raw food's about the same as here," announced Warren, "but the restaurants are much cheaper. The English won't stand for being soaked."

"What about clothes? That's a good-looking suit. Get that there?"

"Yes Harding and Goff, on the Strand. Twelve guineas."

"But women's clothes are no cheaper," declared Helen. "I can do just as well here."

"Clothes!" broke in Carrie. "I never saw such clothes as at Clifton! Mrs. McHenry showed me her wardrobe—a whole cedar-lined room with glass cases. And all her gowns hung on perfumed hangers! Three cases just for evening gowns—two for afternoon—two for street and another for negligees. I'm sure there's $50,000 worth of clothes in that room!"

"Make it a hundred while you're about it," scoffed Warren.

"And her furs and jewels! Why, you must know Edgar Walsh McHenry? He's one of the most prominent men in Wall street."

"Never heard of him. What's his line? Promoting or bucket shops?"

"Warren, you needn't try to be nasty! Suppose you never heard of the Dudley Whites either? Well, they were there. And the Woolleys—John Roger Woolley—the Woolley washing compound. Their home's palatial!"

All through her sister-in-law's effusions, Helen's one urging thought was—how could she bring in their dinner with Sir John Blackton? She could not lug it in, she must lead up to it naturally.

Carrie was now expatiating on the Woolley mansion, the furnishings, tapestries—and a gallery of "real old masters."

"We saw some wonderful paintings at Sir John Blackton's house—the night we dined with him." Helen brought it in rather breathlessly.

"Oh, did you?" was Carrie's brief dismissing comment. "Well, it's really an inspiration to see the Woolley collection. He paid $200,000 for one landscape—a Van Dyke."

"Van Dyke never did a landscape!" grinned Warren.

"Then it was a Raphael or a Reynolds—it was $200,000 anyway! They're going to dine with us some evening this winter. If you'd care to meet them," patronizingly, "you could come over after dinner."

"Not on your life!" exploded Warren. "We'll confine our acquaintances to the washing compound. That's the stuff that ate holes in my shirt last winter."

"Hope not," laughed Lawrence. Then plainly anxious to divert his wife's vaunting volubility, "Helen, where's Pussy Purr-Mew?"

"We haven't brought her back yet—Mrs. Stevens had her while we were away."

"Thought you might like a souvenir from Clifton," Carrie took from her handbag a pink-stringed package. "It came from the dearest little gift shop."

"Oh, they're very attractive," murmured Helen, unwrapping two enameled hat pins, and a paper knife for Warren.

With a rush of resentment she thought of the expensive Liberty scarf they had bought for Carrie and the Spitlefield ties for Lawrence.

"Fine! Just what I need—a paper knife," was Warren's gracious comment. "See here, haven't we something for Carrie and Lawrence from London?"

Without a word, Helen rose and left the library. In her own room, she took out the box which held the presents from abroad—not yet distributed.

That expensive silk scarf for Carrie! Two pounds ten—over twelve dollars! And Carrie had given her a pair of two-for-a-quarter hat pins!

She would not give her the scarf! It was too much. A hurried search through the box revealed a six-shilling pocketbook bought for Cousin Sylvia. That would do for Carrie and she would keep the scarf for herself.

With heightened color, she returned to the library.

"Feels like ties," guessed Lawrence, as she handed him a tissue-wrapped package. "By Jupiter, Spitlefield ties! Say you folks shouldn't do this."

"Yes, that Spitlefield silk's the real thing," declared Warren. "There's nothing like it for wear—even better than Irish poplin."

Then as his glance fell on the pocketbook which Carrie had received without enthusiasm.

"Hello, what's that? Why, that's not what we brought for Carrie," blind to Helen's frantic signals. "Where's that Liberty scarf?"

A painfully awkward pause. For once Helen's inventiveness failed her.

"Oh, that's your present to Carrie? That it? Well, trot out mine."

Her face now aflame, Helen brought in the Liberty scarf.

"There! Isn't that a peach?" Warren shook out the glimmering folds of softly blended shades. "Can't get that coloring anywhere but at Liberty's."

"Oh, that's exquisite!" exulted his sister. "It'll be stunning with my black lace gown. Warren, I must give you a hug for that."

"I say, you people have been too generous," protested Lawrence. "We certainly didn't expect anything like this."

"Well, we don't go over often—and these are things you can't get here."

For Helen, the rest of the call was excruciating. She knew that Carrie knew—and that she was gloating over her disconcertion.

It was almost 6 o'clock before there was any movement for departure.

"Now you must come out and spend Sunday with us very soon," urged Lawrence as they waited for the elevator.

"It'll take us several weeks to get settled," demurred Helen hoping to postpone that dreaded ordeal.

"I'm perfectly crazy about the scarf! And thank you so much for the pocketbook. It was sweet of you to bring me something, too."

"Oh, not at all," murmured Helen, keenly alive to the malicious thrust beneath Carrie's saccharine remark.

When after a round of good-bys, they turned back into the apartment, Warren shut the door with a menacing bang.

Again in the library Helen stood by the window, her burning face against the chill pane. Hot tears scorched her eyelids—but she kept them back.

Warren had switched on the reading lamp. The darkened window reflected the yellow glow. The scratch of a match—he was lighting his pipe. Then a grim,

"Well, that's the time you didn't put it over!"

Still she did not turn.

"That was pretty small—even for you," as the chair creaked under his weight.

"Small!" She whirled about. "It wasn't small of her to give me those two-for-a-quarter hat pins? And after all her blowing about Clifton Lake! She always gives us

THE PLAGARIZING PARSON WINS.

BY EDWARD BOLTWOOD.

"What are you staring at? Do you see a ghost?" demanded Mr. Bilkett.

"Yes—no—I mean, go on, please," gasped Crake.

He raised his bewildered eyes from the blue manuscript which he was reading and stared helplessly at a corner of the room.

The room was the shabby office of the Vulpynn Press, Limited, in New York. The Vulpynn Press, Limited, was Mr. Bilkett. Mr. Bilkett's half-inch advertisement lurked like a patient spider in the columns of many rural weeklies and proclaimed to obscure genius that the Vulpynn Press made unknown writers famous. Obscure genius, applying to Mr. Bilkett, found that he published books upon an arrangement whereby genius shared the expense according to a sliding scale. The slide, however, was afterward performed solely by the author; financially speaking, he or more often she might as well be on a toboggan as sign a contract with the Vulpynn Press.

"Listen, Crake," resumed Bilkett, stretching his arm to tap the blue manuscript. "I want you to throw a strong talk into this guy. I judge from his letter that he's good for more stuff. It's poetry ain't it?"

Mr. Crake, the literary representative of the Vulpynn Press, seemed to be incapable of speech. He nodded vaguely.

"Then the seeker will be a cinch," decided Bilkett. "All poets are a cinch. I remember what a cinch you were, Crake. So you take a blank contract with you, and land this farmer—this Zenas Vicary, whoever he is. Land him! Jerk his leg off! Wear your silk hat, and—you know. He lives at Lawfield, on Long Island, about an hour's run; and I've brought a round-trip for you. You can't hock it."

The publisher giggled unpleasantly, but Crake did not respond. As if in a daze he pocketed the manuscript and the ticket and moved toward the door.

"And, my son," added his employer with much emphasis, "just recollect that you haven't put a job across for me in a dog's age. If you don't get a contract out of this Vicary, you'll get the bounce P. D. Q.! Think that over, Mr. Augustus Crake, Esquire!"

Crake, with an abstracted air of condescension, intrusted his tall, portly figure to an elevator and emerged upon Broadway. His frock coat dated from a time when tailors called the garment a "Prince Albert." Like a shored-up building, his silk hat was plainly maintained by a stout black band. Nevertheless, he was an impressive sight. Passers-by took him for a distinguished-looking southerner who had seen better days.

During a varied experience of forty years in New York, Mr. Crake had been an actor, a school-teacher, a poet, an insurance solicitor, a reporter, a book agent and a cigar-stand cashier, but he had never been a southerner.

He bounded up the stairs of the seedy boarding-house with astonishing agility, darted into his hall bedroom and threw open his trunk. Neatly arranged on the bottom of the trunk were 289 small paper-covered books, the unsold portion of the first and only edition of 300 copies of Mr. Crake's poems, published for him anonymously several years ago by Mr. Bilkett, whose press was then called the El Dorado.

Crake pulled out Zenas Vicary's blue, pen-written manuscript, picked up one of the books and compared the contents of the two with anxious solicitude. At last he jammed manuscript and book into his pocket and departed in triumph for Lawfield, L. I.

"I never heard of Zenas Vicary, but if he's got any fat I'll fry it out of the robber for this," ejaculated Mr. Crake joyously.

II

Half reclining upon a seat in the smoking car, Augustus invited his soul to rosy visions.

"It only depends upon how Vicary is fixed," Mr. Crake soliloquized. "He's stolen my poems, word for word, and now, by jinks, he'll settle to keep my mouth shut. Hush money, hey!"

"Lawfield!" yelled the brakeman.

Augustus disembarked with elaborate dignity. A group of rustic loungers was on the platform of the little station, and he knew the theatrical value of an effective entrance. He approached the station agent ponderously.

"Can you—ah—inform me of the address—ah—of a resident here named—ah—Vicary?"

"Do you mean Deacon Vicary" said the station agent, "or Doc Vicary, or Cap'n Vicary? Or Lizzie Q. Vicary, the dressmaker?"

"I mean Mr. Zenas Vicary," intoned Crake.

"Well, he's the deacon. That's his store across yonder."

Mr. Crake had difficulty in concealing his exultation. A deacon and a country storekeeper! He could hardly wish for a more vulnerable target.

Zenas Vicary's general store was the only mercantile establishment on the village street. Behind an open front window a small, thin man with a gray beard was bending over a ledger. Mr. Crake tilted his silk hat at a belligerent angle and crossed the street deliberately, like a dangerous, somber battleship bearing down on a disabled pirate.

III

"That's me, Zenas Vicary. You're the book printer, are you, sir?" said the man at the desk; and he studied Crake's card.

Augustus majestically nodded.

"I didn't expect to—I thought this business could be done up by letter," said Vicary. "Let's step over home."

He changed his coat, roused a sleepy clerk and ushered his visitor to a rear door. Crake followed in a portentous silence, with which he designed to alarm the criminal's conscience in the deacon's breast.

A short foot path through a meadow led them toward a low-roofed, motherly farmhouse. It was a hot day and the corpulent ambassador of the Vulpynn Press walked cautiously; he had not walked through a meadow since he was a youth. He observed with some surprise that flowers grew wild in the grass.

The hospitable porch of the farmhouse was pleasantly sheltered by vines. Mr. Crake leaned back in a comfortable chair and frowned. The stage setting somehow seemed inappropriate to the drama. Vicary, who had disappeared indoors, presently returned with a great earthenware pitcher of cold cider.

Augustus drained a glass, looked at his criminal and frowned again. If the stage setting was inappropriate the make-up of the villain was impossible. Old Vicary had the innocent eyes of a confiding child, and Diogenes would have thrown away his lantern had he seen the deacon's face. But—

"I'm real glad you liked the poetry I wrote out," said Zenas tentatively.

Mr. Crake deposited his glass on the floor and braced himself to a militant attitude both of body and mind.

"Quite so," he grimly answered. "Is this your first acquaintance with the Muse, Mr. Vicary?"

"How?"

"Your first poems?"

"My first," assented the deacon. "It's the only poetry I ever wrote out. It took me a long time, off and on, and I'd rather get it printed than—than 'most anything."

Augustus produced the blue manuscript.

"And, I suppose, Mr. Vicary," said he in a caressing tone, "that these exceedingly fine verses which you offer to the Vulpynn Press are yours and belong to you?"

"Yes, sir, that's my writin'."

"But how," exploded Crake, "do you account for this?" And he banged the paper-covered book on Mr. Vicary's knee.

For nearly a minute the deacon did not move or speak. He gazed at the book. Then he gazed at the book. Then he shivered and rubbed his hands together feebly, as if to warm them.

"Well, mister, I—I guess you've found it out!" he sighed.

"That's right!" grunted his tormentor.

There was another pause before Vicary raised his gray head and strained his lips into the wavering semblance of a smile.

"But I don't guess," said he wistfully, "that there's any harm done, is there?"

"Any harm?" stormed Crake. "Any harm in forgery? Do you call robbing another man of his brains any harm? Do you call trying to get money under false—"

"I wasn't trying to get money," Vicary interposed. "I've got enough money. I'd a paid for the printin' of my books and I wouldn't a tried to sell one of 'em."

"So you claim—now!" Crake jeered. "Well, do you know what I can do? I can make an example of you as a sneaking crook. What'll your folks say? What'll your neighbors say? What'll your church say? I've the legal proof here that will give this village something to talk about, Mr. Zenas Vicary? You, a rich deacon and a cheap thief!"

"But I warn't a thief—not for money—I—"

"For what else?" taunted Crake.

Vicary turned away, as if talking to himself.

"For to make her think better of me," said he softly. "Persis, I mean—my wife."

Crake grinned, but he was not altogether pleased. The deacon tremulously tore a leaf from the vine and picked it to shreds.

"That's why I done it," he said in an almost inaudible voice. "I didn't get married sir, till six years ago. She's a young woman compared to me. There was younger men after her; better men, and better learned, and her a school-teacher; but I love her true, and she married me. Maybe her mother kind o' persuaded her; they were dreadful poor, but there I vowed I'd make her happy, and she believed me."

"Why look here!" grumbled Crake, stirring uneasily. "Your family affairs—"

"It's all a part of your calling me a thief," Vicary protested. "You're bound to listen, mister." He poured the bits of leaf from one trembling hand to the other. "So we was married," he resumed, "and she was happy, too—almost. Almost, but there was something, sort o' like a speck of dust in your eye that you can hardly feel, but you know it's there. I thought, and thought, wondering what it was.

"Well, one day, thinking about this, I was uncrating china over to the store and I found a poetry book that had been used for packing. I ain't no hand for books, but one o' them poems sort o' hit me, feeling the way I was. 'Love in Darkness,' that was it. I wanted Persis should see it, too. But the book was all smouched, and she likes everything clean and pretty, so I copied out them verses and laid 'em alongside her dinner plate that noontime."

The author of "Love in Darkness" removed his silk hat and blinked at it excitedly. In all Crake's career of failure no one before now had attached the slightest importance to anything that he had done.

"What did she say?" he murmured.

Vicary let the fragments of the woodbine trickle to the floor.

"She read the paper, and she came around the table and just kissed me. 'Zenas,' she said, 'I love you all the more for this dear song that you've made up in your tender, timid heart.' And I looked into her face. It was almost a new face to me, so proud and glad—and I see that the speck of dust was gone. And the temptation was too strong for me!"

IV

Crake pulled himself together with a brusque cough.

"Well, you didn't have to steal the whole book, did you?" he demanded gruffly.

"That's how it got started," rejoined the deacon. "It seemed sort o' predestinated, because the gentleman who had wrote the poems hadn't given his name, and the printer's name was only El Dorado. I knew now how to make Persis glad and proud; and I must have been crazy, I expect, but I took and wrote out one poem more for her, and then another, and then another. Last year I finished what there was of the book. I couldn't fetch myself to—to steal anywhere else. That sounds crazy, too. But I come to think that book was what the boys call a mascot—kind of a blessing, sir. 'Tain't many books, I reckon, that can bless a home the way that book did mine and make a woman happy."

There was a long pause. Vicary half closed his troubled eyes, as if they pained him; but Mr. Augustus Crake smiled very queerly.

"Oh, well!" groaned old Zenas. "That's all, except that she has been at me to get all them verses printed. 'Just two or three copies, only for my keepin',' says Persis. And I thought it wouldn't be so bad as this, sir, and—don't you see?"

"Sure!" muttered Crake.

A gate clicked and Augustus, bending forward thoughtfully, observed that a woman was walking up the garden path. She was a tall, graceful woman, with a singularly bright and winning and honest face. A little girl danced gaily beside her, and when the woman picked a flower from an overhanging bough the child clapped her chubby hands and laughed. The woman, laughing, too, stooped down, tucked the flower in the girl's brown curls and kissed them lightly.

Crake gazed with odd gravity at the simple picture; he had not seen such pictures often.

"If those are his wife and kid," thought Crake impulsively, "he had a right to steal to make 'em happy."

"There's Persis now," whispered Vicary.

His visitor laid a restraining hand on the deacon's arm.

"She'd better not notice me," Crake suggested, and he drew a long breath. "Just pay attention to me for a minute, Mr. Vicary. The author of those poems was—was a friend of mine. He wasn't much of an author really. He left me in charge of his writings."

"He's dead!" queried Zenas.

"A dead one," declared Crake solemnly. "So there's nothing to kinder—no, wait! I'm only doing what that author would have done, Mr. Vicary. He was a silly-headed Indian. He'd have sent you a few of his books, as I will, to do what you blame please with. There's no date on 'em, no name, and the El Dorado Press has passed out, like he has."

Mr. Vicary, open-mouthed and confounded, rocked himself weakly to and fro.

"It's terrible wrong," he faltered; "but nobody will ever see that book but Persis—and the Vulpynn—the Vulpynn people—"

"Here, take back your manuscript," interposed Crake, jumping up. "The Vulpynn Press is a skin and a fraud. Don't you ever bother with it—it's all bunco. I have a license to tell you that, because my resignation is as good as in!"

V

In the evening Augustus Crake sat beside Herr Max Rauptner at a table in the Hotel Bismarck.

"So, Owgoost!" chuckled Max. "You take job as my cashier, do you? Fine! And you quit the reading of poetry for Bilkett? Fine also! For why? There is not new poetry today, Owgoost. Where today is poet like Heine, what? Like Heine, what? Like Heine, with his songs to make happy the home and the woman's heart! Show me such a poet, Owgoost, and you show me a great mans. But where is he, mine friend?"

"I wonder!" said Crake, and winked contentedly, at his glowing pipe.

Birds Do Not Make Birdseye Maple.

What makes the birdseye maple? That is a question which you have asked yourself when you looked at a beautiful piece of furniture made of this wood. There have been a number of theories but the real reason is simple.

The favorite theory has been that sapsucker, by pecking holes through the bark of young maples, make scars which produce the birdseye figure in the wood during succeeding years. Bird-pecked hickory is often cited as an analogous case, yet who ever saw birdseye figure in hickory, though the bark may have been perforated like a colander by the bills of energetic sapsuckers? The effect in the case of hickory is the opposite of birdseye maple; the wood is discolored and unsightly. Some attribute it to the action of frost, but no such connection between cause and effect has been shown to exist.

The explanation of the phenomenon is simple, and a person with a good magnifying glass can work it out for himself. The birdseye figure is produced by casual or abnormal buds which have their origin under the bark of the trunk. The first buds of that kind may develop when the tree is quite small. They are rarely able to force their way through the bark and become branches, but they may live many years just under the bark, growing in length as the trunk increases in size, but seldom appearing on the outside of the bark. If one such bud dies, another will likely rise near it and continue the irritation which produces the fantastic growth known as birdseye.

It is said the Japanese produce artificial birdseye growth in certain trees by inserting buds beneath the bark. The Field Museum, Chicago, has a sample of what is claimed to be artificially produced birdseye wood from Japan.

JIMMY TAKES A FLIER IN JUNK.

BY GEORGE ALLEN ENGLAND.

THE stout, expansive man with the pompadour lighted still another cigar, leaned back against the leather cushion of the Pullman smiling.

"As a deal it was some deal, believe me!" he remarked, contemplating the serious-looking man with the horn spectacles who sat opposite. "It ain't every day o' the week you can pull off a stunt like that an' get away with it!"

"You say the guy that fell for it and that you wished the old boat off on to a guy who claimed to be wise to cars?" asked the young fellow in the striped suit, inhaling a lungful of Egyptian smoke.

"An' then some!" chuckled the stout man. "He wasn't after it for himself. No, he was buyin' for another guy—man by the name of Robinson, from Boston. The way he put it to me, this Robinson didn't claim to be no Solomon in the buzz buggy business. Didn't trust his own judgment in buyin' no second-hand wagon, an' so got him to O.K. the machine. That's what makes me laugh even now, when I think of it!"

The stout man ruminated and blew smoke. He of the horn spectacles fixed an interested gaze upon him.

"'I know 'em from tires to top,' says the duck when he comes to give Liz the once over. Liz was her name. Just Liz. 'What I say to Robinson goes. I have cart blonk,' says he. Well, when I got through with him it wasn't cart blonk he had, but cart junk. Say! They don't slip anything much over on Jimmy Dill—that's me!"

"Was she really on the fritz?" asked the young fellow, while the serious-looking man lent an interested ear.

"Fritz? You said somethin'! Fritziest ever! She was an old Buck model seventeen, to begin with, crop of 1912. Seven-pass., rebuilt to runabout shape. Sixth-hand when I got her from a guy that had gave her up in despair. I paid him a hundred an' give him five $3 meal tickets in my cafe. I run the Alarm Cafe in Revere, see? Battleship gray, she was. Sixty H.P., with cylinders as big as pails, an' took a pail o' gas, too, every time she coughed."

"Some baby, eh?" inquired the young man with approbation.

"Liz was good, spite of all her kickups, till last spring. Then she slumped sudden, though she still kept flyin'. She was a flier, even if she begun to show signs of bein' junk. Tires begun to go bad, with a slow leak in one that we couldn't fix noway—all wearin' down, an' no more o' them bolted-on kind to be had. One lug of her cylinder casin' cracked off, too. That was bad. Supposin' another went while she was doin' sixty an' the engine dropped out? Flowers for yours truly.

"Magneto went on the blink, too, an' cylinders wore crooked, so oil worked up, an' she'd only run a few miles hittin' on four. Then she begin coughin' till you'd clean the plugs again. Who the devil can clean plugs every five miles? Her feed got leakin', too, so you couldn't pump her up without lamin' yourself. An' her gear shift busted, some way or 'nother, so for a while she'd only run on low—I once brought her home, sixteen mile, on low—an' then all of a sudden she'd only run on high. After a lot o' tinkerin' we got her to run on low an' high, but no second. An' boy! The times I used to have tryin' to coax her from low to high!

"I began to think I'd have to scrap her. But it was only after her radiator blew out while I was to Ellengone, out in the country, an' I had to plug it with chewin' gum, an' then she took to back firin', an' I had to be towed in by a fliv, on the end of thirty foot o' barb wire that we cut off'n a farmer's fence.

"Levitsky, the junk man, come an' said fifty beans on the hoof, as she stood. I was strong for the fifty, but Bill Hemingway, friend o' mine—he's in the garridge business, Bill is—says I can maybe do better. So I canned Levitsky an' put an ad in the paper, no price set. An' several guys come an' give her the o.o., an' then blow. Till at last this here wise duck, sent by this here Robinson, arrives.

"I'm sweatin' blood. If I stop I can't never make that hill."

II

"I has Liz already runnin' an I'm loaded for bear when he shows up, 'cause he's already phoned me he's comin', an' I'm not takin' no chances on not bein' able to start her. It's kind of noisy, down by the Alarm Cafe, with lots of electrics and et cet, so Liz don't sound so awful conspicuous. She's all washed an' polished, anyhow, an' that's half a sale. The wise duck gives her the up-on'-down an' then he says, says he:

"'Demonstrate her, will you?'

"'Demonstrate is my middle name,' says I. 'All goods strickly as represented or no sale. I wouldn't take a dollar of any man's money on no false misrepresentations,' I says. 'Money back if not sound an' kind. Get right in, mister, an' we'll hop to it!'

"So the wise guy gets in an' I prepares to make Liz do or die or perish in the attempt.

I has her on the stiff down grade anxious. I'm not buyin' for myself, you understand, but for a friend o' mine, name of Robinson. What's your very lowest?' 'Congratulations.'

"Half way down the grade I shift her an' get away with it O.K. The noisy street camouflages the kick-up in the engine so it ain't very raw. I pushes her out onta the boulevard an' lets her out, an' boy! Does she hike! Some! The wise duck has to take his dicer off an' hold it in his lap to keep it, an' the way we passes everythin' is a wonder.

"So far it's pie with ice cream on top, but my heart's in my mouth about the big hill. Everybody always has to go into second on that doggone hill, you see, an' Liz ain't got no second. I try to turn off toward the beach road, but the wise duck says, 'No, let's try her out on the hill,' so that's all off. So I decides I'll try to rush the hill an' trust to prayer an' luck, when flip-flap-flap somethin' begins goin', on her right hind leg.

"'What's that?' says the w. d. anxious.

"'Oh, nothin',' says I, easy like. 'She's maybe picked up a piece o' hoop, or a lath, or somethin'.'

"'Better stop an' have a look, hadn't you?'

"I'm sweatin' blood. If I stop I can't never make that hill, an' if I don't Lord knows what'll bust. I takes chances—there ain't nothin' else to do—an' charges the hill. Man! How noble old Liz answers me! Up an' over she goes, full lung power, an' straightens out on the level again. Whew! But there's more sweat on my manly brow than what the thermometer could account for!"

"I'm prayin' hard we'll reach the cafe without no traffic hold-up. If I ever have to go into low I'm gone. Once she's on low on level ground you couldn't get her into high with dynamite. But Liz's luck holds. Nothin' jams us. An' so, pretty soon, there we are again, back front o' the cafe, with her nose downhill, I makes a snappy stop with the foot brake an' crams her wheel against the curb to hold her from running away.

"'Why don't you put on your emergency?' asks the duck.

"I only scorns him.

"'Emergency nothin'!' says I. 'No such animal on this boat. She's a racin' car, stripped light. I thought you said you was hep to cars, tires to top!'

"That settles the duck. He climbs out, puts on his hat, shoves his mitts down in his pockets an' looks wise.

"'Well, mister,' says I, 'can she travel, or can't she?'

"'She sure can, but—'

"'Is she some classy boat, or ain't she? What?'

"'Classy is right,' he answers, while Bill Hemingway, who's been layin' in the offin', so to speak, lays off from layin' in the offn' an' lays alongside. Bill assumes a flankin' position, to re-enforce me. 'She's classy, speedy an' all that,' the duck says, 'but—well—'

"'No well to it!' I interrupts, lookin' at my watch as if I had a dozen dates. 'You gotta talk turkey to me, right off the bat. I got six offers already. There's only one boat like this here in the world,' says I, which is strictly true, 'an' it's the lucky man that gets her,' which is what I call a flight of imagination. 'She's liable to be gone in an hour. What's your best offer?'

"'Hundred an' fifty,' says the w. d.

"My mouth's just openin' to yell 'Gimme it!' when Bill, he horns in with:

"'Nothin' doin'!' His tone's indignant. 'I guess not! Nix on the one fifty. Say, I wouldn't let my own brother have it for no such slaughter price'

"'What's your lowest?' asks the w. d., anxious.

"'I'm not buyin' for myself, you understand, but for a friend o' mine, name of Robinson. What's your very lowest?'

"'One sixty-five, an' that's the last cent I'll go!'

"'Mister, you've bought a car!' said Bill, holdin' out his hand. "Congratulations.'

"Somethin' kind of seems to rise up and cloud my sight, like I was faintin'. When I comes to, gets my eyes open again an' catches my breath—when I comes up for air, you might say—the duck is diggin' up eight new twenties an' a V. I'm still gaspin' like, but Bill shoves me into the camouflage, or the background, or somethin' while the duck climbs inta Liz.

"Away he goes, down the hill an round the corner, with Liz still hittin' on three an' the slow leak bringin' one front tire nearly flat, an' now an' then back firin' like a Krupp. An' that's the last I ever see of either the Duck or Liz. I never see Robinson, nor hear of him, neither. He's a game sport an' a good loser, I'll say that for him. Ain't he? What?"

The young man in the striped suit nodded grinning. The man with the horn glasses looked very thoughtful, very grave. A little silence fell in the smoking compartment, while from the engine sounded a long whistle announcing an approaching stop.

"Great stuff!" suddenly exclaimed the young man with enthusiasm as he slapped his knee. "That's the best put-over I ever heard in the boat line." He turned to the man in the horn glasses. "Well, what d'you think of it? You don't seem to fall for it very strong, do you?"

"No, I don't," answered the man in the horn spectacles. "As a matter of fact, I'm Robinson!"

III

The man with the pompadour stared vacantly. His jaw dropped.

"Good night!" he ejaculated. "You?"

"I have that honor, sir."

"Go on! You ain't the guy that the wise duck bought Liz for?"

The gentleman with the horn glasses drew out his card case, looked it through, chose a card and presented it.

"At your service," he answered.

He of the pompadour read:

WILLIAM F. ROBINSON
Attorney-at-Law
27 Pearl street Boston

For a moment the blankest silence fell that had ever permeated that smoking compartment. Then Pompadour gulped, wiping his brow with a tremulous hand:

"Good night! I—I sure spilled the beans that time!"

"The beans, sir, are certainly spilled," answered Horn Glasses. "The entire potful. And that is not all. Now that I know the dress their children with simplicity. It is the vulgar new rich who err in this respect.

Importance of Fresh Air.

FOLLOWING is from "Natural Therapeutics," by Henry Lindlahr, M.D.:

"Fresh air is of vital importance at all times, but especially in acute disease, because here, all the vital processes are intensified. The system is working under high pressure. Large quantities of waste, and morbid materials, the products of inflammation, have to be oxidized, that is, burned up and eliminated from the system.

"But, strange to say, the importance of this most essential natural remedy is not as yet universally recognized by the representatives of the allopathic school of medicine. Time and again I have been called to a sickroom where by order of the doctor every window was closed and the room filled with pestilential odors, the poisonous exhalations of the diseased organism added to the stale air of the unventilated and often overheated apartment.

"It is not the cold draft that is to be feared in the sickroom. Cold air is most agreeable and beneficial to the body burning in fever heat. What is to be feared is the reinhalation and reabsorption of poisonous emanations from the lungs and skin of the diseased body."

Considering these convincing statements by Dr. Lindlahr, is it not inconceivable that apparently intelligent physicians should recommend people to smother their faces in masks, thus re-breathing the filth from their own lungs?

Dropsy.

FOLLOWING is from "Autointoxication," by J. H. Kellogg, M.D.:

"In dropsy there is an accumulation in the tissues of fluid charged with salt and urea. Because of the inability of the kidneys to eliminate these substances as fast as taken in or produced in the body, they have been pushed out into the tissues, and with them there has been retained as a matter of necessity a sufficient amount of water to hold them in a state of solution, having such a degree of density as the tissues will tolerate. Every dram of salt which is thus retained, requires the retention with it to hold it in solution of more than a pound of water.

"A diet free from salt has been found to be one of the most efficient means of relieving dropsy. The rationale is very simple. A certain amount of salt escapes from the body daily, no matter whether any salt is eaten or not. The minimum amount usually lost during fasting is two to four grams, or half a dram to a dram. With each dram thus lost is also lost the pound of water holding it in solution. Thus the dropsy gradually disappears. Not infrequently the loss of dropsical accumulations is so rapid as to seem almost magical."

The Regulator of the Body.

MID all the camouflaged medical propaganda appearing in the papers, these sensible remarks, in the Dearborn Independent, Henry Ford's Weekly, are refreshing:

"The old saying that whether or not life is worth living depends entirely on the liver is as true as it is clever. If the liver is inactive, out of order or diseased in any way the whole body is affected. We feel blue and out of sorts with everything, or we have a dull, persistent headache with black spots dancing before our eyes. If we get up suddenly we are dizzy, or perhaps drowsy all the time, but sleep does not seem to rest and refresh us as it should.

"Now, naturally, everybody knows that the liver is an organ of the body whose chief duty is the secretion of bile, but in reality it is much more than this; it is the most wonderful filter in the world, for not only must every particle of dissolved food, and also any of the toxins or poisons it may contain, pass through the liver before any other tissue in the body can be nourished by it, but also all the blood in the whole body is driven through this filter every twenty minutes. So it follows that the sort of food we eat and the kind of life we live has a vast effect on the condition of this organ.

"Many people, subject to sick headaches, biliousness, upset the liver and bring on a bilious attack which causes the liver to secrete large quantities of bile in an effort to rid itself of poisons. Habitually eating a large amount of candy, eating or drinking a great deal of rich chocolate or drinking three or four cups a day of strong coffee or tea all cause the liver to go on a strike and let the toxins in the food slip by it to poison the system instead of straining them out as it is supposed to do. Food that is in the very least spoiled, that smells fishy or tainted or musty, is just as harmful to the liver as it is to the other digestive organs. Too much strong cheese, sauerkraut, pickles, spices and condiments are bad. Exercise in the open air, especially walking, is one of the best remedies for a sluggish liver."

Protein in Vegetables.

MOST people regard vegetables as low in protein, the muscle and flesh forming substance, of which a majority overeat. This is a mistake. Here is the percentage of protein in the water-free substance of some vegetables. Compare this with the same percentage in whole wheat bread, which is about 15 per cent.:

Carrots	10	per cent.
Potatoes	10	" "
Turnips	12	" "
Beets	12	" "
Onions	13	" "
Tomatoes	15	" "
Radishes	16	" "
Cucumbers	17	" "
String Beans	21	" "
Lettuce	23	" "
Green Peas	27	" "

You would, of course, have to eat an impossible amount of vegetables alone to get all the protein you need, owing to the large amount of water they contain, but the fact remains that after deducting the water they are quite high in protein content.

Vaccines and Influenza.

FOLLOWING is a dispatch from Raleigh, N. C., to the Christian Science Monitor:

"A thickly padded bulletin prepared jointly by the health authorities of the States of Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina, and containing a discussion of various theories relating to so-called influenza, is being widely distributed at public expense, in the State of North Carolina by the State Board of Health. One notable point made by the compilers of the bulletin is that reputable health officials believe vaccination is utterly worthless as a preventive against influenza, at least.

"The bulletin says, 'Artificial means, such as quarantine and vaccination, may be effectively applied in the control of some epidemics . . . but there is no evidence to show, and there are no health officers of dependable reputation who believe, that any epidemic of influenza has ever been or can be controlled or stopped with our present means,' referring obviously to medical means.

"As authority for its statement, the bulletin cites the view of Dr. G. W. McCoy, director of the United States Laboratory of Hygiene, and reputed to be the leading authority on the subject of vaccines. Dr. McCoy, discussing vaccination against influenza, is quoted as saying, 'In every case in which vaccines have been tried under perfectly controlled conditions, they have failed to influence in a definite manner either the morbidity or the mortality.'"

Why, then, continue to recommend serums, except to promote the highly profitable manufacture and dispensation of these poisonous preparations?

Climate and Civilization.

STEFANSSON, the Arctic explorer, says he believes that in the near future scientists will turn their attention seriously to the study of climate, as it effects intellectual development and progress. He adds:

"The trend of civilization is northward. I believe that the northern part of the United States and Canada will develop the best products of our civilization. The climate is admirably suited to physical and intellectual health and vigor."

The greatest and intellectual age was developed in a latitude about the same as that of Southern California—in Greece and Rome. A temperate climate is best for Old Crow Belief.

THE secret has leaked out that the real reason why the farmers were opposed to the daylight-saving plan was that they were not able to get the roosters to adopt it.

Problematical.

THE son of the family was home on his vacation after having attained the dignity of college prefect. He and his father were discussing affairs of the days, and finally the boy remarked:

"Say, Gov, I hope when I am as old as you are I'll know more than you do."

Too Proud to Write.

IN THE course of his examination these questions were put to an old negro who was appearing as a witness:

"What is your name?"

"Calhoun Clay, sah."

"Can you also your name?"

"Sah."

"I ask if you can write your name?"

"I ax you if I can write my name? Boss, I'se been a member of de Methodist church for fifty years, an' I reckon I ought to know how to write my name."

Difficulties.

CYRUS SMITH, the evangelist, said on his recent voyage from Liverpool:

"There are some men who can make a success even of failure. Thus there was a certain poor once who rose to make his maiden speech—a speech granting to all accused persons the right of counsel—and when he put his hand in his pocket for his notes they weren't there. His poor culprit. He looked about him wildly. Gulped again. Then he said:

"'If I, my lords, who now rise only to give my opinion on this bill—if I am to be (4.) His life has been free from worry. As for eating in the middle of the night, it is much less harmful to do that, when you are hungry, than to nibble all the time, when you have no appetite.

Nature is long-suffering. Otherwise we should all be dead.

This man's children, if he has any, will suffer from his indiscretions, and their children, in turn, still more so.

"The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly small."

• • •

Childbirth.

WHILE childbirth has been made a hospital operation, a simple precaution, that no intelligent midwife would omit, is almost invariably overlooked by physicians who, I suppose, are too busy to attend to such "trifles."

I refer to the stitching of the vagina, after laceration following childbirth. Such laceration is itself often caused by the use of instruments, where patience and gentle mechanical assistance might have been all that was needed. Or it might have resulted from a child too large, because the mother has been taught she must "eat for two."

I am constantly in receipt of letters from women who are nervous wrecks, on account of inexcusable negligence in this respect.

• • •

Profitable Publicity.

THE old convict in San Quentin penitentiary, on whom was grafted a murderer's gland, to "rejuvenate" him, is reported as saying that he "feels like a new man."

Perhaps he does. And then, again, perhaps he does not. He knows on which side his bread is buttered. Anyhow, he will serve as a "come on" to attract rich old fools, and get them to submit to a highly profitable operation that will do them no good—if it doesn't kill them.

And the newspapers may be relied upon to furnish millions of dollars worth of free advertising, whereas patent medicine manufacturers have to pay full rates.

• • •

Charity Begins at Home.

FOLLOWING is from an editorial in the Saturday Evening Post:

"It is encouraging to learn from official sources that the end of Red Cross work in Europe is in sight. We should not like to see this organization shirk any of its real obligations, either plain or obscure; but by the same token every consideration of wisdom and common sense forbids any programme contemplating the permanent coddling of foreign populations. Let them be set on their feet; let them be enabled to help themselves; and then let them hew out their own salvation by hard, honest work, just as we have had to do in America.

"The whole subject should be viewed broadly and farsightedly, but not with that pathological farsight which discerns glamouring distress 3000 miles from our own shores and is blind to the misery and suffering that exist all about us among our own flesh and blood."

A Poet of the People.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX died in Connecticut, at the age of 64. Her verses are sneered at by "high brow" versifiers, but they will live when all the bizarre writers of "vers libre" and other word jugglers are forgotten. As a press dispatch says: "She preached in her poems the doctrine of faith and courage and kindliness. She loved men and women, and she loved animals." In one verse, she has summed up the needs of suffering humanity:

"So many gods, so many creeds,
So many paths that wind and wind,
When all this old world really needs
Is just the art of being kind."

Killed by Serum.

A "CANCER cure expert" of Santa Monica, Cal., was found guilty of manslaughter, because one of his patients died, immediately after injection of a serum.

If all "regular" doctors, whose patients die immediately, or soon, after injection of serum, were imprisoned, the jails would overflow. In such cases, the facts are suppressed, and the death is reported as due to "heart failure," or something of that kind.

Only where there is a particularly flagrant case do the facts reach the public. As, for instance, when a few years ago, eight patients in the Los Angeles County Hospital died, after the injection of salvarsan, or "606."

Modern methods of treatment of syphilis is more dangerous than the disease. At the best—when it does not kill—it never cures, because it does not remove the poison from the blood, but puts more in, so that the last state of the patient is worse than the first. What is called "tertiary syphilis" is due entirely to the ravages of mercury.

Moreover, many declared syphilitic are not so. The Wassermann test is utterly unreliable. One "test shop" may say of the same blood "positive," another "negative."

Also, an acid condition of the blood may show "positive" for syphilis.

Yet on this rotten foundation, men and women are driven to despair and sometimes to suicide. And medical murder by serums goes merrily on.

Here is a simple letter, sent me by a broad-minded physician:

"A fine young Irishman recently came to me. He had been working in a copper mine in Arizona, where he contracted copper poisoning, for which he came to Los Angles to find relief. He fell into the hands of a specialist, who, when he found upon inquiry that the patient once upon a time had gonorrhea, sent him immediately to a Wassermann test shop, for examination. The result was a positive test. Whereupon the man, of course, was treated for syphilis, salvarsan being injected seven times.

"This man's brother, who also at one time had gonorrhea, was intimidated into submitting to the same malpractice, he being given nineteen injections. At the end of the treatment his condition was so serious that he had to be removed to the County Hospital, where he died a week ago—from salvarsan treatment. I saw the admission report to the hospital, stating, among other things, that the patient had paresis, and a positive test in the blood for syphilis.

"Now please remember that this man had taken nineteen injections for syphilis. Yet, according to this test, his system was still full of it.

"What a damnable farce. Either the test was wrong or the treatment a failure. Probably both."

This is not an isolated case. Such licensed killing is going on all the time. Almost every week similar cases are brought to my attention.

Men are imprisoned for adulterating milk, or selling a bottle of whisky, while such wholesale murder as this goes unchecked. Nay, it is even made compulsory. Hundreds of thousands of young Americans have in this way been physically ruined, where they have not been killed. An innocent person may be arrested "under suspicion," as a vagrant, and given the choice of being serumized, or rotting in jail.

This is a matter that directly affects every reader of these lines. It may be your turn next—or one of those you love. Use your influence to secure legislation forbidding this dangerous practice, which is founded on commercialism—on the immense profits obtained from the manufacture and dispensing of animal virus.

Material for Vivisection.

ON the roof of an apartment-house in Los Angeles two dogs had their playground. They were inseparable. One fell over and was killed. For several days the survivor sought his missing playmate, and then jumped over and joined his friend in the "happy hunting grounds."

Cause and Effect.

LEPROSY is "making an alarming growth" in California, according to a statement made by Dr. W. C. Hassker, health officer of San Francisco, in an address before the State health officers' division of the California League of Municipalities, in convention at Riverside, Cal.

Leprosy increasing, cancer increasing, tuberculosis increasing—and this notwithstanding the constantly augmented officiousness of boards of health and official "health" agencies, or rather, an account of those agencies, and their harmful methods of treating disease by wholesale blood poisoning.

Baby Finger Prints.

BABY finger prints on wallpaper are the finest example of mural art. This was the decision in the Bronx, N. Y., municipal court of Justice Robitzek, dismissing a suit to recover damages because a baby had embellished the interior decorations of an apartment by a frieze all its own.

"This would be a happier world," the justice said, "if baby fingers could only make more creasings to wife and children than too much alcohol than ever comes from the bottle. Or perhaps he forgets himself on candy and ice cream, both of which use up quantities of sugar. He then becomes a kind of private still, for sugar inside a person does undergo a process somewhat suggestive of the external ones which produce alcohol.

"Thus the inherent tendency of all men to indulge their tastes to their own injury manages to break out despite a repressive law. Nobody need think he can prevent the

CARE OF THE BODY

CONDUCTED BY HARRY ELLINGTON BROOK, M. D.

The Modern Cure.

VENTHODY desires health. Many would give all they possess for health. Few really know what complete health is. They think if they are not compelled to go to bed they are well. A great mistake. Not one "civilized" person in 10,000 is thoroughly healthy, any more than one in 10,000 is entirely sane—that is to say, absolutely level-headed in all respects.

When you feel disinclined to rise in the morning, and when you feel heavy during the day, so that your mental or physical labor becomes irksome, you are not well. Your health is not what it should be. You are not enjoying life as you should. You are not getting the most out of it. You are not as useful to your fellow men as you should be. You are not as happy as you should be. You are not as successful as you should be. You are not as contented as you should be. You are not as prosperous as you should be. You are not as healthy as you should be.

The cause of your condition is not far to seek. It is the result of violation of the laws of health. You have been living contrary to the laws of nature. You have been eating improper food, or too much food, or too little food. You have been working too much, or too little. You have been worrying, or fretting, or fuming, or fussing, or fighting, or fooling away your time. You have been neglecting your duty to your body. You have been neglecting your duty to your mind. You have been neglecting your duty to your soul. You have been neglecting your duty to your fellow men. You have been neglecting your duty to your God.

This is the cause of your condition. It is the result of violation of the laws of health. You have been living contrary to the laws of nature. You have been neglecting your duty to your soul. You have been neglecting your duty to your fellow men. You have been neglecting your duty to your God.

The only sure and safe treatment for chronic disease is the Nature Cure, as taught for twenty years in the Care of the Body. In Europe this method has been practiced for a century, and is highly esteemed, even by "regular" physicians. Wonderful cures have been effected in this way, of cases that have been given up by the medical profession. In fact, a great majority of cases of disease can be permanently cured so long as this essential presence from fermenting food exists.

This era often causes palpitation of the heart, that is falsely said to be heart disease. No case of constipation, or dyspepsia, or rupture, or prolapsed womb, or pneumatic can be permanently cured so long as this essential presence from fermenting food exists.

In this case, however, the water cure was combined with an abstention, simple dietary. Dr. Dercum advises "abundant food." When will physicians learn that it is not what you eat, but what you digest, that nourishes, and that every ounce eaten that is not digested becomes a poison?

The water cure is not likely to become popular among regular physicians. I recently quoted Dr. Cabot, who said that even if they believed in it, physicians would not use osteopathy or chiropractic, because it involves too much work.

The water cure involves far more effort

School Costumes.

GIRL students at a local college resented suggestions that they should dress simply, so they got themselves up as "frumps" and displayed a placard reading: "Clothes don't make the man, but often attract him."

These girls are shallow-minded, or they would know that the simplest dresses are the most beautiful, and the most attractive to persons of good taste. As for instance Greek costumes, which may be made of inexpensive material.

Fools may be attracted by frills, but not men who make good husbands. Girls may

MOST RECENT NOTABLE CARTOONS.

Some Good Short Stories from Everywhere.

Compiled for The Times Illustrated Magazine.

GIPSY SMITH, the evangelist, said on his recent voyage from Liverpool:

"There are some men who can make a success even of failure. Thus there was a certain peer once who rose to make his maiden speech—a speech granting to all accused persons the right of counsel—and when he put his hand in his pocket for his notes they weren't there.

"The peer gulped. He looked about him wildly. Gulped again. Then he said:

"'If I, my lords, who now rise only to give my opinion on this bill—if I am so confounded that I am unable to express what I had in mind, what must be the condition of that man who, without any assistance, has got to plead for his life?'

"Then the peer sat down to the cheers of a converted chamber, and his bill passed almost unanimously."

Quits.

THE never-ending struggle between capital and labor reminds me, says Senator Johnson, of a suspicious looking customer who was boasting to a grocer of the cheapness of ten pounds of sugar that he had bought at a rival shop.

"Let me weigh the package," said the grocer.

The other assented, and the package was found to weigh only eight pounds.

The man looked perplexed for a moment and then said: "Oh, well, I don't think he cheated me much; for while he was getting the sugar I pocketed two tins of condensed milk."

Oh, Let it be Soon.

IN IRELAND forever, Lord Dunsverick is questioning a sailor called Ginty about Andrew McMunn, with whom he was about to have dealings. Ginty says, "I've no doubt in my own mind about where Andrew will go when his time comes."

"You think you know him pretty well, then?"

"Ay, I do. It would seem queer if I didn't, seeing that I've sailed his ships this ten year. Andrew McMunn will go to heaven."

"Ah," said Lord Dunsverick, "He's a good man, then?"

"I'll not go as far as to say precisely that," said Ginty, "but he's a man who never touches a drop of whisky nor smokes a pipe of tobacco. It'll be very hard on him if he doesn't go to heaven after all he's missed in this world."

After the Draw.

THE pale gentleman in the frock coat bore down on the red-faced, rumply-haired fellow lying across a seat on the "down" platform.

"My friend," remonstrated the pale gentleman, "did you ever reckon up that if you had placed the price of one drink out at compound interest at the time of the beginning of the Christian era you would have $15,460,284?"

The red-faced, rumply-haired man raised himself on one elbow.

"No," he replied "I haven't figured it out. But I'm something of a calculator all the same, and if you don't go away about 137 yards in nine and a half seconds, I'll hit you seventeen times and make you see 42,196 stars! I've just had four teeth pulled out, and you'd better go away before the arithmetic class gets over the ropes and calls time."

Fastidious Guests.

CAPT. LINDSEY POLK, the successful director of a number of Florida hotels, said recently in New York:

"European hotels, even the best of them, are inferior to ours. While I was in Paris I saw an advertisement of a fashionable new hotel and the boast the management made was that it was as good as the best American hotels. I was pleased with this tribute."

The captain smiled.

"Well," he resumed, "our ideals are high. No more hotelkeepers like this old fellow who complained about his summer visitors:

"'You wouldn't believe the nonsense that is in them. They is always wantin' a clane tablecloth an' clane sheets to their beds. An' table napkins, no less! I'll tell you what, there's sure people in this world that think they can go into a hotel an' make a convanience of it.'"

Too Proud to Write.

IN THE course of his examination these questions were put to an old negro who was appearing as a witness:

"What is your name?"

"Calhoun Clay, sah."

"Can you sign your name?"

"Sah?"

"I ask if you can write your name?"

"Well, no sah. Ah nebber writed mah name. Ah dictates it, sah."

Not What She Meant.

CHAIRMAN HAYS said the other day to a political reporter:

"Your attack on the Senator was unjust. You misinterpreted the man's words. You were as bad as Villers.

"Villers and a young lady were conversing on an ocean pier while the bathers down below sported in the breakers or idly strolled the beach. Suddenly the young lady said:

"'Doesn't that skinny bather look like Helen Gray?'

Villers nodded.

"'She sure does,' he said, 'but I don't call her bathing suit gray. It's blue.'"

Punk Train.

PRESIDENT FAIRFAX HARRISON, of the Alabama Great Southern Railway, said at a luncheon recently:

"The old joke about poor service on some of our southern and western railroads are antiquated. No trains in the world are more punctual today than our trains, and accidents are practically unknown?

"The story about the porter and the late traveler," President Fairfax continued good-humoredly, "is an old one."

"A traveler, according to this story, just missed a train on a certain southern railway, notorious for its poor service, and got the following consolation from a porter:

"'She's the punctualist train sir, on the line and—a great annoyance to travelers.'"

Was She Sorry?

WHILE serving in the United States army in France, I was going from Marseilles to the Italian border with a brother officer. Upon leaving the station at Marseilles a lady sat at my right in the compartment of the train, while my brother officer sat across from me," says Al Waddell.

"On entering a tunnel, I said to my friend, it being very dark, in the tunnel, 'I am going to kiss the girl on my right, as she is very pretty.'

"The officer said, 'Go to it.'

"After coming out of the tunnel, the brother officer said, 'Well, did you have a good time?'

"I said, 'Sure; wish there were more tunnels.'

"After a minute, the girl spoke to me in English, with a twinkle in her eye, and said she hoped there would be no more tunnels. Needless to say, I had not kissed her while going through the tunnel, but I was certainly embarrassed when she spoke to me in English."

Oh, Boy!

THE teacher was instructing the primary grade in the correct use of like and love. She told them they must say, "I like apples and ice cream," but "I love my mother and father."

Little 7-year-old Kenneth, who had been very quiet and attentive during the lesson, suddenly and mischievously exclaimed:

"Say, ya can't love anything ya can't hug, can ya?"

Problematical.

THE son of the family was home on his vacation after having attained the dignity of college prefect. He and his father were discussing affairs of the days, and finally the boy remarked:

"Say, Gov, I hope when I am as old as you are I'll know more than you do."

"I'll go you one better, my boy," the father replied. "I hope that when you are that old you will know as much as you think you do now."

What a Sell.

WHEN Uncle Joe Cannon was representing his State in Congress, he received almost daily letters from a constituent asking for garden seed, with emphasis on peas. The demand for peas got so heavy that Uncle Joe was moved to write a letter as follows:

"I am sending you a half-dozen more packages of peas as requested. Say, what are you trying to do down there, plant the whole country with peas?"

The reply came a few days later. It read:

"No; I'm not planting them, but I make bully soup. Send along some more."

Old Crow Beller.

THE secret has leaked out that the real reason why the farmers were opposed to the daylight-saving plan was that they were not able to get the roosters to adopt it.

[illegible] on the old schedule. In open defiance of Congress, they refused to knock off the extra hour from their morning beauty sleep. So, under the new plan, instead of the roosters waking up the farmers, it became necessary for the farmers to wake up the roosters.

This, quite naturally, aroused feelings of mutual antagonism. No farmer relishes the task of going out each morning while the moon is still riding high in the heavens, and crowing his head off to wake up the roosters.

CARE OF THE BODY

HARRY ELLINGTON BROOK, N. D.

The Nature Cure.

EVERYBODY desires health. Many would give all they possess for health. Few really know what complete health is. They think that if they are not compelled to go to bed they are well. A great mistake. Not one "civilized" person in 10,000 is thoroughly healthy, any more than one in 10,000 is entirely sane—that is to say, absolutely level-headed in all respects.

When you feel disinclined to rise in the morning, and when you feel heavy during the day, so that your mental or physical labor is a burden, then you are sick.

Some who have followed the advice given by me in these pages have written that while they supposed they were in fairly good health before, they really had never known, since they were children, what health was.

Even those who know something in regard to the laws of health rarely know how to attain it. They have been too busy chasing the Almighty Dollar, neglecting that which is of far more importance to them—the care of their bodies. Consequently, all they know when they get sick is to send for a doctor, or to a drug store for some dope.

Drugs do not cure disease. They never have cured disease, nor ever will. They may make you feel "fine" for a time. So will any other stimulant, such as a glass of whisky. In fact, many physicians' prescriptions and patent medicines contain four or five times as much alcohol as California light wines. That is why patent medicines are sold by the carload in some prohibition communities.

Perhaps you will decide to go on seeking relief instead of cure—an easy way to get well by taking something out of a bottle, while you keep up your wrong habits of living. In this you make a great mistake. There is no royal road to health, any more than to wealth. By postponing the only safe and sure method of restoring your health you greatly lessen your chances of recovery.

Drugging is beginning to be abandoned, or greatly lessened, by advanced members of the medical profession. They are now turning their attention to antitoxins and serums—the injection of filthy animal poisons into the blood, even more harmful and dangerous than drugs. All these methods—if they do not kill—merely suppress the symptoms of disease, which are nature's efforts to remove morbid matter from the body. The disease matter still remains in the blood, and to it is added a new poison.

When a person has been taking large quantities of drugs for years, it requires a longer time to effect a cure, because the drug poison must be removed from the system, as well as the disease poison. So you see that under the regular system of drug medication, or serumizing, a person not only is not cured, but his recovery is greatly retarded—if he does not die under the treatment.

It is not surprising that physicians of the "regular" school, who, asked in regard to diet, are in the habit of giving such noncommital answers as: "Eat what seems to agree with you." They could scarcely do otherwise, because few of them know anything about diet, for the reason that they have not been taught it in medical colleges, and not having been impressed with the importance, very few have taken up the study since they left college.

All disease is due to one cause—not to "germs," but to wrong living, especially to wrong eating and shallow breathing. These errors sometimes result in an acute disease, that may carry the patient off suddenly. Or, if he has fairly good resisting power, the stored-up poisons in the blood may in course of years result in chronic disease. It may take the form of catarrh, or rheumatism, or consumption, or the disease may affect the heart, the liver, or the kidneys, going to the weakest part of the body, just as a boiler explodes where there is a weak point, when the steam pressure is too great.

The chief cause of disease is the presence of waste matter in the blood, and autointoxication, through absorption of poisons in the colon. And that, as I have said, is due to wrong eating. Therefore, disease cannot be permanently cured without regulating the diet. Temporary relief you may get, in other ways, but not cure.

With the waste matter gas is also formed that presses in all directions, causing high blood pressure, and pains in various parts of the body, that are diagnosed in different ways by physicians, who ignore the cause. This also often causes palpitation of the heart, that is falsely said to be heart disease. No case of constipation, or piles, or rupture, or prolapsed womb, or prostatitis can be permanently cured so long as this gas pressure from fermenting food exists.

The only sure and safe treatment for chronic disease is the Nature Cure, as taught for twenty years in the Care of the Body. In Europe this method has been practiced for a century, and is highly esteemed, even by "regular" physicians. Wonderful cures have been effected in this way, of cases that have been given up by the medical profession. In fact, a great majority of those who take up this cure have only done so after trying almost everything else.

During the past twenty years thousands have written to me telling of the great benefit they have received from following my advice.

The Nature Cure is especially effective in cases where persons are run down and prematurely old, through errors of living. It rejuvenates all functions of the body, and makes an elderly person feel young, active, efficient and ambitious.

The Nature Cure is also effective in all forms of indigestion, headaches, impaired eyesight, chronic constipation, catarrh, asthma, dropsy, rheumatism, anemia, nervousness, tumors and tuberculosis.

In fact, anything that cannot be cured in this way is incurable.

Even where, through long continued abuse, the organs may have become so seriously impaired that complete cure is impossible, life may be prolonged by the Nature Cure, and health improved.

Those who have been operated upon for the removal of necessary organs of the body, even if it is only the appendix or the tonsils, can never expect again to enjoy as good health as they would had they not been so foolish as to submit to such harmful operations. I cannot conscientiously promise this. By treating themselves under the natural method they may, however, greatly improve their health, increase their efficiency and lengthen their lives, often endangered by "successful operations."

Let me once more impress upon you that I do not promise to cure you by the advice I give. Nobody ever cured anybody. Anyone who pretends to be able to cure anybody is either a faker or an ignoramus. Nature alone cures. All I do is to point out the way in which you may let nature cure you. All I promise is that if you follow my advice you will find yourself gradually and steadily improving in health, and that the nearer you follow the advice, the greater will your improvement be.

If you continue to be numbered among the sick or ailing, it will be your own fault. Do not accuse Providence or circumstances. You alone are to blame. Nature is always ready to cure—that is, to restore normal conditions. Give her a chance.

Sugar and Alcohol.

FOLLOWING is from a newspaper article:

"The United States is declared to be on a sugar spree. Prohibition of liquor has resulted in the development of a national sweet tooth. Science accounts for this by stating that sugar causes a fermentation in the stomach which produces alcohol; and the excessive user of sugar gets a mild 'kick' out of sugar, that reminds of the good old days."

I have been saying this for twenty years. "Medical science" seems to have just discovered it.

Alcohol, produced in this way, is much more harmful than ready-made alcohol, in the shape of wine or whisky, because with alcohol manufactured in the stomach is formed gas that produces high blood pressure. Also the blood is made acid, the cause of many diseases.

Following is an editorial in the San Francisco Call, under the title "Sugar Guzzling; the New Vice."

"The Federal food administrators estimate that the United States will want about half a million tons more of sugar this year than it did last. This is more than ten pounds per inhabitant, and it is said to be due to the increased consumption of soft drinks and candy, which in turn is due to the decreased consumption of hard drinks. When a man who is used to drinking wines or hard liquors cannot get these things any more he turns to something else. Maybe he smokes. Maybe he goes in for coffee. Maybe he hunts up some habit-forming drug. Maybe he is cross to his wife and children, although more cruelness to wife and children came from too much alcohol than ever comes from too little. Or perhaps he gorges himself on candy and ice cream, both of which use up quantities of sugar. He then becomes a kind of private still, for sugar inside a person does undergo a process somewhat suggestive of the external ones which produce alcohol.

"Thus the inherent tendency of all men to indulge their tastes to their own injury manages to break out despite a repressive law. Nobody need think he can prevent the American people from injuring their health. If they are restrained from achieving this object in one way they will achieve it in another; and whether by dyspepsia or by some other means will contrive to impair the physique their maker gave them.

"True, we already ate so much sugar that it was a scandal among the nations. But excessive sugar eating, like gum chewing, is one evidence of Americanism, if we are to apply that misused term to everything characteristic of Americans."

Yet, not only adults but children are advised to eat sugar—and prohibitionists are among the leading offenders.

You see now why the sugar habit is as hard to give up as the alcohol habit.

Hospital Diet.

I HAVE heretofore commented on the most abominable diet—from a health viewpoint—that is served patients in hospitals, a diet that fully explains slowness of recovery and frequency of relapses. Maj. Hoskins, an army surgeon, calls attention to the need of reform in the dietary of hospitals, both civil and military. He says:

"Military patients generally want to eat to repletion. They may be allowed to do so if the menus are properly designed, but appetite cannot be relied on for adequate regulation of consumption. Many eat merely for amusement. Feeding a man 3600 calories, however, when he needs only 1800 calories, is to waste food inexcusably. The menus should be so planned that food of bulk to fill an ordinary stomach will furnish only the proper number of calories. Stewed and fresh fruits and the coarse vegetables should be utilized freely. The statement that 'the men will not eat turnips, etc.,' merely means that the hospital cooks are incompetent. The coarse vegetables are eaten with relish when properly prepared. In some hospitals the training of cooks is only half done. They should all have a 'post-graduate' course in 'cookery for the sick' to be given by the dietitian, such as the 'diet cooks' usually have had.'"

There are fruitarian hospitals in England and Australia, where rapid recoveries from serious disease have astonished the medical fraternity.

Length of Life.

THE Medical Summary says: "Longevity is constantly increasing."

This is not true. The average length of life is increasing because weakly babies are kept alive, who might formerly have been allowed to die. On the other hand, life of adults is growing shorter.

This is due to several reasons, among which the chief are:

(1.) Unnatural life, cruel competition, intense work, lack of rest, excitement, late hours.

(2.) Emasculated and adulterated foods.

(3.) Poisoning of the blood by filthy animal matter, in the shape of serums.

Water Cure.

DR. FRANCIS DERCUM, one of the specialists called to President Wilson, has written a book on the treatment of neurasthenia, or nervous prostration. He says drugs are practically useless. The methods he describes are mainly rest, massage and hydrotherapy, or the water cure. The rubbing over a wet sheet, he declares, is only one of the methods that have been used for a century in hydropathic and Nature Cure establishments in Europe, and more recently in this country, through which methods marvelous results have been achieved. Fifty years ago in a Nature Cure establishment in Switzerland, I saw astounding cures of patients who had been given up to die by "medical science." Poisons have come out of the blood where patients had been declared cured.

In this case, however, the water cure was combined with an abstemious, simple dietary. Dr. Dercum advises "abundant food." When will physicians learn that it is not what you eat, but what you digest, that nourishes, and that every ounce eaten that is not digested becomes a poison?

The water cure is not likely to become popular among regular physicians. I recently quoted Dr. Cabot, who said that even if they believed in it, physicians would not use osteopathy or chiropractic, because it involves too much work.

The water cure involves far more expert knowledge than the prescribing of a drug or the injection of a serum. With water at various temperatures, variously applied to different parts of the body, or to the whole body, the skilled hydrotherapist may play on the human system as the violinist plays on the instrument. You may stimulate, you may soothe, or by the wet sheet pack you may extract poisons from the blood that have lain dormant for years. It will do all and more than drugs and without the bad after effects.

Aged Law Breakers.

A CORRESPONDENT sends this dispatch from Lincoln, Neb.:

"Thomas Morris, 125 years old, has followed no health rules during his long life. In fact he has defied the health faddists.

"For many years he has been a user of alcoholic beverages, large quantities of strong coffee, and has eaten heavy meals in the middle of the night. Morris is now close to the end of the journey of life. He is bedridden and feeble, but he still consumes large quantities of food and keeps his pipe fired up most of his waking hours. He has been a heavy smoker since his boyhood days."

I know nothing of this man, but I will guarantee four things:

(1.) He inherited a sturdy constitution.

(2.) He spent most of his daily life in the open air, doing physical work.

(3.) He has always had plenty of sleep.

TEACHING SCHOOL IN THE ARCTIC.

BY HELEN M. GRISWOLD.

THE year I taught school among the Indians at Fort Yukon, close on the Arctic Circle, was full of interesting experiences. It was in the early days of the discovery of gold in the Klondike and on the eve of the advance of civilization into Alaskan wilds. I was sent to my school by the Bureau of Education at Washington, along with nine other American young women, distributed at various locations in Alaska. My instructions were to open a school in the Fort Yukon district and to instruct in elemental domestic science in the native homes roundabout.

I traveled to the scene of my duties via Seattle, thence up the Pacific Coast by steamer to St. Michaels, almost up the Bering Straits and thence 740 miles up the Yukon River. It was the last trip of the summer's navigation of the Yukon. When we reached Fort Yukon in early September, ice was forming every night on still waters in the Klondike.

News that a girl from the States was coming to open a schol at Fort Yukon had been common knowledge there for weeks. When the steamer went puffing up to the crazy old wooden wharf, the whole population for miles around was on the river banks to gaze upon the arrival of a teacher from a far-off land.

At that time about 400 people lived in the district. Half of them were Eskimos and Indians; the rest a mixture of Eskimos, Scandinavians and Canadians with native blood. Only a dozen persons there had ever lived outside the Arctic. They had come years before as whalers and gold seekers. The sole pursuits were salmon fishing and smoking and washing gold in the creeks leading into the Yukon.

The most pretentious homes were log cabins with dirt floors and one or two small windows. These houses were furnished with great box stoves for burning fir chunks, bunks for beds, and benches and pine tables of clumsy workmanship.

The poorer residents, Indians and Eskimos, lived in shacks of timber, heaped about with earth and thatched with Alaskan moss. Their homes were on the edge of the forest that reached back from the river into the hills. A smoky flickering fire in the dirt in the middle of the abode, was the sole means of warmth and cookery all winter long, even when the mercury stood for weeks at 40 deg. below zero. However, everybody wore bear and moose for clothing, which they generally donned in early fall and shed in early summer. Besides, the native population spent two-thirds of the five months of darkness and cold in sleeping on the ground, bundled in fur covers alongside the fires

There was Surely a Need For a Teacher.

A FEW men in Fort Yukon could read and write simple English. Exactly seven women were so accomplished. The sole communication with the outside world was by the steamers that made a few trips in the navigation season up and down the Yukon. The river craft brought grocery staples and simple household commodities in trade for smoked salmon and gold. During seven and eight months of each year the community was as completely cut off from the world as if it were on the planet Mars.

With the finding of gold in the Klondike had come a general zeal for education in all that region. So many men had been cheated of their property and their golden hoard by better educated traders that a desire for schooling sprang up among the children so as to cope with the incoming people from all quarters of the globe.

As a rule, the natives were honest. They had such drastic self-made customs for dealing with thievery that I have known $3000 to $4000 in placer gold to be left stored in tin cans and kettles in an open hut for a week at a time, while the swarthy owners were prospecting down the river in another locality. Woe to him who purloined.

The schoolhouse had been made ready for my arrival. It had once been a storeroom for smoked fish. It was built of logs and had the only board floor in the district. Earth was banked to the eaves and the roof was covered by two feet of moss and earth. This was to conserve the heat within. An enormous box stove had been set up and cords of wood, cut in massive pieces, piled outside for stove fuel. Backless benches and pine tables had been arranged and alphabetical and arithmetical charts hung on the inner walls. A wooden blackboard had come from Dawson. It proved a blessing in keeping the children interested for they loved to draw pictures in chalk.

Children of the Land of Snow.

Boys and girls dressed alike; a blouse of moose fur, trousers of fox fur, held on by strips of smoke-cured hide, over the shoulders. Everybody wore moccasins of moosehide, sewed with thin cords made of dried animal viscera. I quickly found that it was useless for me to try to urge the children to be more cleanly about their furry garments and was quite content to see that promptings to washing their faces and hands in the more salubrious weeks of the school period had effect. But in the darkest and bitterly cold days of winter I had not the heart to insist on daily ablutions for my pupils.

As a rule, the children of the Arctic were affectionate. Nothing was too good among their slender store of edibles for the teacher; no honor was higher than to be asked to the teacher's abode. The little girls would grasp my hand in their own brown chubby and not extra clean ones, when I least expected it, and when I would look to see the author of the friendly token, they would hide their roguish black-eyed faces behind one another's backs in apparent dismay at their boldness

They Were Full of Friendly Harmless Mischief.

THE boys were tractable and mischievous, never rebellious. They delighted in hearing my frightened exclamation on finding huge bugs and crawling things that they had secretly put among my desk papers. They would tease the little girls by pretending to go home after school, leaving the girls to go alone in darkness through the pine timbers.

Boys and girls had games in which crudest necromancy was the feature, that is, games in which pebbles and bits of wood, supposed to be in one hand, were found to be in another hand. Our American leapfrog was a never failing source of amusement with Eskimo boys. A favorite indoor game involved standing on the head with eyes shut, while another ran to a hiding. Several times some mischievous boy climbed slyly to the roof of the schoolhouse and placed a board over the chimney, whereat the schoolroom was soon filled with smoke and the teacher vexed just as the mischief maker had planned to accomplish.

Luckily I had brought with me from the States a lot of seed and plant catalogues and periodicals in colors. They were the joy of the whole community, especially the Eskimo children. The bright colors attracted and I had scores of requests for permission to take the pamphlets home for a few days. The children had not known there were such things as red tomatoes, yellow squashes, oranges and beautiful roses in the world. They studied over the pictures for hours. Then their parents, clad in furs, came to the school to see the wonderful pictures of what grew in the white man's country.

They Couldn't Believe There was Such an Animal.

A BOOK of natural history created most interest. It was common to see men and women and children crowding closely together to look at pictures of giraffes, elephants and particularly the hippopotami, the existence of which, I learned, was a matter of heated dispute in numerous native homes, until finally old Mike Nilsson, a Norwegian, former whaler and long-time resident of the Klondike, declared the pictures truthful.

An early trouble in the school was in classification of pupils who knew something of English, from those who knew less. Then, the separation of the ones who took to learning quicker than others. It was a heterogeneous lot. Several girls were so anxious to learn that they became able to read in primers after two months of schooling. One Indian boy of 18 years, who had learned some English at Dawson, became a reader of newspaper English in a few weeks. He was the proudest boy in the school when he could show his squaw mother how he could add a column of five figures. School books were so scarce that often a group of four children huddled over a primer.

Among the pupils were several Eskimo mothers. They used to bring their babies to school and leave them in a corner of the room, set aside for infants. My enthusiasm over this apparent zeal for learning was dampened when the Norwegian said that the reason the women came to school was to be where it was warm on days when the thermometer registered way below zero.

My most diligent pupil was a half-breed gold miner, who could speak enough English to realize how little he knew. As nearly as he could reckon it, he was over 40 years old. He had made $30,000 in gold washing and had been swindled out of his every dollar. He was the earliest in coming to school and the last to depart.

They Couldn't "Get" the Idea of Cartooning.

A PERIODICAL containing political caricatures was another cause of argument in aboriginal families. One cartoon represented a public citizen with the head of a fox. That book was worn threadbare by the children, who never wearied at gazing at the human forms with animal heads. They often asked me if we had in my country many such people. They and their parents could not grasp how a picture might be made of something not actually to be seen. No native had any conception of what I was trying to tell them was a caricature.

Pictures of many-storied buildings, railroad trains, busy city streets, steamship and fashion sheets created never-failing interest among my pupils.

My duties at Fort Yukon were to include demonstrations of elemental domestic

INHERITED—ONE DEAD ELEPHANT

BY BURTON L. SMITH.

THIS is a story of a town that had "an elephant on its hands." The words are not used as a figure of speech but to express an actual situation. The yarn attached thereto is a series of absolute facts.

"The Greatest Show on Earth" had completed an all-winter engagement in Paris, where they showed to packed houses thirteen times a week. Before the stay was half over every man, woman and child in the French capital was a walking advertisement and a living testimonial to the fact that the exhibition was, as the billboards had announced, "the most stupendous, most gigantic, most elaborate, thrilling, electrifying, educational exhibition on the face of the earth."

Ourt fame preceded us when the road season opened early in April, 1902, and our first stand out of Paris was a great success. It was a "one-nighter" and while the show did capacity business and the townspeople were over-friendly, it was at our first long-time engagement at Lyons, where we were billed for fourteen days, that it became apparent that it was generally conceded that a visit of the circus was considered an honor bestowed upon a limited number of the towns of France by the show's management.

As was to be the custom during most of the tour of the continent, the "big top" was not taken to some outlying lot on the extreme edge of the city. Here, as in many other places, we occupied a prominent square, or plaza, near the business center. Iron stakes driven in the pavements held the guy ropes and hay and sawdust littered what had been a pretty municipal park. Everything, including the weather, was as it made to order and the advent of the first "grand entre" found every seat under the big top occupied by an expectant citizen of the French city. For three days this ideal condition continued, and then—as if a bolt of lightning had darted from the sky—calamity came. Ben, a big bull elephant died. His demise was sudden. His death presented a problem that only the management of the show understood. What to do with the big fellow was a question much debated by the management and just what the solution might have been will never be known, for as various propositions as to the disposition of the carcass were being debated, "Tody" Hamilton, press agent extraordinary, and "fixer-in-chief" happened to "double back" from the road to take a look at the show.

"Dead elephant on the lot," exclaimed Hamilton, when he caught the drift of the conversation. "If anyone touches that corpse he's got me to lick. Leave it to me, it's the best publicity opportunity we've had since we left the States. Cover the old boy with a little straw and leave it to me, that's all."

Tody's word was pretty near law and no one presumed to question him. It was an accepted fact that the elephant would be taken care of and that the show would profit.

Early the following morning Hamilton, regaled like a foreign diplomat on an important mission, called at the Hotel de Ville. Hurried interviews were held with the Mayor, prefect de police and other high officials. All that the circus folk could learn was that "it's going over, leave it to me." No one interfered and all day long the press agent moved with an air of mystery toward some unknown end. That evening a select few were informed that the city fathers were called in special session and Hamilton was to address them. Tody needed no interpreter. He spoke French like a native and was proud of the accomplishment.

A few of us attended the session at Hamilton's request to furnish the "scenery" for his plot. We sat in somewhat impatient attitudes wondering what was going to happen next. When the officials were in their place, the presiding officer, announced that one of the proprietors of the great American circus now in Lyons had an announcement to make.

Hamilton walked quietly to a place of vantage near the president's chair and in a few well chosen words told the councilmen that he had traveled more than once around the globe, that he had met men of every clime and seen cities in every country, but it remained for him to visit Lyons before his ideals were ever found. "Here," said the speaker, "have we found a city filled with people who inspire confidence, whose generosity begets generosity. Since our opening night the management of the circus has been devoting considerable time discussing what would be the best manner for us to express our appreciation of your kindly reception and leave with you a lasting expression of our gratitude. Fate has aided us in arriving at a conclusion.

"One of the most costly, and highly prized specimens in our vast menagerie has died. A huge elephant of the Indian jungle, which represented a modest fortune is a loss to us. But in our loss we see a way to make your gain and in a small way repay some of the vast obligations we owe to you. On behalf of Messrs. Barnum & Bailey and all who are attached to our institution permit me to present to you that which no city yet possesses—a perfect specimen of the giant of the animal kingdom for your municipal museum. May we hope that you will accept the gift and from the most unusual character of the donation be long reminded of our kindly feelings and high esteem."

It was a masterpiece. The strangeness of it all and the remarkable manner in which the short talk was given did just what Hamilton expected it would, and drew from the audience a round of applause which lasted for several minutes. The president of the meeting asked what was the will of the council and for three solid hours we were treated to [illegible] hour dare or present company [illegible] entire expediency of the [illegible] toasted by the members present in their attempt to express their appreciation of the show's thoughtfulness.

The next day, and for every day during our stay the newspapers took up the task of thanking the show with the result that we had some of the best first page publicity a circus ever enjoyed. Then came the sequel—but we were gone and learned in various ways that not one of the members of the city council which accepted the gift for the museum was ever re-elected to office.

After the circus left, the city authorities

TEACHING SCHOOL IN THE ARCTIC.

BY HELEN M. GRISWOLD.

IT'S year I taught school among the Eskimos at Fort Yukon, close on the Arctic Circle, was full of interesting experience. It was in the early days of the discovery of gold in the Klondike and on the eve of the advance of civilization into Alaskan wilds. I was sent to my school by the Bureau of Education at Washington, along with nine other American young women, distributed at various locations in Alaska. My instructions were to open a school in the Fort Yukon district and to instruct in elemental domestic science and the three R's. Fort Yukon is a trading post of the Hudson Bay Company, and the Indians and half-breeds who live in the vicinity are employed by the company in trapping and trading. Many of the Indians are half-breeds, and the children of the white traders and Indian women are also half-breeds. Some of the children are pure Indian, and some are pure white.

My most difficult pupil was a half-breed girl named Lucy, who could speak English as well as her own native tongue. She was very bright and learned rapidly. She was about 12 years old when I first met her, and she was in the third reader class. She was very proud of her ability to read, and was always ready to help the younger children with their lessons.

Lucy's father was a white trader, and her mother was a native Indian woman. The father was very fond of his daughter, and was very proud of her ability to learn. He was very much interested in her progress, and was always ready to help her with her lessons.

One day Lucy's father came to me and said that he wanted to take her to the States to school. He said that he had made a fortune in the fur trade, and that he wanted to give his daughter the best education that money could buy. He said that he would pay all her expenses, and that he would also pay me a salary if I would go with her and look after her.

I was very much surprised at this offer, but I accepted it. I thought that it would be a good opportunity for me to see the States, and to visit my family, who lived in Ohio. I also thought that I could help Lucy in her studies, and that I could be of some use to her.

We left Fort Yukon in the spring of 1898, and went down the Yukon River to St. Michael, where we took a steamer for Seattle. We had a very pleasant trip, and Lucy enjoyed it very much. She was very much interested in everything she saw, and asked many questions about the country and the people.

We arrived in Seattle in May, and went to a hotel. Lucy's father left us there, and went on to San Francisco on business. He said that he would join us in a few weeks, and that we should wait for him.

We waited for him for two weeks, but he did not come. We then went to San Francisco, and found that he had left for the East. We followed him to Chicago, and then to New York, but we could not find him. We then went to Washington, and I left Lucy with her father's relatives, and went to Ohio to visit my family.

I stayed with my family for three months, and then returned to Washington. I found that Lucy's father had not been there, and that he had not written to her. I was very much worried about her, and I went to the police, but they could not find him.

I then went to the Bureau of Education, and told them my story. They said that they would do what they could to find him, but that they could not promise anything. I left my address with them, and went back to my home in Ohio.

I heard nothing more of Lucy or her father for many years. I often thought of her, and wondered what had become of her. I hope that she has had a happy life, and that she has forgotten the sad experience of her childhood.

The Garden Beautiful in Southern California.

INFORMATION BOTH PRACTICAL AND SCIENTIFIC. BY ERNEST BRAUNTON.

A FEW years ago the seeds and branches of a very curious acacia were brought here from Mexico by John Spence, one of California's pioneer plantsmen. Local plant sharps were much interested in the structure, while all naturalists were attracted by the spine dwellings and the ants that inhabited them. Many persons planted seeds, among them the writer, but at six inches high the frosts struck them below the belt and they were no more. It would be interesting to watch their development if any trees are now growing in local gardens.

These acacias came to us under the name of cuerna vaca (cow's horn,) but are best known as the bull-horns. The spines are two or more inches long, a quarter to a half-inch at base, and joined together where attached to the stem so that they appear like miniature mounted horns of cattle or bison; for they vary much in shape. There are several species closely resembling each other, but the one sent here was Acacia cornigera. In each pair of horns was a hole near the tip of one, usually on the under side so that water, dust, etc., would not enter. These holes are made by ants that hollow out the inside and use the horns, or thorns, for an abode. These ants are very fierce and cause intense pain with their stings. In fact, they are called "stinging ants." The peculiarities of this group of acacias do not end with the horns, for the trees furnish nectar-food to the ants, the leaf-stems have nectar-glands, and on the leaf tips there are minute waxlike bodies rich in oil and protoplasm. These were noticed by botanists so long ago as 1624 and the spines were fully described in 1570 by Francisco Hernandez who was sent to Mexico to study its resources by Phillip II of Spain. Aside from the one species we deal with there are a half dozen others in Mexico, and a few in Africa and elsewhere, that are noted for their very large white spines. Of the African species the writer has grown and disseminated two: A. eburnea and A. horrida. But one species of acacia is native to the United States: A. Greggii of Texas and New Mexico.

Washington Gracilis.

The short sturdy fan palm so common in our gardens is Washingtonia filifera, a native of California between San Bernardio and Yuma, or that part known as the Colorado Desert. Some grow out on the desert floor and others grow in the canyons. The tall slender fan palm, nearly as common as the large-bodied ones, is W. gracilis, native to Lower California and Sonora and when of good age and well clothed they are handsome pianjs. When trunks are bare the more robust Californian is the more attractive.

A Water Garden.

Though water gardens are very charming if well planted, there is a double charm where there is also waterside gardening. The water's edge should be embellished with bog or marsh plants and back of these plants of tropical luxuriance. Then, and then only, is the charm complete.

Under the Palms.

Phoenix Canariensis, the ornamental date palm from the Canary Islands, casts a broad dense shade when of mature age. Though too large to find a fitting setting on a small lot, they are both ornamental and useful in large gardens where the shade is made use of for a place in which to lounge and keep cool. During the warmest weather many luncheo and afternoon teas are served beneath the shelter of these umbrageous palms.

Panama Hats.

Panamother hats are not made from palm leaves, as many believe, nor are the plants from which they are woven closely allied to the palms, although bearing a close physical resemblance. The plants are stemless and have leaves so palmlike in appearance that none but those familiar with this plant would consider it anything other than a palm. Its name is Carludovica palmata and it is closely related to pandanus or screwpine. The family to which it belongs is Cyclanthaceae and all its members are native to South America.

Alpine Gardens.

Rockeries are not Alpine gardens, though they may be. For true Alpine plants our climate is too hot and dry and an Alpine garden should be in a cool spot, preferably on a shaded northern slope. But we have plenty of plants suitable for rockeries in local gardens, though a cool spot for them is best. A list of such plants that have been grown in Los Angeles is here given: Achillea (Yarrow,) Ajuga, Allium, Alyssum, Anemone (Japanese,) Aquilegia (Columbine,) Armeria (Sea Pink,) Campanula (Dwarf Canterbury Bells,) Centaurea, Dianthus (Pinks,) Festuca (a grass,) Germ. Gnaphalium, Helianthemum, Iberis (Candytuft,) Lychnis, Myosotis (Forget-me-not,) Papaver (Iceland Poppies,) Potentilla, Primula (Primroses) Ranunculus (Buttercups,) Saxifraga, Scabiosa, Sedum (Stone Crops,) Sempervivum (Live Forever Hen-and-Chickens, etc.,) Senecio, Valeriana, Veronicas and Violets.

Grubs in Lawns.

Every year come numerous complaints of grubs in lawns and a remedy is asked. Gladly we push our pencil to say these grubs are like bandits, you must catch each one separately and kill him. Lime only seems to make them more vigorous. It may be that carbon bisulphide would reach, perhaps formaldehyde would, but the writer has tried none of these. A drenching of a solution of Black-leaf Forty or any nicotine preparation should be effective.

These grubs are the larvae of several closely allied species of May-beetle or June-bug, bearing the family name of Lachnosterna. In warm weather they remain from one to three inches below the surface. In winter they hibernate much deeper. Hence summer is the time to make war on them. They feed on the roots of many crops and are often very bad on the roots of young trees, notably apples. They are never so bad in California as in other States, but the best authorities offer no remedy but to catch 'em and kill 'em.

Origin of Loganberry.

As there have been adverse claims regarding the origin of the loganberry, though the truth has always been known to the writer, it is well to reproduce an item printed last week in a Santa Cruz paper:

"Judge J. H. Logan, now a resident of Oakland, was in town today and is very much pleased to see that at last Santa Cruz is to have a loganberry preserving plant, but he was equally disgusted with the plant wizard of California who has been claiming that he originated the berry now bearing the judge's name. The judge says it is purely a Santa Cruz product and it originated first on his property on Logan Heights, and that it is utter nonsense for any man to claim that he had this berry under cover before it was discovered in Santa Cruz."

The Indian Lotus.

Nelumbo nucifera, which we call Egyptian lotus, probably for the reason it is not native to Egypt, is a prized food plant among the Chinese, who eat both seeds and the fleshy rootstalks, the latter said to contain 70 per cent. of starch. In Hawaii it is cultivated for food by the Chinese and the Japanese.

The Frangipani.

The name frangipani properly belongs to one species of Plumeria, P. rubra, if indeed it belongs to any, but all species are called frangipani. One account says the name came from Marquis Frangipani, who lived some centuries ago and left us a formula for making a perfume which the odor of the plumerias is said to resemble. Another account states the word is from the French "Tranchipanier," coagulated milk, which the milky juice of the plumeria resembles. Take your choice. The plants are among the loveliest of all the tropical ornamentals we grow and are hardy outdoors in our very warmest spots.

West Indian Shell Flower.

Alpha Nutans is a tropical plant that works well in jungle planting and is one of the tallest of its class. In former years it was common in Los Angeles and considered a fine plant. Now it is hard to find. The flowers remind the writer somewhat of lady's slipper, or calceolaria. The lower petal is a brownish orange lined with red and yellow, a charming combination. In rich soil and with a goodly water supply the plant grows luxuriantly and flowers freely.

The Viola Family.

If one could but grow in his garden all the forty-odd species of wild violets and pansies he would have a very attractive and very interesting collection. How many species there are is hard to say, but two-score could be purchased of various dealers if he pursued the fad far enough. A very great range in the foliage would be found, from the single broad leaf of the common violet to others as finely cut as a fern leaf

A Well Planned Home Orchard is a Valuable Family Asset.

The unlimited possibilities of fruit production in Southern California are illustrated in the family orchard of Frank M. Walton at Los Alamitos. From a little over two acres Mr. Walton is enjoying fruit of 120 varieties. Here is a fine quince which he has obtained by crossing an ordinary variety with the Bellflower apple.

There is always a neighborhood scramble to buy Mr. Walton's pomegranates. This tree is of the Wonderful variety and produces so heavily that the limbs are bowed to the ground. There are also a number of sweet-fruited trees. The size of the fruit in this photograph and that at the left may be judged by comparison with Mr. Walton's hands.

This pear is a cross between the Seckel and the Kieffer. The Los Alamitos man calls it the Walton.

Twenty-six varieties of fruit from Mr. Walton's home orchard—all ripe at the same time and all ready for the Thanksgiving table center dish.

Mr. Walton sent to Arkansas for this native southern persimmon, which thrives in its adopted environment.

The Hachiya persimmon is well adapted to Southern California conditions. It has proved to be a prolific bearer in Mr. Walton's orchard.

Pertinent Thoughts on the White Leghorn.

WHY NOT EXHIBIT IN THE EAST? BY HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG.

IN THE handling of pure-blooded fowl in the breeding pen, no one phase of poultry culture has commanded wider attention than the production of heavy-laying strains—all of which is quite correct and "good business." So pronounced has this become that here and there poultrymen have been more or less blind to other important factors. High fecundity alone will not give the success that all are striving for; there must also be constitutional vigor, virility and stamina. Indeed, in the breeding pen these possess a value that is quite as important as high fecundity, and hence are not to be ignored. Thus with good productivity we must also have type of breed handled and physically robust birds. And to no breed does this apply with stronger force than the White Leghorn: the recognized egg-machine in California poultry culture.

Enjoying this distinction, and being handled almost exclusively for its economic values, it is of the utmost importance to start with foundation possessing these fundamental and elemental characteristics. To assume that "chickens are chickens" is to create a hazard in buying. In outward appearance this is to the novice more or less true, but to the experienced there are all degrees of differences between strains and individual characteristics. In these differences the beginner can only see the price, actual quality and performance seem in many cases to demand a somewhat negligible consideration. The stock of breeders who exercise every precaution to maintain good performance, size and vigor in their fowl are not only entitled to remunerative prices, but must command it because it possesses values above that of others less careful and experienced in their operations. These basic facts render it almost obligatory to limit purchases from absolutely reliable people, instead of being influenced by a lower price to consider even slightly inferior breeding and foundation stock.

The standard weights for White Leghorns are cocks five and one-half pounds and hens four, but to our notion heavier males and females in the breeding pen can do no harm, provided it is not overdone and type is preserved. In the strive for eggs, size has been somewhat overlooked; not only in California, but throughout the country. This has given the breed a reputation as possessing little value as a table fowl. A good sized bird not only typifies vigor but is also suggestive of good material for a dinner. Birds of this description possess a selling value as chicken meat, while the three pounders not only command a lower price, but discredit the breed. In a section like Petaluma that markets thousands of dozens of poultry annually an additional one-half to one pound per bird makes a very tidy sum in the year's receipts.

Another point is more or less overlooked and that is individual characteristics. The good layer is a law unto herself—she possesses a certain type. Individual characteristics, such as width and depth of body; must be active and a good feeder; good bone—not large and coarse—with a wide span between pelvic and breast bone; good clear eye, well formed comb; in brief, well balanced in physical conformations. The male should be active and alert, not necessarily quarrelsome, but a good defender of the inhabitants of his seraglio. In attributes he should "measure up" to standard qualifications, and if anything be of good size.

With the millions of White Leghorns in this State it is a trifle disappointing that during the years that the breed has occupied first place, we have not succeeded in breeding and exhibiting birds capable of winning in the big eastern shows—New York, Boston and Chicago. To be sure, the California birds maintained their prestige at the Panama-Pacific show, but the breed has made no progress in the exhibition room beyond the local fixtures. What is the trouble? We have strains that are second to none, no matter where bred, but their owners seem lacking faith in their quality. By reason of climatic conditions our best breeders can produce birds that possess the quality that will cause the eastern-bred specimen to "step some" to reach the blue ribbon. In White Face Black Spanish, in Black Minorcas and in Brown Leghorns, the California birds have maintained their own in big eastern shows. But our White Leghorns, of which we breed millions, have still to win their spurs at a show national in scope east of the Mississippi River. Why is it? Are the Leghorn specialists wanting in red-corpuscled sporting blood, or are they still perfecting their strains for a battle royal within the near future?

Is the Phenomenal Layer a Poor Breeder?

It is well known that experienced breeders do not always use the phenomenal layers as breeders, the argument being that the highly prolific specimen is abnormal, and hence cannot be depended on to produce her like; the practice is to breed vigorous average high laying hens from recognized prolific strains to males of like ancestry and robust constitutional qualities. As bearing on this phase of the subject Mr. Frank I. Platt well says in the October American Poultry Journal that "the question in the mind of many practical breeders is how far they can go in increasing egg production without lessening vitality. The constructive breeder is always considering his birds and handling them with a view to their breeding possibilities, and he is constantly seeking to maintain vigor and vitality at a maximum. This does not necessarily result in indolent hens but it does result in not more than high normal egg production for the individual females. Until it is definitely established by experimental evidence that heavy egg production in a normal, healthy bird will not lessen her strength and breeding powers, many fanciers will continue to hold the opinion that the phenomenal layer is a poor breeder.

"The fact is that fertility and hatchability may be low in the eggs of a poor layer as well as those of a good layer. The best hen at Cornell University a year ago laid 253 eggs and 90 per cent. of the eggs laid in the breeding season hatched. On the other hand 'Cornell' is frank to say that the eggs from their record layers, as a whole, do not test the best for fertility in April, but in May there is apparently no difference between the fertility and hatching qualities of eggs from high and mediocre producers."

A Good Bunch of White Leghorn Layers.

Feather Plucking.

A correspondent writes to know the cause of feather plucking and a remedy. This is indeed a nasty and annoying habit and often difficult to cure, or rather stop. It is difficult to specifically name the cause or causes; it probably originates in an abnormal appetite. One bird starts it, and unless taken away, some others will take it up. Some breeders kill the guilty one. Its presence is more pronounced in flocks limited to small quarters, and may in part be due to a want of sufficient exercise and also a dearth of green food. If our correspondent's birds are wanting in inducements to exercise, provide scratching facilities by feeding grain in litter; then place cabbage or stock beets in the runs tied about two or two and one-half feet from the ground, or high enough so that the birds will have to exercise to get at it. Some recommend a pinch of salt in the mash for every other day, and alternate with a little flowers of sulphur. These suggestions may help, but are not given as a positive cure.

Choosing a Name.

It is good advertising and also appropriate to give the poultry ranch a name, especially so if one owns the land as well as its improvements. It also gives distinction to the place if nicely "signed out" where passers-by will be apt to see it. In choosing a name select one with local color, or one suggestive of the poultry industry. Location and environment will often suggest a name, such as the "Mountain View Poultry Farm;" or some striking feature of the landscape may afford a title like "The Twin Oaks Poultry Ranch." Again, the locality may be rich in historical lore, and a selection can be made accordingly. If these sources fail, one can gain inspiration from the business itself, which will at once afford a variety. For instance, "The Red Comb Poultry Farm," "The White Feather Ranch," etc. As a last resort there is the personal equation, such as "John Doe's Barred Rock Ranch" and "Richard Roe's Single Comb White Leghorn Farm."

If not in error, there is a State law which provides for the registration of "fictitious" firm names. Under its provision the owner can select any name he likes, and if not already appropriated, no one else can use the same name in his particular county. Many breeders have already adopted names, nevertheless, we hope many others will do so. In this connection, we give expression to the wish that all will exercise judgment in making a selection—choosing a name that will not only be appropriate, but will at the same time give dignity to the poultry industry and individuality to the owner and his possessions.

An Egg Boycott.

During the late war our readers will remember a threatened boycott on the part of housekeepers in Los Angeles against the product of the American business hen. It seemed impossible to tolerate hen fruit when the price went soaring skywards to 60 cents a dozen; the only excuse for such a condition was the conclusion that poultrymen were in an unholy combine and guilty of the "heinous" offense of profiteering. A little educational propaganda soon showed the fallacy of their position, and the boycott quickly quieted down and has not been heard of since, though eggs are now hovering around a price of 75 cents per dozen. A similar situation has developed in Sacramento county where a convention of the Mayors of Pacific Coast cities is proposed to discuss cost production and the advisability of boycotting high priced hen fruit and butter. Now we submit that the butter men can take care of themselves, and that only a moment's study of the situation will so clarify the situation as to make a boycott on eggs look not only foolish, but almost criminal. It is safe to assume that everything that the poultryman buys has, during the past few years, advanced from 50 to 100 per cent. over what it was before the cry for increased food production and conservation struck the country; not the least of his increased costs have been poultry foods—everything that he uses has "gone up," including labor. To boycott his product under these conditions is (if effective) to put him out of business. In comparison with prevailing prices for other food products, eggs are not only the most nutritious, but the most economical food the housewife can buy, even at 75 cents per dozen. To prove this no idle statement we have only to note a few items the poultry farmer has to buy at present rates compared to prices four year ago. For instance the price of wheat in 1916 was $22 per ton; in 1919 it is $75 per ton, an advance of 232½ per cent. Barley in 1916 was $25 per ton, and in 1919 $62.50 per ton, an advance of 150 per cent. Bran in 1916 was $26 per ton, and in 1919 $54 per ton, an advance of 117½ per cent. Corn in 1916 was $40 per ton, and in 1919 $94 per ton, an advance of 110 per cent. Alfalfa meal in 1916 was $18 per ton, and in 1919 $40 per ton, an advance of 122 per cent. Charcoal in 1916 was $40 per ton, and in 1919 $78 per ton, an advance of 85½ per cent. Shells, 25 cents per sack in 1916, and in 1919 $1.25 per sack, an advance of 400 per cent. Meat scraps in 1916 were $66 per ton, and in 1919 $110 per ton, an advance of 66 2-3 per cent.

The trouble with the poultry industry is that the men and women in it fail utterly in keeping the consuming public informed as to the quality of their product, and the conditions under which it is produced—two factors that, when explained and made clear, will appeal to the ultimate buyer, and kill any attempted boycott beyond the hope of resurrection.

The Garmless Egg.

Commercial egg farmers are quite alive to the importance of marketing infertile eggs, realizing that their keeping qualities are much better than those produced by hens that travel with cocks. Hence the slogan, "Swat the rooster!" The College of Agriculture of Saskatchewan, Canada, has put out a rather forcible poster for distribution among the commercial poultrymen with this legend displayed in bold type.

"Each summer Saskatchewan farmers lose one and a half million dollars through shipping fertile eggs.

"This loss can be avoided by marketing only non-fertile eggs.

"Remove every male bird from the flock as soon as you have secured enough fertile eggs for hatching purposes.

"You will save two dollars worth of feed on each rooster sold now."

We presume that relatively the same conditions prevail in many poultry plants in this section, hence the importance of putting the industry wise to the facts. Males have no place with hens on egg farms excepting for breeding purposes.

Utilization of Kitchen Waste.

The economy of a small flock of poultry to the average family is that under proper management the hens can be made to convert the waste of the kitchen into hen fruit and meat, thus providing a source of income to the family living expenses. The main thing is to so handle the kitchen and table leavings that they will reach the birds in a wholesome condition. To accomplish this there is no hard and fast rule, the average housekeeper being guided by her common sense. The leavings on plates, such as crusts of bread, vegetable parings, bits of meat, etc., all have a feeding value if properly cared for. For the most they had better be segregated, by putting the pieces of bread and bits of pastry by themselves, and when about to be used, place them in the oven and toast to a brown. Then crush them up, and use as part of the mash. Heat tends to destroy molds, and any evil effects of that. Vegetable parings can be run through a grinder or chopped, and then added to the mash feeds. Eliminate all orange and lemon peel, and other wastes that possess no feeding value. Bits of meat should be cut up, and bones either run through a bone cutter or burned and crushed. Table scraps are sometimes too rich for little chicks, hence should be given with some discretion; but for matured fowl the table waste can almost all be safely utilized. In mixing with the regular mash render it crumbly, not wet and sloppy. Feed only what the birds will eat up clean, in say twenty or twenty-five minutes. Melon rinds, beet leavings, etc., can be fed without any preparation, provided they are pure and fresh.

The Low and Postage Foods.

Now that the pure food law governing proprietary foods for poultry is in operation, breeders are quite sure to get just what they pay for, which will insure confidence and also increase the use of package goods rather than the purchase of raw materials for home preparation. All things considered, the average poultry farmer will find it advantageous to buy foods for his flocks ready for use, rather than compound them himself. The mills and large operators are obviously in a better position to do this than the individual buyer, and for that matter also more economical, thereby often being able to make a price below what the ultimate consumer can buy the several ingredients for in the open market. In this connection, must also be considered the added advantage that it relieves the poultryman of much time and labor, which he can devote to the better care and management of his flocks. So pronounced has this become, that nearly all the larger operators buy the prepared foods. As for the fellows with only comparatively small flocks, compounding is out of the question; the thing for them to do is buy in as large quantities as possible.

Abscesses and boils are the result of bad blood, generally brought on by improper feeding and indigestion in the hutches. Local applications of a good salve, procurable at the poultry stores, sometimes cures these, and many blood tonics are sold. But the best plan when but one or two rabbits is affected is to kill the animal and bury it deep in the ground. The disease is also caused by the failure of the doe to give enough milk for proper sustenance of the young rabbits. There is a constant flow of saliva running from the mouth down the jaw and onto the front legs and feet. There are many good clubbers remedies sold at poultry stores.

FARM AND TRACTOR SECTION.

Devoted to the multiform agricultural interests of the great Southwest and issued every week with the world's biggest Sunday newspaper.

EDITED BY HAROLD M. FINLEY.

Communications from practical farmers, ranchers, stock raisers, poultrymen, gardeners and others engaged either in a large or small way in the vital work of food production are gladly received.

Good clear photographs of interesting farm and garden activities are always welcomed. The Los Angeles Times Farm and Tractor Section is the only farm journal in the west printing illustrations in the incomparable rotogravure process.

Support the Bureau.

THE Los Angeles County Farm Bureau has just rounded out another year of useful service to agriculture and agriculturists in this great farming county of Southern California. The end of the bureau's official year finds the organization in good shape financially and more firmly entrenched than ever in the respect and confidence of the farmers. The bureau's work, in fact, has come to mean so much to agriculturists generally that its discontinuance would mean a distinct loss to the community at large.

Although launched some years before the war, the farm bureau movement in the United States did not gain much momentum until this country entered the world conflict and the urgent call for increased food production was sent out from Washington. As a patriotic agency in the stimulation of crop planting the bureau plan at once assumed tremendous importance. The government has given unstinted praise to the farm bureau organizations throughout the country for their services in this vital work.

The work of the bureaus in the war emergency showed, too, just what a force such organizations could be in building up a better agriculture and stimulating production at all times. Whereas, before the war the leaders in the farm bureau movement were experiencing considerable difficulty in getting the public interested in the plan, the close of the conflict found a general opposition to any suggestion that it be abandoned. The result has been that the memberships of the bureaus all over the country have been increasing right along and that the work has expanded in every line. Farmers are finding the farm bureau not only a help in the successful prosecution of their business, but a medium of expression in getting their views and problems before the public at large, as well as a means to co-operative effort along lines of mutual interest.

The success of the movement lies in the fact that it gets home to the farmer right on his farm. This is something that the United States Department of Agriculture was never able to do excepting in a limited way by means of its bulletin service. Backed by the department and the State Agricultural institutions, the farm bureau is able to deliver the message that the government has all along been trying to deliver. Farmers under the farm bureau system get so interested in improved methods as actually demonstrated to them on their farms that they seek the bulletins and other printed advice of the experts and keep the department busy supplying them. And because the various farm centers are organized and carried on by the growers themselves, the center members are bound to have that enhusiasm hat goes with actual participation in a project.

The farm bureau movement has grown so big that the greatest problem confronting it today is that of keeping up all the activities undertaken and constantly being projected. It has certainly outstripped all Federal, State and county provisions made for it. This applies to most parts of the country. In innumerable communities, including this one, it is a question of just how much the bureau can attempt and still stay within the limits of available appropriations. The work in Los Angeles county has grown to such proportions and developed so many angles that further expansion along lines earnestly desired by the growers themselves would seem to be impossible unless added provision is made for meeting the expense.

There is one thing that every agricultural producer, whatever his field, can do to help the good work along and that is to become an active member of the bureau. The fee is small but the benefit is great and if enough new members are added to the already large list, projects that now seem beyond reach will be possible. The Los Angeles County Farm Bureau has made good. It deserves and should receive the support of the entire farming population.

Plant for the Future.

A FRUIT or nut tree is an investment that appreciates in value as time goes on, and returns a dividend in actual profit and satisfaction far out of proportion to the money expended. A home either in the city or in the country is not complete without a few bearing trees, which produce abundance for the table and grateful shade in summer.

Be thoughtful of the fuutre. Plant now, and in a few years see your beautiful trees rearing their heads towards the zenith, laden with excellent food. Fruit and nut trees on city places are beginning to tell in the value of the places; they are more appreciated than formerly. The cost of food is becoming a more important item in the household expense budget each year, and fruit trees help wonderfully to keep down the grocer's bill.

The trees are an ornament to the earth; things of beauty and of great usefulness. The planting season approaches and the stock of nursery trees is limited. Now is the time to think about that home fruit orchard.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT SECOND ANNUAL FARM BUREAU MEETING.

THE second annual meeting of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau, held at the beautiful Santa Anita Rancho of Anita M. Baldwin at Arcadia, November 5, was one of the most successful farm bureau activities ever staged in the county. Conservative estimates place the number of persons in attendance during the various sessions making up the day's programme at over 500.

No more attractive natural setting could have been desired than that furnished by the spacious arbors of the old stock ranch from which came so many of the famous horses of racing history. The picnic basket lunch enjoyed by those in attendance was held on ground hallowed to all lovers of fine horses, being spread out on a greensward beneath which repose the great Derby winners of the Santa Anita Rancho.

In many respects the annual meeting of the farm bureau is the most important farm bureau event of the year. At this meeting the results of the past year's work are brought before the members and plans are laid for the coming year. Another important transaction of the meeting is the election of officers to head the organization for the coming year.

The two business sessions, one for the men and the other for the women, were called to order at 11 o'clock in the morning, with substantial quorums present in each case. After ratifying the work of the 1918 annual meeting, which on account of the prevailing influenza epidemic resolved itself into a committee of the whole because of lack of a quorum, the reports of officers and committees on last year's activities were heard. In every case splendid reports were made. The organization was reported in good financial shape, with a comfortable balance on hand to start the coming year.

REPORT OF FARM ADVISER.

Farm Adviser Hodgson's report was especially interesting, dealing briefly with the activities of the staff of farm advisers and at greater length with the more important developments in farm bureau work during the year. Some startling figures were given revealing the magnitude of the work of the farm advisers in Los Angeles county.

During the past year, it was brought out, Mr. Hodgson and his five assistants have traveled by rail in this county the distance from San Francisco to New York and back, and by automobile a distance equal to three times the circumference of the earth. During that year nearly 3500 persons have called at the farm adviser's office in the Courthouse for agicultural information, while more than 4000 letters have been dictated in reply to inquiries. Nearly 2000 farmers have been visited on their farms and a total of 431 meetings, with 20,000 persons present, have been conducted by Farm Adviser Hodgson and his staff.

Mr. Hodgson reviewed the improvements in conditions of work in the county occurring during the past year, and mentioned the growing demand for the services of members of the staff in other counties and outside the State.

Some of the main farm bureau developments of the year mentioned were the growth of a strong organization spirit, the increase in farm bureau publicity, the development of the organized center community programme of work idea, the growth of demonstration activities and the inauguration of a series of annual county-wide farm bureau events of a specialized nature, such as extension schools for the different branches of agriculture. Mr. Hodgson mentioned a number of co-operative farmer's organizations sponsored and developed by the farm bureau, also the phenomenal growth of the home department work and the cow-testing department. He concluded his report with a review of the work of the Legislative Committee and a statement regarding the affiliation of the bureau with the new California Farm Bureau Federation.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, J. B. Vaile, San Dimas; first vice-president, Robert H. Neely, Covina; second vice-president, Harvey S. Bissell, La Crescenta; W. S. Rosecrans, Gardena, secretary; Ralph McNees, Whittier, treasurer.

The retiring president, Volney H. Craig of San Fernando, was elected director at large, four other directors being also chosen in the persons of O. W. Maulsby, Whittier; Grant A. Brown, El Monte; Dr. George P. Clements, Los Angeles, and A. W. Frye, Hynes.

At the same times the men were meeting the women met and organized a county-wide home department to the bureau, electing Mrs. L. B. Doan to the position of county chairman and Mrs. J. O. Colwell as additional director-at-large. The growth of the women's auxiliary work has been notable, thirteen home department centers having been established during the year.

JUDGING DEMONSTRATIONS.

Following lunch which included coffee and doughnuts served by the home department, stock judging demonstrations were conducted by Assistant Farm Adviser G. E. Gordon, who used some of the wonderful live stock owned by the ranch in his work.

In the swine judging the following registered Poland-China individuals were used: Quality Bob, first and junior champion boar at this year's Wisconsin State fair, and at the La Crosse fair and third at the National Live Stock Show; Miss Big Price, second, grand champion sow at the Wisconsin State fair, third in her class at La Crosse and fifth at the National Show; Miss Big Price, third, first at both the Wisconsin State fair and La Crosse and sixth at the National;

THOUSANDS OF ANGORA GOATS FOR THE BRUSH-COVERED RANGE.

SAN DIEGO.—With the arrival during the past week of 2000 Angora goats, the establishment of an important industry for Southern California appears to be well under way in San Diego county. The shipment of six carloads of the meat and mohair producing goats just received at Escondido completes a purchase of 6000 head brought in from Arizona points by J. C. Cameron of Ramona. The animals were hauled in double-decked trucks, each holding 150 goats, for the distance of twenty miles from the railroad at Escondido to Mr. Cameron's ranch at Ramona.

Mr. Cameron, who is an experienced goat grower, believes that in Southern California he has found ideal conditions for the production of Angoras. The climate and the type of range he declares to be the best to be found anywhere in the country. "And no animal," says Mr. Cameron, "is better suited to bringing prosperity to any community where conditions are suitable than is the Angora goat. Not only does it produce the very best of the mutton now on the markets—for unfortunately the custom has been established of selling it under the name of sheep instead of goat meat—but the hair, which is sheared twice a year in this climate, is greatly in demand with manufacturers and brings consistently good prices."

"Besides," he adds, "perhaps the greatest point to be considered and one doubly important in these times of high prices, is the extremely low price of production. Only very simple equipment is necessary, as the goats are very hardy and require only open sheds as shelter. But the feed saving is the greatest item. The goats live the year around in this locality on the brush range which no other animal will eat."

OTHER RANCHES.

To prove that these claims are not merely theory, and have been already actually demonstrated in this section as well as in other parts of the country, Mr. Cameron pointed to several Angora ranches which have shown themselves markedly successful within the past few years.

The Red Ribbon Angora Company, of which Mr. Louis Leonhard of Escondido is president, has for the past several seasons been increasing its stock of Angoras on Mr. Leonhard's ranch a few miles south of Bernardo just off the Los Angeles-San Diego inland highway. The company now has 500 head of Angoras on brush range, shearing in the neighborhood of 2000 pounds and upwards of hair a year which brings in from 60 cents to 75 cents a pound, most of which is "velvet" according to the company's

RABBITS' AILMENTS DEFINED.

BY JAMES ALDEN ROGERS.

Rabbits are remarkably free from diseases in Southern California, if properly cared for. Of course, when the hutches are allowed to get unsanitary and feeding is irregular, or the ventilation of the rabbit homes is imperfect, disease is liable to creep in.

The hutches should be frequently cleaned. Do not neglect to scatter sawdust or like material which will take up the liquid matter. Opthalmia, mange, scurf and other diseases are caused by foul hutches. Digestive disorders follow feeding young rabbits wet green feeds or from radical changes in their diets. Snuffles, a form of cold, result from improper ventilation and drafts. Many rabbits die in summer because of the heat. It is imperative to shade the hutches in warm weather.

Ear canker, and ear was leave no bad trace, usually, when reduced or removed by applications of lukewarm water, applied with a sponge, and a bath of boracic acid. Exercise is the best remedy for potbelly, and constipation. Dry barley meal checks diarrhoea. Some rabbit raisers give skim milk and powdered acorns for this trouble.

The above are not as serious as coccidiosis, which is much dreaded by rabbit raisers. Coccidiosis is caused by internal parasites, usually present in young rabbits. When there is coccidiosis in the hutches it is very difficult to check its spread. Extreme care should be taken to prevent the first case. Whenever any rabbits are bought, they should be kept isolated from the main hutches for a time. Keeping the hutches in stacks aids in preventing the spread of this disease. When the young rabbits take on a pot-bellied appearance, especially when they exhibit signs of colds or snuffles, there may reasonably be a suspicion that the old rabbits have coccidiosis and are expelling the coccidia from their bodies. If this is found to be true, immedately remove the affected hutch and its occupants, and thoroughly disinfect it and the premises occupied.

Slobbers is a disease caused by feeding sore hock in intestinal fare, and a coloring matter in the urine, and in 1919 9½ per ton, an average of 6½ per cent. Alcohol, 35 cents per gallon in 1916, and in 1919 $1.35 per gallon; on oil cents per cent. Alcohol expense in 1916 was $62 per ton, and in 1919 $78 per ton, an increase of 26 per cent. Labor in 1919 $116 per ton.

America's Pioneer Dog Medicines

A Good Type of Angora Buck.

Sometimes sore hock troubles rabbits. This is caused by a thinness of the blood, improper feeding, or badly kept quarters. When either the doe or buck is called upon to perform more work than they are physically capable to perform, sore hock may appear. Bathe the sore feet in peroxide of hydrogen after the removal of the animal to a clean hutch not occupied by other rabbits. Feed green alfalfa or clover and a mash of bran with a little cottonseed cake mixed in.

Mange, or scabies, on rabbits is rare, but difficult to cure. The parasites causing the diseases, which cannot be seen with the naked eye, burrow beneath the skin into the flesh, and it is hard to reach them. Some breeders shave the hair from around the affected spot and apply several times a batch of soft soap, leaving on from fifteen to twenty minutes.

Let us repeat again the old saw—an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. The purpose of this article is rather to caution rabbit raisers against the danger of disease and to show the causes of diseases, rather than remedies, of which there are many, and which may be taken up at another time. There are a dozen different nostrums for each rabbit disease in large poultry stores, and there is merit in most of them.

It is well to spray the rabbit quarters with a good disinfectant occasionally, and certainly when symptoms of bowel trouble appear. Also spray bedding of sick rabbits with the disinfectant.

Watch your stock; look into their ears occasionally, and see that their eyes are clear, not watery. Keep the hutches clean; scrape them out twice daily, and the animals will appreciate it. When the rabbits are badly affected, it is best to kill them and prevent infection of the others.

MAKE HENS SCRATCH

Feed the grain in a deep litter on the floor and make the hens exercise for it. The mash may be fed either wet or dry, and should be so regulated that the fowls will get about equal parts of mash and of the scratch grains. president. Mr. Leonhard is a business man as well as a stock man, and in his estimation the fact that the "overhead" can be kept almost absurdly low during these days of high-priced labor as well as high cost of feeding is one of the main attractions of Angora raising as a business.

Percy R. Davis, who claims to be the pioneer Angora grower of San Diego county, and who has now had his band on his ranch at Lakeside for four years, says that his experience has upheld all of the above statements, and then some. Mr. Davis moves his band to summer range at Descanso each year, and believes that every goat ranch should have two ranges, but he says that this plan need not increase the cost of upkeep. Rightly handled range grazed by Angoras, he states, is not only an asset as cheap feed for goats, but soon increases greatly in value as a cattle range as well. Mr. Davis says he has known of many ranges in older goat-growing sections which improved in a few years from useless waste land to prosperous pasturage for cattle, and says that his own range is already showing a marked increase of good grasses, burr clovers and other good feeds which it did not earlier carry.

While the earlier Angora growers in this section have so far not produced Angoras for meat, Mr. Cameron expects to make this featue of the business an important part of his undertaking. "Of course," he says, "until your range is stocked to capacity, it doesn't pay to sell for meat, as each goat practically produces his price each year in hair. The wethers, which furnish the main portion of the meat supply, are also the best hair producers, so naturally it is hard to part with them as long as you can find an extra hill or two to pasture them on. They are long lived and extremely hardy, and you can count on them to keep right on growing silver curls at the rate of an inch each month for fifteen years or so; so it seems like eating the hen that lays the golden egg."

The San Vicente ranch, which Mr. Cameron has leased for ten years, includes some 6000 acres, each acre of which should support five goats, according to his estimates. "And all the other thousands of acres of brush-covered hills we see all around us in Southern California should also be carrying their quota," he declares. In the "more production" movement, which is claimed to be our only remedy for bringing down the cost of living, Angora growers are unanimous in claiming that the goat should have a prominent place.

CAN PEAR BLIGHT BE KEPT UNDER CONTROL BY MEANS OF A SPRAY?

By P. A. SONGUEST, Ph.D., Plant Pathologist.

THE pear growers and the pear industry of California will hear with interests that the plant pathologists have again made a great discovery, which may mean millions of dollars to our State.

F. L. Stevens and collaborators of the University of Illinois, have recently announced a few experiments which promise to revolutionize entirely our modern methods of combating pear blight. The experiments were carried on in orchards of Bartlett pears, which are very susceptible to the disease, and which are commonly grown in the Illinois valley. Bordeaux mixture was applied at the rate of 100 gallons per acre, and the trees were sprayed at the following times: (1) Before the blossoms opened. (2) Just after the petals fell. (3) Ten days later. (4) Thirty days later. (5) Sixty days later. (6) Ninety days later. Check trees were left unsprayed.

The results were astonishing. Of the unsprayed trees, 100 per cent were blighted, while of the sprayed trees only 3 per cent were blighted. Of the trees sprayed at the first time only, 4 per cent were blighted. Of those sprayed at the second time only, 3 per cent were blighted. Of those sprayed at the third time only, 5 per cent were blighted. Of those sprayed at the fourth time only, 6 per cent were blighted. Of those sprayed at the fifth time only, 7 per cent were blighted. Of those sprayed at the sixth time only, 8 per cent were blighted.

Another interesting fact was that the spraying was more effective on the trees that were in bloom than on those that were not in bloom. Spraying at the time the petals fell was the most effective time to spray. Spraying after the petals had fallen was not very effective.

Another fact observed is that the disease was never found to run so rapidly and so far as where sprays had not been applied. Spraying was also very effective in preventing the disease from spreading from the blossom to the fruit.

DOWN-TO-DATE REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.

RIVERSIDE.—The honey producers of Riverside and San Bernardino counties, constituting one of the ten local organizations of the California Honey Producers' Co-operative Exchange, met recently for an all-day conference at the First Congregational Church in this city. The most important question before the meeting was the problem of securing sugar for the feeding of bees during the nonproductive season. It was decided to have the State exchange, if possible, secure a hundred tons of sugar which will be distributed at cost to the beekeepers who need it in the Riverside and San Bernardino districts. All weather conditions this year were bad and as a result the crop is light and many hives will have to be fed to keep them from starving. This was also seen in the report of the officers regarding the yield, which this year was only 6177 cases of honey, valued at $150,000, while the average yield is about $700,000 in this district. Of the 6177 cases produced, over 2700 valued at $66,000 have already been marketed this year, and the market, which is now at close to 20 cents, is holding strongly. Out of 115 cars produced by the exchange members, sixty-four cars have already been sold. One of the interesting features of the report of the secretary was that four carloads of "cotton blossom honey" produced for the first time in the district was sold this year through the exchange. These cars came from the Coachella and Palo Verde valleys. The meeting closed with election of directors as follows: Reese Powell, Riverside; L. L. Andrews, Corona; E. W. Horn, Riverside; John Mack, Bloomington; A. T. Wagner, Redlands.

OPEN LOCAL OFFICE.

PERRIS.—The Alfalfa Growers of California, Inc., have opened a local office in Perris for the benefit of members in that district. R. C. Hoyt, the present Riverside representative of the association, will be in charge. In opening this office, the alfalfa growers are putting into practice a new policy of opening local offices in all the alfalfa districts of the State as it is found practicable and where they have a sufficient membership. The local representatives in charge of these offices will, in all cases, be men who are well known by the members and the community at large, and in a great many instances, will be members of the association they represent. Perris Valley is one of the important alfalfa sections of the State, as it produces a good quality of alfalfa that commands the top price at all times, and is in great demand. The choicer grades have been bringing, within the past ten days, as high has $33.50 f.o.b. Los Angeles. Although the height of the shipping season is well past for this year, the members of the association are showing a great deal of interest and activity, as they are already planning for the 1920 season when they expect to have a grading shed or warehouse of their own, centrally located, where if they desire, they can store their own hay and hold it for the higher prices in the winter months. It is planned that this warehouse is to be financed by the growers themselves, with the assistance of a local bank. There will be conspicuously posted, at the local office, the price alfalfa is worth to the grower, either at the ranch or f.o.b. his shipping point.

WATER FOR RANCH.

TEMECULA.—The great Pauba or Vail ranch near here, consisting of over 20,000 acres is to be no longer a dry farming area, but is to go under irrigation if the plans of the owners, are carried to completion. The ranch is the property of Margaret R. Vail, N. R. Vail, Mary E. Vail and Mahlon Vail of Los Angeles incorporated as the Vail company. The company has applied to the State Water Commission for permission to take forty-five cubic feet of water per second for direct diversion and 40,000 acre feet for storage purposes from the Temecula Creek. It will be necessary to bring the water by ditch and piping two and a half miles, and the dam contemplated will be 1000 feet long and 115 feet high, built of rubble, concrete and masonry. The estimated cost of storing the 40,000 acre feet will be about $200,000.

GRAPES ARE PROFITABLE.

RIALTO.—John Cox, who, this season has sent out many carloads of grapes, has just received returns from his own crop of ten carloads grown on thirty acres at his North Rialto ranch. After all expenses were paid, he reports, the net receipts were $50 a ton. Mr. Cox's ranch is partly set to bearing orange trees, but the grapes paying a net profit of about $200 per acre would almost seem to be seeking to rival the golden oranges as a paying crop. G. Leiser of South Palm street reports that in his garden crop of sweet potatoes of a proven yellow table variety a considerable percentage will tip the scales at five pounds and a greater number at four. L. P. Kingman, going one better, has produced a quality brand sweet potato that weighs five pounds and three ounces and he also reports many of a size to make a meal for the ordinary family. These are not yams, but real sweet potatoes for table use only.

GOOD ORANGE PROSPECTS.

EAST HIGHLANDS.—There is every reason to believe that the orange crop for the coming year in this district will be as large if not larger than that of last year, according to H. W. Seager of the Redlands-Highland Fruit Exchange. Mr. Seager, with eight eastern selling agents of the company, recently made a trip over the Highlands, East Highlands and Redlands district. He says that some of the groves that produced heavy crops last year will have light crops this year; that some groves will have more oranges, and that some that had light crops last year will have a fair amount of fruit this year. He spoke of one well known fifty-acre grove that produced $22,000 worth of fruit netting the owners $12,000 last year. The crop this coming year on that ranch will be light, but for the two years the owners expect the grove to net them better than 9 per cent., which they consider a good return on their investment. The crop can be expected, it is believed, to bring as good prices as it did this past year, when the record in high prices was reached. There have been more sales of orange property this year than for six years, and three of the largest groves in the San Bernardino Valley have just been sold. The groves are bringing good prices.

EXPERT ADDRESSES CENTER.

PERRIS.—The well known expert on dry farming, H. W. Campbell, was scheduled to visit Perris November 14, and speak at the monthly meeting of the Perris Farm Center. Mr. Campbell, who is known as "Dry Farm" Campbell, has been lecturing on dry farming for many years, and has a wide reputation as a speaker and scientific agriculturist. He has had much to do with dry farming development in Kansas and Colorado. A whole week will be spent by him in Riverside county. He will also visit Moreno, November 12, and Murrietta November 13. Mr. Campbell is farm adviser for the Southern Pacific Railway.

SOILS DISCUSSED.

REDLANDS.—The farmers of this section recently had two wonderfully interesting meetings during the visit of Prof. J. W. Nelson, soil expert for the University of California. In the afternoon, the growers gathered near Crafton, and went with Prof. Nelson for an examination of the various soils of the district. Prof. Nelson said that the problems of Redlands growers were varied because of the fact that, being laid out on the sides of the foothills, there are different soil conditions in short distances. Up on the hills, the growers must work with a heavy clay that is apt to make hardpan which bakes easily. Lower down there is more gravel, and down on the floor of [illegible] the hills there is more sand, loam, and Prof. Nelson believes that [illegible] cover crops and other means of separating the adobe-like clay will help. The great problem in irrigation there is to hold the water back so that it will soak in. Prof. Nelson says that this can be done only by keeping the soil from forming hardpans. Below, the big problem is to keep the water going, so that it will not soak down below the root levels. Prof. Nelson showed the growers in the valleys how this could be done. At the high school he made a talk to the farmers in which he took up the various conditions and worked them out carefully.

SELLING OFF STOCK.

PHOENIX (Ariz.)—In the general turning within the Salt River Valley from dairying and pasturage to cotton, most of the poorer dairy stock already has gone to the block and now are coming reports of the sale of herds of higher grades. The noted Dwight B. Heard Shorthorn herd lately was disposed of to a Bakersfield, Cal., stockman. I. Leyde has shipped to Havana, Cuba, forty-three head of selected Holstein cows and two registered Holstein bulls. The State of Iowa, represented by several members of the State Board of Control, has purchased ninety head of registered Holsteins, mainly from William Coleman Rogers of Phoenix. The cows are to be distributed among a number of State institutions. The latest sale of importance is that of the entire Holstein herd of John R. Bradshaw, for shipment to the barns of John B. Irwin, St. Paul, Minn. Included are fifty head of females and several bulls, the latter headed by King Lilith Pontiac Segis, a full brother to King Segis Pontiac Count. The latter, owned by J. M. Hocking of St. Paul, is the sire of daughters with some of the highest Holstein milking records in the country. The local herd leader, brought here from Illinois, is said to have brought, on resale, $15,000.

SAVING SWEET CORN SEED.

The best way to save sweet corn seed is to allow it to ripen in the ear, and, since a single ear will be seed enough for a small garden, the grower should select the best ear on the lot for seed and strip down the husk to examine the grain and remove any worms that may be found. Carefully fold back the husks and place an elastic band around them.

CAN PEAR BLIGHT BE KEPT UNDER CONTROL BY MEANS OF A SPRAY?

By P. A. BONCQUET, Ph.D., Plant Pathologist.

THE pear growers and the pear industry of California will hear with interests that the plant pathologists have again made a great discovery, which may mean millions of dollars to our State.

F. L. Stevens and collaborators of the University of Illinois, have recently announced a few experiments which promise to revolutionize entirely our modern methods of combating pear blight. The experimenters indeed claim that the organism of pear blight, baccilus amilovorus, is principally wind borne and that insects play only a secondary part in its distribution. Not only does this fact appear to be established, but experiments in pear blight control, based upon this discovery, have thus far proved very efficient.

A spray, adapted to bacterial control and applied at the right time, controls pear blight. Observations by the writer are proving that this new method of control is workable and practical under California conditions.

Up till now, the pear blight was said to be carried only by insects. This assumption was mostly based on the fact that insects were actually found to carry the disease. Accordingly, the methods now in vogue are essentially directed by this leading idea. Blossom blight was said to be due to insects visiting the nectaries of the flowers. Twighlight was supposed to be due to Aphids. Body cankers were due to the two first infections. The control of insects and the pruning out of diseased twigs was the logical way of controlling the disease. This manner of controlling pear blight is a fight so constant and incessant that many a grower has given up the idea of pear growing on account of the worry and labor involved.

SPRAY IS SOUGHT.

If pear blight is wind borne, then some kind of a spray must be efficient. This spray must have for its aim to render harmless the sources of infection, or to prevent infection from taking place, or it may have both. We have to know more about these sources of infection, especially for California conditions. If the organism is wind borne, it may be carried in the form of dust particles, or the organism may be disseminated by windblown rain from the trees or from the soil, as suggested by K. C. Faulwetter in the United States Department of Agriculture, Journal of Agricultural Research.

Here in California the rain can hardly be thought of as a factor. That the bacteria may be carried in the form of dust, is more plausible, however. This idea gains strength, especially from the discovery of F. Lohnis, a bacteriologist of world reputation among us. This eminent scientist maintains that bacteria have a life cycle far more complex that we have thought before. Up till now, we have thought the bacillus to be definite and always the same. According to Lohnis, this is only the vegetative stage, the way it is found in active running cankers or in young cultures; but, in all probability, this organism forms spores: gonidia. It forms a symplasm and regenerative bodies. Most of these are so small that they fall beyond the limit of microscopic vision. We have to know what becomes of old dry blight cankers, that never run any more and seem to be totally inactive. We have to know what becomes of the scrapings that fall on the soil and dry. May they be the origin of blossom infection in the spring? May they liberate to the wind bacterial gonidia in the form of an atomic dust that takes on vegetative bacterial growth in the blossoms?

These are problems which are eminently practical and which will give us information about how to select a most efficacious spray for our trees and which will help to determine the best time to apply these sprays.

Practical results of pear blight control with sprays are now already to be mentioned. C. A. McCue sprayed the trees with bordeaux mixture when the trees were in bloom and noted some protection. F. L. Stevens and collaborators controlled completely the blossom infection on Kieffer pear trees and did not interfere with the setting of the fruit. The spray used was Bordeaux mixture; the time of application was just as the flowers were about to bloom.

These experiments were performed in Illinois. We do not know how they will hold under California conditions. That it is of great economic importance that pear blight control in California should be studied in the light of these new discoveries will easily be granted.

SOME OBSERVATIONS.

A few years ago, pear blight was very severe on the river bottom lands around Sacramento. Several growers were spending thousands of dollars cutting out the blight and many a tree was lost, in spite of all this work and expense.

Then the pear scab began to be very prevalent and the farmers were told by the commissioner of horticulture to spray with Bordeaux. This spraying was done about the blossoming time. Sometimes several sprays were applied. I have visited the orchards so sprayed. Pear blight could hardly be found in the form of blossom infection and the twig infection was also very rare. Another fact observed is that even the infection was never found to run so rapidly and so far as where sprays had not been used. Some trees which had not been sprayed, were so badly affected with pear blight, that hardly any fruit had set and most of the new growth was badly infected. The spray that had been used was the common Bordeaux mixture 4-4-50. These observations seem to confirm the observations of Stevens. Nevertheless, a systematic study, in order that we may get more positive knowledge, is very desirable and hereby recommended.

FLORIDA SCALE FOUND.

Horticultural Commissioner Ryan of Los Angeles county recently found infected Florida grapefruit packed in an Oregon apple box on the Los Angeles market and immediately seized it. He found fusarium and scale and destroyed the fruit and box. Fruit attacked by fusarium soon becomes a rotten mass.

VAN NUYS.—The dairying industry around Van Nuys has received a great boost. Noland & Blenkiron of Imperial have purchased all of the W. F. Holt ranch on Ventura boulevard, north of the highway, and will establish at once a 500-cow dairy. The property comprises part of what is known as the old sheep ranch which was purchased by Mr. Holt from Gen. H. G. Otis several years ago and is admirably suited for dairying. A portion of the land is already planted to alfalfa and during the past season Mr. Holt produced there some of the finest ensilage corn ever grown in the San Fernando Valley.

Work will be started at once on the buildings for the new dairy and they will be rushed to completion as quickly as possible.

Noland & Blenkiron are considered among the leaders in the dairying industry in the State. They have been operating for several years in the Imperial Valley, where they control large dairies and creameries and have been extensive dealers in high-grade cows.

With this firm, the Adohr stock farms and the Elliot-Brant ranch, located on the Ventura boulevard, in the valley, this highway will soon become famous for its delivery of milk and cream to Los Angeles.

The Los Angeles Creamery, when it moves its plant to its large site just north of Van Nuys, will become another great factor in the dairying industry of this section.

CANDLING EGGS.

Eggs should be candled because: (1.) Candling provides a fixed standard for trading by doing away with guesswork. (2.) It makes possible a fair price to the careful producer of good eggs. (3.) It shows who is responsible for the bad eggs, and who wastes food. (4.) It leads to a general improvement in quality. (5.) It conforms to law. (6.) It saves freight charges, transportation space and case material by eliminating the handling of worthless products.

SELECTING COWS FOR BABY BEEF.

In selecting cows from which baby beef is to be produced, says the United States Department of Agriculture, three very important factors should be kept in mind:

(1.) The cows should have at least a fair amount of beef blood. Pure-breds are not necessary, but two or three crosses of such breeding is essential. Cows with a preponderance of dairy blood will not do for the production of baby beef.

(2.) Cows best suited for this type of breeding usually weigh 900 pounds or over in thrifty breeding condition. So long as early maturity is not sacrificed, the heavier cows are the most suitable for baby-beef production. Size of frame rather than weight should govern in selecting cows which are to be used for this purpose.

(3.) The cows used to produce baby beeves should produce enough milk to keep the calves fat and growing without much additional feed up to weaning time.

In addition to these three factors, such things as constitution, uniformity of breeding, color, size and early maturity should be considered.

EXCELLENT SHEEP EXHIBIT.

A Shropshire ewe, closely related to many sheep in the flock of the King of England, was made grand champion of the California International Live-stock Show. This ewe is McKerrow 3385, a daughter of the famous Senator Bibby, and is owned by the Butte City ranch of Butte City, Glenn county. The Butte City ranch flock is in charge of John Brims, a Highland Scotchman who wears kilts and plays the bagpipes. Sheep authorities in San Francisco for the stock show declare that this was the best show of Shropshires that has ever been made in the West. The principal honors were divided between the Butte City ranch and the Ratto stock farm of Napa. The awards were made by Frank Brown of Carleton, Or., president of the Portland stock show. The Hampshire honors went to C. Harold Hopkins of the Conaway ranch of Woodland, Cal., the Calla Grove stock farm and the University of California. A number of the Conaway sheep were recently imported from England. Bullard Bros., of Woodland, won most of the Rambouillet honors.

The hog is the cheapest producer of animal fat. Don't send him to market in this condition.

Although the Chester White show was made up exclusively by C. B. Cunningham, owner of the Billiken herd at Mills, it was a creditable representation of this breed, according to W. F. Dolcini of Davis, Cal., who placed the awards. Mr. Cunningham had some excellent specimens of the breed. His Wildwood Chief was made grand champion boar and his sow, Billiken Bells, was named grand champion female.

FAT HOG CLASSES.

Any notion that may exist in the minds of westerners that fat hogs can be raised only in the "corn belt" were dispelled by the announcements of H. H. Kildee of Ames, Iowa, and W. H. Pew of Ravenna, O., who judged the fat hogs at the stock show.

"It was a highly creditable lot of hogs," said Pew, "and the tops of each breed would compare favorably with fat hogs anywhere in the country. The champion single barrow shown by M. and A. L. Bassett of Hanford was good enough to win in any kind of competition. He is a wonderful Poland China."

"FARM PROFITEERING" NOT LEADING TO ANY WILD RUSH TO THE LAND.

BY C. THORPE, Manager California Walnut Growers' Association.

[The following pertinent remarks on the modern question of whether the farmer is a profiteer were incorporated in a talk made by Mr. Thorpe at the recent annual meeting of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau. They are calculated to set the man thinking.—Ed.]

Bill, I say we are facing a shortage of profiteers. It hardly seems believable, with all the golden opportunities at hand, that I should fail for lack of an audience at the city club, mothers' club, lodge, or indoor meeting of a children's party, to tell a thrilling story of the profiteering farmer. Why, I'll bet I could get a date to speak at the Ebell Club, the Friday Morning Club, the Ambassador Auditorium, the Shrine Auditorium, the Elks' Club, the Athletic Club, the Gamut Club, the Chamber In the Hereford breeding classes the strong herd of the Hereford Corporation of Cheyenne, Wyo., won the greatest honors, carrying off the premier awards in one of the strongest shows of the breed in the West. Harold Rice of the Hawaiian Islands slipped in a first prize winner in the senior bull calf class, but his young bull Pirate was a California reared and bred animal, among the many creditable herds, but the championships went to the strong string from Wyoming. H. D. Mousel of Cambridge, Neb., who judged the Hereford cattle, said that

AWARDS REVERSED.

Although the breeding classes of Aberdeen-Angus were shown only by one exhibitor, the interest in the "Doddies" was as keen as though there was active competition. Congdon & Battles of Yakima, Wash., who were the only ones showing in the breeding classes with this breed, won a lot of admirers for the black ones. The feature of the judging was the upset given the lining up of awards on this herd from the manner in which they were placed at other shows this season. Alex McDonald, the veteran beef herdsman of the University Farm at Davis, Cal., made the senior yearling grand champion female, whereas at all other shows the two-year-old came in for the purple, and all the other beef cattle authorities about the ring concurred in McDonald's judgment. The championship for this famous herd was placed as follows at San Francisco's show:

Senior champion bull, Idolmere 4th.
Junior champion bull, Prideman C. B. 5th.
Senior champion cow, Pride of Rosemere 20th.
Junior champion heifer, Pride C. B. 3rd.

SOUTH'S DUROCS WIN.

To F. M. Johnson of Napa, went the grand champion Duroc boar honors on his great boar King Orion, Jr. The Conejo ranch, Newbury Park, took grand championship female honors on Grand Lady 66th. These two animals were the outstanding features of the Duroc show. In numbers and quality the senior sow pig class was a show in itself, the blue finally being awarded to

SOME GREAT BERKSHIRES.

The creditable Berkshire show was topped by the State Fair grand champion boar, Natomas Baron Duke, exhibited by the Anchorage farm of Orland, which its manager, Mrs. Ruth Hardy, purchased from W. F. Sandercock at the Sacramento show for $1000. Prof. H. H. Kildee of Ames, Iowa, who placed him, said that this boar was of such outstanding excellence that he could make his mark anywhere in the East this year. He said that he did not know when he had seen a Berkshire of such stretch, bone, size and yet maintaining the breed refinement throughout. The latter expression was also applied to the junior and grand champion sow of the show, Castleview Premier Belle, shown by J. Francis O'Connor of the Castleview ranch, Santa Rosa, Cal., but now the property of F. L. Hall of Perris, who bought her for $510 at the Western Berkshire Congress sale at the Los Angeles Live-stock Show where she had also been made grand champion.

POLAND CHINA SWINE.

J. F. Lehman of Lodi, Cal., won the grand championship for Poland China boar on his remarkable young boar, Golden West King. It is seldom so young an animal is placed in this commanding position, but the judge, W. H. Pew of Ravenna, O., said he could not do otherwise. M. and A. L. Bassett of Hanford were awarded the grand championship for sow on the outstanding individual, Hopeful.

Farmers should insist that all the stock hogs which they purchase for feeding purposes shall be properly vaccinated by competent and conscientious veterinarians in order to prevent the spread of hog cholera. In many cases, owing to improper equipment for the treatment and disinfection of hogs, new centers of infection have been introduced in communities previously free from the disease, and the movement of hogs from public stockyards having no authority by State or Federal authorities and where treatment for the prevention of cholera is not compulsory is a serious handicap in the fight to prevent the spread of infection. "FARM PROFITEERING" NOT LEADING TO ANY WILD RUSH TO THE LAND.

BY C. THORPE, Manager California Walnut Growers' Association.

[The following pertinent remarks on the mooted question of whether the farmer is a profiteer were incorporated in a talk made by Mr. Thorpe at the recent annual meeting of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau. They are calculated to set the city man thinking.—Ed.]

I'M GOING to talk about a calamity that's about to befall this country. We seem to be facing a most serious shortage—not of coal, not of sugar, but of profiteers.

For profiteering, the farmer gets the gold watch, the brown derby and the green bicycle. If we believe what we read in the papers or what most city folks tell us, the farmer as compared with the steel trust, the miners' union or the meat packers, makes a Sells-Floto three-ring circus look like an indoor meeting of a childless mothers' club.

Still, I say we are facing a shortage of profiteers. It hardly seems believable, with all the golden opportunities at hand, that so few of the city toilers should fall for the "back to the soil" idea. But as long as I've started to address this millionaires' club with a weighty topic, maybe we'd better carry on and see if there is no solution for our present dilemma.

In the first place, we'll agree that there is no monopoly on farming. Most anyone who wants to try it, can. There are still millions of acres of good undeveloped land in America only awaiting tilling to make them productive; there are millions of such acres even here in California. I personally know of some of the finest irrigated bean lands in the State that can be leased on the most favorable crop rental terms with an option to the tenant to buy at any time. Here is an opportunity that requires but little capital, still there are no takers. Thus, any man who is willing to work, can easily find a good farming layout; the trouble seems to be that not enough of us care to do real work, but on the other hand, we are ready and willing to criticise the man who, by hard work, succeeds.

With the average man, the idea is becoming prevalent in this country, that he should work shorter hours and receive more money. That is a happy and popular thought with workers, but unfortunately the theory is all wrong. The facts are, that a man must work long enough to produce as much as he and his family consume. He is just breaking even then. If he expects to get ahead, he must produce more than he consumes. The only way we can produce more and at the same time shorten hours of labor, is through the employment of labor-saving devices. Further inventions along these lines will tend greatly toward shorter hours of labor. This has already been done to a certain extent, so that we may ultimately expect to get on to a seven-hour day or possibly a six-hour day, but as yet, the time for that has not arrived, the contention of the coal miners of this country to the contrary, notwithstanding.

RISK EVER PRESENT.

To illustrate my point, it has not been many years since the country's grain was harvested with a scythe. Today the combined harvester, hauled by a tractor, displaces the labor of possibly 100 men. Still those of us operating farms have not a six-hour nor an eight-hour day. When work is to be done, it is from daylight to dark and a full season's labor and expenses may be entirely wiped out by unfortunate climatic conditions. Again, we must risk our season's operations and expenses on market conditions. We occasionally have to sell a bounteous crop at prices that do not return us the actual out-of-pocket cost of production.

I can illustrate this point by telling you of my personal experience during the last two seasons. In 1918 I produced a fine crop of lima beans on a 250-acre tract and sold them at a fancy price. Everything was rosy. This year, on the same tract, through insufficient rain and unfortunate weather conditions, I did not produce enough beans to harvest. I am plowing the whole crop under. Again, many growers of beans were unable to get them to warehouses in shape for delivery last year in time to obtain attractive prices. The market went to pieces and a large percentage of producers hardly received the cost of production for their product.

Thus we find that farming is a hazardous business. It entails a lot of hard work and is constantly at the mercy of old Dame Nature and is affected favorably or unfavorably by the general market conditions. So when a producer is able now and then to take a fancy profit, he certainly is entitled to it.

If, instead of acusing the farmer of profiteering, a larger percentage of our population would engage in agriculture, a greater production would naturally result. Perhaps this would slightly lower the level of prices, but it would also lower the average production cost, which, in the end, would mean greater prosperity and less agitation.

SOME STATISTICS.

Over half the wealth of this nation is invested in farming. The value of farm property is over twice that of manufacturing, nearly three times as great as the capital invested in railroads, and ten times as great as that invested in mines and quarries. Notwithstanding this, the population of the United States is increasing about 6 per cent. faster than the acreage of improved farm lands. If this ratio continues, the price of farm products must continue to advance, for each acre of farm lands will be called upon to supply more people.

Again, the population of the United States is increasing at a rate of 21 per cent. every ten years, while the farm population is increasing at a rate of only 6 per cent. every ten years and, in the last analysis, this means that the average farmer must produce for more people every year. If these conditions continue, farm products and the price of farm lands must continue to advance indefinitely. The only way to check this trend is through the development of more acreage and through inducing a larger percentage of our population to engage in the farming industry. If something along these lines cannot be accomplished, we must eventually adopt a rationing system to prevent certain classes of people consuming more than their share of our farm products, and others from starving. We will not only see restrictions on the consumption of sugar and other essentials, but on all articles which are basically products of the farm, including cotton and woolen goods. We cannot keep on consuming more than we produce. This rationing system may not be necessary for some time to come, but it is bound to develop as time accentuates the scarcity of farm products.

PUBLICITY THE SOLUTION.

I think there is a solution for our short production difficulties. This solution lies in greater publicity. Public sentiment has always been the strongest factor in our National lives. The coal miners will not win in their strike because public sentiment is against them. The steel strikers have practically lost out for the same reason. If these labor organizations had taken the public into their confidence and through the press advocated the justice of their ideas, if there was any justice to them, there is hardly a doubt but that their ideas would have readily been sold to the consumers. Their publicity department was inadequate, but the campaign funds were plentiful enough to give value on public sentiment, and their publicity departments have been working overtime.

With half the Nation's capital invested in agriculture, there is no reason in the world why, through the proper organization, the biggest and best publicity department could not be developed to apprise the city man of the opportunities and freedom of the country, and let him know how he can be his own boss, and independent. Teach him how he can become a successful farmer if he is willing to combine intelligent effort and hard work. Through this method the old "back to the soil" movement would be speedily revived and production would hold pace with consumption and the country would enjoy a prosperity beyond all anticipations.

If the public moneys being spent at present on investigations of profiteering and in court proceedings against producers, were diverted to a strong publicity campaign, depicting the advantages of agriculture as an occupation, incomparably better results would be obtained, more moderate and steady prices would prevail, the entire Nation be greatly benefited and agitation quieted.

DYNAMITE

"Whatever is worth doing is worth doing well," my good old grandfather used to say. By persevering he impressed this on my heedless, boyish mind till it finally stuck. I have him to thank that my customers always speak well of me and my work. If you had the same kind of good old grand-dad and remember his good, sound advice, you will surely dynamite the ground before planting that orchard, unless the subsoil is already soft and porous, for if anything is worth doing well, it is orchard planting.

TAKING THE STRANGLE HOG INTO THE PENS.

Farmers should insist that all the stock hogs which they purchase for feeding purposes should be properly vaccinated by competent and conscientious veterinarians in order to prevent the spread of hog cholera. Unlike the larger stockyards of the country, which are properly protected by qualified government representatives, many of the smaller local yards are entirely without safeguards against cholera.

Immature hogs go from the farms of origin mainly because of lack of feed or on account of disease. The purchaser who buys such sick hogs on the market for feeding purposes usually introduces "disease into his home herd. To stimulate production and to conserve our available pork supply none but vaccinated, immunized, healthy hogs should be maintained in the feed lot.

The practice of buying hogs from public stockyards for feeding and shipping purposes has been a large factor in delaying the work of controlling hog cholera, says the United States Department of Agriculture experts. In many cases, owing to improper equipment for the treatment and disinfection of hogs, new centers of infection have been introduced in communities previously free from the disease, and the movement of hogs from public stockyards having no supervision by State or Federal authorities and where treatment for the prevention of cholera is not compulsory is a serious handicap in the fight to prevent the spread of infection. A menace still exists when hogs are brought at local stockyards where hog-cholera infection is present the year round and where a system of disinfection and immunization is either unknown or disregarded.

The use of cattle for harvesting corn succeeds very well if hogs are later turned in to clean up what the cattle may have left on the ground. Cattle may be used thus almost as successfully as sheep or hogs.

ESCALON GUERNSEYS WIN.

The Guernsey show was a walk-over for A. B. Humphrey of the Grape Veild farm of Escalon, his herd carrying away the major portion of the awards. Judge J. B. Fitch of Manhattan, Kan., spoke highly of the Guernsey show, even though it was not as as strong in numbers as some of the other breeds. L. D. Smith of Berkeley made a creditable showing although his string of cattle was not as large as that of Humphrey.

The complete Guernsey awards are as follows:

MILKING SHORTHORNS.

The milking Shorthorns turned out one of the good shows of the week with closer competition than the list of awards indicate. The Misses Alexander and Kellogg of Suisun, made a clean sweep of the championship honors, and in so doing had to pass some of the good individuals at the head of classes wherein they were not even contenders. Thomas Harrison of Santa Rosa, Cal., was put at the top of the aged bull class with his Foothills Pioneer by W. H. Pew of Ravenna, O., but Alexander & Kellogg nosed him out for grand champion. Creditable showings were also made by Leon F. Douglas of San Rafael, Cal.

THE AWARDS.

WYOMING HEREFORDS WIN.

In the Hereford breeding classes the strong herd of the Hereford Corporation of Cheyenne, Wyo., won the greatest honors, carrying off the premier awards in one of the strongest shows of the breed in the West. Harold Rice of the Hawaiian Islands slipped in a first prize winner in the senior bull calf class, but his young bull was a California reared and bred animal. Firsts were divided along down the line among the many creditable herds, but the championships went to the strong string from Wyoming. H. D. Mousel of Cambridge, Neb., who judged the Herefords, said that it had never been his pleasure to work in a ring of finer specimens of the breed than those that came before him in this class. The great size, vigor and finish of the individuals were not to be excelled in any show ring in America, he said.

THE AWARDS.

Bull, 3 years old or over, Hereford Corporation, on Wyoming Prince; bull, 2 years old and under 3, Charles Rule, Jenner, Cal., on Rosehampton 344h; senior yearling bull, J. M. FINE SHORTHORN DISPLAY.

Judge W. H. Pew of Ravenna, O., judge of Shorthorn cattle, pronounced the show of this breed one of the best he has ever judged and one of the best ever made in America. The sensation of the show was the great bull Gainsford Matchless, owned by the Caledonia farms of Sacramento, the big Shorthorn breeding estate established by Edward Cebrian of San Francisco. This wonderful bull was selected by Mr. Cebrian in Canada a few months ago and cost $12,000. Other exhibitors who made notable winnings were the estate of Thomas Dibblee of Santa Barbara, Henry M. Elberg, Woodland; Pacheco Cattle Company, Hollister; T. S. Glide, Davis; William A. Bond, Newark; T. T. Miller, Hollister and the Ormondale Company, Redwood City.

THE AWARDS:

FARM TRACTORS AND THE FOOD PROBLEM.

BY H. A. CRAFTS.

California this year is blessed with a most bountiful harvest. Farm, orchard, vineyard and garden, as a rule, show increased yields over last year.

Deciduous fruits in the October forecasts will yield as follows: Apples, 136 per cent.; peaches, 152 per cent.; pears, 115 per cent.; prunes, 278 per cent.; almonds, 125 per cent.; walnuts, 120 per cent.; raisins, 105 per cent. The wheat crop is the best in years. The barley crop will reach 35,500,000 bushels. The per acre average yield of barley is five bushels to the acre better than last year. The California rice crop is estimated at 8,659,000 bushels, a handsome increase over last year.

And so on, all along the big list of the State's annual products.

But in the face of all this bountiful harvest; in the face of restored world's peace; and in the face of the fight that has been going on against the high cost of living, the prices of foodstuffs are advancing.

In the San Francisco Bay zone eggs are commanding as high as $1 per dozen; flour recently advanced 40 cents per barrel. Live hogs have advanced 1 cent per pound in all [illegible] barley recently advanced 50 per ton, now holds the first of November advanced $1 per ton.

If the law of supply and demand still holds good the above showing would indicate that with all our bountiful supply there is a greater demand than supply.

And what is the lesson taught? Why that American farmers must raise more foodstuff, and then more.

But how are they to do it?

There is no new class embarking upon agricultural pursuits; we can expect but a small immigration of European farmers to our shores; there seems to be no improvement in the farm help situation.

It is probable, too, that large numbers of young men who were taken from the farms by the draft will fail to return to the paternal acres, and put their shoulders to the wheel again.

So the hope of increased production from our farms in the immediate future does not seem to be very brilliant.

There is one rift in the clouds, however, and that comes from the increased production and use of farm tractors, and auxiliary farm machinery. Every farm tractor that is made to take the place of horse power on the farm makes itself felt at once. Each forty-horse- power tractor takes the place of sixteen horses; each seventy-five-horse-power tractor takes the places of forty horses.

The tractor at a single stroke produces a vast increase of acreage cultivated; it brings about a big increase of product per acre by reason of deeper plowing and more thorough cultivation.

It saves man help and saves horse feed. It helps all through the year, at seeding time, hoeing time, harvesting time, threshing time and marketing time.

It plows, harrows, furrows out, cultivates, cuts, grain, rigs potatoes, digs beets, hauls crops to the barn, the stack and thence to warehouse, railroad or market. It is forever on the job. When it is not at work for one farmer it may work for another farmer. It pumps water, saws wood, grinds feed, bales hay, fills silos, digs ditches, lays drains, and threshes. It never gets sick, never lies down in the harness, never balks at the drawbar nor drive pulley.

During such time as it is idle it eats nothing, drinks nothing, nor will it grow rusty if even given only half care.

Farm Bureau Meeting.

and a gilt senior pig, first in her class at the Wisconsin State fair.

In the dairy cows, Mr. Gordon had for his subjects the Holstein bull, Merci Lad Korndyke Burke, first, and senior and grand champion at the recent Los Angeles Live Stock Show, and May Altoona Pontiac, second Holstein cow in the aged cow class at the same show, with a record of 27.6 pounds of butter fat in seven days and 111 pounds in thirty days, on yearly test.

The horses judged included the registered Baldwin thoroughbreds, Adalid and Reina De Santa Anita; the Arabians, Ibn Mahruss and Cibolo; the Arabian thoroughbreds, Mahrus and Mahnell-Mahdinas, and the Percherons Jusque and Althazar. The Baldwin Jack, Bersheba, was also used.

Following the live stock work came the speaking programme of the afternoon, with very capable addresses by the retiring president, Volney H. Craig, Maj. Charles T. Leeds and Carlyle Thorpe, manager of the California Walnut Growers' Association.

THE SPEAKING PROGRAMME.

Mr. Craig, who officially represented Los Angeles county at the recent Farm Bureau Federation at Berkeley is one of the three California representatives elected to attend the National Farm Bureau Federation at Chicago, for which meeting he left immediately following his address. He spoke forcefully on the plans and programme of the new State farmers' organization and the increasing importance of the part the farmer is to play in national affairs in the future. His plea was for a safe and sane programme and for extreme caution in involving the new organization in politics.

Maj. Leeds gave a splendid address on the subject of flood control, declaring that the fundamental problem involved was that of reforestation. His explanation of the vastness of the problem was enlightening to most of those present. His plea was for a broad, comprehensive plan to be evolved and then backed by the county as a unit.

Mr. Thirpe had for his subject "Some Relations Between the So-called Farmer Profiteer and the High Cost of Living." He denied that the farmer is a profiteer and urged that labor get down to work and produce more than it consumes. The constant tendency toward shorter hours of work and less efficiency he deprecated as one of ten main factors responsible for the present high cost of living. A surplus must be accumulated, he stated, before prices can drop. He recommended a great nation-wide publicity campaign to get people on the land.

Those in attendance at the meeting gave a vote of thanks to Mrs. Baldwin and her ranch superintendent, W. H. Taylor, for their courtesy in extending the use of the Santa Anita Rancho to the farm bureau.

HIGH PRODUCTION.

REDLANDS. — Redlands is generally known as a navel orange center as almost 4000 cars of navels are shipped from here each season. But there are many fine Valencia groves here that are heavy producers and it is believed locally that one of them is a record breaker. This is the seven acres of Valencias owned by Fred and Peter Arth. This year the 664 trees of the grove produced 9203 field boxes of oranges, or in the neighborhood of 6000 packed boxes. This is about fifteen carloads of fruit. These oranges sold for something over $30,000 in the eastern market, although the returns have not been checked up on them. The grove is stated to have produced close to $20,000 for the owners, or better than $2500 an acre. This figure is considered a fair valuation for most citrus groves in this section and at such a price the grove would pay for itself in one year. The trees have a good crop for the coming year. Plenty of fertilizer and good care did the work.

Arizona representatives at the World Cotton Conference at New Orleans have given the Arizona cotton industry much favorable advertising.

PROMPTLY TIGHTEN CONNECTING RODS.

If the connecting rods on the tractor are allowed to run loose, expensive trouble may result. As soon as a tapping noise is heard when the motor is running, generally indicating loose rods, stop work immediately, take off the rod caps, remove shims or drawfile as needed to make them sufficiently tight. When the caps will not show movement across the shaft, they are generally properly fitted. Allow some movement along the shaft.

Sometimes when the tractor is run for some length of time with loose rods the cap is loosened and the rod is thrust through the crank case, the piston following, with danger of breaking or badly springing the crank shaft. This would necessitate costly delay and repairs which would be obviated if the operator's ear were attuned to the knock indicating loose rods.

TRACTION

Power on a tractor is of little relative value unless it is applied to afford maximum traction. Traction is what counts. It is the primary reason for a tractor and TRACTION is the outstanding feature of the MONARCH Tractor. It has power—plenty of it—mechanical perfection, strength, ruggedness and, most essential of all, it has maximum traction delivered by means of the endless MONARCH tracks. These tracks enable the

to get over the ground with a greater grip than a dozen drive wheels. They have an irresistible creep that laughs at hills, grades and loads. In addition, the weight is so distributed that, inch for inch, it is no greater than the weight of an average man's foot. This means that the MONARCH Tractor will not pack the soil.

Where the Grades are Heavy and the Going is Hard

You can use the MONARCH Tractor everywhere. The secret of MONARCH power and success is in the TRACTION principle. Before you buy a tractor you should see the MONARCH 16-9—the logical tractor for the average farm—a combination of power and convenience. The rating is 16 H.P. on the belt pulley and 9 H. P. on the drawbar. Powerful enough to pull from two to three bottoms. It will turn in its own length and work where horses cannot go.

Do not confuse MONARCH Tractors with the so-called "track-laying" types. The track on the MONARCH is made of wear resisting manganese steel. We guarantee to duplicate for MONARCH Tractors any written warranty put out by any other responsible tractor manufacturer.

MONARCH Tractors are made in the following sizes: 16-9 H. P., 20-12 H. P. and 30-18 H. P.

MAKING USE OF ARROYO LANDS.

It is commonly considered that an arroyo across or bordered on a piece of land detracts from its property. There are a number of reasons, in fact why the average arroyo is both an eyesore and a detriment. It is usually a mass of weeds and brush. This weeds are necessary in that they use up a large amount of water that would otherwise run off and increase the size of the arroyo, making it deeper, wider and more unsightly and hazardous; they also contain a large amount of seeds that are carried and distributed also often a refuge for tramps and undesirables, besides being a fire risk. Such a condition of weeds and brush in the arroyo is a menace to the surrounding property in the event of a fire, and should be removed. In many cases the arroyo can be made a valuable asset to the property by proper handling. Many arroyos can be made to serve as roads, thus saving the cost of building roads elsewhere. Many arroyos can be made to serve as irrigation ditches, thus saving the cost of digging ditches elsewhere. Many arroyos can be made to serve as drainage ditches, thus saving the cost of digging ditches elsewhere. Many arroyos can be made to serve as sewers, thus saving the cost of building sewers elsewhere. Many arroyos can be made to serve as garbage dumps, thus saving the cost of hauling garbage elsewhere. SAN FRANCISCO'S SHOW ONE OF THE BEST EVE' HELD ON COAST.

SAN FRANCISCO.—The California International Live Stock Show held be November 1 to 8 was one of best showings of quality stock ever se a the Pacific Coast. Practically every ed of stock and poultry was representea with strong classes, and all during the week special night horse shows attracted great crowds. The old California building, was filled to overflowing with stock and agricultural exhibits and the record attendance for the week insures the future success of San Francisco as a show place for blooded stock.

It not only was a great show of breeding cattle, horses, sheep, swine, goats, rabbits and poultry, but also developed into a fat stock show of considerable proportions, carlots being in competitive display for the first time in Northern California. A feature of the carlot show was the winning of the Napa State Hospital pure-bred Berkshire lot over all breeds, grades and crosses. In the fat hog classes, the Berkshires won grand champion pen of barrows on three junior porkers shown by A. B. Humphrey of Escalon, Cal., who also had the junior champion barrow over all other breeds, but the grand champion single barrow was awarded to the fat Poland China shown by M. and A. L. Bassett of Hanford, Cal. The Western Meat Company, after winning the grand champion carlot of fat cattle and sheep, announced that the winnings would be given to charity, as the company did not want to be considered an exhibitor against stockmen, merely making this exhibit to encourage that department of the show.

Dean C. F. Curtiss of Ames, Iowa, who judged the fat cattle, said that he had never seen anything better go through the ring than the grand champion, California Perfect Lady, the cross-bred Hereford-Angus heifer that won the purple and will be taken to the International at Chicago by the University of California.

The show was featured by two pure-bred sales during the closing days, the California Shorthorn Breeders' Association selling thirty-one head at an average of $487.50, and the Pacific Coast Hereford Cattle Breeders' Association disposing of thirty-five animals for an average of $711, the latter being a Pacific Coast record price for this breed at public sale.

THE HOLSTEIN BLUEBLOODS.

Progeny of the world's famous cow, Tilly Alcartra, the greatest milk producing plant in all dairy history, made a sensational record in the Holstein show of the California International. Judge E. W. Major completed his work on the classes late yesterday afternoon. Tilly's son, King Morco Alcartra, owned by A. W. Morris & Sons of Woodland, was the grand champion bull of the show and her grandson, King Morco Alcartra Mead, was the reserve to the grand champion. Among dairy cattle breeders this is considered remarkable confirmation of the efficacy of seeking so-called dairy type, for Tilly has the right of a queen producer to the best of offspring.

H. E. Vogle of Fresno won the grand championship with the cow, Betsy Lamb Prilly, and reserve championship went to J. E. Phillips of Fresno on Josephine Johanna Oak DeKol

THE JERSEY SHOWING.

"What impressed me most of the Jersey cattle show was the fact that the cattle of this breed were shown by plain every-day farmers and not by fanciers," said Prof. J. B. Fitch of Manhattan, Kan., who judged this breed. "The Jersey breeders in the West are doing some good constructive breeding, and the class of cattle they brought into the ring was a credit to the breed. A creditable feature of the dairy show was the collection of grade Jersey cows shown by J. W. Coppini of Ferndale, Humboldt county, who has brought up the production in his herd more than double in a very short time by the use of pure-bred sires on grade cows." Mr. Fitch gave special mention to the grand champion bull and cow shown by J. E. Thorp of Lockeford, and the junior champion heifer, Jewel of Tingtagel, exhibited by M. Fortini of Orland.

THE AWARDS:

Bull, 3 years old or over—J. B. Thorpe on Jolly Senator Raleigh. Bull, 2 years old and under 3—Guy M. Miller, Modesto, on Jap's Perfection One. Senior yearling bull—E. F. TWO AYRSHIRE HERDS.

Although confined to two herds, the Ayrshire show was one of the strong features of the dairy cattle division of the California International, bringing out a fine lot of cattle. Prof. H. H. Kildee of Manhattan, Kan., who placed the awards, said that it was seldom his pleasure to go down the line on better classes of cattle. J. Henry Meyer of San Francisco and Watsonville put over most of the championship awards. As at the Los Angeles Live Stock Show, his senior bull calf, Elkhorn Public Opinion, was made grand champion over his Hole-

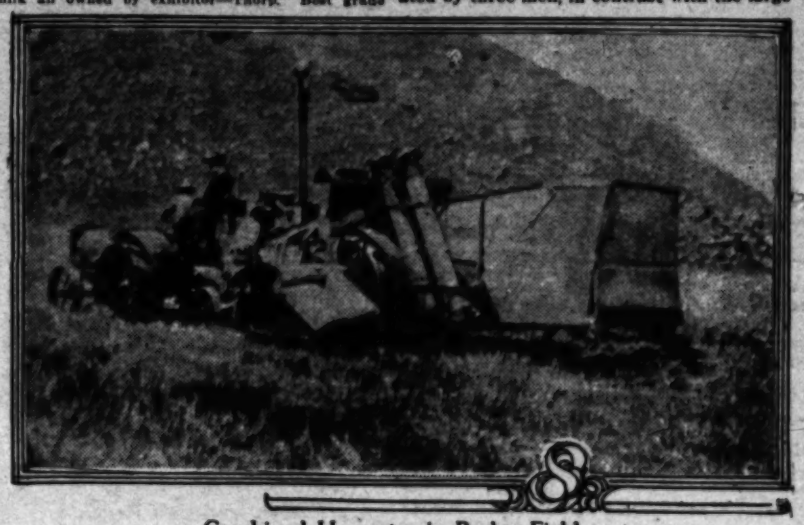
TRACTOR SAVES IN GRAIN HARVESTING.

J. J. Nelson, development agent for Imperial county, states that modern machinery has revolutionized the grain growing business in that region, where there were grown last season 1,600,000 sacks of barley, and over 100,000 sacks of wheat. Everything in Imperial is done on a wholesale scale—plowing, seeding and harvesting. Thirty-two horses formerly pulled the combined harvesters, but now a tractor does the work at one third the cost, and the outfit is operated by three men, in contrast with the large crews required in the former three operations, heading, hauling and stationary threshing.



Combined Harvester in Barley Field.

The photograph was taken on the ranch of J. W. McEwen in Perris Valley and shows a typical barley harvest outfit drawn by a Sandusky tractor.

In the Perris Valley where large acreages of grain are sown, tractors are supplanting horses on the "combines." One farmer states that the cost of harvesting with the combine and a tractor of 10-20 or 15-30 horse power is about 75 cents per acre compared to $2 an acre under the old method.

The United States has built up an increasingly large trade in dried fruits with Australasia, especially with New Zealand where the exports from the United States have increased from 3,325,214 pounds in 1914 to 9,205,028 pounds in 1918, or 177 per cent.

RICE EXPERIMENT INTERESTS GROWERS.

LONG BEACH.—An agricultural experiment that is being watched with interest by growers in this vicinity is that of the Montana Land Company in the production of rice. The company, which owns several thousand acres of land adjoining the Signal Hill district on the north and extending northeast to Los Alamitos, is now engaged in threshing the crop from a piece of ground some 110 acres in extent, which was put in rice with the idea of demonstrating just what could be done with this grain in the low, flat areas back of the coast line.

The company is noncommittal as to the results obtained, its representatives stating that opinions expressed before the actual checking up of yields, quality and costs of [illegible] Chapman, manager of the Hueneme, drove down to the ranch to see the machine in its maiden effort to give threshing in Southern California and to give the operators some pointers. Participating in the event were E. Brown, factory branch manager for the Los Angeles district; E. D. Spencer of Spencer, Morris & Haag, Los Angeles retail representatives of the big threshing machine company, and G. W. Sundberg, who is with the automobile department of this firm.

HOPS SURVIVE THE NATIONAL DROUTH.

Hops, after all, are not to die with John Barleycorn. This crop encountered an increasing number of States with laws pro-

The Transformation of an Unsightly Arroyo.

The photographs illustrate how Luther Lindauer, owner of a fine orange grove in the La Habra district, has converted a weed-choked depression into a promising fruitful orchard plot.

prohibiting the manufacture and sale of brewed liquors, the national law prohibiting the interstate transportation of such liquors, the war-time prohibition, and lastly the amendment to the Constitution.

The area devoted to hops declined from 44,700 acres in 1915 to 27,900 acres in 1918, and 26,000 acres in 1919, and the production dropped from 53,000,000 pounds in 1915 to 20,200,000 pounds in 1918. The war, too, reduced hop exports to a low figure. One large producer of hops in California took steps in 1918 to replace the apparently doomed crop with a large business in dehydrating vegetables.

The extremely low price of 12 cents a pound to producers was reached in December, 1916, and the December price of 1918, although 20 cents, was still low. On the contrary, in the autumn of 1919 a market of unprecedented buoyancy was created, mostly by British buyers, who, according to commercial reports, paid very high prices for the new crop and were glad to get old hops. The average price to producers, September 15, reported by the Bureau of Crop Estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture, was 58.5 cents. Nearly all of the crop is raised in New York, Washington, Oregon and California.

GOOD ROADS AID MARKETING.

The farmer interested in hauling his produce to market in the most economical fashion cannot afford to overlook the benefits derived from good roads. Investigations before and after the improvement of certain highways shows that the cost per ton-mile was practically cut in half by reason of the betterment of the road. In other words, good roads mean a big reduction in that part of overhead which covers hauling and hauling of some sort is being done practically the year round.

Little capital is required to produce a few hops and the profit comes quickly.

MAKING USE OF ARROYO LANDS.

It is commonly considered that an arroyo across or bordering on a piece of land detracts from the property. There are a number of reasons, in fact why the average arroyo is both an eyesore and a detriment. It is usually a mass of weeds and brush. The weeds are menace in that they use up fertility and moisture; they also scatter seed and increase the fire risk. Such a tangle of weeds and underbrush also offers a refuge for ground squirrels, which girdle the trees, dig holes, down which irrigation water is wasted, and do other damage.

Not every arroyo, however, is permitted to remain such a nuisance on the farm. Luther Lindauer, who owns one of the best young citrus groves in the La Habra district, has found a way to convert an arroyo from a liability into an asset.

The accompanying photographs illustrate what has been done by Mr. Lindauer with an arroyo on his place. The upper picture shows how the depression looked at the time the property was acquired; the lower, its present appearance.

At only a small expense Mr. Lindauer cut down the sloping sides and terraced them. Then he set out a family orchard of 150 trees. The very fact that the ground sloped made it possible to set out many more trees than would have fitted into a piece of level land of corresponding area. Mr. Lindauer estimates in fact that he has made an acre and a half of land from an acre in his arroyo. And as the bare land in the vicinity sells for $150 an acre, the bit of planted slope instead of being a liability is worth around $2200.

It is now possible to cultivate these terraces, and keep down the weeds and brush. It is also possible to trap the ground squirrels and gophers, much more easily than before when there was only a tangle of underbrush in the arroyo. Mr. Lindauer has set out cherries, grapes, peaches, pears, plums, figs, guavas, prunes, avocados, ap-

PROPOSE TO WATER VICTOR VALLEY LAND.

Holders of land and land claims in Victor Valley, San Bernardino county, are pleased over the prospects for an early settlement of the water supply problem for the valley. C. W. Wells, special agent for the Interior Department, has just finished a survey of the San Bernardino Mountain watershed in the vicinity of Little Bear Lake to determine the feasibility of watering parts of four sections west of Hesperia and south of Victorville with water stored in this lake.

Land holders and homesteaders have applied to the Interior Department to be allowed to take advantage of the Smith Act, passed in 1916, by which assessments against government claims are permitted for the purpose of securing a water supply. The people of that section are confident that the department will grant their request. The assessment, it is believed, will amount to from $75 to $100 an acre. The lands, it is believed, will be worth more than double this amount for alfalfa and deciduous fruit production if the necessary water is obtained.

BUYING SMALL TOOLS.

Few farmers realize the extent of their investment in small items of equipment, says the United States Department of Agriculture, or the inconvenience involved in buying them singly or in small lots. In planning the farm equipment, due consideration should be given to the necessary outlay for these minor tools. There is no better time for getting the list completed than the late fall, after harvest work is over. If possible, the articles should be purchased all in one order. This will save time and, usually, money. Also, it will entail a total expenditure sufficiently large to impress the buyer with the importance of giving systematic care to his small tools.

TRACTOR SAVES IN GRAIN HARVESTING.

A NEW BUG THAT IS KEEPING THE CORN BELT AWAKE NIGHTS.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

WASHINGTON.—The corn crop of America, one of the world's greatest food resources, is menaced by a strange bug. A foreign insect, the European corn-borer, which came into the country as a stowaway on ships some time during the war, has appeared in the truck fields near Boston and also in New York. Unchecked by any of the natural enemies that prey upon it in its native country, the insect is spreading at an alarming rate. Last summer only about 400 square miles near Boston were affected. There are now 1400 square miles which are infested with the new pest. If it continues to spread at this rate, in a few years it will reach the great corn growing regions of the Middle West, and when it does that, every American is likely to feel the malign power of this bug in the form of a corn famine.

Perhaps the greatest difficulty about fighting an insect pest in this country is that a small inconspicuous bug does not lend himself to advertising. He has no hold upon the popular imagination. If a pest of tigers or rattlesnakes should appear in New England or New York, there would be no difficulty in getting the men and the money with which to fight them. The newspapers would play them up in big headlines, State Legislatures would hold extra sessions to make appropriations, volunteers would hurry to the scene armed to the teeth. Even a sudden influx of birds or small rodents, which threatened to destroy an important crop, would get a fair share of attention—as would anything, in fact, which could be seen and photographed. But a mere bug, which lives inside of a stalk of corn, doesn't get any attention except from a few farmers who are immediately affected and a few scientists who made a life business of fighting bugs.

Boston housewives have noticed this year that a remarkably large percentage of sweet corn offered in the local markets is worm eaten. That is about all the notice the European corn-borer has received outside of the areas where he is at work, raising his little family of 500 or 600 children twice a year, and getting ready to devour the corn crop upon which we have always relied to fatten our beef and pork.

Unless millions are spent within the next few years to check his ravages, this bug will surely make meat scarce and expensive, and he may cause something like panic in a large part of the United States.

The plain fact of the matter is that the insects are man's most dangerous enemies on earth, and the only ones which can dispute his control of nature. Every other creature either scuttles out of sight when the lord of the earth comes along, or else works for him in a humble spirit. But the mosquito calmly perches on his nose and pours into his veins the deadly poison of malaria; the house travels with his armies, infects them with typhus and kills more of them than does the enemy; the fly lives in the same house with him and brings typhoid fever as part of his baggage. The San Jose scale, the cotton boll weevil, the gypsy moth, the pink weevil, and the Hessian fly devour millions of dollars worth of crops right under his eyes and he is unable to stop them. The insects are eating us up and killing us off, but because they are small and inconspicuous, and we are too dull to appreciate anything that is not large and noisy, we let them get away with it.

This new importation from Europe is described by scientists as the most serious insect pest that has yet struck us. In its mature stage it is a moth. This moth lays eggs upon the leaves and stalks of young corn during the summer and also upon some other food plants and weeds. In a few days the eggs hatch out as caterpillars. The caterpillars have a happy faculty of boring into the center of a stalk of corn, and also into the ears. They devour the grain, sap the vitality of the stalk, and sometimes cause it to rot and die. The loss is often more than 50 per cent. and may be almost total. A million borers have been estimated to inhabit an acre of corn.

The borer spends the winter in the corn stalk, and toward spring rolls himself up in a cocoon of his own manufacture. After a brief sleep he (or she) hatches out as a moth and starts the process all over again. The moth lives only a month or most, but in that time it finds a mate and the pair produce from 300 to 1300 eggs.

It is the moths that cause the spread of the pest. When they first hatch out, they get up in the air and fly. Often wind helps them along. The fact that an infested area of 400 square miles was more than tripled as the result of two hatchings of moths will give you an idea of how far these creatures can travel. It would not take many generations for them to cross the continent, populating it as they went.

The weak spot in the corn borer's way of life is his habit of spending the winter in a dry corn stalk. By burning all the corn stalks in an infected area, and also all the other stalks of plants in which the borer hibernates, he could theoretically be exterminated in a single season. Theoretically, but not practically! Last year the State of Massachusetts spent $75,000 and the State of New York $20,000, burning up infected stubble and fodder and weeds. They had quite a little army of men in the field, and directed by scientists, from the Bureau of Entomology here. In spite of these efforts, as before mentioned, the borer managed to extend his range over 300 per cent.

The Bureau of Entomology is now asking Congress to appropriate $500,000 for a grand assault on the infested areas in New York and New England next year. W. R. Walton, who is in charge of the work, says that the amount is really too small. It would pay to spend $5,000,000 if the ravages of the borer could be checked, for the damage he is doing will quickly reach a much larger figure than that. But with the half million an experiment can be tried on a fairly large scale and perhaps a method of combating the pest can be worked out. The scientists will hire thousands of laborers this fall, if they get the appropriation, and will make a special effort to burn up infected material along the edge of the infested area. What is too wet to burn will be steamed. At the same time some work will be done all through the infested area.

The scientists say frankly that they do not believe the borer can be exterminated. Man can exterminate almost any other animal, and has exterminated a good many of them.

California Beef Cattle History Made on This Ranch.

Much has been said, in a general way, about the possibilities of California as a beef producing State, but little has been done to demonstrate what California can do under intensive cultivation to equal if not to outreach many of the Middle Western States in the production of beef and pork. That there are wonderful possibilities in the production of meat animals in California is conceded by all who have any knowledge of what has been done in this line in this State.

Impressive proof of these possibilities is to be found in a large number of successful California ranching projects and of these one of the most notable is that carried on by the estate of Thomas B. Dibblee on its San Julian ranch.

This great ranch, containing 25,000 acres, lies fifty miles north of Santa Barbara, between the State highway and the village of Lompoc. It joins a large tract of land purchased about a year ago by the safety razor magnate, King C. Gillett.

LANDS ARE PRODUCTIVE.

As you top the mountain grade, and begin to drop down into this great ranch, you are struck by the fertility and productiveness of the soil.

It was a revelation to me to see the bean crop just before the harvest. The crop in many of the bean centers of Ventura and Orange counties was far below normal this year, due to the shortage of rain last winter, and the absence of customary amount of fog this summer, but the San Julian bean crop was above average. John Troup, manager of the ranch, attributed the great bean crops of the San Julian to the great amount of fog that gets up in the hills, but the evidences of careful cultivation were everywhere to be seen.

When you begin to near the ranch house great fields of corn and alfalfa unfold to the view. And all around as far as the eye can see cattle dot the landscape.

When you get over into the corn fields and see the corn stalks standing twelve feet high and over, with two and three ears to the stalk, and drive into the alfalfa fields and see hay that will go two tons to the acre per cutting, and realize that there is no danger of frost to injure the corn crop, or rain to injure the hay crop, you ask yourself "is there any other section in the United States so favorable for the production of feed for cattle as are parts of California?"

Of the 25,000 acres in the ranch approximately 8000 acres is under cultivation. Around 5000 acres is in meadow, and there are 12,000 acres of range land. The principle crops are beans, barley, oats, corn and alfalfa.

WINNERS IN HERD.

A large herd of Shorthorn cattle is maintained, there being over 2000 head of high-grade cows on the ranges. Nothing but registered Shorthorn bulls have been used for forty years, with the result that this herd is one of exceptionally high merit.

A herd numbering about seventy-five registered Shorthorn males and females is maintained to supply high-class bulls for the range. This herd under the careful supervision of Mr. Troup, stands second to none on the Pacific Coast.

At the Liberty Fair and Los Angeles Live Stock Show in Los Angeles, and at the 1918 and 1919 California State Fair this herd was awarded a large number of ribbons.

One of the winning animals on this ranch is Hallwood Flash, a big, fine roan bull, who won first in his class, and was made senior champion at the 1919 California State Fair and the Los Angeles Live Stock Show. Another heavy winner of the herd, is Bashan Augusta, who was grand champion at both the Los Angeles Live Stock show and the 1919 California State Fair.

No pains or expense have been spared in getting the best to be had in maintaining the high quality of this herd.

BUYS FINE ANIMALS.

A fine imported bull, imported Grand Gallant, was recently purchased. He was bred by J. Ernest Kerr of Harveston Castle, Dollar, Scotland, and is of the Short Roan Lady family.

A fine imported heifer, Bright Eyes 2d, Collynie, was also purchased. She was bred by William Duthie, one of the most noted Shorthorn breeders in Scotland. Imported Cecilia, another fine heifer of the Clipper family, was recently purchased. She was bred by Lady Cathcart, of Cluny Castle, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, one of the most famous breeders in Scotland.

Other purchases have been made, from such noted herds as the Anoka Farms, owned by Frank Harding of Waukesha, Wis., secretary of the Shorthorn Breeders' Association. From McMillan and McMillan, Lodi, Wis., was recently acquired a young bull out of a straight Rosewood dam, and sired by Village Marquis, a son of the great bull, Villager.

A carload of bulls was recently sold to the John Clay 7I Ranch, Rawlins, Wyo.

Several shipments have been made to Panama, and recently seven carloads of steers were shipped to a packing firm in Spokane, Wash.

Mr. Troup showed me some dressed beef from the ranch, beef which was raised on the range and had never had a mouthful of grain. The meat was thick, juicy and tender, and of the kind that comes from "stall-fed" beef in Iowa or Illinois. It seems incredible that grass alone would produce such prime beef.

CLYDESDALES BRED.

A fine stud of registered Clydesdale horses is also maintained, to furnish draft horses for the ranch. Two imported stallions and ten registered mares, as well as a large number of high-class grade mares are kept. The San Julian Clydesdale, Bonnie Edward, took champion stallion at the Los Angeles Live Stock Show.

There is a flock of 250 Blackface ewes on this ranch, headed by registered rams from Anoka Farms, and the Dexter Grey Farm of Janesville, Wis.

The San Julian ranch is well watered from springs and creeks. Live oak, sycamore and walnut trees are to be seen on every hand.

The old Spanish ranch house is still in use, and is extremely picturesque, with its open court, winding verandas and open fireplaces. A beautiful and luxuriant lawn and flower garden is maintained at the front of the house, and a wonderful vegetable garden is cared for at the rear. This last is a credit both to the soil and to the gardener in charge.

BERKSHIRE SALE IS WELL ATTENDED.

Berkshire hogs are growing in popularity with western swine raisers. This was amply demonstrated by the good attendance and spirited bidding at the sale of bred sows, gilts and young boars held under the auspices of the Western Berkshire Congress on Wednesday of the Live Stock Show.

At this sale thirty fine young animals were placed on the block by Ord Leachman, auctioneer, the lot averaging $131 apiece. One, Castlevjew Premier Belle, offered by J. Francis O'Connor of Santa Rosa, brought $510, and was purchased by F. L. Hall of Perris. She was Junior Champion sow at the California State Fair.

Among the heavy buyers at the sale were D. J. Bastanchury of Fullerton, one of the owners of the 2200-acre Bastanchury ranch orange grove; the California Truck Company, Los Angeles; Italian Vineyard Company, Guasti; Whittier State School, and George A. Stingle of El Monte. Those offering swine at the show were, F. L. Hall, Perris; A. B. Humphrey, Escalon; Frank B. Anderson, Sacramento; William T. Chapple, Fair Oaks Ranch, Willits; J. Francis O'Connor, Santa Rosa; G. F. Donsing, Rio Linda; George A. Murphy, Perkins and the Italian Vineyard Company.

An Interesting Experiment in Rice Growing.

(1) Rice stand on Montana Land Company ranch near Long Beach. The photograph was taken just before cutting. The hundred-acre field was flooded late in May and kept under water until a month ago when it was drained. Harvesting began as soon as the ground had dried sufficiently to permit of the use of horses and machinery. Threshing is still under way.

(2) A bit of the field from which the water has not been entirely drained away. The combination of water and food in the rice field has an irresistible lure for ducks, which are a source of trial and loss to the grower wherever rice is produced.

Loading the shocks in the field to be hauled to the thresher. The company plans to turn sheep into the stubble.

(4) The rice-threshing outfit in action on the Montana Land Company ranch. The tractor-driven machine keeps the field wagons busy throughout the working hours.

(5) The thresher is of a type especially designed for the handling of rice and is said to be the first of its kind ever seen in operation in Southern California. The men in the foreground are filling and tying sacks of the grain, which before it reaches the consumer must be hulled and polished.

(6) Rice straw is much used for packing purposes and has also proven useful in the feeding of stock. The wind stacker blows it into a great stack well away from the men working at the thresher. Note the pile of sacked ric
